power, which they knew well enough, was so much the more excellent worldly helpe joyned with it. ^d By plaine evidence he meaneth such a proofe, as is made by certaine and necessarie reasons. ³ And he telleth the Corinthians that he did it for their great profit, because they might thereby know manifestly that the Gospel was from heaven. Therefore he privily rebuketh them, because that in seeking vaine ostentation, they willingly deprived themselves of the greatest helpe of their faith. ⁴ Another argument taken of the nature of the thing, that is of the Gospel, which is true wisdom, but known to them onely which are desirous of perfection: and is unflattering to them which otherwise excell in the world, but yet vainly and frailty. ^e These are called perfect here, not which had gotten perfection already, but such as tend to it, as Phil. 3. 15. so that perfect, is set against weak. ^f They that are wiser, richer, or mightier then other men are. ⁵ He sheweth therefore why this wisdom cannot be perceived of those excellent worldly wits, to wit, because indeed it is so deepe, that they cannot attaine unto it. ⁶ 8 Another objection / But how could it be that those wittie men could not perceive this wisdom? Paul answereth: Because we preach those things which passe all mens understanding.

i Man cannot so much as thinke on them, much less conceive of them with his senses.

9 A question: If it surmount the capacite of men, how can it be understood of any man, or how can you declare and preach it? by a peculiar lightning by Gods Spirit, wherewith whoeuer is inspired, he can enter even into the very secrets of God.

k There is nothing so secret and hidden in God, but the Spirit of God perceiveth into it.

10 He fetcheth that forth by a similitude, which he spake of the inspiration of the Spirit. As the force of mans wit searcheth out things pertaining to man, so doeth our mind by that power of the holy Ghost understand heavenly things.

l The minde of man which is endued with the abilitie to understand and judge.

11 The Spirit which we have received, doeth not teach us things of this world, but lifteth us up to God, and thus place teacheth us against the Papists, what saith he, from whence it cometh, and what force it is of.

12 That which he spake generally he restraineth now to those things which God hath opened unto us of our salvation in Christ: lest that any man should separate the Spirit from the preaching of the word and Christ: or should thinke that those fantastical men are governed by the Spirit of God, which wandering besides the word thrust upon us their vaine imaginations for the secrets of God.

n The word (know) is taken here in his proper sense, for true knowledge, which the Spirit of God worketh in us. 12. Now he returneth to his purpose, and concludeth the argument which he beganne verse 6, and it is this: The words must be applied to the matter, and the matter must be set forth with words which are meete and convenient for it: now this wisdom is spirituall and not of man, and therefore it must be delivered by a spirituall kind of teaching, and not by entitling words of mans eloquence, that the simple, and yet wonderfull majestie of the holy Ghost may therein appeare.

* Chap. 1. 17. 2. Cor. 1. 16. Applying the words unto the matter, to wit, that as we teach spirituall things, so must our kind of teaching be spirituall.

13 Again he preventeth an offence or stumbling block: How cometh it to passe, that so few allow these things? This is not to be marvelled at, saith the Apostle, seeing that men in their naturall powers (as they terme them) are not endued with that facultie whereby spirituall things are discerned (which facultie cometh another way) and therefore they account spirituall wisdom as folly: and it is as if he should say, it is no marvel that blind men cannot judge of colours, seeing that they lack the sight of their eyes, and therefore light is to them as darkenesse.

p The man that hath no further light of understanding, then that which he brought with him, even from his mothers wombe as Iude defined him, Jude 19.

q By the veritie of the holy Ghost. 14 He amplifieth the matter by contraries.

r Undeniedly and discerneth. 15 The wisdom of the flesh, saith Paul; determineth nothing certainly, no not in it owne affaires, much lesse can it discern strange, that is, spirituall things. But the Spirit of God, wherewith spirituall men are endued, can be deceived by no means, and therefore be reproveth of no man.

s Esa. 40. 13. Rem. 11. 34. 16 A reason of the former saying: for he is called spirituall, which hath learned that by the veritie of the Spirit, which Christ hath taught us. Now if that which we have learned of that Master, could be reproveth of any man: he must needs be wiser then God: whereupon it followeth, that they are not onely foolish, but also wicked, which thinke that they can devise something that is either more perfect, or that they can teach the wisdom of God a better way then they knew or taught, which undoubtedly were induced with Gods Spirit.

t Lay his head to his, and teach him what he should do. u We are endued with the Spirit of Christ, who openeth unto us these secrets, which by all other means are unsearchable, and also all truth whatsoever.

CHAP. III.

1 He giveth a reason why he preached small masters unto them:

4 He sheweth how they ought to esteeme of ministers. 6 The ministers office.

10 A true forme of edifying. 16 He warneth the Corinthians, that they be not drawn away to profane things.

18 Through the proud wisdom of the flesh.

1 Having declared the worthines of heavenly wisdom, and of the Gospel, and having generally condemned the blindness of mans minde, now at length he applyeth it particularly to the Corinthians, calling them carnall, that is, such in whom as yet the flesh prevaileth against the Spirit. And he bringeth a double testimonie of it: first, for that he had proved them to be such, in so much that he dealt with them no otherwise then with ignorant men, and such as are almost babes in the doctrine of godlinesse, and secondly, because they shewed in deed by these diffusions, which sprang up by reason of the ignorance of the veritie of the Spirit, and heavenly wisdom, that they had profited very little or nothing.

9 But as it is written, * The things which eye hath not seene, neither eare hath heard, neither came into mans heart, are, which God hath prepared for them that love him.

10 But God hath revealed them unto us by his Spirit: for the spirit searcheth all things, yea, the deepe things of God.

11 For what man knoweth the things of a man, save the spirit of a man, which is in him? even so the things of God knoweth no man, but the Spirit of God.

12 Now we have received not the spirit of the world, but the spirit, which is of God, that we might know the things that are given to us of God,

13 Which things also we speake, not in the words which mans wisdom teacheth, but which the holy Ghost teacheth, comparing spirituall things with spirituall things.

14 But the naturall man perceiveth not the things of the Spirit of God, for they are foolishnesse unto him: neither can he know them, because they are spiritually discerned.

15 But he that is spirituall, discerneth all things: yet he himselfe is judged of no man.

16 For who hath knowen the minde of the Lord, that he might instruct him? But we have the mind of Christ.

to carnall, even as unto babes in Christ.

2 I gave you milk to drink, and not meat: for ye were not yet able to beare it, neither yet now are ye able.

3 For ye are yet carnall: for where as there is among you envying, and strife, and divisions, are ye not carnall, and walk as men?

4 For when one sayth, I am Pauls, and another, I am Apollos, are ye not carnall?

5 Who is Paul then? and who is Apollos, but the ministers by whom ye beleaved, and as the Lord gave to every man?

6 I have planted, Apollos watered, but God gave the increase.

7 So then, neither is he that planteth, any thing, neither he that watereth, but God that giveth the increase.

8 And he that planteth, and he that watereth, are one: * and every man shall receive his wages, according to his labour.

9 For we together are Gods labourers, ye are Gods husbandrie, and Gods building.

10 According to the grace of God given to me, as a skilful master builder, I have laid the foundation, and another buildeth thereon: * but let every man take heed how he buildeth upon it.

11 For other foundation can no man lay, then that which is laid, which is Jesus Christ.

12 And if any man build on this foundation, gold, silver, precious stones, timber, hay, or, stubble, 13 Every mans work shall be made manifest: for the day shall declare it, because it shall be revealed by the fire: & the fire shall trie every mans work of what sort it is.

14 If any mans work, that he hath built upon, abide, he shall receive wages.

Lord buildeth, but by the hands of his workemen, some of whom he useth in laying the foundation, others in building of it up. Now, both the similitudes tend to this purpose, to shew that all things are wholly accomplished by Gods onely authoritie and might, so that we must onely have an eye to him. Moreover, although that God useth some in the better part of the worke, we must not therefore contemne other, in respect of them, and much lesse may we divide or set them apart, (as these factious men did) seeing that all of them labor in Gods businesse, and in such sort, that they serve to finish one lesse same worke, although by a divers manner of working, in so much that they need one anothers helpe.

* Tsal. 62. 12. Gal. 6. 5. Serving under him: Now they which serve under another, doe nothing of their owne strength, but as it is given them by grace, which grace maketh them fit to that service. Look Chap. 15. 10. and 2 Cor. 3. 6. and all the increase that cometh by their labour, doth so proceed from God, that no part of the praise of it may be given to the under servant.

4 Now he speaketh to the teachers themselves, which succeeded him in the Church of Corinth, and in their person to all that were after: or shall be Pastors of Congregations, seeing that they succeed into the labor of the Apostles, which were planters and chiefe builders. Therefore he warneth them first, that they persuade not themselves that they may build after their owne fantasie, that is, that they may propound and set fourth any thing in the Church, either in matter, or in kind of teaching, different from the Apostles which were the chiefe builders.

5 Moreover, he sheweth what this foundation is, to wit, Christ Jesus, from whence they may not turne away one iota in the building up of this building. 6 Thirdly, he sheweth, that they must take heed that the upper part of the building be answerable to the foundation, that is, that admonitions, exhortations, and whatsoever pertaineth to the edifying of the flock, be answerable to the doctrine of Christ, as well in matter as in forme: which doctrine is compared to gold, silver, and precious stones: of which matter, Esaias also and Iohn in the Revelation build the heavenly cite. And to these are opposit, wood, hay, stubble, that is to say, carnall and vaine questions or decrees, besides, to be short, all that kind of teaching which serveth to ostentation. For false doctrine, wherof he speaketh not here, are not said properly to be built upon this foundation, unless peradventure in the way onely. 7 He testifieth as indeed the truth is, that all are not good builders, no not some of them which stand upon this one and onely foundation: but howsoever this worke of evil builders, saith he, stand for a season, yet shall it not stand, because the light of the truth appearing at length a day, shall dissolve this darkenesse, and shew what it is. And as that stufte is tryed by the fire, wherby it be good or not, so will God in this time, by the touch of his Spirit and word, raise buildings, and so shall it come to passe, that such as be found pure and sound, shall continue to the praise of the workman: but they that are otherwise, shall be consumed and vanish away: and so shall the workman be frustrate of the hope of his labour, which pleased himselfe in a thing of naught.

a He calleth them carnall, which are as yet ignorant, and therefore to expresse it the better, he termeth them babes. b Substantiall meat, or strong meat. c To be fed by me with substantiall meat: therefore as the Corinthians grew up in age, so the Apostle nourished them by teaching, a first with milke, and then with strong meat, which difference was onely but in the manner of teaching.

d By the square and compasse of mans wit and judgement. 2 After that he hath sufficiently reprehended ambitious teachers, and their foolish esteemes, now he sheweth, how the true ministers are to be esteemed, that we attribute not unto the more or lesse then we ought to do. Therefore he teacheth us, that they are they by whom we are brought to faith and salvation, but yet as the ministers of God, and such as doe nothing of themselves, but God so working by them as it pleaseth him to furnish them with his gifts.

Therefore we have not to marke or consider what minister it is that speaketh, but what is spoken: and we must depend only upon him which speaketh by his servants.

3 He becometh a former sentence, with two similitudes: first comparing the company of the faithful to a field which God maketh fruitful, wher it is sowed and watered through the labor of his servants: next, by comparing it to an house which indeed the 8 He taketh not away hope of salvation from the unskillful & foolish builders, which build fast the foundation, of which sort were those rhetoricians of Corinth: but he addeth an exception, that they must notwithstanding suffer this fall of their works, and also abide the loss of their vaine labours.

* Chap. 6. 19.

2 Corinth. 6. 16.

9 Continuing still in the metaphor of a building, he teacheth us that this ambition is not only vaine, but also sacrilegious: for he saith that the Church is, as it were, the Temple of God, which God hath, as it were, consecrated unto himselfe by his Spirit. Then turning himselfe to these ambitious men, he sheweth that they profane the Temple of God, because those vaine artes wherein they please themselves so much, are as he teacheth, so many pollutions of the holy doctrine of God, and the puritie of the Church. Which wickedness shall not be suffered unpunished.

f Defileth it, and maketh it unclean, being holy: and surely they do defile it, by Paul his judgement, which by fleshy eloquence defile the puritie of the Gospel.

10 He concludeth by the contrary, that they professe pure wisdom in the Church of God, which refuse and cast away all those vanities of men; and if they be mocked of the world, it is sufficient for them that they be wise according to the wisdom of God, and as he will have them to be wise.

* 1 Cor. 1. 13.

g Be they never so craftie, yet the Lord will take them when he shall discover their treachery.

* Psal. 44. 11.

11 He returneth to the proposition of the 2. verse, first warning the hearers, that henceforward they esteeme not as lords, those whom God hath appointed to be ministers, and not lords of their salvation: which thing they do, that depend upon men, and not upon God that speaketh by them.

h Please himselfe.

i Helps appointed for your benefit.

12 He putteth from the persons to the things themselves, that his argument may be more forcible: yea, he ascendeth from Christ to the Father, to shew that we rest our selves, not in Christ himselfe, in that that he is man, but because he careth us up even to the Father, as Christ himselfe of himselfe every where, that he was sent of his Father, that by this band we may be all knit with God himselfe.

15 If any mans work burn, he shall lose, but he shall be saved himselfe: nevertheless yet as it were by the fire.

16 Know ye not that ye are the Temple of God, and that the spirit of God dwelleth in you?

17 If any man destroy the Temple of God, him shall God destroy: for the Temple of God is holy, which ye are.

18 Let no man deceive himselfe: If any man amongst you seeme to be wise in this world, let him be a fool, that he may be wise.

19 For the wisdom of this world is foolishness with God: for it is written, * He catcheth the wise in their own craftiness.

20 And againe, the Lord knoweth that the thoughts of the wise be vaine.

21 Therefore let no man rejoyce in men: for all things are yours.

22 Whether it be Paul, or Apollos, or Cephas, or the world, or life, or death, whether they be things present, or things to come, even all are yours, 23 And ye Christs, and Christ Gods.

CHAP. IV.

1 Bringing in the definition of a true Apostle, 7 he sheweth that humility ought rather to be an honour than a shame unto him.

9 He bringeth in a prooffe, whereby it may evidently appear 10 that he neither had care of glory, 11 nor of his belly.

17 He commendeth Timothy.

Let a man so thinke of us, as of the Ministers of Christ, and disposers of the secrets of God:

2 And as for the rest, it is required of the disposers, that every man be found faithfull.

3 As touching me, I passe very little to be judged of you, or of mans judgement: no, I judge not mine own selfe.

4 For I know nothing by my selfe, yet am I not thereby justified: but he that judgeth me, is the Lord.

5 Therefore judge nothing before the time, untill the Lord come, who will lighten things that are hid in darkness; and make the counsels of the hearts manifest: & then shall every man have praise of God.

6 Now these things, brethren, I have figuratively applyed unto mine own selfe, and Apollos, for your sakes, that ye might learne by us, that no man presume above that which is written, that one swell not against another for any mans cause.

7 For who separateth thee? and what hast thou, that thou hast not received? if thou hast received it, why rejoycest thou, as though thou hadst not received it?

8 Now ye are full: now ye are made rich: ye reigne as Kings without us, and would to God ye did reigne; that we also might reigne with you.

9 For I thinke that God hath set forth us the last Apostles, as men appointed to death, for we are made a gasing stock unto the world, and to the Angels, and to men.

10 We are fooles for Christs sake, and ye are wise in Christ: we are weak, and ye are strong: ye are honourable, and we are despised.

11 Unto this houre we both hunger and thirst, and are naked, and are buffeted, and have no certaine dwelling place,

12 And labour, working with our own hands: we are reviled, and yet we blesse: we are persecuted, and suffer it:

13 We are evil spoken of, and we pray: we are made as the filth of the world, the offcowering of all things unto this time.

14 I write not these things to shame you, but as my beloved children I admonish you.

15 For though ye have ten thousand instructors in Christ, yet have ye not many fathers: for in Christ Jesus I have begotten you through the Gospel.

16 Wherefore, I pray you, be ye followers of me.

17 For this cause have I sent unto you Timotheus, which is my beloved sonne, & faithfull in the Lord, which shall put you in remembrance of my wayes in Christ, as I teach every where in every Church.

18 Some are puffed up as though I would not come unto you.

19 But I will come to you shortly, if the Lord will, and will know, not the words of them which are puffed up, but the power.

his successor, let him compare the delicats of the Topis court, with Saint Pauls state; as we see in here.

* Acts 20. 34. 1 Thess. 2. 9. 2 Thess. 3. 3. * Matth. 5. 44. Luke 23. 34. Acts 7. 60. b Such as by sleeping is gathered together.

10 Mocking the sharpness of his mock, he putteth them in mind to remember of whom they were begotten in Christ, and that they should not doubt to follow him for an example, although he seeme vile, according to the outward shew in respect of others, yet mighty by the efficacy of Gods Spirit, as they had had trial thereof in themselves.

11 Last of all he descendeth also to Apostolique threatenings, but yet chiding them as a father, left by their disorder he be constrained to come to punish some amongst them.

12 By words, he meaneth their painted and coloured kinds of eloquence, against which he setteth the vertue of the Spirit:

6 A third reason proceeding of a conclusion, as it were, out of the former reasons. It is Gods office to esteeme every man according to his value, because he knoweth the secrets of the heart, which men, for the most part, are ignorant of. Therefore this judgement pertaineth not to you.

* Matth. 7. 1.

d One could not be praised above the rest, but the other should be blamed; and he mentioneth praise rather than dispraise, for that the beginning of this fore was that, that they gave more to some men, then meet was.

7 Having rejected their judgement, he setteth forth himselfe againe as a singular example of modestie, as one which concealing in this Epistle those factious teachers names, doubted not to put down his own name and Apollos in their place, and tooke upon him as it were their shame: so farre was hee from preferring himselfe to any.

e By our example, which chose rather to take other mens faults upon us, then to carpe any by name.

8 He sheweth a good meane to bridle pride: first, if thou consider how rightly thou exemptest thy selfe out of the number of others, feeling thou art a man thy selfe: againe, if thou consider that although thou have some thing more then other men have, yet thou hast it not but by Gods bountifullness.

And what wise man is hee that will bragge of anothers goodness, and that against God?

f There is nothing then in us of nature, that is worthy of commendation: but all that we have, we have it of grace; which the Pelagians and false Pelagians will not confesse.

9 He descendeth to a most grave mocke, to cause those ambitious men to blush, even against their will.

g He that will take a right waye how like Paul, and the Pope are, who lyingly boasteth that hee is 12 By words, he meaneth their painted and coloured kinds of eloquence, against which he setteth the vertue of the Spirit:

1 He concludeth the duty of the hearers towards their Ministers: that they esteeme them not as lords: and yet notwithstanding, that they give care unto them, as to them that are sent from Christ, sent, I say, to this end and purpose, that they may receive as it were at their hands, the treasure of salvation which is drawn out of the secrets of God.

a Every man.

2 Last of all, he warneth the ministers, that they also behave themselves not as lords, but as faithfull servants, because they must render an account of their stewardship unto God.

3 Because in reprehending others, he set himselfe for an example, he sheweth that he careth not for the contrary judgements that they have of him, in that they esteemed him as a vile person, because he did not set forth himselfe as they did. And he bringeth good reasons why he was nothing moved with the judgements which they had of him.

4 First, because that which men judge in these cases of their own braines, is no more to be accepted of, then when the unlearned doe judge of wisdom.

6 Word for word, Day, after the manner of the speech of the Ciceronian.

5 Secondly, sayth he, how can ye judge how much or how little I am to be accepted of, seeing that I my selfe which know my selfe better then you doe, and which dare professe that I have walked in my vocation with a good conscience, dare not yet notwithstanding challenge any thing to my selfe? for I know that I am not unblameable, all this notwithstanding: much lesse therefore should I please my selfe as you doe.

6 I permit myselfe to the Lords judgements.

12 A passing over to another part of this Epistle, wherein he reprehendeth most sharply a very hainous offence, shewing the use of Ecclesiasticall correction.

1 Meekly affected toward you.

20 For the kingdome of God is not in word, but in power.

21 12 What will ye? shall I come unto you with a rod, or in love, and in the¹ spirit of meeknesse?

CHAP. V.

1 That they have winked at him who committed incest with his mother in law. 2. 6 he sheweth, should cause them rather to be ashamed, then to rejoyce. 10 Such kind of wickednesse is to be punished with excommunication, 12 left others be infected with it.

IT is¹ heard certainly that there is fornication among you: and such fornication at is not once named among the Gentiles, that one should have his fathers wife.

2 And ye are puffed up, and have not rather sorrowed, that hee which hath done this deed, might be put from among you.

3 For I verily as absent in body, but present in^a spirit, have determined already, as though I were present, that he that hath thus done this thing,

4 When ye are gathered together, and my spirit, in the^b Name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that such one, I say, by the power of our Lord Jesus Christ,

5 Be^c delivered unto Satan, for the^d destruction of the flesh, that the spirit may be saved in the day of the Lord Jesus.

6 7 Your rejoycing^e is not good: know ye not that a little leaven leaveneth the whole lump?

7 8 Purge out therefore the old leaven, that ye may be a new^f lump, as ye are unleavened: for Christ our^g paschever is sacrificed for us.

8 Therefore let us keep the^h feast, not with old leaven, neither in the leaven of malicioufnesse and wickednesse: but with the unleavened bread of sinceritie and truth.

9 9 I wrote unto you in an Epistle, that ye should not companie together with fornicatours.

10 And notⁱ altogether with the fornicators of this world, or with the covetous, or with extortioners, or with idolaters: for then ye must goe out of the world.

11 But now I have written unto you, that ye company not together: if any that is

1 They are greatly to be reprehended which by suffering of wickednesse, let forth the Church of God to be mocked and scorned of the infidels.

2 There are none more proud then they that least know themselves.

3 Excommunication ought not to be committed to one mans power, but must be done by the authoritie of the whole Congregation, after the matter is diligently examined.

4 To wound a thought.

5 Calling upon Christs Name.

6 There is no doubt but that judgement is ratified in heaven, wherein Christ him self sitteth as Judge.

7 The excommunication is delivered to the power of Satan, in that, that he is cast out of the house of God.

8 What it is to be delivered to Satan, the Lord himselfe declareth, when he saith, Let him be with thee as an Hea-then and Tubercane, Maith. 18. 17. that is to say, to be defiled and put out of the right and to be the city of Christ, which is the church, without which, Satan is Lord and ruler.

9 The end of excommunication is not to cast away the excommunicate, that he should utterly perish, but that he may be saved, to wit, that by this means his flesh may be tamed, that he may learne to live to the spirit.

10 At other end of excommunication is, that other be not infected, and therefore it must of necessitie be retained in the Church, that the one be not infected by the other.

11 Is taught, and not grounded upon good reason, as though you were excellent, and yet there is such wickednesse found amongst you.

12 By alluding to the ceremonie of the Passover, he exhorteth them to cast out that unclean person from among them. In times past, saith he, it was not lawfull for them which did celebrate the Paschever to eat leavened bread: inasmuch that he was holden as unclean and unworthy to eat the Paschever, whoeover had but tasted of leaven. Now all our whole life must be as it were the feast of unleavened bread, wherein all they that are partakers of that immaculate Lamb which is slain, must cast out both of themselves, and also out of their houses and Congregation all impuritie.

13 By lump, he meaneth the whole body of the Church, every member whereof must be unleavened bread, that is, be renewed in spirit, by plucking away the old corruption.

14 The Looke of our Paschever. 2 Let us leave our whole life, as it were, a continual feast, honestly, and uprightly.

15 Now he speaketh more generally: and that which he spake before of the incestuous person, he sheweth that it pertaineth to others, which are known to be wicked, and such as through their naughty life are a slander to the Church, which ought also by lawfull order be cast out of the community of the Church.

16 And making mention of eating of meat, either he meaneth those feasts of love whereat the Supper of the Lord was received, or else their common usage & maner of life: which is rightly to be taken, lest any man should thinke that either Matrimonie were broken by excommunication, or such duties hindered and cut off thereby, as we owe one to another: children to their parents, subjects to their rulers, servants to their masters, and neighbour to neighbour, to win one another unto God.

17 If you could utterly abstaine from such mens company, you should goe out of the world: therefore I leave you them which are in the very bosome of the church, which must be called home by discipline, and not of these which are without, with whom you must labour by all means possible, to bring them to christ.

called a brother, be a fornicatour, or covetous, or an idolater, or a railer, or a drunkard, or an extortioner, with such one eat not 12 10 For what have I to doe to judge them also which are without? doe ye not judge them that are within?

13 But God judgeth them that are without. Put away therefore from among your selves that wicked man.

CHAP. VI.

1 He inveiyeth against their contentions in law matters, 6 where-with they vexed one another under judges that were infidels, to the reproch of the Gospel, 9 and then sharply threatneth fornicatours.

ARE^a any of you, having busines against another, be judged under the unjust, and not under the Saints?

2 Doe ye not know that the Saints shall judge the world? If the world then shall be judged by you, are ye unworthy to judge the smallest matters?

3 Know ye not that we shall judge the Angels? how much more things that pertaine to this life?

4 If then ye have^b judgement of things pertaining to this life, set them up which are^c least esteemed in the Church.

5 I speake it to your shame. Is it so that there is not a wise man among you? no not one, that can judge betweene his brethren?

6 But a brother goeth to law with a brother, and that under the infidels.

7 Now therefore there is altogether^d infirmities in you, in that ye go to law one with another: 7 why rather suffer ye not wrong? why rather sustaine ye not harme?

8 Nay, ye your selves doe wrong, and doe harme, and that to your brethren.

9 Know ye not that the unrighteous shall not inherite the kingdome of God?

Be not deceived: neither fornicatours, nor idolaters, nor adulterers, nor wantons, nor buggerers,

10 Nor theeves, nor covetous, nor drunken,

10 Such as are false brethren ought to be cast out of the Congregation: as for them which are without, they must be left to the judgement of God.

1 The third question is of civil judgements. Whether it be lawfull for one faithfull to draw another faithfull before the judgement seat of an infidel? He answereth, that it is not lawfull, for offence sake, for it is not evill of it selfe.

2 As if he said, Are you become so impudent, that you are not ashamed to make the Gospel a laughing stocke to profane men?

3 Before the unjust.

4 He addeth that he doeth not forbid that one neighbour may goe to law with another, if need to require, but yet under holy judges.

5 He gathereth by a comparison that the faithfull cannot seeke to infidels to be judged, without great injury done to the Saints.

6 feeling that God himselfe will make the Saints judges of the world, and of the devils, with his Sonne Christ: much more ought they to judge these light and small causes which may be by equitie, and good conscience determined.

7 The conclusion, wherein he precribeth a remedie for this mischiefe, to wit, if they end their private affaires betweene themselves by chosen arbiters out of the Church: for which matter and purpose, the least of you, saith he, is sufficient.

Therefore he condemneth not judgement seats, but sheweth what is expedient for the circumstance of the time, and that without any diminishing of the right of the Magistrate: for he speaketh not of judgements, which are practised between the faithfull and the infidels, neither of publike judgements, but of controversies which may be ended by private arbiters.

8 Courts and places of judgements. 9 Even the most abject among you.

10 He applieth the generall proposition to a particular, always calling them backe to this, to take away from them that false opinion of their own excellencie, from whence all these mischief spring.

11 Now he goeth further also, & although by granting them privat arbiters out of the congregation of faithfull, he doth not simply condemne, but rather establish private judgements, so that they be exercised without offence, yet he sheweth that if they were such as they ought to be, and as it were to be wished, they should not need to use that remedie neither.

12 A weakness of mind which is said to be in them, that suffer themselves to be overcome of their lusts, and it is a fault that squareth greatly from temperance and moderation: so that he nippeth them which could not put up an injury done unto them.

13 This pertaineth chiefly to the other part of the reprehension, to wit, that they went to law even under infidels, whereas they should rather have suffered any losse, then to have given that offence. But yet this is generally true, that we ought rather to depart from our right, then trie the uttermost of the law hastily, and upon an affection to revenge an injury. But yet the Corinthians are for neither, and therefore he saith, that they must repent, unles they will be shut out from the inheritance of God.

14 Matt. 5. 39. Luke 6. 29. Rom. 12. 19. 1 Thes. 4. 6. 8 Now he prepareth himself to passe over to the fourth Treatise of this Epistle, which concerneth matters indifferent: debating this matter, first, how men may well use women or not: which question hath three branches, fornication, matrimonie, & a single life.

As for fornication, he utterly condemneth it. And marriage he commandeth to some, as a good & necessary remedie for them, to other he leaveth it free: And other some he sheweth from it, not as unlawful, but as difcommodious, & that not without exception. As for the singleness of life, (under which also I comprehend virginities) he enjoyneth it to no man: yet he perswadeth men unto it, but not for it selfe, but for another respect, neither all men, nor without exception. And being about to speake against fornication, he beginneth with a generall reprehension of those vices, wherewith that rich and riotous Citie most abounded: warning and reaching them earnestly, that repentance is unseparably joyned with forgiveness of sins, and satisfaction with justification.

kards, nor railers, nor extortioners, shall inherit the kingdome of God.

11 And such were some of you: but ye are washed, but ye are sanctified, but ye are justified in the Name of the Lord Jesus, and by the Spirit of our God.

12 ¶ All things are lawfull unto me, but all things are not profitable. I may do all things, but I will not be brought under the power of any thing.

13 Meats are ordained for the belly, and the bellie for the meats: but God shall destroy both it, and them. Now the body is not for fornication, but for the Lord, and the Lord for the body.

14 And God hath also raised up the Lord, and shall raise us up by his power.

15 Know ye not, that your bodies are the members of Christ? shall I then take the members of Christ, and make them the members of an harlot? God forbid.

16 Doe ye not know, that he which coupleth himself with an harlot, is one body? for two, saith he, shall be one flesh.

17 But he that is joyned unto the Lord, is one spirit.

18 Flee fornication: every sin that a man doeth, is without the body: but he that committeth fornication, sinneth against his own body.

19 Know ye not, that your body is the Temple of the holy Ghost, which is in you, whom ye have of God? and ye are not your own.

20 For ye are bought for a price: therefore glorifie God in your body, and in your spirit: for they are Gods.

* Titus 3. 3.

2 Chap. 10. 23.
3 Secondly, he sheweth that the Corinthians doe simply offend in matters indifferent. First, because they abused the next, because they used indifferent things, without any discretion, seeing the use of them ought to be brought to the rule of charity: and that hee doth not use them aright, which immoderately abuse them, and so becommeth a slave unto them.
4 Whatsoever: but this generally word may be restrained to things that are indifferent.
5 He is in subjection to things that are indifferent, whatsoever hee be that shaketh he may not be without them: which is a flatterer kind of slavery under a colour of libertie, which seeth upon such men.
6 Secondly, because they counted many things for indifferent, which were of themselves unlawful, as fornication, which they numbered amongst mere naturall and lawfull desires, as well as meat and drinke: Therefore the Apostle sheweth, that they are utterly unlike: for meats, saith hee, were made for the necessary use of mans life, which is not perpetuall. For both meats, and all this manner of nourishing, are quickly abolished. But we must not so thinke of the uncleanness of fornication, for which the bodie is not made, but on the contrary side is ordained to purenesse, as it appeareth by this, that it is consecrated to Christ, even as Christ also is given us of his Father, to quicken our bodies with that vertue, wherewith he also roseth againe. * Rom. 6. 5.
11 A declaration of the former argument by contraries, and the applying of it. 12 A prooofe of the same argument: An harlot and Christ are cleane contrary, so are the flesh and the Spirit: therefore he that is one with an harlot, (which is done by carnall copulation of their bodies) cannot be one with Christ, which unitie is pure and spirituall. * Gen. 2. 24. Matt. 19. 5. Marke 10. 3. Ephes. 5. 31. 13 Moses doeth not speak these words of fornication, but of marriage: but seeing that fornication is the corruption of marriage, and both of them is a carnall and filthy copulation, wee cannot say that the Apostle abuseth his testimonie. Again, Moses hath not the word (Two) but it is very well expressed both here, and in Mat. 19. 5. because he speaketh one of man and wife: wherupon the opinion of them that touch it to be lawfull to have many wives, is beaten down: for he that commeth with many, is sundred as it were into many parts. 13 Another argument why fornication is to be eschewed, because it defileth the body with a peculiar kinde of filthinesse. 14 The third argument: Because a fornicator is sacrilegious, for that our bodies are consecrate to God. * Chap. 3. 17. 2. Cor. 6. 16. 15 The fourth Argument: Because we are not our own men, to give our selves to any other, much lesse to Satan and the flesh, seeing that God himselfe hath bought us, and that with a great price. to the end that both in body and soule, we should serve to his glorie. * Chap. 7. 23. 1 Pet. 1. 18.

2 Nevertheless, to avoyd fornication, let every man have his wife, and let every woman have her own husband.

3 Let the husband give unto the wife due benevolence, and likewise also the wife unto the husband.

4 The wife hath not the power of her own body, but the husband: and likewise also the husband hath not the power of his own body, but the wife.

5 Defraud not one another, except it be with consent for a time, that ye may give your selves to fasting and prayer, and again come together, that Satan tempt you not for your incontinencie.

6 But I speake this by permission, not by commandement.

7 For I would that all men were even as I my selfe am: but every man hath his proper gift of God, one after this manner, and another after that.

8 Therefore I say unto the unmarried, and unto the widowes, It is good for them if they abide even as I doe.

9 But if they cannot abstaine, let them marrie: for it is better to marrie then to burn.

10 And unto the married, I command, not I, but the Lord, Let not the wife depart from her husband.

11 But and if shee depart, let her remaine unmarried, or be reconciled unto her husband, and let not the husband put away his wife.

12 But to the remnant I speake, and not the Lord, If any brother have a wife, that beleeveth not, if shee be content to dwell with him, let him not forsake her.

13 And the woman which hath an husband that beleeveth not, if hee be content to dwell with her, let her not forsake him, 14 For the unbelieving husband is sanctified to the wife, and the unbelieving wife is sanctified to the husband, else were your children uncleane: but now are they holy.

15 But if the unbelieving depart, let him depart: a brother or a sister is not in subjection in such things: but God hath called us in peace.

16 For what knowest thou, O wife, speakest not here of the fault of whoredome, which was then death even by the law of the Romanes also) whereby he affirmeth that the band of marriage is not dissolved, and that from Christ his mouth. 8 Eightly, he affirmeth, that those marriages which are already contracted between a faithfull, and an unfaithfull, or infidel, are firme: so that the faithfull may not forsake the unfaithfull. 9 He answereth an objection: But the faithfull is defiled by the societie of the unfaithfull. The Apostle denieth that, and prooveth, that the faithfull man with good conscience may use the vessel of his unfaithfull wife, by this, that their children which are born of them, are accounted holy (that is, contained within the promise) for it is said to all the faithfull, I will be thy God, and the God of thy feed. 10 The godliness of the wife is of more force, to cause their coupling together to be accounted holy, then the infidelity of the husband is, to prophane the marriage. 11 The unfaithfull is not sanctified or made holy in his own person, but in respect of his wife hee is sanctified to her. 12 To the faithfull husband. 13 This place destroyeth the opinion of them, that would not have children to be baptized, and their opinion also, that make Baptisme the very cause of salvation. For the children of the faithfull are holy, by vertue of the covenant, even before Baptisme; and Baptisme is added as the seale of that holinesse. 14 He answereth to a question: What if the unfaithfull forsake the faithfull? then is the faithfull free, saith he, because he is forsaken of the unfaithfull. 15 When any such thing falleth out. 16 Left any man upon pretence of this libertie should give an occasion to the unfaithfull to depart, he giveth no understanding, that marriage contracted with an infidel, ought peaceably to be kept, that if it be possible, the infidel may be won to the faith.

* 1. Pet. 3. 7.
2 Secondly, hee sheweth that the parties married, must with singular affection, entirely love one the other.
3 This word (due) containeth all kinde of benevolence, though he speake more of one sort than of the other. in that that followeth.
3 Thirdly, he warneth them, that they are each in others power, as touching the bodie, so that they may not defraud one another.
4 He addeth an exception, unlesse the one abstaine from the other by mutuall consent, that they may the better give themselves to prayers, wherein notwithstanding, he warneth them to consider what is expedient, left by this long breaking off, as it were from marriage, they be stirred up to incontinencie.
5 He addeth an exception, unlesse the one abstaine from the other by mutuall consent, that they may the better give themselves to prayers, wherein notwithstanding, he warneth them to consider what is expedient, left by this long breaking off, as it were from marriage, they be stirred up to incontinencie.
6 Sixty, he giveth the selfe same admonition touching the second marriage, to wit, that a single life is to be allowed, but for such as have the gift of continencie; otherwise they ought to marry again, that their continencie may be at peace.
7 The whole place is flat against them which condemne second marriages.
8 So to burn with lust, that either the will yeeldeth to the temptation, or else wee cannot call upon God with a quiet conscience.

CHAP. VII.

1 Extreating here of Marriage, 4 which is a remedie against fornication, 10 And may not be broken, 18. 20 he wil- leth every man to live contented with his own lot. 25 He sheweth what the end of virginie should be, 35 And who ought to marrie.

Now concerning the things whereof ye wrote unto me, It were good for a man not to touch a woman.

1 He teacheth concerning marriage, that although a single life hath his commodities, which he will declare afterwards, yet that marriage is necessary for the avoiding of fornication, but for that neither one man may have many wives, nor any wife many husbands. a Touching these matters: wherof ye wrote unto me. b Commodities, and (as we say) expedient. For marriage bringeth many griefes with it, and that by reason of the corruption of our first estate.

17¹² But as God hath distributed to every man, as the Lord hath^a called every one, so let him walke: and so ordaine I in all Churches.

18¹³ Is any man called being circumcised? let him not^o gather his uncircumcision: is any called uncircumcised? let him not be circumcised.

19 Circumcision is nothing, and uncircumcision is nothing, but the keeping of the commandments of God.

20^{*} Let every man abide in the same vocation wherein he was called.

21 Art thou called being a servant? care nor for it: but yet if thou mayest be free, use it rather.

22 For he that is called in the^a Lord, being a servant, is the Lord's free man: likewise also he that is called being free, is Christ's servant.

23¹⁴ Ye are bought with a price: be not the servants of men.

24¹⁵ Brethren, let every man wherein he was called, therein abide with^t God.

25¹⁶ Now concerning virgins, I have no commandment of the Lord: but I give mine^t advise, as^t one that hath obtained mercie of the Lord to be faithfull.

26 I suppose then^v this to be good for the^x present necessitie: I meane that it is good for a man so to be.

27 Art thou bound unto a wife? seek not to be loosed: art thou loosed from a wife? seek not a wife.

28 But if thou takest a wife, thou sinnest not: and if a virgine marrie, she sinneth not: neverthelesse, such shall have trouble in the^y flesh: but I^z spare you.

29 And this I say, brethren, because the time is^a short, hereafter, that both they which have wives, be as though they had none:

30 And they that^b weepe, as though they wept not: and they that rejoyce, as though they rejoyced not: and they that buy, as though they possessed not:

31 And they that use this^c world, as though they used it not: for the^d fashion of this world goeth away.

12 Taking occasion by that which he said of the bondage and libertie of matrimonie, he digresseth to a general doctrine concerning the outward state and condition of mans life, as Circumcision and uncircumcision, servitude and libertie: warning every man generally to live with a contented minde in the Lord, what state or condition soever he be in: because, that those outward things, as to be circumcised or uncircumcised, to be bond or free, are not of the substance (as they terme it) of the kingdom of heaven.

ⁿ Hath bound him to a certain kind of life.

13 Notwithstanding he giveth us to understand, that in these examples all are not of like sort: because that Circumcision, not simply of it selfe, is to be desired, but such as are bound may desire to be free. Therefore herein onely they are equal, that the kingdom of God consisteth not in them, and therefore there are no hinderances to obey God.

^o it is said to gather his uncircumcision, who by the help of a Chirurgeon, recovereth an upper skinned: which is done by drawing the skin with an instrument, to make it to cover the rest. Celsus in his 7. Booke and 25 Chapter.

^{*} 1 Tim. 6. 1.

^p Although this calling were too unworthy a calling for Christ.

^q He that is in state of a servant, and is called to be a Christian.

^r Chap. 6. 20.

1 Per. 1. 18. 19. 14 He sheweth the reason of the unlikenesse, because that hee that desireth to be circumcised, maketh himselfe subject to mans tradition, and not to God. And this may be much more understood of superstitions, which some doe foolishly account for things indifferent.

15 A repetition of the general doctrine. ^v So purely and from the heart, that your doings may be approved before God.

16 Hee enjoyeth virginities to no man, yet he perswadeth and praiseth it for another respect, to wit, both for the necessitie of the present time, because the faithfull could scarce abide in any place, and use the commodities of this present life, &c. therefore such as were not troubled with families, might be the readier, and also for the cares of this life, which marriage draweth with it of necessitie, so that they cannot but have their minds distracted: and this hath place in women especially.

^f The circumstances considered, thus I counsel you. ^g It is I that speake this which I am minded to speake: and the truth is, I am a man, but yet worthy credit, for I have obtained of the Lord to be such an one. ^h To remaine a virgine. ⁱ For the necessitie which the Saints are daily subject unto, who are continually tossed up and down, so that their estate may seeme much unfit for marriage, were it not that the weakness of the flesh enforced them to it. ^j By the (Flesh) he understandeth what things sever belong to this present life, for marriage bringeth with it many discommodities: so that he bendeth more to a sole life, not because it is a service more agreeable to God than marriage is, but for those discommodities, which (if it were possible) hee would wish all men to be void of, that they might give themselves to God onely.

^k I would your weaknes were provided for. ^l For we are now in the latter end of the world. ^m By weeping, the Hebrewes understand all adversities, and by joy, all prosperities. ⁿ Those things which God giveth us here. ^o The guise, and shape, and fashion: whereby he sheweth us, that there is nothing in this world that continueth.

32 And I would have you without care. The unmarried careth for the things of the Lord, how he may please the Lord:

33 But he that is married, careth for the things of the world, how he may please his wife.

34 There is difference also between a virgine and a wife: the unmarried woman careth for the things of the Lord, that shee may be holy, both in bodie, and in^f spirit: but shee that is married, careth for the things of the world, how she may please her husband.

35 And this I speake for your own^g commoditie, not to tangle you in a snare, but that ye follow that which is honest, and that ye may cleave fast unto the Lord without separation.

36¹⁷ But if any man think that it is uncomely for his virgine, if she passe the floure of her age, and need so require, let him doe what he will, he^h sinneth not: let them be married.

37 Neverthelesse, he that standeth firme in hisⁱ heart, that he hath no^k need, but hath power over his own will, and hath so decreed in his heart, that he will keep his virgine, he doeth well.

38 So then he that giveth her to marriage, doth well, but he that giveth her not to marriage, doth^l better.

40 But she is more blessed, if she so abide, in my judgement: ^{*} and I think that I have also the Spirit of God.

children, and that not simply, but by reason of such conditions as are before mentioned. ¹⁸ That which he spake of a widower, he speaketh now of a widow, to wit, if she may marry againe, so that she doe it in the feare of God: and yet he dissembleth not, but faith, that if shee remaine still a widow, she shall be void of many cares. ^m By the Law of marriage. ⁿ Rem. 7. 1. ^o Rejoicingly, and in the feare of God. ^{*} 1 Thess. 4. 8.

CHAP. VIII.

¹ From this place unto the end of the tenth Chapter, he will shew them not to be at the Gentiles prophane banquets. ¹⁰ He restraineth the abuse of Christian liberty, ¹¹ and sheweth that knowledge must be tempered with charitie.

And as touching things sacrificed unto idoles: we know that we^a all have knowledge: knowledg^b puffeth up, but love^c edifieth.

2 Now if any man thinke that he knoweth any thing, he knoweth nothing yet as he ought to know.

3 But if any man love God, the same is known of him.

they affirmed, that this difference of meats was for the unskillfull men, but as for them they knew well enough the benefit of Christ, which causeth all these things to be cleane to them that are cleane. Be it so faith Paul: be it that we are all sufficiently instructed in the knowledge of Christ, I say notwithstanding that we must not simply rest in this knowledge. The reason is, that unless our knowledge be tempered with charity, it doeth not onely not avails, but also doth much hurt, because it is the mistress of pride: nay, it doth not so much as deserve the name of godly knowledge, if it be separate from the love of God, and therefore from the love of our neighbour. ^a This general word is to be abridged as appeareth, vers. 7. for there is a kinde of knowe in it, as we may perceive by the next vers. ^b Manifesteth occasion of wastie and pride: because it is void of charitie. ^c Instructeth our neighbor.

^e They that are married, have their wits drawn either and thither, and therefore if any man have the gift of continencie, it is more commodious for him to live alone: but they that are married may care for the things of the Lord also. Clem. Strom. 3. f Minde.

^g He meaneth that he will enforce: no man, either to marry or not to marry, but to serve them barely what kinde of life is most commodious.

¹⁷ Now he turneth himselfe to the parents, in whole power and authority their children are, warning them, that according to the former doctrine, they consider what is meet and convenient for their children, that they neither deprive them of the necessary remedie against incontinencie, nor contraine them to marriage, whereas neither their will doth leade them, nor any necessity urgeth them. And againe hee praiseth virginities, but of it selfe, and not in all.

^k Rejoiceth himself. ^l That the weakness of his daughter inforceeth him not, or any other matter, but that he may safely keep her a virgine still.

4 ² Concerning therefore the eating of things sacrificed unto^d idols, we know that an idol ^e is nothing in the world, and that there ^f is none other God but one.

5 For though there be that are called gods, whether in heaven, or in earth (as there be many gods, and many lords)

6 Yet unto us there ^g is but one God, which ^h is that father, ⁱ of whom are all things, and we ^j in him, and ^k one Lord Iesus Christ, ^l by whom are all things, and we by him.

7 ³ But every man hath not that knowledge: for ^m many having ⁿ conscience of the idol, untill this houre, eat as a thing sacrificed unto the idol, and so their conscience being weak, is defiled.

8 ⁵ But meat maketh us not acceptable to God, for neither if we eat, we have the more: neither if we eat not, have we the lesse.

9 But take heed, lest by any meanes this power of yours be an occasion of falling, to them that are weak.

10 ⁶ For if any man see thee which hath knowledge, sit at meat in the idols temple, shall not the conscience of him which is weak, be boldened to eat those things which are sacrificed to idols?

11 ⁷ And through thy knowledge shall the ^o weak brother perish, for whom Christ died.

12 ⁸ Now when ye sinne so against the brethren, and wound their weak conscience, ye sinne against Christ.

13 ⁹ Wherefore if meat offend my brother, I will eat no flesh while the world standeth, that I may not offend my brother.

^a The application of that answer to things offered to idols: I grant, saith he, that an idol is indeed a vain imagination, and that there is but one God and Lord, and therefore that meat cannot be made either holy or profane by the idol: but it followeth not therefore that a man may without respect unto those meats as any other.

^d This word (Idol) in this place is taken for an image which is made to represent some godhead, that worship might be given unto it: whereupon came the word (Idolatrie) that is to say, Image service.

^e In a vain dream.

^f When the Father is distinguished from the Son, he is named the beginning of all things.

^g We have our being in him.

ⁱ Chap. 12. 3.

^j But as the Father is called Lord, so is the Son, God: therefore this word (One) doth not respect the persons, but the nature.

^k This word (By) doth not signifie the instrument or cause, but the efficient: for the Father and the Son work together, which is not so to be taken, that we make two causes, seeing they have both but one nature, though they be distinct persons.

^l The reason why that followeth not, is this: because there are many men which do not know that which you know. Now the judgement of outward things depend not only upon your conscience, but upon the conscience of them that behold you, and therefore your actions must be applied not only to your knowledge, but also to the ignorance of your brethren.

^m An applying of the reason: There are many which cannot eat of things offered to idols, but with a wavering conscience; because they thinke them to be unclean: therefore if by thy example they enterprise to do that which inwardly they thinke displeaseth God, their conscience is defiled with their eating, and thou hast been the occasion of this mischief.

ⁿ By conscience of the idol, he meaneth the secret judgement that they had within themselves, whereby they thought all things unclean, that were offered to idols, and therefore they could not use them with good conscience. For this force hath conscience, that if it be good it maketh things indifferent good, and if it be evil, it maketh them evil.

^o A preventing of an objection: Why then, shall we therefore be deprived of our liberty? Nay, saith the Apostle, you shall lose no part of Christianitie although you abstain for your brethren sake, as also if ye receive the meat, it maketh you no whit the more holy: for our commendation before God consisteth not in meats: but to use our liberty with offence of our brethren, is an abuse of liberty, the true use thereof is clean contrary, to wit, so to use it, as in using of it we have consideration of our weake brethren.

^p Another plain explication of the same reason, propounding the example of the sitting down at the table in the idols temple, which thing the Corinthians did evil account of among things indifferent, because it is simply forbidden for the circumstance of the place, although offence do cease, as it shall be declared in his place.

^q An amplification of the argument taken both of comparison and contraries: Thou wretched man, saith he, pleasing thy self with thy knowledge, which indeed is none, (for if thou hadst true knowledge, thou wouldest not sit down to meat in an idols temple) wilt thou destroy thy brother, hardening his weak conscience by thine example to do evil, for whose salvation Christ himself hath died?

^s An other amplification: Such offending of our weake brethren, redoundeth unto Christ, and therefore let not these men thinke that they have to do only with their brethren.

^u The conclusion, which Paul conceiveth in his own person, that he might not seem to exact that of other, which he will not be first subject to himself, I had rather (saith he) abstain for ever from all kind of flesh, then give occasion of sinne to any of my brethren, much lesse would I refuse in any certain place, or times for my brothers sake not to eat flesh offered to idols.

AM ¹ I not an Apostle? Am I not free? ² have I not seen Iesus Christ our Lord? are ye not ^a my work in the Lord?

2 If I be not an Apostle unto other, yet doubtlesse I am unto you: for ye are the ^b scale of mine Apostleship in the Lord.

3 ³ My defence to them that ^c examine me, is this,

4 ⁴ Have we not power to ^d eat and to drink?

5 Or have we not power to leade about a wife being a ^e sister, as well as the rest of the Apostles, and as the brethren of the Lord, and Cephas?

6 Or I onely and Barnabas, have not we power ^f not to work?

7 ⁵ Who ^g goeth a warfare at any time at his own cost? who planteth a vineyard, and eateth not of the fruit thereof? or who feedeth a flock, and eateth not of the milk of the flock?

8 ⁶ Say I these things ^h according to man? faith not the law the same also?

9 For it is written in the law of Moses, ⁱ Thou shalt not muzzle the mouth of the ox that treadeth out the corn: doth God take care for ^j Oxen?

10 Either faith he it not altogether for our sakes? For our sakes no doubt it is written, that he which careth, should care in hope, and that he that thresheth in hope, should be partaker of his hope.

11 ⁷ If we have sowed unto you spiritual things, ^k is it a great thing if we reap your carnall things?

12 ⁸ If others with you be partakers of ^l this ^k power, are not we rather? nevertheless, we have not used this power: but suffer all things, that we should not hinder the Gospell of Christ.

13 ⁹ Do ye not know that they which minister about the ^m holy things, eat of the ⁿ things of the Temple? and they which wait at the Altar, are ^o partakers with the Altar?

14 So also hath the Lord ordained, that they which preach the Gospell, should live ^p of the Gospell.

² He proveth his Apostleship by the effects, in that he was appointed of Christ himself, & the authority of his function was sufficiently confirmed to him amongst them by their conversion. And all these things he setteth before their eyes, to make them ashamed, for that they would not in the least wife that might be, debate themselves for the weake sake, whereas ³ an Apostle himself did all that he could to win them to God, when they were utterly reprobate and without God.

⁴ By the Lord.

⁵ As saith, where by it appeareth sufficiently that God is the author of mans Apostleship.

⁶ He addeth this by the way, as if he would say, So far it is off, that you may doubt of my Apostleship, that I use to refuse the which call it into controversy, by opposing those things which the Lord hath done by me amongst you.

⁷ Which like judges examine me, and my doing.

⁸ Now touching the matter it self, he saith, Seeing that I am free, and truly an Apostle, why may not I (I say not, eat of all things offered to idols, but) be maintained by my labours, yea, and keep my wife also, as the residue of the Apostles lawfully do, as by name, John, and James, the Lords cousins, and Peter himself?

¹¹ Not live by the works of our hands.

¹² That he may not seem to burden the Apostles, he sheweth that it is just that they do, by an argument of comparison, seeing that soldiers live by their wages, and husband men by the fruits of their labours, and shepherds by that that cometh of their flocks.

¹³ Vouch to go a warfare.

¹⁴ Secondly, he bringeth forth the authority of Gods institution by an argument of comparison.

¹⁵ Have I no better ground then the common custome of men?

¹⁶ Deut. 25. 4.

¹⁷ 1. Tim. 5. 18.

¹⁸ Was it Gods proper drift to provide for Oxen when he made this Law? for otherwise there is not the smallest thing in the world; but God hath a care of it.

¹⁹ Rom. 15. 27.

²¹ Another argument of great force: Other are nourished amongst you, therefore it was lawfull for me, yea, rather for me then any other: and yet I refused it, and had rather still suffer any discommodities, then the Gospell of Christ should be hindered.

²² The word significeth, a right and interest, whereby he giveth us to understanding that the ministers of the word must of right and duty be paid of the Church.

²³ Last of all, he bringeth forth the expresse Law concerning the nourishing of the Levites: which priviledge notwithstanding he will not use.

²⁴ Deut. 18. 1.

²⁵ This is spoken by the figure Metonymia, for, of those things that are offered in the Temple, we are partakers with the Altar in dividing the sacrifice.

²⁶ Because they preach the Gospell, it followeth by this place, that Paul eat not living, neither would have any particular man get by any commodities of Ministers, or any other such superstitious transgressions.

CHAP. IX.

10 He taketh away occasion of suspicion by the way, that it might not be thought that he wrote this, as though he challenged his wages that was not paid him. Nay, saith he, I had rather die, then not to continue in this purpose to preach the Gospel freely. For I am bound to preach the Gospel, seeing that the Lord hath enjoyed me this office: but unless I do it willingly, and for the love of God, nothing is to be allowed that I do. If I had rather that the Gospel should be evil spoken of, then that I should not require my wages, then would it appear that I took these pains not so much for the Gospels sake, as for my guines and advantages. But say, this were not to use, but abuse my right, and libertie: Therefore not only in this thing, but also in all other (as much as I could) I am made all things to all men, that I might win the to Christ, and might together with them be wonne to Christ.

By taking nothing of them to whom I preach st. 1st 16. 3. Gal. 2. 3. p The word (Law) in this place must be restrained to the ceremonial Law. q In matters that are indifferent, which may be done or not done with a good conscience: as if he said, I changed my self unto all fashions, that by all means I might save some. r That both I and they to whom I preach the Gospel, may receive fruit by the Gospel.

11 He bringeth in another cause of this mischief, to wit, that they were given to gluttony, for there were solemn banquets of sacrifices, and the riot of the Priests was always too much celebrated and kept. Therefore it was hard for them which were accustomed to riotousness, especially when they pretended the liberty of the Gospel, to be restrained from these banquets: but contrariwise the Apostle calleth them by a pleasant similitude, and allo by his own example, to sobriety and mortification of the flesh, shewing that they cannot be fit to run or wrestle (as then the games of Isthmies were) which pamper up their bodies: and therefore affirming that they can have no reward, unless they take another course and trade of life.

f Vile a most exquisite det. t The old man which striveth against the spirit.

v This word (Reproved) is not set as contrary to the word (Elect) but as contrary to the word (Approved) when you see one by experience not to be such an one as he ought to be.

15 But I have used none of these things: neither wrote I these things, that it should be so done unto me: for it were better for me to die, then that any man should make my rejoycing vain.

16 For though I preach the Gospel, I have nothing to rejoyce of: for necessity is laid upon me, and woe is unto me, if I preach not the Gospel.

17 For if I do it willingly, I have a reward, but if I do it against my will, notwithstanding the dispensation is committed unto me.

18 What is my reward then? verily that when I preach the Gospel, I make the Gospel of Christ free, that I abuse not my authority in the Gospel.

19 For though I be free from all men, yet have I made my self servant unto all men, that I might win the more.

20 And unto the Jewes, I become as a Jew, that I may win the Jewes: to them that are under the Law, as though I were under the law, that I may win them that are under the law:

21 To them that are without law, as though I were without law, (when I am not without law as pertaining to God, but am in the law through Christ) that I may win them that are without law.

22 To the weak, I become as weak, that I may win the weak: I am made all things to all men, that I might by all means save some.

23 And this I do for the Gospels sake, that I might be partaker thereof with you.

24 Know ye not, that they which run in a race, run all, yet one receiveth the prize? so run that ye may obtain.

25 And every man that proveth masteries, abstaineth from all things: and they do it to obtain a corruptible crown: but we for an uncorruptible.

26 I therefore so run, not as uncertainly: so fight I, not as one that beateth the air.

27 But I beat down my body, and bring it into subjection, lest by any means after that I have preached to other, I myself should be reproved.

Moreover, brethren, I would not that ye should be ignorant, that all our fathers were under that cloude, and all passed thorow that sea.

2 And were all baptized unto Moses, in that cloud, and in that sea,

3 And did all eate the same spirituall meat.

4 And did all drinke the same spirituall drinke (for they dranke of the spirituall Rock that followed them: and the Rock was Christ.)

5 But with many of them God was not pleased: for they were overthrown in the wilderness.

6 Now these things are our enamples, to the intent that we should not lust after evil things, as they also lusted.

7 Neither be ye idolaters, as were some of them, as it is written, The people sat down to eat and drink, and rose up to play.

8 Neither let us commit fornication, as some of them committed fornication, and fell in one day three and twenty thousand.

9 Neither let us tempt Christ, as some of them also tempted him, and were destroyed of Serpents.

10 Neither murmure ye, as some of them also murmured, and were destroyed of the destroyer.

11 Now all these things came unto them for enamples, and were written to admonish us, upon whom the ends of the world are come.

12 Wherefore, let him that thinketh he standeth, take heed lest he fall.

13 There hath no temptation taken you, but such as appertaineth to man: and God is faithfull, which will not suffer you to be tempted above that you be able, but will even give the issue with the temptation, that ye may be able to beare it.

14 Wherefore my beloved, flee from idolatrie.

1 He setteth out that which he saith, laying before them an example of horrible judgement of God against them which had in effect the selfe same pledges, of the same adoption and salvation that we have: and yet notwithstanding when they gave themselves to idoles feasts, perished in the wilderness, being horribly and manifoldly punished. Now, moreover and besides, that these things are fully spoken against them which frequented idoles feasts, the same also seeme to be alleged to this end and purpose, because many men are thus minded, that those things are not of such great weight that God will be angry with them if they use them, so that they frequent Christian assemblies, and be baptized, and receive the Communion, and confesse Christ.

^h Coming to ano-ther kind of things offered to idols, he re-peateth that ge-nerall rule, that in the use of things indifferent, we ought to have con-sideration not of ourselves onely, but of our neigh-bours, and there-fore there are ma-ny things which of themselves are lawfull, which may be evil done of us, because of offence to our neighbour.

ⁱ Look a fore, Chap. 6. 13.

^j An applying of the rule to pre-ter matter: Whatsoe-ver is sold in the shambles, you may indifferently buy it, as it were at the Lords hand, and eat it either at hom with the faithfull, or being called home to the un-faithfull, to wit, in a private banquet: but yet with this exception, unlesse any man be present which is weak, whose conscience may be offended by setting meats offered to idols be-fore them: for the you ought to have consideration of their weaknesse.

ⁿ A reason: For we must take heed that our liberty be not evil spoke of, and that the bene-fit of God which we ought to use with thanksgiving be not chaged in-to impietie, & that through our fault, if we chuse rather to offend the con-science of weak, then to yeeld a lit-tle of our liberty

^o in a matter of no importance, and so give occasion to the weak to judge in such sort of us, and of Christian liberty. And the Apostle taketh these things upon his own person, that the Corinthians may have so much the less occasion to oppose any thing against him.

^p If I may, through Gods benefit, eat this meat or that meat, why should I through my fault cause the be-neath of God to turn to my blame? Col. 3. 17.

^q The conclusion: We must order our lives in such sort, that we seek not our selves, but Gods glory, and so the salvation of as many as we may: wherein the Apostle sticketh not to propound himself to the Corinthians (even his own flock) as an example, but so that he calleth them back to Christ, unto whom he himself hath regard.

understanding: judge ye what I say.

16 The cup of blessing which we blesse, is it not the communion of the blood of Christ? The bread which we breake, is it not the communion of the body of Christ?

17 For we that are many, are one bread and one body, because we are all partakers of one bread.

18 Behold Israel, which is after the flesh: are not they which eat of the sacrifices, partakers of the altar?

19 What say I then? that the idol is any thing? or that which is sacrificed to idols, is any thing?

20 Nay, but that the things which the Gentiles sacrifice, they sacrifice to devils, and not unto God: and I would not that ye should have fellowship with the devils.

21 Ye cannot drink the cup of the Lord, and the cup of the devils. Ye cannot be partakers of the Lords table, and of the table of the devils.

22 Do we provoke the Lord to anger? are we stronger then he?

23 All things are lawfull for me, but all things are not expedient: all things are lawfull for me, but all things edifie not.

24 Let no man seek his own, but every man anothers wealth.

25 Whatsoever is sold in the shambles, eat ye, and ask no question for conscience sake.

26 For the earth is the Lords, and all that therein is.

27 If any of them which beleeve not, call you to a feast, and if ye will go, whatso-ever is set before you, eat, asking no question for conscience sake.

28 But if any man say unto you, This is sacrificed unto idols, eat it not, because of him that shewed it, and for the conscience: (for the earth is the Lords, and all that ther-in is)

29 And the conscience, I say, not thine, but of that other: for why should my liberty be condemned of another mans conscience?

30 For if I through Gods benefit be par-taker, why am I evil spoken of, for that wherefore I give thanks?

31 Whether therefore ye eat or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God.

32 Give none offence, neither to the Jewes, nor to the Grecians, nor to the Church of God:

33 Even as I please all men in all things, not seeking mine owne profit, but the profit of many, that they might be saved.

CHAP. XI.

^a He blameth the Corinthians for that in their holy assemblies,

^b men doe pray having their heads covered, ^c and women bare headed, and because their meetings tended to evill, ^d 21 who mingled prophane banquets with the holy Supper of the Lord, ^e 23 which he requirerh to be celebrated according to Christs institution.

BE ye followers of me, even as I am of Christ.

2 Now brethren, I commend you, that ye remember all my things, and keepe the ordinances, as I delivered them to you.

3 But I will that ye know, that Christ is the head of every man: and the man is the womans head: and God is Christs head.

4 Every man praying or prophesying having any thing on his head, dishonoureth his head.

5 But every woman that prayeth or prophesieth bare headed, dishonoureth her head: for it is even one very thing, as though she were shaven.

6 Therefore if the woman be not covered, let her also be shorne: and if it be shame for a woman to be shorne or shaven, let her be covered.

7 For a man ought not to cover his head: for as much as he is the image and glorie of God: but the woman is the glorie of the man.

8 For the man is not of the woman, but the woman of the man.

9 For the man was not created for the womans sake: but the woman for the mans sake.

10 Therefore ought the woman to have power on her head, because of the Angels

11 Nevertheless, neither is the man without the woman, neither the woman without the man in the Lord.

12 For as the woman is of the man, so is the man also by the woman: but all things are of God.

jection) they did as it were, spoile themselves of their dignity against Gods ordinance. ^b It appeareth, that this was a politike Law serving only for the circumstances of the time that Paul lived in, by this reason, because in these our dayes for a man to speake bare headed in an assembly, is a signe of subjection. ^c And in like sort he concludeth, that women which shew themselves in publike and Ecclesiasticall assemblies without the signe and token of their subjection, that is to say, uncovered, shame themselves.

^d The first argument taken from the common sence of man, for so much as nature teacheth women, that it is dishonest for them to come abroad bare headed, seeing that hee hath given them thicke and long haire, which they doe so diligently trimme and deck, that they can in no wise abide to have it shaven.

^e The taking away of an objection; Have not men also haire given them? I grant, saith the Apostle, but there is another matter in it: For man was made to this end and purpose, that the glory of God should appeare in his rule and authority: but the woman was made, that by profession of her obedience, she might more honour her husband.

^f Genesis 1. 26. and 5. 1. and 9. 6. colossians 3. 10. ^g He proveth the inequality of the woman, by that, that the man is the matter whereof the woman was first made. ^h Genesis 2. 22.

ⁱ Secondly, by that, that the woman was made for man, and not the man for the womans sake. ^j The conclusion: women must be covered, to shew by this externall signe, their subjection. ^k A covering which is a token of subjection. ^l What this meaneth, I doe not yet understand.

^m A digression which the Apostle useth, lest that which he spake of the superiority of men, and lower degree of women, in consideration of the policie of the Church, should be taken as though there were no measure of this inequality. Therefore he teacheth that men have in such sort the preeminence, that God made them not alone, but women also: and woman was to be made of man, that men also are borne by the meanes of women, and this ought to put them in minde to observe the degree of every sex in such sort, that mutual conjunction may be cherished.

ⁿ By the Lord.

12 He urgeth the argument taken from the common sense of nature.

13 Against such as are stubbornly contentious, we have to oppose this.

14 He passeth now to the next Treatise, concerning the right administration of the Lords Supper.

15 To celebrate the Lords Supper aright, it is requisite that there be not onely consent of doctrine, but also of affections, that it be not profaned.

16 Although that schismes and heresies proceed from the devill, and are evil, yet they come not by chance, nor without cause, and they turn to the profit of the elect.

17 Whom experience hath taught to be of sound religion, godliness.

18 This is an usual kind of speech whereby the Apostle denieth that finally, which many did not well.

19 Eateth his meate and drinketh not till other come.

20 The Apostle thinketh it good to take away those feasts, for their abuse, although they had been a long time, & with commendation used in Churches, & were appointed & instituted by the Apostles.

21 We must take a true form of keeping the Lords Supper, out of the institution of it, & parts whereof are these, touching the Pastours, to shew forth the Lords death by preaching his word: to bless the bread & the wine, by calling upon the name of God, and together with prayers, to declare the institution thereof: and finally, to deliver the bread broken to be eaten, & the cup received to be drunken with thanksgiving. And as touching the flock, that every man examine himself, that is to say, to prove both his knowledge, and also faith, and repentance: to shew forth the Lords death, that is, in true faith to yeeld unto his word and institution: and last of all, to take the bread at the Ministers hand, and to eat it, and to drink the wine, and give God thanks: This was Pauls and the Apostles manner of ministering.

23 The word (Broken) noteth out unto us Christ his manner of death, for although his legs were not broken, as the scripture saith: yet was his body very sore tormented, and torn, and bruised.

24 Whosoever contemn the holy Sacraments, that is, use them not aright, are guilty not of the bread and wine, but of the thing it self, that is, of Christ, and shall be grievously punished for it.

25 Others will say that such mysteries should be handled.

26 2 Cor. 13. 5.

27 The examination of a mans self, is of necessity required in the Supper, and therefore they ought not to be admitted unto it, which cannot examine themselves: as children, furious and mad men, also such as either have no knowledge of Christ, or not sufficient, although they profess Christian religion, and other such like.

28 This place beateh downe the faith of credite, or unwrapped faith, which the Papists maintain.

13¹² Judge in your selves, Is it comely that a woman pray unto God uncovered?

14 Doeth not nature it self teach you, that if a man hath long haire, it is a shame unto him?

15 But if a woman have long haire, it is a praise unto her: for her haire is given her for a covering.

16¹³ But if any man lust to be contentious, we have no such custome, neither the Churches of God.

17¹⁴ Now in this that I declare, I praise you not, that ye come together, not with profit, but with hurt.

18¹⁵ For first of all, when ye come together in the Church, I heare that there are dissensions among you: and I beleve it to be true in some part.

19¹⁶ For there must he heresies even among you, that they which are approved among you, might be known.

20 When ye come together therefore into one place, this is not to eat the Lords Supper.

21 For every man when they should eat, taketh his own supper afore, and one is hungrie, and another is drunken.

22¹⁷ Have ye not houses to eat and to drink in? despise ye the Church of God, and shame them that have not? what shall I say to you? shall I praise you in this? I praise you not.

23¹⁸ For I have received of the Lord that which I also have delivered unto you, to wit, That the Lord Jesus in the night when he was betrayed, took bread:

24^{*} And when he had given thanks, he brake it, and said, Take, eat, This is my body, which is broken for you: this do ye in remembrance of me.

25 After the same manner also he took the cup, when he had supped, saying, This cup is the New Testament in my blood: this doe as oft as ye drinke it, in remembrance of me.

26 For as often as ye shal eat this bread, and drink this cup, ye shew the Lords death till he come.

27¹⁹ Wherefore, whosoever, shall eat this bread, and drink the cup of the Lord unworthily, shall be guilty of the body and blood of the Lord.

28^{* 20} Let every man therefore examine himself, and so let him eat of this bread, and drink of this cup.

29 For he that eateth and drinketh unworthily, eateth and drinketh his own damnation, because he discerneth not the Lords body.

30²¹ For this cause many are weake, and sick among you, and many sleep.

31 For if we would judge our selves, we should not be judged.

32 But when we are judged, we are chastened of the Lord, because we should not be condemned with the world.

33²² Wherefore, my brethren, when ye come together to eat, tary one for another.

34²³ And if any man be hungry, let him eat at home, that ye come not together unto condemnation. Other things will I set in order when I come.

the belly, but to feed the soul with the communion of Christ, and therefore it ought to be separated from common banquets. Such things as pertain to order, as place, time, form of prayers, and other such like, the Apostle took order for in Congregations, according to the consideration of times, places, and persons.

CHAP. XII.

1 To draw away the Corinthians from contention and pride, he sheweth that spirituall gifts are therefore diversly bestowed, 7 that the same being jointly to each other employed, 12 we may grow up together into one body of Christ in such equal proportion and measure, 20 as the members of mans body doe.

Now concerning spirituall gifts, brethren, I would not have you ignorant 2² Ye know that ye were Gentiles, & were caried away unto the dumb idols, as ye were led.

3³ Wherefore, I declare unto you, that no man speaking by the Spirit of God calleth Jesus execrable: also no man can say that Jesus is the Lord, but by the holy Ghost.

4⁴ Now there are diversities of gifts, but the same Spirit.

5 And there are diversities of administrations, but the same Lord.

6 And there are diversities of operations, but God is the same which worketh all in all.

7 But the manifestation of the Spirit is given to every man, to profit withall.

8⁵ For to one is given by the Spirit the word of wisdom: and to another the word of knowledge, by the same Spirit:

9 And to another is given faith by the same Spirit: and to another the gifts of healing, by the same spirit:

purpose these gifts are given you. 2 Hereproveth the same, by comparing their former state with that wherein they were at this time indeed, with those excellent gifts. 3 Attributing Gods service and the covenant, mere strangers. 4 The conclusion: Know you therefore that you cannot so much as move your lips to honour Christ withall, but by the grace of the holy Ghost. 5 Marke 9. 39. 6 Iohn 13. 13. Chap. 8. 6. Phil. 2. 11. 7 Deth curse him, or by any means whatsoever diminish his glorie. 8 In the second place, he layeth another foundation, to wit, that these gifts are divers, as the functions also are divers, and their offices divers, but that one selfe same Spirit, Lord and God is the giver of all these gifts, and that to one end, to wit, for the profit of all. 9 The Spirit is plainly distinguished from the gifts. 10 So Paul calleth that inward force which cometh from the holy Ghost, and maketh men fit to wonderfull things. 11 The holy Ghost openeth and sheweth himself freely in giving of these gifts. 12 To the use and benefit of the Church. 13 He declareth this manifold diversitie, and reckoneth up the chiefest gifts, beating that into their heads, which he said before, to wit, that all these things proceeded from one selfe same Spirit. 14 Wisdom is a most excellent gift, very requisite, not onely for them which teach, but also for them that exhort and comfort, which thing is proper to the Pastours office: as the word of knowledge agreeth to the Doctors.

10 He saith to discern the Lords body, that hath consideration of the worthinesse of it, and therefore cometh to eat of this meat with great reverence.

21 The prophaning of the body & blood of the Lord in his mysteries, is sharply punished of him, and therefore such a mischief ought diligently to be prevented by judging and correcting of a mans self.

22 The Supper of the Lord is a common action of the whole Church, & therefore there is no place for private suppers.

23 The Supper of the Lord was instituted not to feed our selves, by fasts and repentances, separating our selves from the wicked.

24 The Supper of the Lord is a common action of the whole Church, & therefore there is no place for private suppers.

25 The Supper of the Lord was instituted not to feed

the belly, but to feed the soul with the communion of Christ, and therefore it ought to be separated from common banquets.

26 Such things as pertain to order, as place, time, form of prayers, and other such like, the Apostle took order for in Congregations, according to the consideration of times, places, and persons.

27 Now he entreath into the third part of this treatise touching the right use of spirituall gifts, wherein he giveth the Corinthians plainly to understand that they abused them: for they that excelled, bragged ambitiously of them, and to robbed God of the praise of his gifts: & having no consideration of their brethren, abused them to a vainglory, and so robbed the Church of the use of those gifts. On the other side, the inferior sort envied the better, and went about to make a departure, so that that body was as it were scattered and rent in pieces. So then going about to remedie these abuses, willerh them first to consider diligently, that they havenot these gifts of themselves, but from Gods free grace and liberallitie of God, so whose glory they ought to bestow them all.

28 Ignorant to what purpose these gifts are given you.

29 Hereproveth the same, by comparing their former state with that wherein they were at this time indeed, with those excellent gifts.

30 Attributing Gods service and the covenant, mere strangers.

31 The conclusion: Know you therefore that you cannot so much as move your lips to honour Christ withall, but by the grace of the holy Ghost.

32 Marke 9. 39. 33 Iohn 13. 13. Chap. 8. 6. Phil. 2. 11. 34 Deth curse him, or by any means whatsoever diminish his glorie.

35 In the second place, he layeth another foundation, to wit, that these gifts are divers, as the functions also are divers, and their offices divers, but that one selfe same Spirit, Lord and God is the giver of all these gifts, and that to one end, to wit, for the profit of all.

36 The Spirit is plainly distinguished from the gifts.

37 So Paul calleth that inward force which cometh from the holy Ghost, and maketh men fit to wonderfull things.

38 The holy Ghost openeth and sheweth himself freely in giving of these gifts.

39 To the use and benefit of the Church.

40 He declareth this manifold diversitie, and reckoneth up the chiefest gifts, beating that into their heads, which he said before, to wit, that all these things proceeded from one selfe same Spirit.

41 Wisdom is a most excellent gift, very requisite, not onely for them which teach, but also for them that exhort and comfort, which thing is proper to the Pastours office: as the word of knowledge agreeth to the Doctors.

10 And to another, theⁱ operations of great works: and to another, ^k prophesie: and to another, theⁱ discerning of spirits: and to another, diversities of tongues: and to another, the interpretation of tongues.

11 * And all these things worketh one and the selfe same Spirit, distributing to every man severally⁶ as he will.

12 ⁷ For as the body is one, and hath many members, and all the members of the body, which is one, though they be many, yet are but one body: ⁸ even so is ^m Christ.

13 For by one spirit are we all baptized intoⁿ one body, whether we be Jewes, or Grecians, whether we be bond, or free, and have bene all made to^o drinke into one Spirit.

14 ⁹ For the body also is not one member, but many.

15 ¹⁰ If the foot would say, Because I am not the hand, I am not of the body, is it therefore not of the body?

16 And if the eare would say, Because I am not the eye, I am not of the body, is it therefore not of the body?

17 ¹¹ If the whole body were an eye, where were the hearing? If the whole were hearing, where were the smelling?

18 But now hath God disposed the members every one of them in the body at his own pleasure.

19 For if they were all one member, where were the body?

20 But now are there many members, yet but one body.

21 ¹² And the eye cannot say unto the hand, I have no need of thee: nor the head againe to the feet, I have no neede of you.

22 Yea, much rather those members of the body, which seeme to be² more feeble, are necessarie.

23 And upon those members of the body, which we thinke most unhonest, put we more³ honestie on: and our uncomely parts have more comelinesse on.

24 For our comely parts neede it not: but God hath tempered the body together, and hath given the more honour to that part which lacked.

25 Left there should be any division in the body: but that the members should have the same⁴ care one for another.

26 ¹³ Therefore if one member suffer, all suffer with it: if one member be had in honour, all the members rejoyce with it.

27 Now ye are the body of Christ, and members for your⁵ part.

28 * And God hath ordained some in the Church: as first Apostles, secondly Prophets, thirdly teachers, then them that do miracles: after that, the gifts of healing, ⁶ helpers, ⁷ governours, diversitie of tongues.

29 Are all Apostles? are all Prophets? are all teachers?

30 Are all doers of miracles? have all the gifts of healing? doe all speake with tongues? do all interpret?

31 ¹⁴ But desire you the best gifts, and I will yet shew you a more excellent way.

are divers members of one body. * Ephes. 4.11. 1 The offices of Deacons, the order of Elders, which were the maintainers of the Churches discipline. 14 He teacheth them that are ambitious and envious, a certaine holy ambition and envy, to wit, if they give themselves to the best gifts, and such as are most profitable to the Church, and so if they contend, to excell one another in love, which fare palleth all other gifts.

CHAP. XIII.

1 He sheweth that there are no gifts so excellent, which in Gods sight are not corrupt, if Charity be away: 4 And therefore he digresseth unto the commendation of it.

Though¹ I speake with the tongues of men &² Angels, & have not love, I am as sounding brasle, or a³ tinkling cymball.

2 And though I had the gift of prophesie, and knew all secrets, and all knowledge, yea if I had all⁴ faith, so that I could remove⁵ mountaines, and had not love, I were nothing.

3 And though I feed the poore with all my goods, and though I give my body, that I be burned, and have not love, it profiteth me nothing.

4⁶ Love⁷ suffereth long: it is bountifull: love envieth not: love doeth not boast it selfe: it is not puffed up:

5 It doeth⁸ no uncomely thing: it seeketh nor her own things: it is not provoked to anger: it thinketh not evill:

6 It rejoyceth not in iniquitie, but⁹ rejoyceth in the truth:

7 It suffereth all things: it beleeveeth all things: it hopeth all things: it endureth all things.

8³ Love doth never fall away, though insisteth, which cannot be voided of Charity, as the other may. * Matth. 17.20. 2 He describeth the force and nature of charitie, partly by a comparison of contraries, and partly by the effects of it selfe: whereby the Corinthians may understand, both how profitable it is in the Church, and how necessarie: and also how fare they are from it, and therefore how vainly and without cause they are proud. 3 Again, he commendeth the excellencie of charitie in that, that it shall never be abolished in the Saints, whereas the other gifts which are necessary for the building up of the Church, so long as we live here, shall have no place in the world to come.

ⁱ By operation he meaneth those great workings of Gods mighty power which paffe and excell amongst his miracles, as the delivery of his people Israel by the hand of Moses: that which he did by Elisha against the Priests of Baal, in sending down fire from heaven to consume his sacrifice: and that which he did by Peter, in the matter of Ananias and Sapphira. ^k For calling of times to come. ^l Whereby false prophets are known from true, wherein Peter passed Philip in discovering Simon Magus. Acts 8.20. ^m Rom. 12.3. ⁿ Ephe. 4.7. He addeth moreover something else, to wit, that although that these gifts are unequal, yet they are most wisely divided, because the will of the Spirit of God is the rule of this distribution. ^o He setteth forth his former saying by a similitude taken from the body: This faith he, is manifestly seene in the body, whose members are divers, but yet knit together, that they make but one body. ^p The applying of the similitude. So much we also thinke, faith hee, of the myſticall body of Christ: for all wee that beleeve, whether we be Jewes or Gentiles, are by one selfe same Baptisme, joynted together with our head, that by that meanes, there may be framed one body, compact of many members: and we have drunke one selfe same spirit, that is to say, a spirituall feeling, perceivance, and motion common to us all out of one cup. ^q Christ joynted together with his Church. ^r To become one body with Christ. ^s By one quickening drinke of the Lords blood, we are made partakers of his holy Spirit. ^t Hee amplifieth that which followed of the similitude, as if hee should say, The unity of the body is not onely, not let by this diversitie of members, but also it could not be a body, if it did not consist of many, and those divers members. ^u Now he buildeth his doctrine upon the foundations which he hath layde: and first of all he continueth in his purposed similitude, and afterward hee goeth to the matter largely and simply. And first of all, he speaketh unto them which would have separated themselves from those whom they envied, because they had not such excellent gifts as they: now this is, faith hee, as if the foot should say, it were not of the body, because it is not the hand: or the eare, because it is not the eye. Therefore all parts ought rather to defend the unitie of the body, being coupled together to serve one another. ^v Again speaking to them, he sheweth them that if that should come to passe which they desire, to wit, that all should be equal one to another, there would follow a destruction of the whole body, yea, and of themselves: for it could not be a body, unless it were made of many members knit together, and divers one from the other. And that no man might finde fault with this division as unequal, he addeth that God himselfe hath coupled all these together. Therefore all must remaine coupled together, that the body may remaine in safetie. ^w Now on the other side, he speaketh unto them which were indued with more excellent gifts, willing them not to despise the inferior as unprofitable, and as though they served to no use: for God faith hee, hath in such fort tempered this inequality, that the more excellent and beautifull members can in no wise lacke the more abiect, and such as we are ashamed of, and that they should have more care to see unto them and to cover them: that by this meanes the necessitie which is on both parts, might keep the whole body in peace and concord: yet becauſe if each part be considered apart, they are of divers degrees and conditions, yet becauſe they are joynted together, they have a commonitie both in commodities and discommodities. ^x Of the smallest and vilest offices, and therefore finally accounted of, of the rest. ^y We more carefully cover them.

^r Should bestow their operation and offices to the profit and preservation of the whole body. ^s Now he amplifieth this same doctrine to the Corinthians without any allegory, warning them that seeing there are divers functions and divers gifts, it is their dutie, not to offend one against another, either by envy of ambition, but rather that they being joynted together in love and charity one with another, every one of them bestow to the profit of all, that which he hath received according as his ministerie doth require. ^t For all Churches wheresoever they are dispersed through the whole world. ^u He setteth forth the order of Elders, which were the maintainers of the Churches discipline. ^v He teacheth them that are ambitious and envious, a certaine holy ambition and envy, to wit, if they give themselves to the best gifts, and such as are most profitable to the Church, and so if they contend, to excell one another in love, which fare palleth all other gifts.

¹ He reasoneth first of Charity, the excellencie whereof he first sheweth by this, that without it, all other gifts are as nothing before God: which thing he proveth partly by an induction, and partly also by an argument taken of the end, wherefore those gifts are given. For to what purpose are those gifts but to Gods glory, and the profit of the Church, as is before proved? so that those gifts without charity, have no right use. ² A very earnest kinde of amplifying a matter, as if he said, If there were any tongues of Angels, and I had them, and did not use them to the benefit of my neighbour, it were nothing else but a vain and prating kinde of babbling. ³ That giveth a rule and no certain sound. ⁴ By faith he meaneth the gift of doing miracles, and not that faith which that propheſyings be aboliſhed, or the tongues ceaſe, or knowledge vaniſh away.

9 * For we know in^h part, and we propheſie in part.

10 But when that which is perfect, is come, then that which is in part, ſhall be aboliſhed.

11 * When I was a child, I ſpake as a child, I underſtood as a childe, I thought as a childe: but when I became a man, I put away childiſh things.

12 * Forⁱ now we ſee through a glaſſe darkly: but then ſhall we ſee face to face. Now I know in part, but then ſhall I know even as I am known.

13 * And now abideth faith, hope, and love, even theſe three: but the chiefſt of theſe is love.

^g The way to get knowledge by propheſying.
⁴ The reaſon: Because we are now in that ſtate that we have need to learn daily, and therefore we have need of thoſe helps, to wit, of the gift of tongues, and knowledge, and alſo of them that teach them. But to what purpoſe ſerve they then, when we have obtained and gotten the full knowledge of God, which ſerveth now but for them which are imperfect, and go by degrees to perfection?
⁵ He ſetteth forth that, that he ſaid, by an excellent ſimilitude, comparing this life to our infancy, or childhood, wherein we ſtammer and ſtammer rather than ſpeake, and I thinke and underſtand but childiſh things, and therefore have need of ſuch things as may forme and frame our tongue and minde: but when we become men, to what purpoſe ſhould we deſire that ſtammering, thoſe childiſh toys, and ſuch like things, whereby our childhood is framed by little and little. ⁶ The applying of the ſimilitude of our childhood to this preſent life, wherein we darkly behold heavenly things, according to the ſmall meaſure of light which is given us, through the underſtanding of tongues, and hearing the teachers and miniſters of the Church: of our mans age and ſtrength, to that heavenly and eternall life, wherein when we behold God himſelfe preſent, and are lightened with his full and perfect light, to what purpoſe ſhould we deſire the voice of man, and thoſe worldly things which are moſt imperfect? But yet then, ſhall all the Saints be knit both with God, and betweene themſelves with moſt fervent love, and therefore Charitie ſhall not be aboliſhed but perfected, although it ſhall not be ſhewed forth, & entertained by ſuch manner of duties, as peculiarly and onely belong to the infirmities of this life.
ⁱ All this muſt be underſtood by compariſon.
⁷ The concluſion: As if the Apoſtle ſhould ſay, Such therefore ſhall be our condition then: but now we have three things, and they remaine ſure if we be Chriſts, as without which, true religion cannot conſiſt, to wit, faith, hope, and Charitie. And among theſe, Charitie is the chiefſt, becauſe it ceaſeth not in the life to come: the reſt doe, but is perfected and accompliſhed. Foreſeeing that faith and hope tend to things which are promiſed and are to come: when we have preſently gotten them, to what purpoſe ſhould we have faith and hope? but yet there at length ſhall we truly and perfectly love both God, and one another.

CHAP. XIV.

* Hee commendeth the gift of propheſying: 7 and by a ſimilitude taken of muſicall instruments, 12 he teacheth the true uſe of interpreting the Scriptures: 17 He taketh away the abuſe: 34 and forbiddeth women to ſpeake in the Congregation.

Follow^a after love, and covet ſpiritual gifts, & rather that ye may^a propheſie.

2 * For he that ſpeaketh a ſtrange^b tongue, ſpeaketh not unto men, but unto God: for no man heareth him: howbeit in the^c ſpirit he ſpeaketh ſecret things.

3 But he that propheſieth, ſpeaketh unto men to^d edifying, and to exhortation, and to comfort.

4 He that ſpeaketh ſtrange language, edifieth himſelfe: but he that propheſieth, edifieth the^e Church.

5 I would that ye all ſpake ſtrange languages, but rather that ye propheſied: for greater is he that propheſieth, then he that ſpeaketh divers tongues, except he expound it, that the Church may receive edification.

6 And now, brethren, If I come unto you ſpeaking, and yet of it ſelfe was not greatly to any uſe, unleſſe there were an interpreter. ^a What propheſie is, he ſheweth in the third verſe. ² He reprehendeth their perverſe judgement touching the gift of tongues. For why was it given? to wit, to the intent that the myſteries of God might be the better known to a greater fort; Thereby it is evident that propheſie, whereunto the gift of tongues ought to ſerve, is better then this: and therefore the Corinthians did judge amiſſe, in that they made more account of the gift of tongues then of propheſying: becauſe forſooth the gift of tongues was a thing more to be bragged of. And hereupon followed another abuſe of the gift of tongues, in that the Corinthians uſed tongues in the congregation without an interpreter. Which thing although it might be done to ſome profit of him that ſpake them, yet he corrupted the right uſe of that gift, becauſe there came thereby no profit to the hearers: and common aſſemblies were inſtituted and appointed not for any private mans commoditie, but for the profit of the whole company.
^b A ſtrange language which no man can underſtand without an interpreter.
^c By this inſpiration which he hath received of the Spirit, which notwithstanding he abuſeth, when he ſpeaketh myſteries which none of the company can underſtand. ^d Which may further men in the ſtudy of godlineſſe. ^e The company.

you ſpeaking divers tongues, what ſhall I profit you, except I ſpeake to you, either by revelation, or by knowledge, or by propheſying, or by doctrine?

7 * Moreover things without life which give a ſound, whether it be a pipe or an harpe, except they make a diſtinction in the ſounds, how ſhall it be known what is piped or harped?

8 And alſo if the trumpet give an uncertaine ſound, who ſhall prepare himſelfe to battell?

9 So likewiſe you, by the tongue, except ye utter words that have^f ſignification, how ſhall it be underſtood what is ſpoken? for ye ſhall ſpeake in the ayre.

10 * There are ſo many kinds of voices (as it commeth to paſſe) in the world, and none of them is dumb.

11 Except I know then the power of the voice, I ſhall be unto him that ſpeaketh a barbarian, and he that ſpeaketh ſhall be a barbarian unto me.

12 * Even ſo, for as much as ye covet ſpiritual gifts, ſeeke that ye may excell unto the edifying of the Church.

13 Wherefore let him that ſpeaketh a ſtrange tongue, pray that he may interpret.

14 * Forⁱ if I pray in a ſtrange tongue, my^k ſpirit prayeth: but mine underſtanding is without fruit.

15 What is it then? I will pray with the ſpirit, but I will pray with the^m underſtanding alſo: I will ſing with the ſpirit, but I will ſing with the underſtanding alſo.

16 * Elſe, when thou bleſſeſt with theⁿ ſpirit, how ſhall he that^o occupieth the roome of the unlearned, ſay Amen, at thy giving of thanks, ſeeing he knoweth not what thou ſayeſt?

17 For thou verily giveth thanks well, but the other is not edified.

18 * I thanke my God, I ſpeake languages more then ye all:

19 Yet had I rather in the Church to ſpeake a few words with mine underſtanding, that I might alſo inſtruct others, then ten thouſand words in a ſtrange tongue.

20 * Brethren, be not^p children in underſtanding, but as concerning maliciousneſſe be children, but in underſtanding be of a ripe age.

21 In the^q Law it is written, * By men of other tongues, and by other languages will I ſpeake unto this people: yet ſo ſhall they not heare me, ſaith the Lord.

⁷ Another reaſon: ſeeing that the whole congregation muſt agree to him that ſpeaketh and alſo witneſſe this agreement, how ſhal they give their aſſent or agreement which know not what is ſpoken?
ⁿ Onely, without all conſideration of the hearers.
^o He that ſitteth as a private man.
^p So then one uttered the prayers, and all the company answered, Amen.
⁸ He propoundeth himſelfe for an example, both that they may be aſhamed of their fooliſh ambition, and alſo that he may elchew all ſuſpicion of envy.

³ He ſetteth forth that which he ſaid by a ſimilitude, which he borroweth and taketh from instruments of muſicke, which although they ſpeake not perfectly, yet they are diſtinguiſhed by their ſounds, that they may be the better uſed.
^f That doe ſilly matter the matter is ſelfe.
⁴ He prooveth that interpretation is neceſſarily to be joynted with the gift of tongues, by the manifold variety of languages, in ſomuch that if one ſpeake to another without an interpreter, it is as if he ſpake not.
^g As the Taſſits in all their Sermons, and they that ambitiouſly purſue out ſome Hebrew or Greeke words in the Pulpit before the unlearned people thereby to get them a name of vainglorious learning.
⁵ The concluſion: if they will excell in thoſe ſpiritual gifts, as it is need, they muſt ſeeke the profit of the Church, and therefore they muſt not ſeek the gift of tongues, unleſſe there be an interpreter to expound the ſtrange and unknown tongue, whether it be himſelfe that ſpeaketh, or another interpreter.
^h Pray for the gift of interpretation.
⁶ A reaſon: Becauſe it is not ſufficient for us to ſpeake ſo in the congregation, that we our ſelves doe worſhip God in ſpirit, that is according to the gift which we have received, but we muſt alſo be underſtood of the company, leaſt that be unprofitable to other, which we have ſpoken.
ⁱ If I pray, when the Church is aſſembled together, in a ſtrange tongue.
^k The gift and inſpiration which the ſpirit giveth me, doeth his part, but onely to my ſelfe.
^l No fruit commeth to the Church by my prayers.
^m So that I may be underſtood of other, and may inſtruct other.
¹¹ Another reaſon: ſeeing that the whole congregation muſt agree to him that ſpeaketh and alſo witneſſe this agreement, how ſhal they give their aſſent or agreement which know not what is ſpoken?
ⁿ Onely, without all conſideration of the hearers.
^o He that ſitteth as a private man.
^p So then one uttered the prayers, and all the company answered, Amen.
⁸ He propoundeth himſelfe for an example, both that they may be aſhamed of their fooliſh ambition, and alſo that he may elchew all ſuſpicion of envy.

10 The conclusion: Therefore the gift of tongues serveth to punish the unfaithfull and unbelievers, unless it be referred to prophesie (that is to say, to the interpretation of Scripture) and that which is spoken be by that means understood of the hearers.

11 Another argument: the gift of tongues without prophesie is not onely unprofitable to the faithfull, but also doth very much hurt: as well to them as to the unfaithfull, which should be woe in the publike assemblies. For by this means it cometh to passe, that the faithfull seem to others to be mad, much lesse can the unfaithfull be instructed thereby.

12 The conclusion. The edifying of the congregation is a rule and square of the right use of all spiritual gifts.

13 The manner how to use the gift of tongues. It may be lawfull for one or two, or at the most for three, to use the gift of tongues, one after another in an assembly, so that there be some to expound the same: but if there be none to expound, let him that hath that gift speake to himselfe alone.

14 The manner of prophesying: Let two or three propound, and let the other judge of that y^e is propounded, whether it be agreeable to the word of God or no: If in this examination the Lord give any man ought to speake, let them give him leave to speake. Let every man be admitted to prophesie, severally, and in this order, so far forth as it is requisite for the edifying of the Church: Let them be content to be subject each to others judgement.

15 The doctrine which the Prophets bring, which are inspired with Gods Spirit.

16 Women are commanded to be silent in publike assemblies, and they are commanded to aske of their husbands at home.

17 Tim. 2. 12.

18 Gen. 3. 16.

19 A generall conclusion of the treatise of the right use of spiritual gifts in assemblies: with a sharpe reprehension, lest the Corinthians might alone seeme to themselves to be wise. 20 Stillfull in knowing and judging spiritual things. 21 The Church ought not to care for such as be stubbornly ignorant, & will not abide to be taught, but to go forward notwithstanding, in those things which are right. 22 Prophesie ought simply to be retained and kept in Congregations, the gift of tongues is not to be forbidden, but all things must be done orderly.

22 ¹⁰ Wherefore strange tongues are for a signe, not to them that beleeve, but to them that beleeve not: but prophesying serveth not for them that beleeve not, but for them which beleeve.

23 ¹¹ If therefore when the whol Church is come together in one, and all speake strange tongues, there come in they that are unlearned, or they which beleeve not, will they not say, that ye are out of your wits?

24 But if all prophesie, and there come in one that beleeveth not, or one unlearned, he is rebuked of al men, and is judged of al:

25 And so are the secrets of his heart made manifest, and so he will fall down on his face and worship God, and say plainly that God is in you indeed.

26 ¹² What is to be done then, brethren? when ye come together, according as every one of you hath a Psalme, or hath doctrine, or hath a tongue, or hath revelation, or hath interpretation, let all things be done unto edifying.

27 ¹³ If any man speake a strange tongue, let it be by two, or at the most by three, and that by course, and let one interpret.

28 But if there be no interpreter, let him keep silence in the Church, which speaketh languages, and let him speake to himselfe, and to God.

29 ¹⁴ Let the Prophets speake, two or three, and let the other judge.

30 And if any thing be reveiled to another that sitteth by, let the first hold his peace.

31 For ye may all prophesie one by one, that all may learn, & all may have comfort.

32 And the spirits of the Prophets are subject to the Prophets.

33 For God is not the author of confusion, but of peace, as we see in all the Churches of the Saints.

34 ¹⁵ * Let your women keep silence in the Churches: for it is not permitted unto them to speake, but they ought to be subject, as also * the Law saith.

35 And if they will learn any thing, let them ask their husbands at home: for it is a shame for women to speake in the Church.

36 ¹⁶ Came the word of God out from you? either came it unto you onely?

37 If any man thinke himselfe to be a Prophet, or spirituall, let him acknowledge, that the things that I write unto you, are the commandements of the Lord.

38 ¹⁷ And if any man be ignorant, let him be ignorant.

39 ¹⁸ Wherefore, brethren, covet to prophesie, and forbid not to speake languages.

40 Let all things be done honestly, and by order.

with a sharpe reprehension, lest the Corinthians might alone seeme to themselves to be wise. 20 Stillfull in knowing and judging spiritual things. 21 The Church ought not to care for such as be stubbornly ignorant, & will not abide to be taught, but to go forward notwithstanding, in those things which are right. 22 Prophesie ought simply to be retained and kept in Congregations, the gift of tongues is not to be forbidden, but all things must be done orderly.

CHAP. XV.

1 The Gospel that Paul preached. 2 The death and resurrection of Christ. 3 Paul saw Christ. 4 He had persecuted that Church whereof afterward he was made a minister. 5 Christ first rose again, and we all shall rise by him. 6 The last enemy, death. 7 To be baptized for dead. 8 At Ephesus Paul fought with beasts. 9 How the dead are raised. 10 The first Adam. 11 The first and second man. 12 We shall all be changed, we shall not all sleep. 13 Deaths sting. 14 victory. 15 Constancy and steadfastnesse.

Moreover ¹ brethren, I declare unto you the Gospel, which I preached unto you, which ye have also received, and wherein ye ^a continue,

2 And whereby ye are saved, if ye keep in memory, after what maner I preached it unto you, except ye have beleeved in vaine.

3 For first of all, I delivered unto you that which I received, how that Christ died for our sins, according to the Scriptures,

4 And that he was buried, and that he arose the third day, according to the Scriptures,

5 * And that he was seen of Cephas, then of the twelve.

6 After that, he was seen of more then five hundred brethren at ^d once: whereof many remane unto this present, and some also are asleepe.

7 After that, he was seen of James: then of all the Apostles.

8 * ² And last of all, he was seen also of me, as of one born out of due time.

9 * For I am the least of the Apostles, which am not meet to be called an Apostle, because I persecuted the Church of God.

10 * But by the grace of God, I am that I am: and his grace which is in me, was not in vain: but I laboured more abundantly then they all: yet not I, but the grace of God which is with me.

11 Wherefore, whether it were I, or they, so we preach, and so have ye believed.

12 ¶ ³ Now if it be preached, that Christ is risen from the dead, how say some among you, that there is no resurrection of the dead?

13 ⁴ For if there be no resurrection of the dead, then is Christ not risen:

14 ⁵ And if Christ be not risen, then is our preaching vaine, and your faith is also vaine.

15 And we are found also false witnesses of God: for we have testified of God, that he hath raised up Christ: whom he hath not raised up, if so be the dead be not raised.

16 ⁶ For if the dead be not raised, then is Christ not raised.

to them all. * Eph. 3. 8. * Eph. 3. 7. 3 The first argument, to prove that there is a resurrection from the dead: Christ is risen againe, therefore the dead, shall rise againe. 4 The second, by an absurdity, if there be no resurrection of the dead, then is not Christ risen againe. 5 The proofe of that absurdity, by other absurdities: If Christ be not risen againe, the preaching of the Gospel is in vain, and the credite that you gave unto it, is vaine, and we are liars. 6 He repeateth the same argument taken of an absurdity, purposing to shew how faith is in vaine, if the resurrection of Christ be taken away.

1 The first treatise of this Epistle, concerning the resurrection: and he useth a transition, or passing over from one matter to another, shewing first that he bringeth no new thing, to the end that the Corinthians might understand that they had begun to swarve from the right course: and next, that he goeth not about to intreat of a trifling matter, but of another chief point of the Gospel, which if it be taken away, their faith must needs come to nought. And so at the length he beginneth this treatise of Christs resurrection, which is the ground and foundation of ours, and confirmeth it: first, by the testimony of the Scriptures, and by the witness of the Apostles, and of more then five hundred brethren, and last of all by his own.

* Acts. 9. 5.

2 He maintaineth by the way, the authority of his Apostleship, which was requisite to be in good credite among the Corinthians, that this Epistle might be of force and waight amongst them. In the mean season, he compareth himself in such sort after a certaine divine art, with certain other, that he maketh himself inferior.

7 First, seeing death is the punishment of sin, in vaine should we beleeve that our sins were forgiven us, if they remaine: but they doe remaine, if Christ rose not from death.

8 They are yet in their sin, which are not justified, nor have obtained remission of their sins.

8 Secondly, unless that this be certain that Christ rose againe, all they which died in Christ are perished. So thea what profit cometh of faith?

9 The third argument, which is also taken from an absurdity: for unless there be another life, wherein such as trust and beleeve in Christ shall be blessed, they were the most miserable of all creatures, because in this life they are the most miserable.

10 A conclusion of the former argument: Therefore Christ is risen againe.

11 He putteth the last conclusion for the first proposition of the argument that followeth. Christ is risen againe: Therefore shall we, the faithful, (for of them he speaketh) rise againe. Then followeth the first reason of this consequent: for Christ is let forth unto us to be considered of, not as a private man a part and by himselfe, but as the first fruits: And he taketh that which was known to all men, to wit, that the whole heape is sanctified in the first fruits. * Coloss. 1. 18. revelat. 1. 5. f He alueth to the first fruits of corn, the offering whereof sanctified the rest of the fruits.

12 An other confirmation of the same consequent: for 'Christ is to be considered as opposite to Adam, that as from one man Adam, sinne came over all, so from one man Christ, life cometh unto all: that is to say, that all the faithful, as they die, because by nature they were born of Adam, so because in Christ they are made the children of God by grace, they are quickened and restored to life by him.

13 He doth two things together: for he sheweth that the resurrection is in such sort common to Christ with all his members, that notwithstanding he saith passeth them, both in time (for he was the first that rose againe from the dead) and also in honour, because that from him and in him is all our life and glory. Then by this occasion he passeth to the next argument.

* 1 Thess. 4. 13. 14 The fourth argument, wherewith also he confirmeth the other, hath a most sure ground to wit, because that God must reigne. And this is the manner of his reigne, that the Father will bee shewed to bee King in his Sonne who was made man, to whom all things are made subject (the promises onely except) to the end that the Father may afterward triumph in his Sonne the conquerour. And he maketh two parts of this reigne and dominion of the Sonne, wherein the Fathers glory consisteth: to wit, the overcoming of his enemies (whereof some must be deprived of all power, as Satan and all the wicked, be they never so proud and mighty and other must be utterly abolished, as death), and a plaine and full delivery of the godly from all enemies, that by this means God may fully set forth the body of the Church cleaving fast unto their head Christ, his kingdom and glory, as a King in his subjects.

Moreover he putteth the first degree of this kingdom in the resurrection of his Son, who is the head: and the perfection, in the full conjunction of the members with the head, which shall be in the latter day. Now all these tend to this purpose, to shew that unless the dead doe rise againe, neither the Father can bee King above all, neither Christ be the Lord of all: for neither should the power of Satan and death be overcome, nor the glory of God be full in his Sonne, nor his Sons in his members.

b The shutting up and finishing of all things. i All his enemies which shall be spoiled of all the power they have. f. 110. 1. 2. Heb. 2. 34. Heb. 1. 13. and 10. 13.

k Christ is considered here, as he appeared in the forme of a servant, in which respect he ruleth the Church as head, and that because this power was given him of his Father.

l The shutting up of the argument, which is taken from the whole to the part: for if all his enemies shall be put under his feet, then must it needs be that death also shall be subdued under him.

* f. 110. 1. 2. Heb. 2. 34. Heb. 1. 13. and 10. 13. m Not because the Son was not subject to his Father before, but because his body, that is to say, the Church which is here in distress, and not yet wholly partaker of his glory, is not yet fully perfected, and also because the bodies of the Saints which be in the graves, shall not be glorified until the resurrection: but Christ as he is God, hath his subject to him as his Father hath him as he is Priest, he is subject to his Father together with us.

August. booke 1. chap. 8. of the Trinity. n By this high kind of speech, is set forth an incomprehensible glory which floweth from God, and shall fill all of us, as we are joined together with our head, but yet so that our head shall always reserve his preeminence.

15 The fifth argument is taken of the end of Baptisme, to wit, because that they which are baptized are baptized for dead: that is to say, that they may have a remedy against death, because that baptisme is a token of regeneration.

o They that are baptized in this end and purpose, that death may be put out in them, or to rise againe from the dead, wherof baptisme is a seal.

17 And if Christ be not raised, your faith is vaine, ye are yet in your sins.

18 And so they which are asleep in Christ, are perished.

19 If in this life onely we have hope in Christ, we are of all men the most miserable.

20 But now is Christ risen from the dead, and was made the first fruits of them that slept.

21 For since by man came death, by man came also the resurrection of the dead:

22 For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive.

23 But every man in his own order: the first fruits is Christ, afterward, they that are of Christ, at his coming shall rise againe.

24 Then shall be the end, when he hath delivered up the kingdom to God, even the Father, when he hath put down all rule, and all authority and power.

25 For he must reign, till he hath put all his enemies under his feet.

26 The last enemy that shall be destroyed, is death.

27 For he hath put downe all things under his feet. (And when he saith that all things are subdued to him, it is manifest that he is excepted, which did put down all things under him.)

28 And when all things shall be subdued unto him, then shall the Sonne also himselfe be subject unto him, that did subdue all things under him, that God may be all in all.

29 Else what shall they doe which are baptized for dead? if the dead rise not at all, why are they then baptized for dead?

30 Why are we also in jeopardy every hour?

31 By our rejoicing which I have in Christ Jesus our Lord, I die daily.

32 If I have fought with beasts at Ephesus after the manner of men, what advantage it me, if the dead be not raised up? let us cate and drink: for to morrow we shall die.

33 Be not deceived: evil speakings corrupt good manners.

34 Awake to live righteously, and sinne not: for some have not the knowledge of God, I speak this to your shame.

35 But some man will say, How are the dead raised up? and with what body come they forth?

36 O fool, that which thou sowest, is not quickened, except it die.

37 And that which thou sowest, thou sowest not that body that shall be, but bare corn as it falleth, of wheat, or of some other 38 But God giveth it a body at his pleasure, even to every seed his own body.

39 All flesh is not the same flesh, but there is one flesh of men, & another flesh of beasts, and another of fishes, and another of birds.

40 There are also heavenly bodies, and earthly bodies: but the glory of the heavenly is one, and the glory of the earthly is another.

41 There is another glory of the Sun, another glory of the Moone, and another glory of the starres: for one starre differeth from another starre in glory.

42 So also is the resurrection of the dead. The body is sown in corruption, and is raised in incorruption.

43 It is sown in dishonour, and is raised in glory: it is sown in weaknesse, and is raised in power.

44 It is sown a naturall body, and is raised a spirituall body: there is a naturall body, and there is a spirituall body.

45 As it is also written, The first what manner of bodies they should have. Therefore he sendeth these fellows, which seemed to themselves to be marvellous wise and witty, to be instructed of poore rude husbandmen.

21 Thou mightest have learned either of these, saith Paul, by daily experience: for feedes are sown, and rot, and yet notwithstanding so farre it is off that they perish, that contrariwise they grow up farre more beautifull: and whereas they are sown naked and dry, they spring up green from death by the vertue of God: and doth it seeme incredible to thee, that our bodies should rise from corruption, and that indued with a farre more excellent quality?

22 Wee see a diversity both in one and the selfe same thing which hath now one forme and then another, and yet keepeth it own kinde: as it is evident in a graine which is sown bare, but springeth up farre after another sort: and also in divers kinds of one selfe same sort, as amongst beasts: and also amongst things of divers sorts, as the heavenly bodies and the earthly bodies, which also differ very much one from another.

Therefore there is no cause why wee should reject either the resurrection of the bodies, or the changing of them into a better state, as a thing impossible, or strange.

23 He maketh three manner of qualities of the bodies being raised: Incorruption, to wit, because they shall bee sound and altogether of a nature that cannot be corrupt: Glory, because they shall bee adorned with beauty and Power: honour, because they shall continue everlasting, without meate, drinke, and all other helps, without which this fraile life cannot keep it selfe from corruption.

24 He sheweth perfectly in one word this change of the quality of the body by the resurrection, when he saith, that of a naturall body, it shall become a spirituall body: which two qualities beinge so different the one from the other he straightway expoundeth, and setteth forth diligently.

25 That is called a naturall body which is quickened and maintained by a living soule onely, such as Adam was, of whom all we are born naturally: and that is said to be a spirituall, which together with the soule is quickened with a farre more excellent vertue, to wit, with the Spirit of God, which descendeth from Christ the second Adam into us.

26 Adam is called the first man, because he is the root, as it were, from whence wee spring: and Christ is the latter man, because he is the beginning of all them that are spirituall, and in him wee are all comprehended.

16 The sixth argument: Unless there be a resurrection of the dead, why should the Apostles to daily cast themselves into danger of so many deaths?

17 The taking away of an objection: But thou Paul didst ambitiously, as commonly men are wont to doe, when thou didst fight with beasts at Ephesus: that is very like, saith Paul: for what could that advantage me, were it not for the glory of eternal life which I hope for?

18 The seventh argument which dependeth upon the last: if there be no resurrection of the dead, why doe we give our selves to any thing els, save to eating and drinking?

19 These are speeches that Epicures use.

20 Now that he hath proved the resurrection, he discovereth their foolishnesse, in that they loquaciously demanded, how it could be that the dead should rise againe, and if they did rise againe, they asked mockingly,

21 The conclusion with a sharpe exhortation, that they take heed of the naughty company of certain: from whence he sheweth their foolishnesse, in that they loquaciously demanded, how it could be that the dead should rise againe, and if they did rise againe, they asked mockingly,

* Gen. 2.7.

* Christ is called a Spirit, by reason of that most excellent nature, that is to say, God who dwelleth in him bodily, as Adam is called a living soul, by reason of the soule which is the best part in him.

26 Secondly, he willett the order of this double state or quality to bee observed, that the naturall was first, Adam being created of the clay of the earth: and the spirituall followed and came upon it, so wit, when as the Lord being sent from heaven, induced our flesh, which was prepared, and made fit for him, with the fulnesse of the Godhead.

27 Wallowing in dirt, and wholly given to an earthly nature. a The Lord is said to come down from heaven by that kinde of speech, whereby that which is proper to one is vouch'd of another.

27 Hee applieth both the earthly naturalnesse of Adam (If I may say) to our bodies, so long as they are naturally conversant upon earth, to wit, in this life, and in the grave: and also the spiritualty of Christ to the same our bodies, after that they are risen again: and he saith that that goeth before, and this shall follow.

b Not a vain and false image, but such as me as had the truth with it indeed.

28 The conclusion: We cannot be partakers of the glory of God, unless we put off all that grosse and filthy nature of our bodies, subject to corruption, that y^e same body may be adorned with incorruptible glory. c Flesh and blood are taken here for a living body, which cannot attaine to incorruption, unless it put off corruption.

29 Hee goeth further, declaring that it shall come to passe, that they which shall be found alive in the latter day, shall not descend into that corruption of the grave, but shall be renewed with a sudden change, which change is very requisite: and that the certain enjoying of the benefit and victory of Christ, is deferred unto that latter time.

d A thing that hath been hid, and never known hitherto, and therefore worthy that you give good care unto it. e He sheweth us that the time shall be very short. * Mat. 24. 31. 1 Theff. 4. 16. * 1 Cor. 13. 14. * 1 John 5. 5. 30 An exhortation taken of the profit that enueth, that seeing they understand that the glory of the other life is laid up for faithfull workmen, they continue and stand fast in the truth of the doctrine of the resurrection of the dead.

man * Adam was made a living soule: and the last Adam was made a quickning Spirit.

56 26 Howbeit that was not first which is spirituall, but that which is naturall, and afterward that which is spirituall.

47 The first man is of the earth, earthly: the second man is the Lord from a heaven.

48 27 As is the earthly, such are they that are earthly: and as is the heavenly, such are they also that are heavenly.

49 And as we have born the image of the earthly, so shall we beare the image of the heavenly.

50 28 This I say, brethren, that flesh and blood cannot inherite the kingdome of God, neither doth corruption inherite in corruption.

51 29 Behold, I shew you a secret thing, We shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed.

52 In a moment, in the twinkling of an eye at the last trumpet: for the trumpet shall blow, and the deed shall be raised up incorruptible, and we shall be changed.

53 For this corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortall must put on immortality.

54 So when this corruptible hath put on incorruption, and this mortall hath put on immortality then shall bee brought to passe the saying that is written, * Death is swallowed up in victory.

55 O death where is thy sting? O grave where is thy victory?

56 The sting of death is sinne: and the strength of sinne is the law.

57 * But thanks be unto God, which hath given us victory through our Lord Jesus Christ.

58 30 Therefore my beloved brethren, be ye stedfast, unmoveable, abundant alwaies in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as ye know that your labour is not in vain in the Lord.

d A thing that hath been hid, and never known hitherto, and therefore worthy that you give good care unto it. e He sheweth us that the time shall be very short. * Mat. 24. 31. 1 Theff. 4. 16. * 1 Cor. 13. 14. * 1 John 5. 5. 30 An exhortation taken of the profit that enueth, that seeing they understand that the glory of the other life is laid up for faithfull workmen, they continue and stand fast in the truth of the doctrine of the resurrection of the dead. f Through the Lords help and goodnesse working in us.

CHAP. XVI.

1 Hee exhorteth them to helpe the poore brethren of Ierusalem: 10 Then he commandeth Timothy. 13 and so with a friendly exhortation, 19 and commendations, endeth the Epistle.

Concerning the gathering for the Saints, as I have ordained in the Churches of Galatia, so doe ye also.

1 Collections in old time were made by the Apostles appointment the first day of the week, on which day the manner was then to assemble themselves.

2 Every first day of the week, let every one of you put aside by himselfe, and lay up as God hath prospered him, that then there be no gatherings when I come.

3 And when I am come, whomsoever ye shall allow by letters, them will I send to bring your liberality unto Jerusalem.

4 And if it be meet that I go also, they shall go with me.

5 Now I will come unto you, after I have gone through Macedonia (for I will passe through Macedonia)

6 And it may be that I will abide, yea, or winter with you, that ye may bring me on my way, whithersoever I go.

7 For I will not see you now in my passage, but I trust to abide a while with you, if the Lord permit.

8 And I will tarry at Ephesus untill Pentecost:

9 For a great doore and effectually is opened unto me, and there are many adversaries.

10 ¶ Now if Timotheus come, see that he be without fear with you: for he worketh the work of the Lord, even as I do.

11 Let no man therefore despise him: but convey him forth in peace that he may come unto me, for I look for him with the brethren.

12 As touching our brother Apollos, I greatly desired him, to come unto you with the brethren: but his minde was not at all to come at this time: howbeit he will come when he shall have convenient time.

13 ¶ Watch ye: stand fast in the faith: quit you like men, and be strong.

14 Let all your things be done in love.

15 Now brethren, I beseech you (ye know the house of Stephanas, that it is the first fruits of Achaia, and that they have given themselves to minister unto the Saints:)

16 That ye be obedient even unto such, and to all that help with us and labour.

17 I am glad of the coming of Stephanas, and Fortunatus, and Achaicus: for they have supplied the want of you.

18 For they have comforted my spirit and yours: acknowledge therefore such men.

19 The Churches of Asia salute you: Aquila and Priscilla with the Church that is in their house, salute you greatly in the Lord.

20 All the brethren greet you. Greet ye one another with an holy kisse.

21 The salutation of me Paul with mine own hand.

22 If any man love not the Lord Jesus Christ, let him be had in execration Maran-atha.

a Wh. in times past was called Sunday, but now is called the Lords day.

b That every man bestow according to the ability that God hath blessed him with. c Which ye shall give them to carry.

2 The residue of the Epistle is spent in writing of familiar matters, yet so that all things be referred to his purposed mark, that is to say, to the glory of God, and to the edifying of the Corinthians.

d Very fit and convenient to do great things by.

e Without any just occasion of feare.

f Safe and sound, and that with all kinde of courtesy.

g Stephanas is the name of a man and not of a woman. h Given themselves wholly to the ministry.

i That you honour and reverence them, be obedient to them, and be content to be ruled by them, as meet is you should, seeing they have bestowed themselves and their goods to help you withall. k Mine heart. l Take them for such men as they are indeed.

1 Pet. 5. 14.

m By these words it betokened the severest kinde of curse & excommunication that was amongst the Jews: and the words are as much to say, as our Lord cometh: So that his meaning may be this, Let him be accursed even to the coming of the Lord, that is to say, let his death be day even for ever.

23 The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you.

24 My love be with you all in Christ Jesus. Amen.

The first Epistle to the Corinthians, written from Philippi, and sent by Stephanas, and Fortunatus, and Achaicus, and Timotheus.

THE SECOND EPISTLE OF PAUL TO THE CORINTHIANS.

CHAP. I.

1 He beginneth with the praise of affliction, 2 declaring what he hath suffered in Asia, 10 and how happy God afflicted him. 17 He saith it was not upon any lightnesse that he came not according to his Promise.

1 See the declaration of such salutation, in the former Epistles.

PAUL an Apostle of Jesus Christ, by the will of God, and our brother Timotheus, to the Church of God, which is at Corinthus, with all the Saints, which are in all Achaia:

2 Grace be with you, and peace from God our Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ.

3 * 2 Blessed be God, even the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of mercies, and the God of all comfort, 4 Which comforteth us in all our tribulation, 3 that we may be able to comfort them which are in any affliction by the comfort wherewith we our selves are comforted of God.

5 For as the sufferings of Christ abound in us, so our consolation aboundeth through Christ.

6 4 And whether wee be afflicted, it is for your consolation and salvation, which is wrought in the enduring of the same sufferings, which we also suffer: or whether we be comforted, it is for your consolation and salvation.

7 And our hope is stedfast concerning you, in as much as we know that as ye are partakers of the suffering, so shall ye be also of the consolation.

8 5 For, brethren, we would not have you ignorant of our affliction, which came unto us in Asia; how we were pressed out of measure passing strength, so that we altogether 6 doubted even of life:

9 Yea, we received the sentence of death in our selves, because we should not trust in our selves, but in God, 7 which raiseth the dead:

10 Who delivered us from so great a death, and doth deliver us: in whom we trust, that yet hereafter he will deliver us,

11 8 So that ye labour together in prayer for us, 7 that for the gift bestowed upon us for many, thanks may be given by many persons for us.

12 9 For our rejoycing is this, the testimony of our conscience, that in simplicity and godly 10 purenesse, and not in fleshly wisdom, but by the 11 grace of God we have had our conversation in the world, and most of all to you-wards.

13 For we write none other things unto you, then that ye reade, or else that ye acknowledge, and I trust ye shall acknowledge unto the 12 end.

14 Even as ye have acknowledged us partly, that we are your 13 rejoycing, even as ye are ours, in the 14 day of our Lord Jesus.

15 And in this confidence was I minded first to come unto you, that ye might have had a 15 double grace,

16 And to passe by you into Macedonia, and to come again out of Macedonia unto you, & to be led forth towards Judea of you

17 16 When I therefore was thus minded, did I use lightnesse? or minde I those things which I minde, according to the 17 flesh, that with me should be, 18 Yea, yea, and Nay, nay?

18 19 Yea, God is 19 faithfull, that our word toward you, was not yea, and Nay.

19 20 For the Son of God Jesus Christ,

1 I know not at all what to do, neither did I see by mans help which way to save my self. 2 I was resolved within my self to die. 3 From these great dangers. 4 Rom. 15. 30. 5 That he may not seem to boast himself, he attributeth all to God, & therewith also confesseth that he attributeth much to the prayers of the faithfull. 6 The end of the afflictions of the Saints, is the glory of God, and therefore they ought to be precious unto us. 7 Secondly he putteth away another slander, to wit, that he was a lightman, and such a one as was not lightly to be credited, seeing that he promised to come unto them, & came not. And first he speaketh of the simplicity of his mind, & sincerity which they knew both by his voice when he was present, and they ought to acknowledge it also in his letters being absent: and moreover he protesteth that he will never be otherwise. 8 With clearness, & bold, & true plainness of mind, as God himself can witness. 9 Trusting to that very wisdom, which God of his free goodnesse hath given me from heaven. 10 He saith, he writeth barely and simply: for he that writeth in coloured sort, is rightly said to write otherwise, then we read: and this he sent to the Corinthians, shall truly know and like of very well. 11 Perfectly. 12 Pauls rejoycing in the Lord was, that he had wonne the Corinthians: and they themselves rejoyced that such an Apostle was their instructor, and taught them so purely and sincerely. 13 When he shall sit as judge. 14 Another benefit. 15 He putteth away their slander and false report by denying it. 16 And first of all, in that that divers went about to persuade the Corinthians, that in preaching of the Gospel, Paul agreed not to himselfe: for this was the matter and the cause. 17 As men do which will rashly promise any thing, and change their purpose at every turning of an hand. 18 That I should say and unsay a thing? 19 He calleth God to witness, and for Judge, of his constancy in preaching and teaching one selfe same Gospel. 20 True, and of whose faithfull witness it were horrible wickednesse to doubt. 21 He joynech also with himself, his fellowes as witnesses, with whom he fully consented in teaching one selfe same thing, to wit, one selfe same Christ.

1 1 Pet. 1. 3.
2 He beginneth after this manner with thanksgiving which notwithstanding other-wise then he was wont) he applieth to himself: beginning his Epistle, with the letting forth of the dignity of his Apostleship, constrained (as it should seem) by their importunitie which took an occasion to despise him, by reason of his miseries but he answereth, that he is not so afflicted, but that his comforts doe exceed his afflictions, shewing the ground of them, even the mercy of God the Father in Jesus Christ.
a To him be praise and glory given.
b Most mercifull.
3 The Lord doth comfort us to this end and purpose, that we may so much the more surely comfort others.
c The miseries which we suffer for Christ, or which Christ suffereth in us.

4 He denieth that either his afflictions, wherewith he was often afflicted, or the consolations which he received of God, may justly be despised, seeing that the Corinthians both ought and might take great occasion to be confirmed by either of them. d Although salvation be given us freely, yet because there is a way appointed us whereby we must come to it, which is the race of an innocent and upright life, which we must run, therefore we are said to worke out our salvation. Phil. 2. 12. And because it is God onely that of his free good will worketh all things in us, therefore is he said to worke the salvation us in by those false same things by which we must passe to everlasting life, after that we have once overcome all incombrances. e He witnesseth that he is not onely not ashamed of his afflictions, but that he desireth also to have all men know the greatnesse of them, and also his delivery from them, although it be not yet perfect.

I was not divers & wavering.

1 That is, in God.

12 Last of all, he declareth the sum of his doctrine, to wit, that all the promises of salvation are sure and ratified in Christ.

13 Christ is set forth to exhibit and fulfill them also most assuredly, and without all doubt.

14 Through our ministry.

15 He attributeth the praise of his confidence, only to the grace of God, through the holy Ghost, and therewithall concludeth, that they cannot doubt of his faith and his fellows, without doing injury to the Spirit of God, seeing that they themselves do know all this to be true.

16 Now coming to the matter, he sweareth that he did not only not lightly alter his purpose of comming to them, but rather that he came not unto them for this cause, that he might not be constrained to deale more sharply with them being present, then he would. 17 Against my self, and to the danger of mine own life. 18 He removeth all suspicion of arrogancie, declaring that he speaketh not as a Lord unto them, but as a servant, appointed of God to comfort them. 19 He setteth the joy and peace of conscience, which God is author of, against tyrannous feare, and therewithall sheweth the end of the Gospel.

C H A P. II.

1 He excuseth his not comming unto them, 2 and privily reprehendeth them. 4 He sheweth that such is his affection toward them, 5 that he never rejoiceth but when they are merrie. 6 Perceiving the adulterer (whom he commandeth to be delivered up to Satan) to repent, he requesteth that they forgive him. 13 He mentioneth his going into Macedonia.

BUt I determined thus in my self, that I would not come again to you in heaviness.

2 For if I make you sorry, who is he then that should make me glad, but the same which is made sorry by me?

3 And I wrote this same thing unto you, left when I came, I should take heaviness of them, of whom I ought to rejoyce: this confidence have I in you all, that my joy is the joy of you all.

4 For in great affliction, and anguish of heart, I wrote unto you with many teares: not that ye should be made sorry, but that ye might perceive the love which I have, especially unto you.

5 And if any have caused sorrow, the same hath not made me sorry, but partly (left I should more charge him) you all.

6 It is sufficient unto the same man, that he was rebuked of many.

7 So that now contrariwise ye ought rather to forgive him, and comfort him, left the same should be swallowed up with overmuch heaviness.

8 Wherefore, I pray you, that you would confirm your love towards him.

9 For this cause also did I write, that I might know the proof of you, whether ye would be obedient in all things.

10 To whom ye forgive any thing, I forgive also: for verily if I forgive any thing, to whom I forgave it, for your sakes forgave I it in the sight of Christ, 11 Left Satan should circumvent us: for we are not ignorant of his enterprises.

12 Furthermore, when I came to Troas to preach Christs Gospel, and a doore was opened unto me of the Lord, 13 I had no rest in my Spirit, because I found not Titus my brother, but took my leave of them, and went away into Macedonia.

14 Now thanks be unto God, which alwayes maketh us to triumph in Christ, and maketh manifest the favour of his knowledge by us in every place.

15 For we are unto God the sweet favour of Christ, in them that are saved, and in them which perish.

16 To the one we are the favour of death, unto death: and to the other the favour of life, unto life: and who is sufficient for these things?

17 For we are not as many, which make merchandise of the word of God: but as of sinceritie, but as of God in the sight of God speake we in Christ.

on: whereof he maketh them witnesses, even to the 6 ver. of the next chapter. Chap. 4. 2. 1 We do not handle it craftily and covetously, or lesse sincerely then we ought: 2 and he useth a metaphor, which is taken from bucklers, which use to play the false harlots unto whatsoever cometh into their hands.

C H A P. III.

1 He desireth no other commendation, 3 then their continuing in the faith. 6 He is a Minister, not of the letter, but of the Spirit. 8 He sheweth the difference of the Law and the Gospel. 13 That the brightnesse of the law doth rather dim the sight then lighten it: 18 But the Gospel doth make manifest Gods countenance unto us.

DO we begin to praise our selves again, or need we, as some other, Epistles of recommendations unto you, or letters of commendation from you?

2 Ye are our Epistle, written in our hearts, which is understood, and read of all men.

3 In that ye are manifest, to be the Epistle of Christ, ministered by us, and written, not with inke, but with the Spirit of the living God; not in tables of stone, but in fleshy tables of the heart.

4 And such trust have we through Christ to God.

5 Not that we are sufficient of our selves, to think any thing, as of our selves: but our sufficiency is of God.

6 Who also hath made us able ministers of the new Testament, not of the letter, but of the Spirit: for the letter killeth, but the Spirit giveth life.

of so great a grace. 2 He amplifieth his ministerie and his fellows: that is to say the ministerie of the Gospel, comparing it with the ministerie of the law, which he considereth in the person of Moses, by whom the law was given: against whom he setteth Christ the Author of the Gospel. Now this comparison is taken from the very substance of the ministerie. The law is as it were a writing of it self, dead, and without efficacy: but the Gospel, or new Covenant, is as it were the very vertue of God it self in renewing, justifying, and saving of men. The law propounded death, accusing all men of unrighteousness. The Gospel offereth and giveth righteousness and life. The governance of the law served for a time to the promise: the Gospel remaineth to the end of the world. Therefore what is the glorie of that in comparison of the ministration of this? 3 Not of the law, but of the Gospel.

b Truly, and from the heart.

i Of his mischievous counsel, and devilish will.

2 He returneth to the confirmation of his Apostleship, and bringeth forth the testimonies, both of his labour, and also of Gods blessing.

3 He alludeth to the coming of the Priest, and the merits of the sacrifices.

4 He denieth that ought should be taken away from the dignity of his Apostleship, because they have evidently that it was not received with like success in every place: nay rather very many rejected and detested him, seeing that he preached Christ, not only as a Saviour of them that believe, but also as a judge of them who condemn him.

4 Again, he putteth away all suspicion of arrogancie, attributing all things that he did, to the vertue of God, whom he serveth sincerely, and without all dishonest affecti-a The Apostle frameth his speech wisely, that by little and little, he may come from the commendation of the person, to the matter it self.

b Which I took pains to write as it were.

c By the way, he setteth the vertue of God against the inke whereunto Epistles are commonly written, to shew that it was wrought by God.

g Imprinted and ingraven : so that by this place we may plainly perceive, that the Apostle speaketh not of the ceremonies of the law, but even of the ten commandments.

h This word, Glory, becometh a brightness, and a maiestie which was bodily in Moses, but spiritually in Christ.

i Wherely God offereth, yea, and giveth the Spirit, not as a dead thing, but a quickening Spirit, working life.

k To wit, of Christ, which being imputed to us as our own, we are not only not condemned, but also we are crowned as righteous.

l The law, yea, and the ten commandments themselves, together with Moses, is abolished, if we consider the ministry of Moses apart by it self.

3 He sheweth wherein standeth this glory of the preaching of the Gospel, to wit, in that, that it fettereth forth plainly, and evidently, which the law shewed darkly : for it sent them that heard it to be healed of Christ, which was to come after that it had wounded them.

4 He expoundeth by the way the allegory of Moses his covering, which was a token of the darknesse & weakenesse that is in men, which were rather dulled by the bright shining of the law then lightened : which covering was taken away by the coming of Christ, who lighteth the hearts, and turneth them to the Lord, that we may be brought from the slavery of this blindnesse, and set in the liberty of the light, by the vertue of Christs Spirit.

m Into the very bottom of Moses his Ministry. n Christ is that Spirit, which taketh away that covering, by working in our hearts, whereunto also the law it self called us, though in vain, because it speaketh to dead men, until the Spirit quickeneth us. o John 4. 14. 5 Going forwards in the allegory of the covering, he compareth the Gospel to a glasse, which although it be most bright, yet doth it not only not dazle their eyes, which look in it as the law doth, but also transformeth them with its beames, so that they also be partakers of the glory and shining of it, to lighten others : as Christ said unto his. You are the light of the world, whereto he himself was the only light. We are also commanded in another place, to shine as candles before the world, because we are partakers of Gods Spirit. But Paul speaketh here properly of the ministers of the Gospel, as it appeareth by that that goeth before, and that that cometh after, and that, letting them his own example and his fellowes.

CHAP. IV.

2 He sheweth that he hath so laboured in preaching the Gospel, that such as are even blinded of Satan, who do not perceive the brightness thereof, that the same is caried in earthen vessels, 3 Who are subject to many miseries, 26 and therefore he exhorteth them by his own example to be courageous, 7 and condemn this present life.

1 Now he plainly witnesseth that both he & his fellowes (through the mercy of God) do their vocation and duty uprightly, and sincerely, neglecting all dangers. a Though we are broken in pieces with miseries and clamities, yet we yield not. b Subtiltie and all kinde of deceit which men hunt after, as it were dams and lurking holes so cover their shamefull dealing; we hold

7 If then the ministrat[i]on of death written with letters, and ingraven in stones, was glorious, so that the children of Israel could not behold the face of Moses, for the glory of his countenance (which glory is done away,)

8 How shall not the ministrat[i]on of the Spirit be more glorious?

9 For if the ministry of condemnation was glorious, much more doth the ministrat[i]on of righteousness exceed in glory.

10 For even that which was glorified, was not glorified in this point, that is, as touching the exceeding glory.

11 For if that which should be abolished, was glorious, much more shall that which remaineth, be glorious.

12 Seeing then that we have such trust, we use great boldnesse of speech.

13 And we are not as Moses, which put a vail upon his face, that the children of Israel should not look unto the end of that which should be abolished.

14 Therefore their minds are hardened: for untill this day remaineth the same covering untaken away in the reading of the old Testament, which vail in Christ is put away.

15 But even unto this day, when Moses is read, the vail is laid over their hearts.

16 Nevertheless, when their heart shall be turned to the Lord, the vail shall be taken away.

17 Now the Lord, is the Spirit, and where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty.

18 But we all behold as in a mirrour the glory of the Lord with open face, and are changed into the same image, from glory to glory, as by the Spirit of the Lord.

of shame, and walk not in craftines, neither handle we the word of God deceitfully: but in declaration of the truth we approve our selves to every mans conscience in the sight of God..

3 If our Gospel be then hid, it is hid to them that are lost.

4 In whom the God of this world hath blinded the minds, that is, of the infidels, that the light of the glorious Gospel of Christ, which is the image of God should not shine unto them.

5 For we preach not our selves, but Christ Jesus the Lord, and our selves your servants for Jesus sake.

6 For God that commanded the light to shine out of darknesse, is he, which hath shined in our hearts, to give the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ.

7 But we have this treasure in earthen vessels, that the excellency of that power might be of God, and not of us.

8 We are afflicted on every side, yet are we not in distresse: we are in doubt, but yet we despair not.

9 We are persecuted, but not forsaken: cast down, but we perish not.

10 Every where we beare about in our body the dying of the Lord Jesus, that the life of Jesus might also be made manifest in our bodies.

11 For we which live, are alwayes delivered unto death for Jesus sake, that the life also of Jesus might be made manifest in our mortall flesh.

12 So then death worketh in us, and life in you.

13 And because we have the same spirit of faith, according as it is written, I beleevd, and therefore have I spoken, we also beleve, and therefore speake;

14 Knowing that he which hath raised up the Lord Jesus, shall raise us up also by Jesus, and shall set us with you.

15 For all things are for your sakes, that that most plenteous grace by the thanksgiving of many, may redound to the praise of God.

16 Therefore we faint not, but though a This is it that in the former Chapter he called, making merchandise of the word of God.

2 An objection: Many heare the Gospel, and yet are no more lightened thereby, then by the preaching of the law. He answereth. The fault is in the men themselves, whose eyes Satan plucketh out, who ruleth in this world. And yet notwithstanding doth he & his fellowes, set forth the most cleare light of the Gospel to be seen and beholden, seeing that Christ whom only they preach, is he in whom only God will be known, and as it were, seen.

d The light of plain & light some preaching, which telleth forth the glory of Christ.

e In whom the Father setteth forth himself to be seen and beholden.

3 He removeth according to his accustomed manner, all suspicion of ambition, avouching that he teacheth faithfully, but as a servant, and witnessing that all this light which he and his fellowes give to others, proceedeth from the Lord.

f To preach this self same Jesus to you.

g Gen. 1. 3. Which made it only with his words.

h That being lightened of God, we should in like sort give that light to others.

4 He taketh away a stumbling block, by which was darkened amongst some the bright shining of the ministry of the Gospel, to wit, because the Apostles were the most miserable of all men. Paul answereth, that he and his fellowes are as it were, earthen vessels, but yet there is in them a most precious treasure.

5 He bringeth marvellous reasons why the Lord doth to afflict his chiefest servants, to the end, saith he, that all men may perceive that they stand not by any mans vertue, but by the singular vertue of God, in that they die a thousand times, but never perish.

6 An amplification of the former sentence, wherein he compareth his afflictions to a daily death, and the vertue of the Spirit of God in Christ, to life, which opposeth that death.

i So Paul calleth that miserable estate and condition, that the faithful but especially the ministers are in.

k Which live that life, to wit, by the Spirit of Christ, among so many and so great miseries.

l Subject to that miserable condition.

7 A very cunning conclusion: as if he would say, Therefore to be short, we die that you may live by our death, for that they ventured into all those dangers for the building of the Churches sake, and they ceased not to confirm all the faithful with the examples of their patience.

8 He declareth the former sentence, shewing that he and his fellowes die in a sort, to purchase life to others, but yet notwithstanding they are partakers of the same life with them; because they themselves do first beleve that, which they propounded to other to beleve, to wit, that they also shall be saved together with them in Christ.

m The same faith, by the inspiration of the same spirit.

n When he sheweth how this constancie is preserved in them, to wit, because they respect Gods glory, and the salvation of the Church committed unto them.

o When he shall please God to deliver me, and restore me to you, that exceeding benefit which shall be poured upon me shall in like sort redound to the glory of God, by the thanksgiving of many.

10 He addeth as it were a triumphant song, how that he is outwardly afflicted, but inwardly hee profiteth daily: and passeth not at all for all the miseries that may be sustained in this life, in comparison of that most constant and eternall glory,

our outward man perish, yet the inward man is ° renewed dayly.

17 For our ^p light affliction which is but for a moment, causeth unto us a farre more excellent and an eternall weight of ^a glorie:

18 While we looke not on the things which are seene, but on the things which are not seene: for the things which are seene, are temporall; but the things which are not seene, are eternall.

^g Gathereth new strength, that the outward man be not overcome with the griefes which come suddenly one upon the necke of another, being maintained and upholden with the strength of the inward man.

^h Afflictions are not called light, as though they were light of themselves, but because they passe away quickly, when as indeed our whole life is of no great long continuance. ⁱ Which remaineth for ever firme and stable, and can never be shaken.

CHAP V.

¹ He continueth in the same argument. ⁶ touching the certain hope of salvation ⁸ through faith, ¹² not to praise himselfe, ¹⁴ seeing he hath God and his Church before his eyes, ¹⁷ and esteemeth nothing, but newnesse of life in Christ.

FOR ¹ we know that if our earthly house of this tabernacle be destroyed, we have a building given of God, that is, an house not made with hands, but eternall in the heavens.

2 For therefore we sigh, desiring to be a cloth d with our house, which is from ^b heaven.

3 ² Because that if we be clothed, we shall not be found * naked.

4 For indeede we that are in this tabernacle, sigh and are burdened, because we would not be unclothed, but would be clothed upon, that mortalitie might be swallowed up of life.

5 And he that hath ^c created us for this thing, is God, who also hath given unto us the earnest of the Spirit.

6 ³ Therefore we are alway ^d bold, though we know that whiles we are at home in the bodie, we are absent from the Lord.

7 (For we walke by ^e faith, and not by sight.)

8 Neverthelesse, we are ^f bold, and love rather to remove out of the body, and to dwell with the Lord.

9 Wherefore also we ^g covet, that both dwelling at home, and removing from home, we may be acceptable to him.

10 * ⁴ For we must all ^h appeare before the judgement seat of Christ, that every man may receive the things which are done in his bodie, according to that he hath done, whether it be good or evill.

¹ Taking occasion by the former comparison, he compareth this miserable bodie, as it is in this life, to a fraile and brittle tabernacle, against which he stretcheth the heavenly tabernacle, so terming that sure and everlasting condition of this same body glorified in heaven, inasmuch, faith he, that we are not only, not addicted to this tabernacle, but also doe with sobbs and sighs desire rather that tabernacle. And so this place also concerning the glory to come, is put within the treatise of the dignitie of the ministerie as the other was, whereof we spake in the beginning of the second chapter. ^a He calleth the glorie of immortalitie, which we shall be, as it were, clothed with a garment. ^b Heavenly, not that the substance of it is heavenly, but for the glory of it. ² An explication of the former saying: We doe not without cause desire to be clad with the heavenly house, that is, with that everlasting & immortall glory, as with a garment: for when we depart hence, we shall not remaine naked, having once cast off the covering of this body, but we shall take our bodies againe, which shall put on, as it were, another garment besides: & therefore we sigh not for the weariensse of this life, but for the desire of a better life: Neither is this desire in vaine, for we are made to that life, the pledge whereof we have, even the Spirit of adoption. ³ Revel. 16. 15. ^c He meaneth that first creation, to give us to understand, that our bodies were made to this end, that they should be clothed with heavenly immortalitie. ⁴ He inferreth upon that sentence that went next before, thus, Therefore seeing that we know by the Spirit, that we are strangers so long as we are here, we patiently suffer this variance (for we are now so with God, that we behold him but by faith, and are therefore now absent from him) but so that God, that we behold him but by faith, and are therefore now absent from him) but so that we aspire and have a longing alwayes to him: therefore also we behave our selves so, that we may be acceptable to him, both while we live here, and when we go from hence to him. ^d He calleth them (bold) which are alwayes resolved with a quiet and settled minde to suffer what danger sever, nothing doubting but their end shall be happy. ^e Faith, of those things which we hope for, and not having God presently in our view. ^f And yet we are in such sort bold, and doe so passe on our pilgrimage with a valiant and a quiet minde, that yet notwithstanding we had rather depart hence to the Lord. ^g And seeing, it is so, we strive to live so, that both in this our pilgrimage here, we may please him, and that at length we may be received home to him. ^h Rom. 14. 10. ⁴ That no man might thinke it to pertaine to all, which he spake of that heavenly glorie, he addeth, that every one shall first render an account of his pilgrimage, after that he is departed from hence. ⁱ We must all appeare personally, and enquire shall be made of us, that all may see how we have lived.

11 ⁵ Knowing therefore that ⁱ terror of the Lord, we perswade men, and we are made manifest unto God, and I trust also that we are made manifest in your consciences.

12 ⁶ For we praise not our selves againe unto you, but give you an occasion to rejoyce of us, that ye may have to answere against them, which rejoyce in the ^k face, and not in the heart.

13 ⁷ For whether we be out of our wit, we are it to God: or whether we be in our right minde, we are it unto you.

14 ⁸ For that love of Christ ¹ constraineth us,

15 Because we thus judge, that if ^m one be dead for all, then were all dead, and he died for all, that they which live, should not hence forth ⁿ live unto themselves, but unto him which died for them, and rose againe.

16 ⁹ Wherefore, henceforth know we no man after the flesh, ¹⁰ yea though we had known Christ after the flesh, yet now henceforth know we him no more.

17 ¹¹ Therefore if any man be in Christ, let him be a ^o new creature. * Olde things are passed away: beheld, all things are become new.

18 ¹² And all things are of God, which hath reconciled us unto himselfe by Jesus Christ, and hath given unto us the ministerie of reconciliation.

19 For God was in Christ, and reconciled the world to himselfe, not imputing their sins unto them, and hath ^p committed to us the word of reconciliation.

20 Now then are we ambassadours for Christ: as though God did beseech you through us, we pray you in Christs stead, that ye be reconciled to God.

21 For he hath made him to ^q be ¹ sin for us, which ^r knew no sin, that we should be made the ¹ righteousness of God in him.

ⁿ Look Romanes chap. 6. and 7. ⁹ He sheweth what it is, not to live to our selves, but to Christ, to wit, to know no man according to the flesh, that is to say, to be conversant amongst men as not to care for those worldly and carnall things, as they doe which respect a mans stock, his country, forme, glorie, riches, and such like, wherein men commonly dote and wearie themselves. ¹⁰ An amplification: This is, sayth he, to true, that we doe not now thinke carnally of Christ himselfe, who hath now left the world, and therefore must be considered of us spiritually. ¹¹ An exhortation for every man which is renewed with the Spirit of Christ, to meditate heavenly things, and not earthly. ¹² As a thing made a new of Gods, for though a man be not newly created when God giveth him the spirit of regeneration, but only his qualities are changed, yet notwithstanding it pleased the holy Ghost to speake so, to teach us that we must attribute all things to the glory of God: not that we are stocks and blocks, but because God createth in us, both the will to will well, and the power to doe well. * E. 43. 10. revelat. 2. 1. ¹³ He commendeth the excellencie of the ministerie, of the Gospel, both by the authoritie of God himselfe, who is the author of that ministerie, and also by the excellencie of the doctrine of it: for it announceth atonement with God, by free forgiveness of our sins, and justification offered unto us in Christ, and that so lovingly and liberally, that God himselfe doth affect a fort pray men by the mouth of his ministers to have consideration of themselves, and not to despise so great a benefit. And when he so faith, he plainly reprehendeth them which falsely challenged to themselves the name of Pastours. ^p V. id. our labour, and travail. ^q A sinner, not in himselfe, but by imputation of the guilt of all our finnes to him. ^r Who was cleane void of sinne. ^s Righteous before God, and that with a righteousness, which is not external to us, but being essentiall in Christ, God imputeth it to us through faith.

CHAP. VI.

1 He exhorteth them to lead their lives as it becometh Christians, ⁵ neither to be dismayed in tribulation, ⁹ nor puffed up with vaine glory: ¹⁴ to avoid all uncleannesse, ¹⁶ considering that they are the temples of the living God.

Z

So

1 Men doe not onely need the ministry of the Gospel, before they have received grace, that they may be partakers of it, but also after they have received grace that they may continue in it.

2 In that that grace is offered, it is of the grace of God, who hath appointed times and seasons to all things, that we may take occasion when it is offered.

* Esa. 49. 8. a Which I of my free mercy and love towards thee liked of and appointed: at which time God poured out that his marvellous love upon us.

3 He sheweth the Corinthians a patterne of a true minister in his own example, and Timotheus, and Sylvanus, to the end, that (as he purposed from the beginning) he might procure authority to himselfe, and his like.

b Declare and give in dede. * 1 Cor. 4. 1. 4 He first of all reckoneth up those things, which are neither alwayes in the ministers, nor without exception, unlesse it be according to the affection of the minde, patience onely except, which also is one of the vertues which ought to be alwayes in a good minister.

c In resting to and fro, finding no place of rest and quietnes. 5 Secondly, he reckoneth up such vertues as are necessarie, and ought alwayes to be in them, and whereby, as by good armour, all lets and hindrances may be overcome.

d Preaching of the Gospel. e Power to worke miracles, and to bring under the wicked. f Vprightnesse. 6 Going about to rebuke them, he sayth first, that he dealeth with them sincerely, and with an open and plain heart, and therewithall complaineth that they doe not the like in loving againe their Father.

g The opening of the mouth and heart, sheweth a most earnest affection in him that speaketh, as it saith commonly with them that are in some great ioy.

h You are in my heart, as in an house, and that no narrow or strait house; for I have opened my whole heart to you, but you are inwardly strait laced to mee ward. i After the manner of the Hebrewes, he calleth those tender affections which rest in the heart, & bowels. 7 Now he rebuketh them boldly, for that they became fellowes with infidels in outward idolatrie, as though it were a thing indifferent. And this is the fourth part of this Epistle, the conclusion whereof is, that such as the Lord hath vouchsafed the name of his children, must keepe themselves pure, not onely in minde, but also in body, that they may wholly be holy unto the Lord. * Eccl. 3. 18. k What can there be betweene them? * 1 Cor. 3. 16. and 6. 19. l Hee setteth the living God against Idoles. * Levit. 26. 11. m God disrebell with us, because Christ is become God with us. * Isa. 52. 11. * Iere. 31. 11.

SO we therefore as workers together beseech you, that ye receive not the grace of God in vaine.

2 For he saith, * I have heard thee in a time accepted, and in the day of saluation have I succoured thee: behold now the accepted time, behold now the day of saluation.

3 We give no occasion of offence in any thing, that our ministry should not be reprehended.

4 But in all things we approve our selves as the ministers of God, in much patience, in afflictions, in necessities, in distresses,

5 In stripes, in prisons, in tumults, in labours,

6 By watchings, by fastings, by purity, by knowledge, by long suffering, by kindnesse, by the holy Ghost, by love unfained,

7 By the word of truth, by the power of God, by the armour of righteousness, on the right hand, and on the left,

8 By honour & dishonour, by evil report, and good report, as deceivers, and yet true:

9 As unknownen, and yet known: as dying, and behold, we live: as chastened, and yet not killed:

10 As sorrowing, and yet alway rejoycing: as poore, and yet making many rich: as having nothing, and yet possessing all things.

11 O Corinthians, our mouth is open unto you: our heart is made large.

12 Ye are not kept strait in us, but ye are kept strait in your owne bowels.

13 Now for the same recompense, I speak as to my children, Be you also enlarged.

14 Be not unequally yoked with the infidels: for what fellowship hath righteousness with unrighteousnesse? and what communion hath light with darkenesse?

15 And what concord hath Christ with Belial? or what part hath the beleever with the Infidell?

16 And what agreement hath the Temple of God with idols? for ye are the Temple of the living God: as God hath sayd, * I will dwell among them, and walke there: and I will be their God, and they shall be my people.

17 Wherefore come out from among them, and separate your selves, saith the Lord, and touch none uncleane thing, and I will receive you.

18 And I will be a Father unto you, and ye shall be my sons and daughters, saith the Lord Almighty.

CHAP. VII.

1 Left by overmuch urging them he should dismay their tender minds, 2 he proveth that all that he said, 4 proceeded of the great good will he bare unto them: 8 and therefore they should not be offended that he made them sorie, 10 and brought them to repentance not to be repented of.

Seeing then we have these promises, dearly beloved, let us cleanse our selves from all filthinesse of the flesh and spirit, & finish our sanctification in the feare of God.

2 Receive us: we have done wrong to no man: we have corrupted no man: we have defrauded no man.

3 I speake it not to your condemnation: for I have said before, that ye are in our hearts, to die and live together.

4 I use great boldnesse of speech toward you: I rejoyce greatly in you: I am filled with comfort, and am exceeding joyous in all our tribulation.

5 For when we were come into Macedonia, our flesh had no rest, but we were troubled on every side, fightings without, and terrours within.

6 But God, that comforteth the abject, comforted us at the coming of Titus:

7 And not by his coming onely, but also by the consolation wherewith he was comforted of you, when he told us your great desire, your mourning, your fervent minde to me ward, so that I rejoyced much more.

8 For though I made you sorie with a letter, I repent not, though I did repent: for I perceive that the same Epistle made you sorie, though it were but for a season.

9 I now rejoyce, not that ye were fory, but that ye sorrowed to repentance: for ye sorrowed godly, so that in nothing ye were hurt by us.

10 For godly sorrow causeth repentance unto saluation, not to be repented of: but the wordly sorrow causeth death.

11 For behold, this thing that ye have beene godly fory, what great care it hath wrought in you: yea, what clearing of your selves: yea, what indignation: yea, what feare: yea, how great desire: yea, what a zeale: yea, what revenge: in all things ye have shewed your selves, that ye are pure in this matter.

12 Wherefore, though I wrote unto you, I did it not for his cause that had done the wrong, neither for his cause that had the injurie, but that our care toward you in the sight of God might appeare unto you.

13 Therefore we were comforted, because ye were comforted: but rather we rejoyced much more for the joy of Titus, because his spirit was refreshed by you all.

14 For if that I have boasted any thing to him of you, I have not beene ashamed: but as I have spoken unto you all things in truth, even so our boasting unto Titus was true.

15 And

a Both of bodie and soule, that by this means the sanctification may be perfected, consisting in both the parts thereof.

1 He returneth againe from that admonition to his own person, opposing the testimonies both of his faithfulness, and also of his continuall good will towards them.

b Let me have some place amongst you, that I may teach you.

c To condemn you of unkindnesse or treachery.

d Whose hearts are cast down, and are very farre spent.

e With those things which Titus told me of you at his coming, to wit, how fruitfully you read over my letters, moreover, and besides that, I am exceedingly refreshed with his presence.

2 An objection. But thou hast handled us roughly: The Apostle answereth that he used not this roughnesse without griefe. And he addeth moreover that he is also glad now that he have them to that sorrow, although it was against his will, since it was so profitable unto them: for there is a sorrow not only praiseworthy, but also necessary, to wit, whereby repentance groweth by certaine degrees, for the which repentance he praileth them highly. And this is the fifth part of this Epistle.

f I say much that that sorrow did you much good towards the amending of your lives, and sinnes.

g Godly sorrow is when you are not terrified with the feare of punishment, but because you feele you have offended God, our most mercifull Father. Contrary to this there is another sorrow, that onely feareth punishment, or when a man is vexed for the loss of some worldly good: the fruit of the first is repentance, the fruit of the second is desperation, unlesse the Lord helpe specially.

h It was not coloured nor counterfeited, but such as I dare stand to before God.

15 And his inward affection is more abundant toward you, when he remembreth the obedience of you all, and how with feare and trembling ye received him.

16 I rejoyce therefore that I may put my confidence in you in all things.

CHAP. VIII.

1 He exhorteth them, by the example of the Macedonians, and also even of Christ himselfe, 14 to be liberal towards the Saints. 16 For which purpose, he sheweth that Titus 18 and another brother came unto them.

WE do you also to wit, brethren, of the grace of God bestowed upon the Churches of Macedonia,

2 Because in great triall of affliction their joy abounded, and their most extreme poverty abounded unto their rich liberality

5 For to their power, (I beare record) yea, and beyond their power, they were willing,

4 And prayed us with great instance, that we would receive the grace, and fellowship of the ministring which is toward the Saints.

5 And this they did, not as we looked for: but gave their own selves, first to the Lord, and after unto us by the will of God,

6 That we should exhort Titus, that as he had begun, so he would also accomplish the same grace among you also.

17 Therefore, as ye abound in every thing, in faith and word, and knowledge, & in all diligence, & in your love towards us, even so see that ye abound in this grace also.

8 This say I not by commandement, but because of the diligence of others: therefore prove I the naturalnesse of your love.

9 For ye know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, that he being rich, for your sakes became poore, that ye through his povertie might be made rich.

20 And I shew my minde herein: for this is expedient for you, which have begun not to do onely, but also to will, a yeare agoe.

11 Now therefore performe to doe it also, that as there was a readinesse to will, even so ye may perform it of that which ye have 12 For if there be first a willing minde, it is accepted according to that a man hath and not according to that he hath not.

13 Neither is it that other men should be eased, and you grieved: but upon like condition, at this time your abundance supplyeth their lack:

14 That also their abundance may be for your lack, that there may be equalitie:

15 As it is written, * He that gathered much, had nothing over, and he that gathered little, had not the lesse.

16 And thanks be unto God, which hath put in the heart of Titus the same care for you.

17 Because he accepted the exhortation, yea, he was so carefull that of his own accord he went unto you.

18 And we have sent also with him the brother, whose praise is in the Gospel, thorowout all the Churches.

19 (And not so onely, but is also chosen of the Churches to be a fellow in our journey, concerning this grace that is ministered by us unto the glory of the same Lord, and declaration of your prompt minde.)

20 Avoyding this, that no man should blame us in this abundance that is ministered by us, 21 Providing for honest things, not onely before the Lord, but also before men.

22 And we have sent with them our brother, whom we have oft times proved to be diligent in many things, but now much more diligent, for the great confidence, which I have in you.

23 Whether any do enquire of Titus, he is my fellow and helper to you-ward: or of our brethren, they are messengers of the Churches, and the glory of Christ.

24 Wherefore shew toward them, & before the Churches, the proof of your love, and of the rejoycing that we have of you.

CHAP. IX.

1 Why, albeit he thinketh well of their ready willes, yet earnestly exhorteth them: 4 he yeeldeth a reason. 6 He commendeth almes to seed sowing, 13 which God doth repay with great gaines.

FOR as touching the ministring to the Saints, it is superfluous for me to write unto you.

2 For I know your readinesse of minde, whereof I boast my selfe of you unto them of Macedonia, and say, that Achaia was prepared a yeare ago, and your zeale hath provoked many.

3 Now have I sent the brethren, left our rejoycing over you should be in vaine in this behalte, that ye (as I have said) be ready.

4 Left if they of Macedonia come with me, and find you unprepared, we (that we may not say, you) should be ashamed in this my constant boasting.

5 Wherefore, I thought it necessarie to exhort the brethren to come before unto you, and to finish your benevolence appointed afore, that it might be readie, and come as of benevolence, and not as of niggardlinesse.

6 This yet remember, that he which soweth sparingly, shall reape also sparingly, and he that soweth liberally, shall reape also liberally.

which hath a most plentifull harvest of most abundant blessing following it.

8 He commendeth Titus and his two companions for many causes, both that their credite might not be suspected, as though he had sent them filly to spoile the Churches, and also that they might be so much the readier to contribute.

9 In the preaching of the Gospel.

10 These almes which are bestowed for the relief of the Churches of Hierusalem.

11 In this plentifull liberality of the Churches, which is committed to our trust.

12 Rom. 12. 17.

13 Titus his two companions.

14 By whom the glory of Christ is set forth.

15 All Churches shall be witnesses of this your good dealing, in whose presence you are, for so much as you see the messengers whom they have chosen by all their consents, and sent them unto you.

1 He wisely meeteth with the inspection which the Corinthians might conceive: as though the Apostle, in urging them so carefully, should doubt of their good will.

Therefore he witnesseth that he doeth it not to teach them that they ought to helpe the Saints; seeing that he had become suretie for them to the Macedonians, but only to stirre them up which were running of themselves to the end that all things might both be in a better readinesse, and also be more plentifull.

2 The word which he useth, signifieth such a steadfastnesse of mind as cannot be moved with any terror or feare.

3 As from covetous men.

4 Almes must be given neither niggardly, nor with a loathfull mind, or hardly: but a frank and free almes is compared to a sowing.

1 The first part of this Epistle containing divers exhortations to stirre up the Corinthians to liberality, where with the povertie of the Church of Hierusalem might be holpen in time convenient. And first of all, he letteth out before them the example of the Churches of Macedonia, which otherwise were brought by great misery to extreme povertie. to the end that they should follow them.

2 The benefit that God bestoweth upon the Churches.

3 For those manifold afflictions wherewith the Lord tried them, did not only not quash their joyfull readinesse, but also made it much more excellent and famous.

4 Of their own accord they were liberal.

5 He calleth that Grace, that other men would have called a burden. And this vertue is to be expounded by the first verse.

6 He applieth the forwardnesse of the Macedonians, in this, that they also desired Paul to stirre up the Corinthians to accomplish the giving of almes, by sending again of Titus unto them.

7 Thirdly, he warneth them, that they deceive not their expectation which they have conceived of them.

8 At the request of the Macedonians.

9 Titus appeareth the naturallnesse of our love, when as indeede, and that frankly and freely, we helpe our brethren even for Christ his sake.

10 The fourth argument, taken from the example of Christ.

11 He taketh good heede that hee seeme not to wrest it out of them by constraint, for unlesse it be voluntarie, God doeth not accept it.

12 Not onely to doe, but also to doe willingly: for he noteth not a ready willingness, without any enforcement by any other men, much lesse came it of ambition and vaine glory.

13 Against such as use to excuse themselves because they are not rich, as though it were only proper to rich men to helpe the poore. 14 Christian liberality is mutuall, that proportion may be observed.

15 That he as now in your abundance you helpe others which are poore, with some part of your goods, so should others in like sort bestow some of theirs upon you. * Exod. 16. 18.

^b Rom. 12. 8.

^c With a sparing and meekly heart.

^d Against his will, as loth to be evil reported of.

^e Eccle. 35. 10.

^f All God his bountifull liberalitie.

^g To helpe others by all meanes possible, in doing them good in their necessities.

ⁱ Is everlasting.

^j Now David speaketh of a man that feareth God, and loveth his neighbour, who shall never want (saith he) to give to others.

^k There is none so good an inheritance to the godly, as bountifullness.

^l Another excellent and double fruit of liberalitie towards the Saints is this: that it giveth occasion to praise God, and that our faith also is thereby made manifest.

^m By this prooffe of your liberalitie in this helping and succouring of them.

ⁿ In showing with one consent, that you acknowledge that only Gospel, which you have willingly submitted yourselves unto, declaring thereby, that you agree with the Church of Hierusalem.

7 As every man^e wisheth in his heart, so let him give, not^d grudgingly, or of^e necessity: ^afor God loveth a cheerefull giver.

8 And God is able to make^f all grace to abound toward you, that ye alwayes having all sufficiency in all things, may abound in^g every good worke;

9 (* As it is written, He hath spared abroad and hath given to the poore: his benevolence remaineth for^h ever.

10 Also he that findeth seed to the sower, will minister likewise bread for food, and multiply your seed, and increase theⁱ fruits of your benevolence,)

11 That on all parts ye may be made rich unto all liberalitie, which causeth through us thanksgiving unto God.

12 ^j For the ministration of this service not only supplieth the necessities of the Saints, but also abundantly causeth many to give thanks to God,

13 (Which by the^k experiment of this ministration praise God for your^l voluntarie submission to the Gospel of Christ, and for your liberall distribution to them, and to all men.)

14 And in their prayer for you, to long after you greatly, for the abundant grace of God in you.

15 ^m Thanks therefore be unto God for his unspeakable gift.

CHAP. X.

2 He sheweth with what confidence, 4 with what weapons, 6 and with what revenge he is armed against the cavillations of the wicked, 7 and that, when he is present, his deedes have no lesse power. 11 then his words have force, when he is absent.

Now I Paul my selfe beseech you by the meekenesse, and^a gentlenesse of Christ, which when I am present among you, ^bam base, but am bold toward you being absent:

2 And ^cthis I require you, that I need not to be bold when I am present, with that same confidence, wherewith I thinke to be bold against some, which esteeme us as though we walked^b according to the flesh.

3 ^d Nevertheless, though we walke in the flesh, yet we doe not warre after the flesh.

4 (For the weapons of our warfare are not^e carnall, but mightie through^f God, to cast down holdes)

5 Casting down the imaginations, and every high thing that is exalted against the knowledge of God, ^g and bringing into

1 He returneth to the defence of his Apostleship, but so that he uteth his authoritie therein, for he warneth them earnestly & gravely, using also terrible threatenings, to shew themselves such as are apt to be instructed. And he refelleth certain proud men which made no better account of him, the of a bragging Thrafo, in that he used to be sharpe against them when he was absent, because they sawe no great majestie in him after the manner of men, and besides had proved his lenitie, notwithstanding that in his absence; he had written to them sharply. Therefore, first of all, he professeth that he was gentle and moderate, but after the example of Christ: but if they continue still to despise his gentlenesse, he protesteth unto them that he will shew indeede how farr they are deceived, which make that account of the office of an Apostle, that they doe of worldly offices, that is, according to the outward appearance.

^a That nature which is inclined to mercie, rather then to rigour of justice. ^b As though I had no other aide and helpe then that which outwardly I seeme to have: and therefore Paul setteth his flesh, that is, his weak condition and state against his spirituall and Apostolicke dignitie. 2 Secondly, he witnesseth, that although he be like unto other men, yet hee commeth furnished with that strength, which no holds of man can match, whether they resist by craft and deceit, or by force and might, because he warrefareth with divine weapons.

^c Are not such as men get them authority withall one of another, and do great ails. ^d Stand upon that infinite power of God. 3 An Amplification of his spirituall vertue, which in such sort conquereth the enemies, be they never so craftie and mightie, that it bringeth some of them by repentance unto Christ, and justly revengeth others that are stubbornly obstinate, separating them from the other which suffer themselves to be ruled.

captivitie every thought to the obedience of Christ:

6 And having ready the vengeance against all disobedience, when your obedience is fulfilled.

7 ^a Looke ye on things after the^e appearance? If any man trust in himselfe that he is Christs, let him consider this againe of^f himselfe, that as he is Christs, even so are we Christs.

8 For though I should boast somewhat more of our authoritie, which the Lord hath given us for edification, and not for your destruction, I should have no shame.

9 This I say, that I may not seeme as ^g it were to feare you with letters.

10 For the letters, sayth^h he, are fore and strong, but his bodily presence is weak, and his speech is of no value.

11 Let such one thinke this, that such as we are in word by letters, when we are absent, such ⁱ will we be also in deed, when we are present.

12 ^j For we^k dare not make our selves of the number, or to compare our selves to them, which praise themselves: but they understand not that they measure themselves with^l themselves, and^k compare themselves with themselves.

13 But we will not rejoyce of things, which are not within our^l measure, ^a but according to the measure of the line, whereof God hath distributed unto us a measure to attaine even unto you.

14 For we stretch not our selves beyond our measure, as though we had not attained unto you: for even to you also have we come in ^bpreaching the Gospel of Christ, 15 Not boasting of things which are^c without our measure: that is, of other mens labours: and we hope, when your faith shall increase, to be magnified by you according to our line abundantly.

16 And to preach the Gospel in those regions which are beyond you: not to rejoyce in^d another mans line, that is, in the things that are prepared alreadie.

17 ^e But let him that rejoyceth, rejoyce in the Lord.

18 For he that prayfeth himselfe is not allowed, but he whom the Lord praifeth.

^f The Corinthians to heare other things, witnesseth that he seeketh nothing else, but to approve himself to God, whose glory he onely seeketh.

CHAP. XI.

2 He testifieth, that for the great loves sake he beareth to the Corinthians, he is compelled 5 to utter his own praises: 9 And that he bestowed his labour on them without any reward. 13 that the false apostles should not surpasse him in any thing. 22 whom he farre excelled in those things which are praiseworthy indeede.

Would^a to God, ye could suffer a little my foolishnesse, and indeede, ye suffer me:

^b addeth that he doeth it against his will for their profit, because he seeth them deceived by certain vaine and craftie men, through the craft and subtiltie of Satan.

2 For 4 He beareth in to their hearts that same matter, with great weight of words and sentences.

^e Doe ye judge of things according to the outward seem? I Not being told of it by mee.

^g He noteth out some one that was the seede man of this speech.

^h Being constrained to reuel the foolish brags of certain ambitious men: he witnesseth, that they are able to bring nothing, but that they fallie persuade themselves of themselves, and as for himselfe, although he brag of excellent things, yet he will not passe the bounds which God hath measured him out according whereunto he came even unto them in preaching the Gospel of Christ, and trusteth that he shall goe further, when they have so profited that he shall not neede to tary any longer amongst them to instruct them. And hereunto is added an amplification, in that he never succeeded other men in their labours.

ⁱ This is spoken after attaining first.

^j Upon a vaine persuasion that they have of themselves, they take upon them they care not what.

^k They compare all other, and measure all their doings onely by themselves.

Thrales. I grant, saith he, that I am not so eloquent as Orator, but yet they cannot take away the knowledge of the Gospel from me.

i Whereof you have had good proof, and that every manner of way.

j Paul lacked not of that kind of eloquence which is meet for a man, and fit for the Gospel, but he willingly wanted that painted kind of speech, which too many now a dayes hunt
after and follow.

k Another slander to wit, that he was arrogant, and lived by the labour of his own hands.

l But herein faith the Apostle, what can you lay against me, but that I was content to take any paines for your sakes, and when I looked, to travail for my living with mine own hands in part, and partly also when poverty constrained me, I chose rather other wise to seek my sustenance, then to be any burden to you, although I preached the Gospel unto you?

m Chap. 12. 13.

n An amplification: So faine is he from being ashamed of this act, that he hath also resolved with himself to do no otherwise hereafter amongst the,
to the intent that it may alwayes be truly said, that he taught in Achaia for nothing: not that he did teach the Corinthians, but that these Thrales may never finde the occasion which they have already sought for, and he in the meane season, may set something before them to follow, that at length they may truly say, that they are like to Paul.

o This is a form of oath, as if he said, let me not be thought to have any truth in me.

p Shall be alwayes open to me.

q Pauls adversaries sought all occasions they could to be equall to him. And therefore saith he, they had rather eat up the Corinthians, then preach to them for nothing, they sought another occasion, to wit, to make Paul to take some thing: which thing if he had done, then hoped they by that meanes to be equall to him: for they made such a shew of zeale and knowledge, and set it forth with such a glowing kind of eloquence, that some of them even despised Paul: but he sheweth that all this is nothing but colour and painting.

r Now at length he painteth out these fellows in their colours, forewarning, that it will come to passe, that they will at length betray themselves, what countenance soever they make of the zeale that they have of Gods glory.

venly glory wherof the Angels are partakers.

2 For I am jealous over you with ^agod-ly jealousie: for I have prepared you for one husband, to ^bpresent you as a pure vir-gine to Christ:

3 But I feare least as the ^cserpent beguil-ed Eve through his subtilty, so your minds should be ^ccorrupt from the simplicity that is in ^dChrist.

4 ^eFor if he that cometh, preacheth ^ea-nother Jesus whom we have not preached:
or if ye receive another spirit whom ye have not received: either another Gospel, which ye have not received, ye might well have suffered him.

5 Verily I suppose that I was not infe-riour to the very chief Apostles.

6 ^fAnd though I be ^frude in speaking, yet I am not ^gso in knowledge, but among you we have been made manifest to the uttermost in all things.

7 ^hHave I committed an offence, because I abased my self, that ye might be exalted, and because I preached to you the Gospel of God freely?

8 I robbed other Churches, and took wages of them to do you service.

9 And when I was present with you, and had need, ⁱI was not slothfull to the hinder-ance of any man: for that which was lacking unto me, the brethren which came from Macedonia supplied, and in all things I kept, ^jand will keep my self, that I should not be grievous unto you.

10 The ^ktruth of Christ is in me, that this rejoycing shall not be ^lshut up against me in the regions of Achaia.

11 Wherefore? because I love you not?
God knoweth.

12 But what I do, that will I do: that I may cut away occasion from them which desire occasi^o, that they may be found like unto us in that wherein they ^mrejoyce.

13 ⁿFor such false apostles are deceitfull workers, and transform themselves into the Apostles of Christ.

14 And no marvell: for Satan himself is transformed into an Angel of ^olight.

15 Therefore it is no great thing, though his ministers transform themselves, as though they were the ministers of righte-ousnesse, whose end shall be according to their works.

16 ^pI say again, Let no man think that I am foolish, or else take me even as a foole, that I also may boast my self a little.

17 That I speak, I speak it not after the Lord: but as it were foolishly in this my great boasting.

18 Seeing that many rejoyce after the flesh, I will rejoyce also.

19 For ye suffer tooles gladly, because that ye are wise.

20 ^qFor ye suffer, even as if a man bring you into bondage, if a man devoure you, if a man take your goods, if a man exalt himself, if a man smite you on the face.

21 I speak as concerning the ^rreproch, as though that we had been ^sweake: but wherein any man is bold (I speak foolishly) I am bold also.

22 They are Hebrews, ^tso am I: they are Israelites, so am I: they are the seed of Abraham, so am I:

23 They are the ministers of Christ (I speak as a foole) I am ^umore: in labours more abundant: in stripes above measure:
in prison more plenteously: in ^vdeath oft.

24 Of the Jews ^wfive times received I forty stripes save one.

25 I was ^xthrice ^xbeaten with rods: I was ^yonce stoned: I suffered thrice ^yshipwrack: night and day have I been in the deep Sea.

26 In journeying I was often, in perils of waters, in perils of robbers, in perils of mine own nation, in perils among the Gentiles, in perils in the city, in perils in the wilderness, in perils in the Sea, in perils among false brethren,

27 In wearinesse and ^zpainfulnesse, in watching often, in hunger and thirst, in fastings often, in cold and in nakednesse.

28 ^aBeside the things which are outward, I am cumbred daily, and have the care of all the Churches.

29 Who is weak, and I am not weak?
who is offended, and I burn not?

30 ^bIf I must needs rejoyce, I will re-joyce of mine infirmities.

31 The God, even the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, which is blessed for evermore, knoweth that I lie not.

32 In ^cDamascus the governour of the people under king Areras, laid watch in the citie of the Damascens, and would have caught me,

33 But at a window was I let down in a basket through the wall, and escaped his hands.

8 Before he commeth to the matter, he toucheth Corinthians, who persuading themselves to be very wise men, did not mark in the mean season, that those false apostles abused their simplicity for advantage.

1 As if he said, I rejoice of that reproch which they do unto you (I speak it) which surely is as evil, as if they did beate you.

2 Paul is called weake, in that he seemeth to the Corinthians a vile and abject man, a beg-gerly artificer, a most weched and miserable idiot, rather as notwithstanding therein Gods mighty power was made manifest.

3 Phil. 3. 5.

4 Paul being honourable indeed, defend-eth his ministerie openly, not for his own sake, but because he saw his doctrine come into hazard.

5 In danger of present death.

6 He alludeth, so that that is written, Deut 25. 3. and moreover this place sheweth us that Paul suffered many things which Luke passed over.

7 Of the Romane Magistrate.

8 Acts 16. 23.

9 Acts 14. 19.

10 Acts 27. 14.

11 Painfulnesse is a troublesome sickness as when a man is weare and would rest, he is constrained to fall to new labour.

12 He addeth this in conclusion further, that the Corinthians might be ashamed to despise him, upon whose care, almost all Churches depended as it was plainly seen by experience.

13 He turneth that against the adversaries, which they objected against him: as if he should say. They alleged my calamities, to take away my authority from me: but if I would boast my self, I would take no better argument: and God himself is my wit-nesse that I devise

14 Acts 9. 24.

CHAP. XII.

1 He doth even unwillingly make rehearse all 3 of the heavenly visions, 4 that were revealed unto him, 6 for which, though he might indeed glory, yet he will not, 10 being privie of his own infirmities: 11 but they drive him to this kinde of folly, 20 in that they give care to certain vain-glorious persons, who draw them from Christ.

1 He goeth forward in his purpose, and because those bragging mates boasted of revelations, he reckoneth up those things which lift him up above the common capacities of men: but he useth a preface, and excludeth himself advisedly.

a I speak this in Christ, that is, he it spoken without vanity, for I seek nothing but Christ Jesus only.

b Into the highest heaven; for we need not to dispute subtilly upon the word (Third) but yet this place is to be marked against them, which would have heaven to be every where.

c So the Grecians name that which we call a Park, that is to say, a place where trees are planted, and wilde beasts kept, by which name they that translated the old Testament out of Hebrew into Greek, called the garden Eden, wherein Adam was put straight after his creation, as a most delicate and pleasant place. And hereupon grew it, that that blessed seat of the glory of God is called by that name.

d Which no man is able to utter. e Which the Saints themselves are not by any means able to express, because it is God himself. Thus doth Clemens Alexandrinus expound this place, Strom. 5. 2 To remove all suspicion of ambition, he witnesseth that he braggeth not of those things, as of his own, but as out of himself, and yet notwithstanding fainteth nothing, least by this occasion other men should attribute unto him more then indeed he is; and therefore he had rather glory in his miseries.

3 An excellent doctrine: why God will even have his best servants to be vexed of Satan, and by all kind of temptation: to wit, lest they should be too much puffed up, and also that they may be made perfect by that continual exercise.

f He meaneth concupiscence, that sticketh fast in us, as it were a prick, inasmuch as it constraineth Paul himself being regenerate, to cry out, I do not that good that I would, &c.

g Which setteth those lusts on fire. h Of. 4 He concludeth, that he will only set his miseries against the vain brags of the false apostles, and therewith also excludeth himself, for that by their importunity, he was constrained to speake so much of those things as he did; to wit, because that if his Apostleship were subverted, his doctrine must needs fall.

i That I might feel the virtue of Christ more and more: For the weaker that our Tabernacles are, the more doth Christ's virtue appear in them.

k I do not only take them patiently, and with a good heart, but also I take great pleasure in them. 5 Again, he maketh the Corinthians witnesses of those things whereby God had sealed his Apostleship amongst them, and again, he declareth by certain arguments how far he is from all covetousness, and also how he is affectioned towards them.

l The arguments whereby it may well appear, that I am indeed an Apostle of Jesus Christ.

* Chap. 11. 9. m I was not slothfull in getting my living with mine own hands, that I might not be burdensome to you.

IT is not expedient for me no doubt to rejoyce, for I will come to visions and revelations of the Lord.

2 I know a man in Christ above fourteen years ago, (whether he were in the body, I cannot tell, or out of the body, I cannot tell: God knoweth) which was taken up into the third heaven.

3 And I know such a man (whether in the body, or out of the body, I cannot tell: God knoweth)

4 How that he was taken up into Paradise, and heard words which cannot be spoken, which are not possible for man to utter.

5 Of such a man will I rejoyce: of my self will I not rejoyce, except it be of mine infirmities.

6 For though I would rejoyce, I should not be a fool, for I will say the truth: but I refraine, lest any man should think of me above that he seeth in me, or that he heareth of me.

7 And lest I should be exalted out of measure through the abundance of revelations, there was given unto me a prick in the flesh, the messenger of Satan to buffet me, because I should not be exalted out of measure.

8 For this thing I besought the Lord thrice, that it might depart from me.

9 And he said unto me, My grace is sufficient for thee: for my power is made perfect through weaknesse. Very gladly therefore will I rejoyce rather in mine infirmities, that the power of Christ may dwell in me.

10 Therefore I take pleasure in infirmities, in reproches, in necessities, in persecutions, in anguish for Christs sake: for when I am weake, then am I strong.

11 I was a fool to boast my self: ye have compelled me: for I ought to have been commended of you: for in nothing was I inferiour unto the very chief Apostles, though I be nothing.

12 The signes of an Apostle were wrought among you with all patience, with signes, and wonders, and great works.

13 For what is it wherein ye were inferiours unto other Churches, except that I have not been slothfull to your hinderance? forgive me this wrong.

14 Behold, the third time I am ready to come unto you, and yet will I not be slothfull to your hinderance: for I seek not yours, but you: for the children ought not to lay up for the fathers, but the fathers for the children.

15 And I will most gladly bestow, and will be bestowed for your souls: though the more I love you, the lesse I am loved.

16 But be it that I charged you not: yet forasmuch as I was crafty, I took you with guile.

17 Did I pill you by any of them whom I sent unto you?

18 I have desired Titus, and with him I have sent a brother: did Titus pill you of any thing? walked we not in the self same spirit? walked we not in the same steps?

19 Again, think ye that we excuse ourselves unto you? we speake before God in Christ: but we do all things, dearly beloved, for your edifying.

20 For I feare lest when I come, I shall not find you such as I would: and that I shall be found unto you such as ye would not, and lest there be strife, envying, wrath, contentions, backbitings, whisperings, swellings, and discord.

21 I feare lest when I come again, my God abase me among you, and I shall bewaile many of them which have sinned already, and have not repented of the uncleannesse, and fornication, and wantonnes which they have committed.

14 Behold, the third time I am ready to come unto you, and yet will I not be slothfull to your hinderance: for I seek not yours, but you: for the children ought not to lay up for the fathers, but the fathers for the children.

15 And I will most gladly bestow, and will be bestowed for your souls: though the more I love you, the lesse I am loved.

16 But be it that I charged you not: yet forasmuch as I was crafty, I took you with guile.

17 Did I pill you by any of them whom I sent unto you?

18 I have desired Titus, and with him I have sent a brother: did Titus pill you of any thing? walked we not in the self same spirit? walked we not in the same steps?

19 Again, think ye that we excuse ourselves unto you? we speake before God in Christ: but we do all things, dearly beloved, for your edifying.

20 For I feare lest when I come, I shall not find you such as I would: and that I shall be found unto you such as ye would not, and lest there be strife, envying, wrath, contentions, backbitings, whisperings, swellings, and discord.

21 I feare lest when I come again, my God abase me among you, and I shall bewaile many of them which have sinned already, and have not repented of the uncleannesse, and fornication, and wantonnes which they have committed.

CHAP. XIII.

1 Commencing the third time, 2 he denounceth the sharper vengeance towards them, 3 who have a perfect triall of the power of Christ in his Apostleship: 10 At length he prayeth for their repentance, 21 and wisheth them prosperitie.

LO this is the third time that I come unto you: * In the mouth of two or three witnesses shall every word stand.

2 I told you before, and tell you before: as though I had been present the second time, so write I now being absent, to them which heretofore have sinned, and to all others, that if I come again, I will not spare,

3 Seeing that ye seeke experience of Christ, that speaketh in me, which toward you is not weake, but is mighty in you.

4 For though he was crucified concerning his infirmity, yet liveth he through the power of God. And we no doubt are weak in him, but we shall live with him, through the power of God toward you.

5 * 2 Prove your selves whether ye are in the faith: examine your selves: know ye not your own selves, how that Jesus Christ is in you, except ye be reprobates?

tion between the peoples faith, and the ministers preaching, that they must either reverence his Apostleship, upon whose doctrine their faith is grounded, or they must condemn themselves of infidelity, and must confesse themselves not to be of Christs body.

6 But

6 He putteth away another most grievous slander, to wit, that he did subtilly, and by others, make his gain and profit of them.

7 He concludeth, if he writeth not these things unto them, as though he needed to defend himself, for he is guilty of nothing, but because it is behooveable for them to doubt nothing of his fidelity, who intrusted them.

8 As it becometh him to speake truly and sincerely, that professeth himself to be in Christ, that is to say to be a Christian.

8 Having confirmed his authority unto them, he rebuketh them sharply, & threatneth them also like an Apostle. shewing that he will not spare them hereafter, unless they repent, seeing that this is the third time that he hath warned them.

* Dent. 19. 15.

Matt. 18. 16.

John 8. 17.

Heb. 10. 28.

1 A most sharp reprehension, for while they despite the Apostles admonitions, they tempt Christs own patience: and also while they condemn him as wretched and miserable, they lay nothing herein against him, which is not common to him with Christ.

a And will be mighty to be revenged of you when need shall be.

b As touching that base form of a servant which he took upon him when he abased himself.

* 1 Corin. 11. 28.

2 He confirmeth that which he spak of the virtue of God appearing in his ministerie, and he gathereth by the mutual relation

³ He mitigateth ⁵ sharpnes, trusting ⁷ they will shew themselves toward their faithfull Apostle, apt and willing to be taught: adding this moreover ⁹ he passeth not for his own fame and estimation, so that he may serve to their salvation which is ¹¹ only mark that he sheweth at.

¹² In mens judgement.

¹³ That all things may be in good order amongst you, and the members of the Church restored into their place, which have been seduced out of place.

6 But I trust that ye shall know that we are not reprobates.

7 Now I pray unto God that ye do none evill, not that we should seem approved, but that ye should do that which is honest: though we be as ⁸ reprobates.

8 For we cannot do any thing against the truth, but for the truth.

9 For we are glad when we are weake, and that ye are strong: this also we wish for, even your ¹⁰ perfection.

10 Therefore write I these things being absent, lest when I am present, I should use sharpnesse, according to the power which the Lord hath given me, to edification, and not to destruction.

11 Finally, brethren, fare ye well: be perfect: be of good comfort: be of one minde: live in peace, and the God of love and peace shall be with you.

12 Greet one another with an ¹³ holy kisse. All the Saints salute you.

13 The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, and the love of God, and the communion of the holy Ghost be with you all, Amen.

⁴ A brief exhortation, but yet such an one as comprehendeth all the parts of a christian mans life.

⁵ He salutes them familiarly, and in conclusion witheth well unto them.

⁶ 1 Cor. 16. 20.

THE EPISTLE OF THE APOSTLE PAUL TO THE GALATIANS.

CHAP. I.

¹ Straight after the salutation, 6 he reprehendeth the Galatians for revolting ⁹ from his Gospel, ¹⁵ which he received from God, ¹⁷ before he had communicated with any of the Apostles.

¹ A salutation comprehending in few words the sum of the Apostles doctrine, and also besides, straightway from the beginning, shewing the gravitie meet for the authoritie of an Apostle, which he had to maintain against the false Apostles.

² He sheweth who is the author of the ministerie generally: for herein the whole ministerie agreeeth, that whether they be Apostles or Shepherds, or Doctors, they are appointed of God.

³ He toucheth the instrumentall cause: for thus a peculiar prerogative to the Apostles, to be called immediately from Christ.

⁵ Christ no doubt is man, but he is God also, and head of the Church, and in this respect to be exempted out of the number of men.

⁷ Out of that most corrupt state which is without Christ.

⁹ He useth the passive voice to cast the fault upon the false apostles, and he useth the time that now is, to give them to understand, that it was not already done, but in doing.

¹⁰ He warneth them in time to remember that there are not many Gospels, and therefore whatsoever these false Apostles precept which had the Law, Moyses, and the Fathers, in their mouthes, yet they are indeed to many corruptions of the true Gospel, inasmuch that he himself, yea, and the very Angels themselves (and therefore much more these false apostles) ought to be holden accused, if they go about to change the least jot that may be in the Gospel that he delivered to them before.

Aul: an Apostle (not ² of men, neither by ³ man, ⁴ but by ⁵ Jesus Christ, and God the Father which hath raised him from the dead).

2 And all the brethren which are with me, unto the Churches of Galatia:

3 Grace be with you, and peace from God the Father, and from our Lord Jesus Christ,

4 Which gave himself for our sinnes, that he might deliver us ⁵ from this present evill ⁶ world, according to the will of God, even our Father:

5 To whom be glory for ever and ever, Amen.

6 I marvell that ye are so soon ⁷ removed away unto another Gospel, from him that had called you in the grace of Christ,

7 Which is not another Gospel, save that there be some which trouble you, and intend to ⁸ pervert the Gospel of Christ.

8 But though that we, or an Angel from heaven preach unto you otherwise, then that which we have preached unto you, let him be ⁹ accused.

9 As we said before, so say I now again; If any man preach unto you otherwise, then that ye have received, let him be accused.

10 For now preach I ¹¹ mans doctrine, or Gods? or go I about to please men? for if I should yet please men, I were not the servant of Christ.

11 Now I certifie you, brethren, that the Gospel which was preached of me, was not after man.

12 For neither received I it of man, neither was I taught it, but by the ¹³ revelation of Jesus Christ.

13 For ye have heard of my conversation in time past, in the Jewish religion, how that ¹⁴ I persecuted the Church of God extremely, and wasted it, 14 And profited in the Jewish religion above many of my companions of mine own nation, and was much more zealous of the ¹⁵ traditions of my Fathers.

⁷ For there is nothing more contrary to faith or free justification, then justification by the Law, or by our deserving.

⁸ Look Rom. 9. 3.

⁹ A confirmation taken both from the nature of the doctrine itself, and also from the manner which he used in teaching: for neither faith he, did I teach those things which pleased men, as these men do, which put a part of salvation in external things, and works of the law, neither went I about to procure any mans favour: And therefore the matter it self sheweth that that doctrine which I delivered unto you, is heavenly.

¹² A second argument to prove that his doctrine is heavenly, because he had it from heaven, from Jesus Christ himself, without any mans help, wherein he excelleth them whom Christ taught here on earth, after the manner of men.

¹³ This place is to be understood of an extraordinary revelation, for otherwise the same alone revealed his Gospel by his Spirit, although by the ministry of men, which Paul sheweth out here.

¹⁴ He propheth that he was extraordinarily taught of Christ himself, by the historie of his former life, which the Galatians themselves knew well enough: for faith he, it is well known in what schoole I was brought up, even from a childe, to wit, amongst the deadly enemies of the Gospel. And that no man may cavill and say, That I was a scholar of the Pharisees in name only, and not indeed, no man is ignorant how that I excelled in Pharisaisme, and was suddenly made of a Pharisee, an Apostle of the Gentiles, in that I had no space to be instructed of men.

¹⁶ He calleth them the traditions of his Fathers, because he was not only a Pharisee himself, but also had a Pharisee to his father.

But

15 But when it pleased God (which had separated me from my mothers wombe, and called me by his grace,)

16 To reveale his Sonne in me, that I should preach him * among the Gentiles, immediately I communicated not with flesh and blood:

17 Neither came I again to Jerusalem to them which were Apostles before me, but I went unto Arabia, and turned again unto Damascus.

18 Then after three yeares I came again to Jerusalem, to visit Peter, and abode with him fifteen dayes.

19 And none other of the Apostles saw I, save James the Lords brother.

20 Now the things which I write unto you, behold, I witness before God, that I lie not.

21 After that, I went into the coasts of Syria and Cilicia: for I was unknown by face unto the Churches of Judea, which were in Christ.

22 But they had heard onely some say, He which persecuted us in time past, now preacheth the faith which before he destroyed.

23 And they glorified God for me.

From that time in Jerusalem but only fifteen dayes, where he saw onely Peter and James, and afterwards, he began to teach in Syria and Cilicia, with the consent and approbation of the Churches of the Jewes, which knew him onely by name: so farre off was it, that he was there instructed of men. n With any man in the world. o This is a kinde of oath, p The doctrine of faith.

CHAP. II.

That the Apostles did nothing disagree from his Gospel, 3 he declareth by the example of Titus being uncircumcised, 11 and also by his avouching the same against Peters dissimulation: 17 And so he posseth to the handling of our free justification by Christ, &c.

Now he sheweth how he agreeth with the Apostles, with whom he granteth that he confened touching his Gospel which he taught among the Gentiles, fourteen yeares after his conversion, and they allowed it, in such sort, that they constrained not his tellow Titus to be circumcised, although some tormented themselves therein, which traitorously laid wait against him, but in vain: neither did they adde the least jot that might be to the doctrine which he had preached, but contrariwise they gave to him and Barnabas the right hands of fellowship, & acknowledged them as Apostles appointed of God to the Gentiles.

Then fourteen yeares after, I went up again to Jerusalem with Barnabas, and took with me Titus also.

2 And I went up by revelation, and declared unto them that Gospel which I preach among the Gentiles, but particularly to them that were the chief, lest by any meanes I should run, or had run in vain:

3 But neither yet Titus which was with me, though he were a Grecian, was compelled to be circumcised,

4 To wit, for the false brethren which were craftily sent in, and crept in privily to spie out our liberty, which we have in Christ Jesus, that they might bring us into bondage:

5 To whom we gave not place by subjection for an houre, that the truth of the Gospel might continue with you.

6 But by them which seemed to be great, I was not taught (whatsoever they were in a Vnfruitfull, for as touching his doctrine, Paul doubteth not of it, but because there were certain reports cast abroad of him, that he was of another opinion then the rest of the Apostles were, which thing might have hindered the course of the Gospel, therefore he labourerth to remedy this sore. b Which by deceit and counterfeit helmes crept in amongst the faithfull. c By submitting our selves to them, and betraying our own liberty. d The true and sincere doctrine of the Gospel, which remained safe from being corrupt with any of these mens false doctrines. e Under the Galatians name, he understood all nations.

time passed, I am nothing the better: * God accepteth no mans person) for they that are the chief, did adde nothing to me above that I had.

7 But contrariwise, when they saw that the Gospel over the uncircumcision was committed unto me, as the Gospel over the circumcision was unto Peter:

8 (For he that was mighty by Peter in the Apostleship over the circumcision, was also mighty by me toward the Gentiles)

9 And when James, and Cephas, and John, knew of the grace that was given unto me, which are counted to be pillars, they gave to me and to Barnabas the right hands of fellowship, that we should preach unto the Gentiles, and they unto the circumcision,

10 Warning onely that we should remember the poore: which thing also I was diligent to do.

11 And when Peter was come to Antiochia, I withstood him to his face: for he was to be condemned.

12 For before that certain came from James, he are with the Gentiles: but when they were come, he withdrew and separated himself, fearing them which were of the circumcision.

13 And the other Jewes played the hypocrites likewise with him, in so much that Barnabas was led away with them by that their hypocrisie.

14 But when I saw that they went not the right way to the truth of the Gospel, I said unto Peter before all men, If thou being a Jew, livest as the Gentiles, and not like the Jewes, why constrainest thou the Gentiles to do like the Jewes?

15 We which are Jewes by nature, and not sinners of the Gentiles, 16 Know that a man is not justified by the works of the law, but by the faith of Jesus Christ, even we, I say, have beleevd in Jesus Christ, that we might be justified by the faith of Christ, and not by the works of the law, because that by the works of the law, no flesh shall be justified.

17 If then while we seek to be made righteous by Christ, we our selves are found sinners, is Christ therefore the minister of sinne? God forbid.

18 For if I build again the things that n No man, and in this word (flesh) there is a great volgements, whereby is meant that the nature of man is utterly corrupt. * Rom. 3.19. 4 Before he goeth any further, he meeteth with their objection, which abhorred this doctrine of free justification by faith, because they say, when a Jew by this means withdrawn from the study of good works. And in this sort is the objection: If sinners should be justified through Christ by faith without the law, Christ should approve sinners, & should as it were exhort them thereunto by his ministry. Paul answereth, that this consequence is false, because that Christ destroyeth sin in the beleevers: For so, faith he do men flee unto Christ through the terror and feare of the law, that being quit from the curse of the law, and justified, they may be saved by him, that together therewithall, he beginneth in them by little and little that strength and power of his, which destroyeth sin: so the end that this old man being abolished by the vertue of Christ crucified, Christ may live in them, and they may consecrate themselves to God. Therefore if any man give himself to sin after he hath received the Gospel, let him not accuse Christ nor the Gospel, but himself, for that he destroyeth the work of God in himself. f He goeth from justification to sanctification, which is another benefit we receive by Christ, if we lay hold on him by faith.

2 Another most vehement prooffe of his Apostleship, and also of that doctrine which he had delivered concerning free justification by faith onely, because that for this thing onely he reprehended Peter at Antiochia, who offended therein, in that for a few Jewes sakes which came from Jerusalem, he plaid the Jew, and offended the Gentiles which had beleevd.
k By example rather than by judgement.
l World for word, with a right foot, which he setteth against halting and stumbling, which is backward.

3 The second part of this Epistle, the state whereof is this: we are justified by faith in Christ Jesus without the works of the Law. Which thing he propoundeth in such sort that first of all he meeteth with an objection. (For I also, faith he, am a Jew, that no man may say against me, that I am an enemy to the law) and afterward he confirmeth it by the expresse witness of David.
o Although we be Jewes, yet we preach justification by faith, because we know undoubtedly, that no man can be justified by the law.
p So the Jewes called the Gentiles, because they were strangers from Gods covenant.
q In Jesus Christ.

I have destroyed, I make my selfe a trespasser.

19 For I through the Law am dead to the Law, that I might live unto God.

20 I am crucified with Christ, but I live, yet not I any more, but Christ liveth in me: & in that that I now live in the flesh, I live by the faith in the Sonne of God, who hath loved me, and given himselfe for me.

21 I doe not abrogate the grace of God: for if righteousness be by the Law, then Christ died without a cause.

22 The same that I was before. In this mortall body. The second argument taken of an absurditie: If men may be justified by the Law, then was it not necessary for Christ to die.

CHAP. III.

1 He rebuketh them, for suffering themselves to be drawn from the grace of free justification in Christ, most lively set out unto them. 6 He bringeth in Abrahams example, 10 declaring the effect. 21 and causes of the giving of the Law.

O Foolish Galatians, who hath bewitched you, that ye should not obey the truth, to whom Jesus Christ before was described in your sight, and among you crucified?

2 This onely would I learne of you, Received ye the Spirit by the works of the Law, or by the hearing of faith preached?

3 Are ye so foolish, that after ye have begun in the Spirit, ye would now be made perfect by the flesh?

4 Have ye suffered so many things in vaine? if so be it be even in vaine.

5 He therefore that ministrereth to you the Spirit, & worketh miracles among you, doth he it through the works of the Law, or by the hearing of faith preached?

6 Yea rather as Abraham beleeveth God, and it was imputed to him for righteousness.

7 Know ye therefore, that they which are of faith, the same are the children of Abraham.

8 For the Scripture foreseeing, that God would justify the Gentiles through faith, preached before the Gospel unto Abraham, saying, In thee shall all the Gentiles be blessed.

9 So then they which be of faith, are blessed with faithfull Abraham.

10 For as many as are of the works of the Law, are under the curse: for it is written, Cursed is every man that continued not in all things, which are written in the booke of the Law, to doe them.

11 And that no man is justified by the Law in the sight of God, it is evident: For the just shall live by faith.

12 And the Law is not of faith: but the man that shall doe those things, shall live in them.

13 Christ hath redeemed us from the curse of the Law, being made a curse for us, (for it is written, Cursed is every one that hangeth on a tree.)

14 That the blessing of Abraham might come on the Gentiles through Christ Jesus, that we might receive the promise of the Spirit through faith.

15 Brethren, I speak as men doe: though it be but a mans covenant, when it is confirmed, yet no man doeth abrogate it, or addeth any thing thereto.

16 Now to Abraham and his seed were the promises made. He saith not, And to the seeds, as speaking of many: but, And to thy seed, as of one, which is Christ.

17 And this I say, that the covenant that was confirmed afore of God in respect of Christ, the Law which was four hundred and thirty yeares after, cannot disanull, that it should make the promise of none effect.

18 For if the inheritance be of the Law, it is no more by the promise, but God gave it freely unto Abraham by promise.

19 Wherefore then serveth the Law? It was added because of the transgressions, till the seed came, unto the which the propheticall testimony of Moses. Christ was crucified for us, because he bare the curse that was due to us, to make us partakers of his righteousness. 16 A conclusion of all that was said before in the handling of the fifth and sixth reasons, to wit, that both the Gentiles are made partakers of the free blessing of Abraham in Christ, and also that the Jewes themselves of whose number the Apostle counteth himselfe to be, cannot obtaine that promised grace of the Gospel, which he calleth the Spirit, but onely by faith. And the Apostle doth severally apply the conclusion, both to the one and to the other; preparing himselfe way to the next argument, whereby he declarereth that that one only seed of Abraham, which is made of all peoples, can no otherwise be joynd and grow up together but by faith in Christ.

17 He putteth forth two generall rules before the next argument, which is the seventh in order: The one is, that it is not lawfull to break covenants and contracts which are justly made, and according to Law, among men, neither may any thing be added unto them: the other is, that God didd make a covenant with Abraham, that he would gather together his children which consist both of Jewes and Gentiles into one body (as appeareth by that which hath been said before.) For he didd not say, that he would be the God of Abraham and of his seeds, (which thing notwithstanding should have been said, if he had many and divers seeds, as the Gentiles apart; and the Jewes apart) but that he would be the God of Abraham, and of his seed, as of one.

18 He putteth forth the summe of the seventh argument, to wit, that both the Jewes and the Gentiles, grow together in one body of the seed of Abraham, in Christ onely, so that all are one in Christ, as it is afterward declared, vers. 28. The eighth argument taken of comparison, thus: If a mans covenant (being authentically) be firme and strong, much more Gods covenant. Therefore the Law was not given to abrogate the promise made to Abraham, which had respect to Christ, that is to say, the end whereof did hang on Christ.

19 The eight argument taken of comparison, thus: If a mans covenant (being authentically) be firme and strong, much more Gods covenant. Therefore the Law was not given to abrogate the promise made to Abraham, which had respect to Christ, that is to say, the end whereof did hang on Christ. Moreover and besides that the promise is of it selfe firme and strong, it was also confirmed with the prescription of long time, to wit, of 430 yeares, so that it could in no wise be broken.

20 An objection: We grant that the promise was not abrogated by the covenant of the Law, and therefore we joyne the Law with the promise. Nay, saith the Apostle, these two cannot stand together, to wit, that the inheritance should both be given by the Law and also by promise, for the promise is free: whereby it followeth that the Law was not given to justify, for by that means the promise should be broken.

21 An objection: By this word (inheritance) is meant the right of the seed, which is, that God should be our God, that is to say, that by virtue of the Covenant that was made with faithfull Abraham, we that be faithfull, might by that means be blessed of God as well as he.

22 A objection which riseth from the former answer: If the inheritance be not by the Law (at the least in part) then why was the Law given after that the promise was made? therefore saith the Apostle, to reprove men of Sinne, and so to teach them to looke unto Christ, in whom at length that promise of saving all people together should be fulfilled, and not that the Law was given to justify men.

That men might understand by discovering of their finnes, that they are saved by the only grace of God, which he revealed to Abraham and that in Christ. Vntill the partition wall was broken down, and that full seed sprang up, framed of two peoples, both of Jewes and Gentiles: for by this word Seeds, we may not understand, Christ alone by himselfe, but coupled and joynd together with his body.

12 The second proposition with conclusion: But no man fulfillerth the Law. Therefore no man is justified by the Law, or els, All are accursed which seeke righteousness by the works of the Law. And there it annexed also this manner of profe of the second proposition, to wit, Righteousnesse, and life, are attributed to faith: Therefore no man fulfillerth the Law. Habak. 2.4. Rom. 1. 17. Gal. 3. 10. 13 Here is a reason shewed of the former consequences. Because the Law prometh life to all that keepe it, and therefore if it be kept, it justifieth and giveth life. But the Scripture attributing righteousness and life to faith, taketh it from the Law, seeing that faith justifieth by imputation, and the Law by the performing of the works.

14 A preventing of an objection: How then can they be blessed, whom the Law pronounceth to be accursed? Because Christ sustained the curse which the Law laid upon us, that we might be quit from it.

15 A profe of the answer by the testimony of Moses.

16 A conclusion of all that was said before in the handling of the fifth and sixth reasons, to wit, that both the Gentiles are made partakers of the free blessing of Abraham in Christ, and also that the Jewes themselves of whose number the Apostle counteth himselfe to be, cannot obtaine that promised grace of the Gospel, which he calleth the Spirit, but onely by faith.

1 The Law that terrifieth the conscience, bringeth us to Christ, and be onely comfort us to doe so the Law indeed, because that by making us righteous, it taketh away from us the terror of conscience, and by justifying us, causeth through the ministering of life in us, that it cannot take such occasion to fume by the restraint which the Law maketh, as it did before.

2 The same that I was before. In this mortall body. The second argument taken of an absurditie: If men may be justified by the Law, then was it not necessary for Christ to die.

3 The third reason, or argument, taken of those gifts of the holy Ghost, wherewith they were endued from heaven after they had heard & beleeveth the Gospel by Pauls ministerie: which seeing they were so evident to all mens eyes, that they were, as it were, lively images, wherein they might behold the truth of the doctrine of the Gospel, no lesse then if they had beheld with their eyes Christ himselfe crucified, in whose onely death they ought to have their trust, he marvelleth how it could be that they could be so bewitched by the false apostles.

4 Christ was laid before you so notably and so plainly, that you had his lively image as it were, represented before your eyes, as if he had been crucified before you.

5 These spirituall gifts & graces which were a scale, as it were to the Galatians, that the Gospel which was preached to them was true.

6 Of the doctrine of faith.

7 The fourth argument mixed with the former: and it is double. If the Law be to be joynd with faith, this were not to goe forward, but backward, seeing that those spirituall gifts which were bestowed upon you are more excellent then any that could proceed from your selves. And moreover, it should follow, that the Law is better then Christ, because it should perfect and bring to end that which Christ began only.

8 By the (sic) he meaneth the ceremonies of the Law, against which he setteth the spirit, that is the inward working of the Gospel.

9 An exhortation by manner of upbraiding, that they doe not in vaine suffer so many conflicts.

10 He repeateth the third argument which was taken of the effects, because he had entercled certain other arguments by the way.

11 The fifth Argument, which is of great force, and hath three grounds. The first, that Abraham was justified by faith, to wit, by free imputation of righteousness according to the promise apprehended by faith, as Moses doeth most plainly witness.

12 Look Romane 4. Gen. 15. 6. Rom. 4. 3. James 2. 23.

13 The second, that the sonnes of Abraham must be esteemed and accounted of by faith.

14 The third, that all people that beleeve are without exception comprehended in the promise of the blessing.

15 Gen. 12. 3. after 3. 25. 8 A profe of the first and second ground, out of the words of Moses.

16 Blessing in this place, signifieth the free promise by faith.

17 The conclusion of the fifth argument: Therefore as Abraham is blessed by faith, so are all his children (that is to say, all the Gentiles that beleeve) blessed, that is to say, freely justified.

18 With faithfull Abraham, and not by faithfull Abraham, to give us to understand that the blessing cometh not from Abraham, but from him, by whom Abraham and all his posteritie is blessed.

19 The sixth argument, the conclusion whereof is also in the former verse taken of contraries, that is: They are accursed which are of the works of the Law, that is to say, which value their righteousness by the performance of the Law. Therefore they are blessed which are of faith, that is, they which have righteousness by faith.

20 11 A profe of the former sentence or proposition, and the proposition of this argument is this: Cursed is he that fulfillerth not the whole Law.

23 A confirmation of the former answer taken from the manner and forme of giving the Law: for it was given by Angels, striking a great remour into all, and by Moses, a Mediatour, coming betweene. Now they that are one, neede no Mediatour, but they that are twaine, at the least, and that are at variance one with another. Therefore the Lawe it selfe, and the Mediatour, were witnesses of the wrath of God, and not that God would by this meanes reconcile men to himselfe, and abolish the promise, or adde the Law unto the promise.

24 A taking away of an objection, lest any man might say, that sometimes by consent of the parties which have made a covenant, some thing is added to the covenant, or the former covenants are broken. This, saith the Apostle, commeth not to passe in God who is alwayes one, and the selfesame, and like himselfe.

25 The conclusion uttered by a manner of asking a question, and it is that same that was uttered before, Verſ. 17, but proceeding of another rule: so that the argument is new, and is this: God is alwayes like unto himselfe: Therefore the Law was not given to abolish the promises. But it should abolish them if it gave life, for by that meanes it should justifie, and therefore it should abolish that justification, which was promised to Abraham, and to his seed by faith. Nay, it was rather given to bring to light the guiltines of all men, to the end that all believers fleeing to Christ promised, might be freely justified in him.

26 Now there followeth another handling of the second part of this Epistle: the state whereof was this: Although the Law (that is, the whole government of Gods house according to the Law) doe not justifie, is it therefore to be abolished, seeing that Abraham himselfe was circumcised, and his posteritie held still the use of Moses Law? Paul affirmeth that it ought to be abolished, because it was instituted for that end and purpose, that it should be, as it were, a Scholemaster and keeper to the people of God, until the promise appeared in deed, that is to say, Christ, and the Gospel manifestly published with great efficacie of the Spirit.

27 Because age changeth not the condition of servants, he addeth that we are free by condition, and therefore, seeing we are out of our childhood, we have no more need of a keeper and Scholemaster. 28 Vñg a generall particule, lest the Jewes at the least should not thinke themselves bound with the band of the Law, he pronounceth that Baptisme is common to all believers, because it is a pledge of our deliverance in Christ, as well to the Jewes as to the Grecians, that by this meanes all may be truly one in Christ, that is to say, that promised seed to Abraham, and inheritours of eternall life.

29 And if ye be Christs, then are ye Abrahams seed, and heires by promise.

mise was made: and it was ordained by Angels in the hand of a Mediatour.

20 Now a Mediatour is not a Mediatour of one: but God is one.

21 Is the Law then against the promises of God? God forbid: For if there had beene a Law given which could have given life, surely righteousness should have been by the Law.

22 But the Scripture hath concluded all under sinne, that the promise by the faith of Iesus Christ should be given to them that beleve.

23 But before faith came, we were kept under the Law, as under a garison, and shut up unto that faith, which should afterward be revealed.

24 Wherefore the Law was our scholemaster to bring us to Christ, that we might be made righteous by faith.

25 But after that faith is come, we are no longer under a scholemaster.

26 For ye are all the sonnes of God by faith, in Christ Iesus.

27 For all ye that are baptized into Christ, have put on Christ.

28 There is neither Iew nor Grecian: there is neither bond nor free: there is neither male nor female: for ye are all one in Christ Iesus.

29 And if ye be Christs, then are ye Abrahams seed, and heires by promise.

30 And if ye be Christs, then are ye Abrahams seed, and heires by promise.

31 And if ye be Christs, then are ye Abrahams seed, and heires by promise.

32 And if ye be Christs, then are ye Abrahams seed, and heires by promise.

33 And if ye be Christs, then are ye Abrahams seed, and heires by promise.

34 And if ye be Christs, then are ye Abrahams seed, and heires by promise.

35 And if ye be Christs, then are ye Abrahams seed, and heires by promise.

36 And if ye be Christs, then are ye Abrahams seed, and heires by promise.

37 And if ye be Christs, then are ye Abrahams seed, and heires by promise.

38 And if ye be Christs, then are ye Abrahams seed, and heires by promise.

39 And if ye be Christs, then are ye Abrahams seed, and heires by promise.

40 And if ye be Christs, then are ye Abrahams seed, and heires by promise.

41 And if ye be Christs, then are ye Abrahams seed, and heires by promise.

42 And if ye be Christs, then are ye Abrahams seed, and heires by promise.

43 And if ye be Christs, then are ye Abrahams seed, and heires by promise.

3 Even so, we, when we were children, were in bondage under the rudiments of the world.

4 But when the fulnesse of time was come, God sent forth his Sonne made of a woman, and made under the Law,

5 That he might redeeme them which were under the Law, that we might receive the adoption of the sonnes.

6 And because ye are sonnes, God hath sent forth the Spirit of his Son into your hearts, which crieth, Abba, Father.

7 Wherefore, thou art no more a servant, but a sonne: now if thou be a sonne, thou art also the heire of God through Christ.

8 But even then, when ye knew not God, ye did service unto them, which by nature are not gods:

9 But now, seeing ye know God, yea, rather are knowen of God, how turne ye againe unto impotent and beggerly rudiments, whereunto as from the beginning ye will be in bondage againe:

10 Yee observe dayes, and moneths, and times, and yeares.

11 I am in feare of you, lest I have bestowed on you labour in vaine.

12 Be ye as I (for I am even as you) brethren, I beseech you: ye have not hurt me at all.

13 And ye know, how through infirmities of the flesh, I preached the Gospel unto you at the first.

14 And the trial of me which was in my flesh, ye despised not, neither abhorred: but ye received me as an Angel of God, yea, as Christ Iesus.

15 What was then your felicitie? for I beare you record, that if it had been possible, ye would have plucked out your owne eyes, and have given them unto me.

16 Am I therefore become your enemy, because I tell you the truth?

17 They are jealous over you, amisse: yea, they would exclude you, that ye should altogether love them.

18 But it is a good thing to love earnestly alwayes in a good thing, and not onely when I am present with you.

The Law is called rudiments, because that by the Law God instructed his Church as it were by rudiments, & afterward poured out his holy Spirit most plentifully in the time of the Gospel.

2 He uttereth and declareth many things & once, to wit, that this rutorship was ended at his time: that curious men may leave to aske, why that scholemasterhip lasted so long. And moreover, that we are not sonnes by nature, but by adoption, and that in that Son of God, who therefore tooke upon him our flesh, that we might be made his brethren.

3 The time is said to be full, when all parts of it are past and ended, and therefore Christ could not have come either sooner or later.

4 He calleth Marie a woman, in respect of the sexe, and not as the word is used in a contrary sense to a virgin, for she remained a virgin still. * Roman. 8.

5 The adoption of the sonnes of God, is from everlasting, but is revealed and shewed in the time appointed for it.

3 He sheweth that we are in such fort free and set at libertie, that in the meane season we must be governed by the Spirit of Christ, which reigning in our hearts, may teach us the true service of the Father. But this is not to serve, but rather to enjoy true libertie, as it becometh sons and heires.

4 By that that followeth, he gathereth that that men before: for if we have his Spirit, we are his sonnes, then are we free.

5 The holy Ghost, who is both of the Father, and of the Son: but there is a peculiar reason why he is called the Spirit of the Sonne, to wit, because the holy Ghost beareth up our adoption in Christ, and maketh us a full assurance of it.

6 The word, servant, is not taken here for one that liveth in sinne, which is proper to the infidels, but for one that is yet under the ceremonies of the Law, which is proper to the Jewes.

7 Partaker of his blessing.

8 He applieth the former doctrine to the Galatians, with a peculiar reprehension: for in comparison of them, the Jewes might have pretended some excuse as men that were borne and brought up in that service of the Law. But seeing that the Galatians were taken and called out of idolatry to Christian libertie, what pretence might they have to goe backe to those impotent and beggerly rudiments?

9 They are called impotent and beggerly ceremonies, being considered apart by themselves without Christ, and againe, for that by that meanes they gave good testimony that they were beggers in Christ, when as notwithstanding, for men to fall backe from Christ to ceremonies, is nothing else, but to cast away riches, and to follow beggerie.

10 By going backward.

11 He mitigateth and qualifieth those things, wherein he might have seemed to have spoken somewhat sharply, very artificially, and divinely declaring his good will toward them in such sort, that the Galatians could not but either be utterly desperate when they read these things, or acknowledge their owne lightnesse with teares, and desire pardon.

12 Many afflictions.

13 These daily troubles wherewith the Lord tried me amongst you.

14 For my ministeries sake.

15 What a talke was there abroad in the world amongst men, how happy you were:

16 For they are jealous over you for their owne commoditie.

17 That they may convey all your love from me, to themselves.

18 He setteth his owne true and good love, which was earnestly bent toward them, against the naughty vicious love of the false apostles.

19 My little children, of whom I tra-vaile in birth again, untill Christ be formed in you.

20 And I would I were with you now, that I might change my voice: for I am in doubt of you.

21 Tell me, ye that will be under the Law, doe ye not heare the Law?

22 For it is written, that Abraham had two sonnes, * one by a servant, and * one by a free woman.

23 But he which was of the servant, was born after the * flesh: and he which was of the free woman, was borne by * promise:

24 By the which things another thing is meant: for *these mothers are the *two Testaments, the one which is Agar of mount Sina, which gendereth unto bondage,

25 (For Agar or Sina is a mountaine in Arabia, and it answereth to Hierusalem which now is) and *he is in bondage with her children.

26 But Hierusalem, which is *above, is free: which is the mother of us all.

27 For it is written, Rejoyce thou bar-ren that bearest no children; breake forth and crie, thou that travailest not: for the desolate hath many more children then she which hath an husband.

28 * Therefore, brethren, we are after the manner of Isaac, children of the * promise.

29 But as then he that was borne after the flesh, persecuted him that was borne after the * Spirit, even so it is now.

30 But what faith the Scripture? Put out the servant and her sonne: for the sonne of the servant shall not be heire with the sonne of the free woman.

31 * Then brethren, we are not children of the servant, but of the free woman.

2 * Behold, I Paul say unto you, that if ye be * Circumcised, Christ shall profit you nothing.

3 For I testifie again to every man, which is circumcised, that he is bound to keepe the whole Law.

4 Ye are * abolished from Christ, whosoever are * justified by the Law, ye are fallen from grace.

5 For we through the * Spirit wait for the hope of righteousness through faith.

6 For in Jesus Christ neither circumcision availeth any thing, neither * uncircumcision, but * faith which worketh by love.

7 Ye did run well: who did let you, that ye did not obey the truth?

8 It is not the perswasion of him that calleth you.

9 * A little leaven doth leaven the whole lump.

10 I have trust in you through the Lord, that ye will be none otherwise minded: but he that troubleth you, shall beare his condemnation, whosoever he be.

11 And brethren, if I yet preach circumcision, why doe I yet suffer persecution?
Then is the slander of the crosse abolished.

12 Would to God they were even cut off, which doe disquiet you.

13 For brethren, ye have been called unto libertie: * onely use not your libertie as an occasion unto the flesh, but by love serve one another.

14 For all the Law is fulfilled in one word, which is this, Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thy selfe.

15 If ye bite and devoure one another, take heed lest ye be consumed one of another.

16 Then I say, * Walke in the Spirit, and ye shall not fulfill the lusts of the flesh.

17 For the flesh lusteth against the Spirit, and the Spirit against the flesh: & these are contrary one to another, so that ye can-moreover Paul rea-soneth according to the opinion that his pareth the new taine that they also did ground altho tion and life in faith, and not in reth faith.

f He addeth a reason, for that now circumcision is abolished, seeing that Christ is exhibited unto us with full plenitie of spirituall circumcision. He maketh mention also of uncircumcision, lest the Gentiles should plea themselves in it, as the Jewes doe in circumcision. The taking away of an objection: If all that worship the Law be taken away, wherein then shall we exercise our selves? In charity, faith Paul: for faith, whereof we speake, cannot be idle, nay it bringeth forth daily fruits of charitie. So true faith distinguished from counterfeit faith:
for charitie is not joyne to faith, as a fellow cause, to helpe forward our justification with faith.
g Againe, he chideeth the Galatians, but with an admiration, and therewithall a praise of their former race, to the end that he may make them more ashamed. 7 He playeth the part of an Apostle with them, and with his authoritie, denyng that that doctrine can come from God, which is contrary to his. f Of God. * 1 Cor. 5. 6. 8 He addeth this, that he may not seeme to contend upon a trifle, warning them diligently (by a similitude, which he borroweth of leaven, as Christ himselfe also did) not to suffer the puritie of the Apostolical doctrine to be infected with the least corruption that may be. 9 He mitigateth the former reprehension, calling the fault upon the false apostles, against whom he denounceth the horrible judgements of God. 10 He willet them to consider how that he seeketh not his owne profit in this matter, seeing that he could elchew the hatred of men if he would joyne Iudaisme with Christianity. 11 An example of a true Pastour inflamed with the zeale of Gods glory, and love of his flock. g For they that preach the Law, cause mens consciences alwayes to tremble. 12 The third part of this Epistle, shewing that the right use of Christian libertie consisteth in this, that being delivered, and set at libertie from the slavery of sin, and the flesh, and being obedient to the spirit, we should serve unto one another's salvation through love. 13 He propoundeth the love of our neighbour, as a marke whereunto all Christians ought to referre all their actions, & thereunto he cireth the Testimonie of the Law. b This particle (All) must be restrained to the second Table. * Levit.

of charitie, by the profit that ensueth thereof, because that no men provide worke for themselves then they that hate one another. 15 He acknowledgeth the great weakenesse of the godly, for that they are but in part regenerate: but he willet them to remember that they are endued with the Spirit of God, which hath delivered them from the slavery of sinne, and so of the Law, so farre forth as it is the verue of sinne, that they should not give themselves to lusts. * Rom. 13. 14. 1 Pet. 2. 11. f For the flesh dwelleth even in the regenerate man, but the Spirit reigneth, although not without great strife, as is largely set forth, Rom. 7.

CHAP. V.

1 Having declared that we came of the free woman, he sheweth the price of that freedome, 13 and how we should use the same, 16 that we may obey the Spirit, 19 and resist the flesh.

1 And fast therefore in the liberty wherewith Christ hath made us free, and be not intangled againe with the yoke of bondage.

Fruits of the flesh and spirit. To the Galatians. As we sow we shall reap.

not doe the same things that ye would.

18 And if ye be led by the Spirit, ye are not under the Law.

19 Moreover, the works of the flesh are manifest, which are adulterie, fornication, uncleanness, wantonnesse,

20 Idolatrie, witchcraft, hatred, debate, emulations, wrath, contentions, seditions, heresies, 21 Envie, murders, drunkennesse, gluttonie, and such like, whereof I tell you before, as I also have told you before, that they which doe such things, shall not inherit the kingdome of God.

22 But the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, long-suffering, gentleness, goodnesse, faith, 23 Meekenesse, temperancie: against such there is no Law.

24 For they that are Christs, have crucified the flesh with the affections and the lusts.

25 If we live in the Spirit, let us also walke in the Spirit.

26 Let us not be desirous of vaine glory, provoking one another, envying one another.

16 He setteth out that particularly, which he spake generally, reckoning up some chief effects of the flesh, & opposing them to the fruits of the spirit, that no man may pretend ignorance.

17 Therefore they are not the fruits of freewill, but so farre forth as our will is made free by grace.

18 Left that any man should object that Paul playeth the Sophister, as one who urging the Spirit, urgeth nothing but that which the Law commandeth, he sheweth that he requireth, not that literal and outward obedience, but spiritual, which proceedeth not from the Law, but from the Spirit of Christ, which doeth beget us againe, and must and ought to be the ruler and guider of our life.

19 If we be indeed endued with the quickning Spirit, which causeth us to die to sinne, and live to God, let us shew it in our deeds, that is, by holinesse of life.

18 He addeth peculiar exhortations, according as he knew the Galatians subject to divers vices: and first of all, he warneth them to take heed of ambition, which vice hath two fellows, backbiting, and envie, out of which two it cannot be but many contentions must needs arise.

CHAP. VI.

Now he intreateth particularly of charitie toward such as offend, 6 toward the ministers of the word, 10 and those that are of the household of faith: 11 Not like unto such who have a counterfeit zeale of the Law, 13 glorying in the mangling of the flesh, 14 and not in the crosse of Christ.

1 Brethren, if a man be suddenly taken in any offence, ye which are spirituall, restore such one with the spirit of meeknesse, considering thy selfe, lest thou also be tempted.

2 Beare ye one anothers burden, and so fulfill the Law of Christ.

3 For if any man seeme to himselfe that he is somewhat, when he is nothing, he deceiveth himselfe in his imagination,

4 But let every man prove his owne work: and then shall he have rejoycing in himselfe onely, and not in another.

5 For every man shall beare his own burden.

1 He condemneth importunate rigour, because that brotherly reprehensionsought to be moderated and tempered by the spirit of meeknesse.
2 Through the malice of the flesh, and the devill.
3 Which are upheld by the vertue of Gods Spirit.
4 Labour to fill up that that is wanting in him.
5 This is a kinde of speech which the Hebrewes use, giving to understand thereby, that all good gifts come from God.
6 He toucheth the sore, for they commonly are most severe judges, which forget their owne infirmities.
7 He sheweth that this is the end of reprehensions, to raise up our brother which is fallen, and not proudly to oppresse him. Therefore every one must seeke to have commendation of his own life by approving of himselfe, and not by reprehending others.
8 Christ, in plaine and flat words, calleth the commandement of charitie his commandement.
9 1 Cor. 3.8.
10 A reason wherefore men ought, to have the greatest eye upon themselves, because that every man shall be judged before God, according to his owne life, and not by comparing himselfe with other men.

6 Let him that is taught in the word, make him that hath taught him, partaker of all his goods.

7 Be not deceived: God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reape.

8 For he that soweth to his flesh, shall of the flesh reape corruption: but he that soweth to the spirit, shall of the spirit reape life everlasting.

9 Let us not therefore be wearie of well doing: for in due season we shall reape, if we faint not.

10 While we have therefore time, let us doe good unto all men, but specially unto them, which are of the household of faith.

11 Ye see how large a letter I have written unto you with mine owne hand.

12 As many as desire to make a faire shew in the flesh, they constrain you to be circumcised, onely because they would not suffer persecution for the crosse of Christ.

13 For they themselves which are circumcised, keepe not the Law, but desire to have you circumcised, that they might rejoyce in your flesh.

14 But God forbid that I should rejoyce, but in the crosse of our Lord Jesus Christ, whereby the world is crucified unto me, and I unto the world.

15 For in Christ Jesus neither circumcision availeth any thing, nor uncircumcision, but a new creature.

16 And as many as walke according to this rule, peace shall be upon them, and mercie, and upon the Israel of God.

17 From henceforth let no man put me to busines: for I beare in my body the marks of the Lord Jesus.

18 Brethren, the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with your spirit, Amen.

THE

THE EPISTLE OF PAVL TO THE EPHESIANS.

CHAP. I.

1 After the salutation. 4 he treateth of the free election of God, 5 and adoption, 7, 13 from whence mans salvation floweth, as from the true and naturall fountain, and because so high a myserie cannot be understood, 16 he prayeth that the full 20 knowledge of Christ may by God be revealed unto the Ephesians.

1 The inscription and salutation, whereof we have spoken in the former Epistles.

1 Pet. 1. 3.

2 The first part of the Epistle, wherein he handleth all the parts of our salvation, propounding the example of Ephesians, and using divers exhortations, and beginning after his manner with thanksgiving.

3 The efficient cause of our salvation is God, not considered confusedly and generally, but as the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ.

4 The next final cause, & in respect of us, is our salvation, all things being bestowed upon us which are necessary to our salvation, which kind of blessing is heavenly and proper to the elect.

5 With all kind of graces and bountifull goodnesse which is heavenly indeed, and from God only.

6 He declareth the efficient cause, or by what means God the Father saveth us in his Son: Because faith he, he chose us from everlasting in his Son.

7 He expoundeth the next final cause, which he maketh double: to wit, sanctification and justification, whereof he will speak hereafter. And hereby also two things are to be noted to wit, that holinesse of life cannot be separate from the grace of election; and again, what purenesse soever is in us, is the gift of God who hath freely of his mercie chosen us.

8 Then God did our choice, because we were, or otherwise should have been holy, but to the end we should be holy.

9 Being clothed with Christs righteousness.

10 Truly and faithfully.

11 Another plainer exposition of the efficient cause, and also of eternal election, whereby God is said to have chosen us in Christ, to wit, because it pleased him to appoint us when we were not yet born, whom he would make to be his children by Jesus Christ: so that there is no reason here of our election to be sought, but in the free mercie of God, neither is faith which God forelaw, the cause of our predestination, but the effect.

12 God neither is faith which God forelaw, the cause of our predestination, but the effect.

13 The uttermost and chiefest final cause is the glory of God the Father, who saveth us freely in his Son.

14 That as his bountifull goodnesse deserveth all praise, so also it should be set forth and published.

15 Another final cause more near, is our justification, while that he freely accounteth us for just in his Son.

16 An expounding of the material cause, how we are made acceptable to God in Christ, as it is he onely whose sacrifice by the mercie of God is imputed unto us, for forgiveness of sins.

17 Now he cometh at length to the formal cause, that is to say, to vocation, or teaching of the Gospel, whereby God executeth that eternall counsell of his free reconciliation and salvation in Christ, and putting in place of the Gospel all wisdom and understanding, he sheweth how excellent it is.

18 By which graces goodnesse and bountifullnesse, 19 in perfect and sound wisdom.

PAVL an Apostle of Jesus Christ by the will of God, to the ^a Saints, which are at Ephesus, and to the ^a faithfull in Christ Jesus:

2 Grace be with you, and peace from God our Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ.

3 ^a Blessed be God, and the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, which hath blessed us with ^b all spirituall blessing in heavenly things in Christ,

4 As he hath chosen us in ^d him, before the foundation of the world, ^e that we should ^f be holy, and without blame ^g before him in love:

5 ^a Who hath predestinate us, to be adopted through Jesus Christ ^b in himself, according to the good pleasure of his will,

6 ^a To the ^b praise of the glory of his grace ^c wherewith he hath made us freely accepted in ^d his beloved:

7 ^a By whom we have redemption through his blood, ^b even the forgiveness of sins according to his rich grace:

8 ^a Whereby he hath been abundant toward us in ^b all wisdom and understanding,

9 And hath opened unto us the ^a mystery of his will ^b according to his good pleasure, which he hath purposed in him,

10 ^a That in the dispensation of the fulnesse of the times, he might ^b gather together in one all things, both which are in heaven, & which are in earth, ^c even in Christ:

11 ^a In whom also we are chosen when we were predestinate according to the purpose of him, which worketh ^b all things after the counsell of his own will,

12 That we, which ^a first trusted in Christ, should be unto the praise of his glory:

13 ^a In whom also ye ^b have trusted, after that ye heard the ^c word of truth, ^d even the Gospel of your salvation, wherein also after that ye beleaved, ye were ^e sealed with the holy ^f Spirit of promise, 14 Which is the earnest of our inheritance, for the ^a redemption of that libertie purchased unto the praise of his glory.

15 ^a Therefore also after that I heard of the faith, which ye have in the Lord Jesus, and love toward all the Saints,

16 I cease not to give thanks for you, making mention of you in my prayers;

17 ^a That the God of our Lord Jesus Christ, that Father of glory, might give unto you the Spirit of wisdom, and revelation through the ^b acknowledging of him,

18 That the eyes of your understanding may be lightned, that ye may know what the ^a hope is of his calling, and what the riches of his glorious inheritance ^b in the Saints,

19 ^a And what is the exceeding greatness of his power toward us, which beleeve, ^b according to the working of his mightie power,

20 ^a Which he wrought in Christ, when m For unless the Lord had opened us to us that mystery, we could never have so much as dreamed of it our selves.

13 Not onely the election, but also vocation proceedeth of meere grace.
14 The Father exhibited and gave Christ, who is the head of all the elect unto the world, at a time which was convenient, according as he most wisely disposed all times from everlasting. And Christ is he, in whom all the elect from the beginning of the world, (otherwise wandering and separated from God) are gathered together: of which some were then in heaven, when he came into the earth, (to wit, such as by faith in him to come, were gathered together) and other being found upon the earth, were gathered together of him, and yet are daily gathered together.
n The faithfull are said to be gathered together in Christ, because they are joined together with him through faith, and become as it were one man.
15 He applieth severally the benefit of vocation to the beleieving Jews going back to the very fountain, even they alway not attribute their salvation, neither to themselves, nor to their stock, nor any other thing, but to the onely grace and mercie of God, both because they were called, and also because they were first called.
16 Now he maketh the Ephesians (or rather all the Gentiles) equal to the Jews, because notwithstanding they came last yet being called by the same Gospel, they embraced it by faith, & were sealed up with the same spirit, which is the pledge of election until the inheritance is full in them also the glory of God might shine forth & be manifested.
17 That word which is truth indeed, because it cometh from God.
18 This is a borrowed kind of speech taken of a seal, which being put to any thing, maketh difference between those things that are authenticall and others that are not.
19 With that Spirit, which bringeth in the Law, but the promise of free adoption.
20 Full and perfect.
17 He returneth to the former gratulation, concluding two things together of those things that went before: the first is, that all good things come to us from God the Father in Christ, & by Christ, that for them he may be praised of us. The second is, that all those things (which he bringeth to two heads, to wit, faith & charitie) are increased in us by certain degrees, so that we must desire increase of his grace, from whom we have the beginning, and of whom we hope for the end.
18 The causes of faith, are God the Father lightning our minds with his holy Spirit, that we may embrace Christ opened unto us in the Gospel, so the obtaining of everlasting life, & the setting forth of Gods glory.
19 Full of mercie.
20 For it is not enough for us to have known God once, but we must know him every day more and more.
21 What blessing they are which he calleth in to hope for whom he calleth to Christ.
19 The excellencie of faith is declared by the effects, because the mighty power of God is set forth & shewed therein.
2 Chap. 3. 7. Col. 2. 12.
20 The Apostle willeth us to behold in our most glorious Christ, with the eyes of faith, that most excellent power and glorie of God, whereof all the faithfull are partakers, although it be as yet very dark in us, by reason of the ignominie of the Crosse, and the weakness of the flesh.

he raised him from the dead, and set him at his ² right hand in the heavenly places:

21 Farre above all principallie, and power, and might, and domination, & every name that is named, not in this world only, but also in that that is to come,

22 And hath made all things subject under his feet, and hath given him over all things to be the ⁶ head to the Church, 23 Which is his body, even the ⁶ fulnesse of him that filleth all in all things.

⁷ To be set on Gods right hand, is to be partaker of the sovereignty which he hath over all creatures.

⁹ That wee should not think that that excellent glory of Christ is a thing wherewith we have nought to doe, he witnesseth, that he was appointed of God the Father, head of all the Church, and therefore the body must be joined to this head, which otherwise should be a maimed thing without members, which notwithstanding is not of necessity (seeing that the Church is rather quickened and sustained by the only vertue of Christ, so farre off is it that he needeth the fulnesse thereof) but of the infinite good will and pleasure of God, who vouchsafeth to joine us to his Sonne. ¹⁰ In so much that there is nothing but is subject unto him: ¹¹ For the love of Christ is so great towards the Church, that though he doe fully satisfie all with all things, yet he esteemeth himselfe but a maimed and imperfect head, unless he have the Church joined to him as his body.

And ¹ you hath he quickened, that were dead in ² trespasses and sinnes,

2 Wherein, in times past ye walked, according to the course of this world, and after the prince that ruleth in the ayre, even the spirit, that now worketh in the children of disobedience,

3 Among whom we also had our conversation in times past, in the lusts of our flesh, in fulfilling the will of the flesh, and of the minde, and were by nature the children of wrath, as well as others.

4 But God which is rich in mercy, through his great love wherewith he loved us,

5 Even when we were dead by sinnes, hath quickened us to together in Christ, by whose grace ye are saved,

6 And hath raised us up together, and made us fit together in the heavenly places in Christ Jesus,

7 That he might shew in the ages to come the exceeding riches of his grace, through his kindnesse toward us in Christ Jesus:

8 For by ⁹ grace are ye saved through faith, and that not of your selves: it is the gift of God,

¹ He declareth againe the greatnesse of Gods good will by comparing that miserable state wherein we are borne, with that dignitie wherunto we are advanced by God the Father in Christ. So that he describeth that condition in such sort, that he saith, that touching spirituall motions we are not onely borne halfe dead, but wholly and altogether dead.

² Coloss. 2.13.

⁴ So then he calleth them dead, which are not regenerate: for as the immortality of them which are damned is no life: so this knitting together of body and soule, is properly no life, but death in them which are not ruled by the Spirit of God.

⁵ He sheweth the cause of death, to wit, sinnes.

⁶ He proveth, by the effects, that all were spirituall dead.

⁷ He proveth this evil to be universal, in so much as all are slaves to Satan.

⁸ At the pleasure of the Prince.

⁹ They are called the children of disobedience, which are given to disobedience.

¹⁰ After that he hath severally condemned the Gentiles, he confesseth that the Jewes amongst whom he numbred himselfe, are not a whit better.

¹¹ By the name of flesh, in the first place, he meaneth the whole man, which he divideth into two parts: into the flesh, which is the part that the Philosophers terme without reason, and into the soule, which they call reasonable: so that he leaveth nothing in man, but he divideth into the whole man, which is of nature the same of wrath.

¹² The Conclusion: All men are borne subject to the wrath and curse of God.

¹³ Men are said to be the children of wrath passively: that is to say, guilty of everlasting death by the judgement of God, who is angry with them.

¹⁴ Prophane people which know not God.

¹⁵ Now hercof followeth another member of the comparison, declaring our excellencie, to wit, that by the vertue of Christ we are delivered from that death and made partakers of eternall life, to the end that in length we may reigne with him.

¹⁶ And by divers and sundry meanes he beareth this into their heads, that the efficient cause of this benefite is the free mercie of God: and Christ himselfe is the materiall cause: and Faith is the instrument, which also is the free gift of God: and the end is Gods glorie.

¹⁷ To wit, as he addeth afterwards in Christ, for as yet this is not fulfilled in us but onely in our head, by whose Spirit we have begunne to die to sinne, and live to God: and that which he fully bringeth to an end, but yet the hope is certaine, for we are assured of that wee looke for, as we are of that we have received already.

¹⁸ So then, Grace, that is to say, the gift of God, and Faith: doe stand one with another, in which two, there are contrarie. To be freed by our selves, or by our works. Therefore what minde they would joine together things of so contrary nature?

9 Not of works, lest any man should boast himselfe:

10 For we are ¹ his workmanship created in Christ Jesus unto good works, which God hath ordained that we should walke in them.

11 Wherefore remember that ye being in time past Gentiles in the flesh, and called uncircumcision of them, which are called circumcision in the flesh, made with hands, 12 That ye were, Isay, at that time without Christ, and were ² aliens from the common wealth of Israel, and were ³ Strangers from the covenants of promise, and had no hope, and were without God in the world.

13 But now in Christ Jesus, ye which once were farre off, are made neere by the blood of Christ.

14 For he is our peace, which hath made of both one, and hath broken the stop of the partition wall,

15 In abrogating through his flesh the hatred, that is, the Law of commandments which standeth in ordinances, for to make of twaine one new man in himselfe, so making peace,

16 And that he might reconcile both unto God in ⁴ one body by his crosse, and ⁵ slay hatred thereby,

17 And came, and preached peace to you which were afarre off, and to them that were neere.

¹ He maintaineth his Apostleship against the offence of the crosse, whereon also he taketh an argument to confirme himself, affirming that he was not only appointed an Apostle by the mercie of God, but was also particularly appointed to the Gentiles to call them on every side to salvation, because God had so determined it from the beginning, although he deferred a great while the manifestation of his counsell.

² These words, the prisoner of Iesus Christ, are taken passively, that is to say, I Paul am cast into prison for maintaining the Glory of Christ.

³ He meaneth not that none knew the calling of the Gentiles before, but because very few knew of it, and they that did know it, as the Prophets, had it revealed unto them very darkly and under figures.

⁵ God never had but one way only to save men by: but it had divers fashions and forms.

⁶ Which was before all beginnings.

⁷ He teacheth by his own example, that the efficacy of the doctrine dependeth upon the grace of God, and therefore we ought to joyne prayers with the preaching and hearing of his word: which are needfull not only to them which are younglings in religion, but even to the oldest also.

⁸ That they growing up more and more by faith in Christ being confirmed with all spiritual gifts, may be grounded & rooted in the knowledge of that immeasurable love, wherewith God the Father hath loved us in Christ, seeing that the whole family, whereof part is already received into heaven, and part is yet here on earth, dependeth upon that adoption of the heavenly Father, in his only Son.

⁹ All that whole people, which had but one household Father, and that is the Church, which is adopted in Christ.

¹⁰ According to the greatness of his mercie.

¹¹ Look Romans 7.22.

¹² Wherewith God loveth us, which is the root of our election.

¹³ How perfect that work of Christ is in every part God hath stamped us in Christ.

¹⁴ Which passeth all the capacities of mans wit, to comprehend it fully in his mind: for otherwise who so hath the spirit of God perceiveth so much (according to the measure that God hath given him) as is sufficient to salvation.

¹⁵ So that we have abundantly in us whatsoever things are requisite to make us perfect with God.

For this cause, I Paul am the Prisoner of Iesus Christ for you Gentiles,

If ye have heard of the dispensation of the grace of God, which is given me to you-ward,

That is, that God by revelation hath shewed this mystrie unto me (as I wrot above in few words, Whereby when ye read, ye may know mine understanding in the mystrie of Christ)

Which in other ages was not opened unto the sons of men, as it is now revealed unto his holy Apostles and Prophets by the Spirit,

That the Gentiles should be inheriters also, and of the same body, & partakers of his promise in Christ by the Gospel,

Whereof I am made a minister by the gift of the grace of God given unto me through the effectual working of his power

Even unto me the least of all Saints is this grace given, that I should preach among the Gentiles the unfearchable riches of Christ,

And to make clear unto all men what the fellowship of the mystrie is, which from the beginning of the world hath been hid in God, who hath created all things by Iesus Christ,

To the intent, that now unto principalities and powers in heavenly places, might be known by the Church the manifold wisdom of God,

According to the eternall purpose, which he wrought in Christ Iesus our Lord:

By whom we have boldnesse and entrance with confidence by faith in him.

Wherefore I desire that ye faint not at my tribulations for your sakes, which is your glory.

For this cause I bow my knees unto the Father of our Lord Iesus Christ,

(Of whom is named the whole family in heaven and in earth.)

That he might grant you according to the riches of his glorie, that ye may be strengthened by his Spirit in the inner man,

That Christ may dwell in your hearts by faith:

That ye, being rooted and grounded in love, may be able to comprehend with all Saints, what is the breadth, and length, and depth, and height:

And to know the love of Christ, which passeth knowledge, that ye may be filled with all fulnesse of God.

Unto him therefore that is able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we aske or think, according to the power that worketh in us,

Be praise in the Church by Christ Iesus, throughout all generations for ever, Amen.

CHAP. IV.

These three last chapters contain precepts of manners. 1 He exhorteth them to mutuall love. 7 Sundry gifts are therefore bestowed of God. 16 that the Church may be built up. 18 He calleth them from the vanitie of the infidels, 23 from lying, 29 and from filthy talking.

Therefore, being prisoner in the Lord, pray you that ye walk worthy of the vocation whereunto ye are called,

With all humblenesse of mind, and meeknesse, with long suffering, supporting one another through love, Endeavouring to keep the unitie of the Spirit in the bond of peace.

There is one body, and one Spirit, even as ye are called in one hope of your vocation.

There is one Lord, one Faith, one Baptisme,

One God and Father of all, which is above all, and through all, and in you all.

But unto every one of us is given grace, according to the measure of the gift of Christ.

Wherefore he faith, When he ascended up on high, he led captivitie captive, and gave gifts unto men.

(Now, in that he ascended, what is it but that he had also descended first into the lowest parts of the earth?

He that descended, is even the same that ascended, far above all heavens, that he might fill all things.)

He therefore gave some to be Apostles, and some Prophets, and some Euangelists, and some Pastours, and Teachers,

For the repairing of the Saints, for the work of the ministerie, and for the edification of the body of Christ,

Till we all meet together (in the unitie of faith, and that acknowledging of the Son of God) unto a perfect man, and unto the measure of the age of the fulnesse of Christ.

reigneth in heaven, having mightily conquered all his enemies (from whence he heapeth all gifts upon his Church:) but yet notwithstanding these gifts are diversely and sundry waies divided according to his will and pleasure, therefore every man ought to be content with that measure that God hath given him, and to bestow it to the common profit of the whole body. f Which Christ hath given. g A multitude of captives. h Down to the earth, which is the lowest part of the world. i Fill with his gifts. k The Church. 6 First of all he reckoneth up the Ecclesiastical functions, which are partly extraordinary and for a season, as Apostles, Prophets, Euangelists, and partly ordinare and perpetual, as Pastors and Doctors. 1 The Apostles were those twelve unto whom Paul was afterward added, whose office was to plant Churches throughout all the world. m The Prophets office was one of the chiefest, which were men of marvellous wisdom; and some of them could foretell things to come. n These the Apostles used as followers in the executing of their office, being not able to answer all places themselves. o Pastors are they which govern the Church, and Teachers are they which governe the schooles. 7 He sheweth the end of Ecclesiastical functions, to wit, that by the ministerie of men all the Saints may grow up together, that they may make one myltall body of Christ. 8 The Church. 8 The use of this ministerie is perpetuall, so long as we are in this world, that is, untill that time that having put off the flesh, and thoroughly and perfectly agreeing betwixt our selves, we shall be joynt with Christ our head. Which thing is done by that knowledge of the Son of God increasing in us, and he himself by little and little growing up in us, untill we come to be a perfect man, which shall be in the world to come, when God shall be all in all. 9 In that most neer communion which is knit and fastened together by faith. r Christ is said to grow up to full age, not in himself, but in us.

4 He breaketh forth into a thanksgiving, whereby the Ephesians also may be confirmed to hope for any thing of God.

1 Another part of the Epistle, containing precepts of Christian life, the sum whereof is this, that every man behave himself as it meet for so excellent grace of God.

2 By this is meant the generall calling of the faithfull, which is to be only as our God is holy. 2 Secondly, he commendeth meeknesse of the mind, which is shewed forth by bearing one with another.

3 Look Mat. 28: 25.

3 Thirdly, he requirerh perfect agreement, but yet such as is knit with the band of the holy Ghost.

4 An argument of great waight, for an earnest intertaining of brotherly love and charitie one with another, because we are made one body as it were, of one God and Father, by one Spirit, worshipping one Lord with one faith, and consecrated to him with one Baptisme, and hope of one self same glory, whereunto we are called.

Therefore who-soever breaketh charitie, breaketh all these things asunder.

5 Who only hath the chief authoritie over the Church.

6 Who only possesseth forth his providence, through all the members of the Church.

7 Who only is united together with us in Christ.

8 He teacheth us, that we indeed are all one body, and that all good gifts proceed from Christ only, who gives unto us, that we indeed are all one body, and that all good gifts proceed from Christ only, who gives unto us, that we indeed are all one body, and that all good gifts proceed from Christ only, who gives unto us, that we indeed are all one body, and that all good gifts proceed from Christ only, who gives unto us, that we indeed are all one body, and that all good gifts proceed from Christ only, who gives unto us, that we indeed are all one body, and that all good gifts proceed from Christ only, who gives unto us, that we indeed are all one body, and that all good gifts proceed from Christ only, who

9 Betwixt our childhood (that is to say, a very weak state, while as yet we do altogether waver) and our perfit age, which we shall have at length in another world, there is a mean, to wit, our youth, and steadily going forward to perfection.

10 He compareth them, which rest not themselves upon the word of God, to little boats which are tossed hither and thither with the doctrines of men, as it were, with contrary winds, and there-withall forewarneth them that it cometh to passe not only by the lightnesse of mans brain, but also by the craftinesse of certain, which make as it were an art, of it.

11 With these uncertain chances which tesse men too and fro.

12 By the deceit of those men which are very well practised in deceiving of other.

13 By earnest affection of the truth and love, we grow up into Christ: for he (being effectual) by the ministry of his word, which as the vitall spirit doth so quicken the whole body, that it nonisfeth all the limbs thereof according to the measure and proportion of each one) quickeneth and cherisheth his Church, which consisteth of divers functions, as of divers members, and preferreth the proportion of every one, And thereof it followeth that neither this body can live without Christ, neither can any man grow up spiritually, which separateth himself from the other members.

14 Of Christ, who in manner of the full, quickeneth all the members.

15 Such increase as meet the body should have.

16 He descendeth to the fruits of Christian doctrine, and reasoneth first upon the principles of manners and actions, setting down a most grave comparison between the children of God, and them, which are not regenerate: For in these men, all the powers of the mind are corrupted, and their mind is given to vanity, and their senses are darkened with most grosse mistinesse, and their affections are so accustomed by little and little to wickednesse, that at length they run headlong into all uncleannesse, being utterly destitute of all judgement.

17 Rom. 1. 21.

18 If the noblest parts of the soul be corrupted, what is man but corruption only? 19 Whereby God liveth in them, 20 Void of all judgement.

21 They strive to passe one another, as though there had been some gain to be gotten by it.

22 Here followeth the contrary part, touching men which are regenerate by the true and lively knowledge of Christ, which have other principles of their doings far different, to wit, holy and honest desires, and a mind clean changed by the vertue of the holy Ghost, from whence proceed also like effects, as a just and holy life indeed.

23 As they have learned, which acknowledge Christ indeed, and in god earnest.

24 Col. 3. 8. 25 Your selves.

26 Where there ought to have been the greatest force of reason, there is the greatest corruption of all, which wasteth all things.

27 After the image of God.

28 Not joined nor counterfeited.

29 He commendeth severally certain peculiar Christian vertues, and first of all, he requireth truth, that is to say, sincere manners, condemning all deceit and dissembling, because we are borne one for another.

30 He teacheth us how to bridle our anger, in such sort, that although it be hot, yet that it break not out, and that it be straightway quenched before we sleep: lest Satan taking occasion to give us evil counsell, through that wicked counsellor, destroy us.

31 If it so fall out, that you be angry, yet sin not: that is, bridle your anger, and do not wickedly put that in execution, which you have wickedly conceived.

32 Let not the night come upon you in your anger, that is, make an accustomed snaky for all matters.

14 That we henceforth be no more children, 15 wavering and caried about with every wind of doctrine, by the deceit of men, and with craftinesse, whereby they lay in wait to deceive.

15 But let us follow the truth in love, and in all things grow up into him, which is the head, that is, Christ:

16 By whom all the body being coupled and knit together by every joynt, for the furniture thereof (according to the effectual power, which is in the measure of every part) receiveth increase of the body, unto the edifying of itself in love.

17 This I say therefore and testifie in the Lord, that ye henceforth walke not as other Gentiles walk, in vanitie of their mind,

18 Having their understanding darkened, and being strangers from the life of God through the ignorance that is in them, because of the hardnesse of their heart:

19 Which being past feeling, have given themselves unto wantonneffe, to work all uncleannesse, even with greedinesse.

20 But ye have not so learned Christ,

21 If so be ye have heard him, and have been taught by him, as the truth is in Jesus,

22 That is, that ye cast off concerning the conversation in time past, that old man, which is corrupt through the deceiverable lusts,

23 And be renewed in the Spirit of your mind,

24 And put on the new man, which after God is created unto righteousness, and true holinesse.

25 Wherefore cast off lying, and speak every man truth unto his neighbour: for we are members one of another.

26 Be angry, but sin not: let not the sun go down upon your wrath, 27 Neither give place to the devill.

28 Let him that stole, steale no more: but let him rather labour, and worke with his hands the thing which is good, that he may have to give unto him that needeth.

29 Let no corrupt communication proceed out of your mouthes: but that which is good to the use of edifying, that it may minister grace unto the hearers.

30 And grieve not the holy Spirit of God, by whom ye are sealed unto the day of redemption.

31 Let all bitternesse, and anger, and wrath, crying, and evill speaking be put away from you, with all malicioufnesse.

32 Be ye courteous one to another, and tender hearted, freely forgiving one another, even as God for Christs sake, freely forgave you.

CHAP. V.

3 Left in those vices which he reprehended, they should set light by his admonitions. 5 He terrifieth them by denouncing severe judgements, 8 and stirreth them forward. 15 Then he descendeth from generall lessons of manners, 21 to the particular duties of wives, 25 and husbands.

BE ye therefore followers of God, as deare children,

2 And walke in love, even as Christ hath loved us, and hath given himselfe for us, to be an offering and a sacrifice of a sweet smelling savour to God.

3 But fornication, and all uncleannesse, or covetousnesse, let it not be once named among you, as it becommeth Saints,

4 Neither filthinesse, neither foolish talking, neither jesting, which are things not comely, but rather giving of thanks.

5 For this ye know, that no whoremonger, neither unclean person, nor covetous person, which is an idolater, hath any inheritance in the kingdom of Christ, and of God.

6 Let no man deceive you with vain words: for, for such things commeth the wrath of God upon the children of disobedience.

7 Be not therefore companions with them.

8 For ye were once darknes, but are now light in the Lord: walk as children of light,

9 A bondslave to idolatry, for the covetous man thinketh that his life standeth in his goods.

13 The falsefull are called light, both because they have the true light in them which lighteth them, and also because they give light to other, in so much, that their honest conversation reproveth the life of wicked men.

16 He descendeth from the heart, to the hands, condemning theft: &c. because the men which give themselves to this wickednesse, use to pretend poverty, he sheweth that labour is a good remedie against poverty, which God blesteth in such sort, that they which labour have alwayes some overplus to help other, so far is it from this, that they are constrained to steal other mens goods.

x 1 Cor. 11. 3.
y A declaration of the former saying: Because God hath made the man head of the woman in matrimony, as Christ is the head of the Church.
z Another argument: Because the good estate of the wife dependeth of the man, so that this submission is not only just, but also very profitable: as also the salvation of the Church is of Christ, although farre otherwise.
aa The conclusion of the wives dutie towards their husbands. * Coloss. 3. 19. 12 The husbands duties toward their wives, is to love them as themselves, of which love, the love of Christ toward his Church is a lively pattern.
ab Because many men pretend the infirmities of their wives to excuse their owne hardnesse and cruelty, the Apostle willet us to marke what manner of Church Christ gar, when he joynted it to himself, and how he doeth not onely, not loath at her filth and uncleannesse, but ceaseth not to wipe the same away with his cleannesse, until he wholly purged it.
ac Make it holy. n Through the free promise of free justification and sanctification in Christ, reserved by faith.
ad The Church as it is considered in it selfe, shall not bee without wrinkle, before it come to the marke is shooteth at: for while it is in this life, it runneth in a race: but if it be considered in Christ, it is cleane and without wrinkle.
ae Another argument: Every man loveth himselfe, even of nature, therefore hee striveth against nature that loveth not his wife: he proveth the consequent, first by the mysticall knitting of Christ and the Church together, and then by the ordinance of God, who saith, that man and wife are as one, that is, not to be divided.

ed of the light, are manifest: for it is light that maketh all things manifest.

21^m Submitting your selves one to another in the feare of God.

22 ¶ * 7 Wives, submit your selves unto your husbands,ⁿ as unto the Lord.

23^o * 9 For the husband is the wives head, even as Christ is the head of the Church, 10 and the same is the saviour of his body.

24ⁱ Therefore as the Church is in subjection to Christ, even so let the wives be to their husbands in every thing.

25 ¶ * 12 Husbands, love your wives, even as Christ loved the Church, and gave himselfe for it, 27 That he might make it unto himselfe a glorious Church, ^o not having spot or wrinkle, or any such thing: but that it should be holy and without blame.

28^k So ought men to love their wives, as their own bodies: he that loveth his wife, loveth himselfe.

29 For no man ever yet hated his^p own flesh, but nourisheth and cherisheth it, even as the Lord doeth the Church.

30 For we are members of his body, of his flesh, and of his bones.

31 * For this cause shall a man leave father and mother, and shal^q cleave to his wife, and they twaine shalbe one flesh.

CHAP. VI.

1 He sheweth the duties of children. 5 servants, 9 and masters. 10 Then he speaketh of the fierce battell that the faithful have, 12 and what weapons we must use in the same: 21 In the end he commendeth Tybicus.

Children, ¹ * obey your parents ² in the Lord; ³ for this is right.

2 * 4 Honour thy father and mother (which is the first commandment with⁴ promise)

5 7 * Servants, be obedient unto them that are your masters, ⁸ according to the flesh, with^d feare and trembling in singleness of your hearts, as unto Christ,

6 Not with service to the eye, as men-pleasers, but as the servants of Christ, ⁹ doing the will of God from the heart,

7 With good will, serving the^e Lord, and not men.

8 10 And know yet that whatsoever good thing any man doth, that same shal he receive of the Lord, whether he be bond or free.

12 He concludeth the other part of this Epistle, with a grave exhortation, that all bee ready, and fight constantly, trusting to spirituall weapons, untill their enemies bee cleane put to flight. And first of all, hee warneth us to take the armour of God, wherewith onely our enemy may be dispatched.

13 Secondly, he declareth that our chiefest & mightiest enemies are invisable, that wee may not thinke that our chiefest conflict is with men.

g Against men, which are of a fraile and brittle nature, against which are set spirituall subtillties, more mighty then the other by a thousand parts.

* Chap. 2, 2. h Hee giveth these names to the evill angels, by reason of the effects which they worke: not that they are able to doe the same of themselves, but because God giveth them the bridle. 14 He sheweth that these enemies are put to flight with the onely armour of God, to wit, with uprightnesse of conscience, a godly and holy life, knowledge of the Gospel, faith, and to be inort, with the word of God, and using daily earnest prayer for the health of the Church, and especially for the continuance of the true, godly, and valiant ministers of the word. i Luke Chap. 5. 16. k That the preparation of the Gospel may be as it were shewes to you: and it is very fitly called the Gospel of peace, for that seeing we have to goe to God through most dangerous ranks of enemies, this may encourage us to go on manfully in that we know by the doctrine of the Gospel, that we may take our journey to God, who is at peace with us.

10 ¶ Finally, my brethren, be strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might.

11 Put on the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to stand against the assaults of the devill.

12 For we wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against ^h principalities, against powers, ^{and} against the worldly governors, the princes of the darkenesse of this world, against spirituall wickednesse, which are in the high places.

13 ¶ For this cause take unto you the whole armour of God, that yee may bee able to resist in the ⁱ evill day, and having finished all things, stand fast.

14 Stand therefore, and your loynes girded about with verity, and having on the brest plate of righteousness, 15 And your feet shod with the ^k preparation of the Gospel of peace.

16 Above all, take the shield of faith, wherewith ye may quench al the fierie darts of the wicked.

17 And take the helmet of salvation, and the sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God.

18 And pray alwayes with all manner prayer and supplication in the ^l Spirit: and watch thereunto with all perseverance and supplication for all Saints,

19 And for me, that utterance may be given unto me, that I may open my mouth boldly to publish the secret of the Gospel, 20 Whereof I am the ambassadour in bonds, that therein I may speake boldly, as I ought to speake.

21 ¶ But that ye may also know mine affaires, and what I doe, Tychicus my deare brother and faithfull minister in the Lord, shall shew you of all things, 22 Whom I have sent unto you for the same purpose, that ye might know mine affaires, and that hee might comfort your hearts.

23 Peace be with the brethren, and love with faith from God the Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ.

24 Grace be with all them which love our Lord Jesus Christ, to their ^m immortalitie, Amen.

THE EPISTLE OF PAUL TO THE PHILIPPIANS.

CHAP. I.

3 Having testified his godly and tender affection towards the Philippians, 12 he intreateth of himself, and his bonds: 22 And pricketh them forward by his own example, 27 and exhorteth them to unite, 28 and patience.

1 The marke wherewith hee thootheth in this Epistle, is to confirme the Philippians by all meanes possible, not onely not to faint, but also to goe forward. And first of all, he commendeth their former doings, to exhort them to go forward: which thing hee saith, hee hopeth fully they will doe, and that by the testimony of their lively charity, but in the meane season hee referreth all things to the grace of God.

a By the Bishops are meant both the Pastors, which have the disposition of the word, and the Elders that governe and by Deacons, are meant those that were stewards of the treasure of the Church, and had to doe with the poore. b Because that you also are made partakers of the Gospel. c Ever since I knew you. d The Spirit of God will not forsake you unto the very latter end, untill your mortall bodies shall appaare before the judgement of Christ to be glorified.

Aul & Timotheus the servants of Jesus Christ, to al the Saints in Christ Jesus, which are at Philippi, with the ^a Bishops, and Deacons:

2 Grace be with you, and peace from God our Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ.

3 I thanke my God, having you in perfect memory,

4 (Alwayes in all my prayers for all you, praying with gladnesse.)

5 Because of the ^b fellowship which ye have in the Gospel, from the ^c first day unto now.

6 And I am perswaded of this same thing, that he that hath begun this good worke in you, wil performe it untill the ^d day of Jesus Christ,

7 As it becommeth me so to judge of you al, because I have you in remembrance, that both in my ^e bonds, and in my defence, and confirmation of the Gospel, you all were partakers of my ^f grace.

8 ¶ For God is my record, how I long after you all from the very heart root in Jesus Christ.

9 ¶ And this I pray, that your love may abound yet more and more in knowledge, and in all judgement,

10 That yee may allow those things which are best, that yee may bee pure, and without offence untill the day of Christ.

11 Filled with the ^g fruits of righteousness, which are by Jesus Christ unto the glory and praise of God.

12 ¶ I would yee understood, brethren, that the things which have come unto me, are turned rather to the furthering of the Gospel,

13 So that my bonds ^h in Christ are famous throughout all the ⁱ judgement hall, and in all other places,

14 In so much that many of the brethren in the Lord are boldned through my bonds, the offence that might come by his persecution, whereby divers tooke occasion to disgrace his Apostleship. To whom he answereth, that God hath blessed his imprisonment in such wise, that he is by that means become more famous, and the dignitie of the Gospel, by this occasion is greatly enlarged, although not with like affection in all men, yet in deed.

b For Christ's sake. c In the Emperours court.

a A true proofe of a true knitting together with Christ.

f Hee calleth his bonds grace, as though hee had received some singular benefit.

2 He declareth his good will towards them, therewith all shewing by what means chiefly they may bee confirmed, to wit, by continual prayer.

3 Hee sheweth what thing wee ought chiefly to desire, to wit, that we may increase in the true knowledge of God, (so that wee may bee able to discern things that differ one from another) and also in charity, that even to the end wee may give our selves to good workes in deed, to the glory of God by Jesus Christ.

g If righteousness be the tree, and good workes the fruits, then must the Pastors need bee deceived, when they say that workes are the cause of righteousness.

4 Hee preventeth the occasion to disgrace his Apostleship.

and

^k The Gospel is called the word, to set forth the excellencie of it.

^m He sheweth by setting forth his own example, that the end of our afflictions is true joy, and that through the vertue of the Spirit of Christ, which he giveth to them that aske it.

ⁿ Under a goodly colour, and pleve: for they made Christ a cloake for their ambition and envie.

^o We must continue even to the end, with great confidence, having nothing before our eyes but Christs glorie onely, whether we live or die.

^p An example of a true shepherd, who maketh more account how he may profit his sheepe, then he doth of any commotion of his own whatsoever.

^q To live in this mortal body.

^r Having set down those things before in manner of a preface, hee descendeth now to exhortations, warning them first of all, to content both in doctrine and minde, and afterward, that being thus knit together with those common bands, they continue through the strength of faith to heare all adversitie, in such sort, that they admit nothing unworthy the profession of the Gospel.

^s The word signifieth to stand fast, and it is proper to wrestlers, that stand fast and firme, not a foot.

^t Wee ought not to be discouraged, but rather encouraged by the persecutions, which the enemies of the Gospel imagine, and practise against us: seeing that they are certaine witnesses, from God himselfe, both of our salvation, and of the destruction of the wicked.

^u Hee proveth that his saying, that perfection is a token of our salvation, because it is a gift of God to suffer for Christ, which gift hee bestoweth upon his own, as he doeth the gift of faith.

^v Now he sheweth for what purpose he made mention of his afflictions.

and dare more frankly speake the word.

15 Some preach Christ even through envie and strife, & some also of good wil.

16 The one part preacheth Christ of contention, and not purely, supposing to add more affliction to my bonds.

17 But the others of love, knowing that I am set for the defence of the Gospel.

18 What then? yet Christ is preached all manner of wayes, whether it be under a pretence, or sincerely: and I therein joy: yea, and wil joy.

19 For I know that this shall turne to my salvation through your prayer, and by the helpe of the Spirit of Jesus Christ, 20 As I fervently looke for, and hope, that in nothing I shal be ashamed, but that with all confidence, as alwayes, so now Christ shal be magnified in my body, whether it be by life or by death.

21 For Christ is to me both in life, and in death advantage.

22 And whether to live in the flesh were profitable for me, and what to chuse I know not.

23 For I am distressed betweene both, desiring to be looked, and to bee with Christ, which is best of all.

24 Neverthelesse, to abide in the flesh is more needfull for you.

25 And this am I sure of, that I shall abide, and with you al continue, for your furtherance and joy of your faith, 26 That ye may more abundantly rejoyce in J E S U S C H R I S T for me, by my comming to you againe.

27 Onely let your conversation be as it becommeth the Gospel of Christ, that whether I come and see you, or else bee absent, I may heare of your matters, that ye continue in one Spirit, and in one minde, fighting together through the faith of the Gospel.

28 And in nothing feare your adversaries, which is to them a token of perdition, and to you of salvation, and that of God.

29 For unto you it is given for Christ, that not onely yee should beleeve in him, but also suffer for his sake, 30 Having the same fight, which ye saw in me, and now heare to be in me.

CHAP. II.

1 Hee exhorteth them above all things

6 and that by the example of Christ.

19 Hee promisseth to send Timotheus shortly unto them,

26 and excuseth the long tarrying of Epaphroditus.

3 To humilitie,

19 Hee promisseth to 26 and excuseth the long tarrying of Epaphroditus.

1 A most earnest request to remove all those things, whereby that great and speciall consent and agreement is commonly broken, to wit, contention and pride, whereby it cometh to passe that they separate themselves one from another.

2 Fulfil my joy, that ye be like minded, as Christian comfort. 6 If any feeling of inward love, having the same love, being of one accord, and of one judgement.

3 That nothing be done through contention or vaine glory, but that in meekenes of minde every man esteeme other better then himselfe.

4 Looke not every man on his owne things, but every man also on the things of other men.

5 Let the same minde be in you that was even in Christ Jesus,

6 Who being in the forme of God, thought it no robbery to be equall with God:

7 But he made himselfe of no reputation, and took on him the forme of a servant, and was made like unto men, and was found in shape like a man.

8 Hee humbled himselfe, and became obedient unto the death, even the death of the crosse.

9 Wherefore God hath also highly exalted him, and given him a Name above every name,

10 That at the Name of Jesus should every knee bow, both of things in heaven, and things in earth, and things under the earth, 11 And that every tongue should confesse that Jesus Christ is the Lord, unto the glory of God the Father.

12 Wherefore my beloved, as ye have alwaies obeyed me, not as in my presence only, but now much more in mine absence: so make an end of your own salvation with feare and trembling.

13 For it is God which worketh in you, both the wil and the deed, even of his good pleasure.

14 Doe al things without murmuring and reasonings,

15 That ye may be blameles, and pure, and the sons of God without rebuke in the mids of a naughty and crooked nation, among whom yee shine as lights in the world,

16 Holding forth the word of life, that I may rejoyce in the day of Christ, that I have not runne in vaine, neither have laboured in vaine.

17 Yea, and though I be offered up upon the sacrifice, and service of your faith, I am glad, and rejoyce with you all.

18 For the same cause also be yee glad, and rejoyce with me.

^e Like love

^f Hee setteth before them a most perfit example of all modellie and sweete conversation, Christ Iesus; whom wee ought to follow with all our might: who abased himselfe so farre for our sakes, although hee bee above all, that he rooke upon him the forme of a servant, to wit, our flesh, willingly subject to all infirmitie, even to the death of the crosse.

^g Such as God himselfe is, and therefore God, for there is none in all parts like to God, but God himselfe.

^h Christ, that glorious and ever-lasting God, knew that hee might justly and lawfully not appear in the baseness of man, but remaine with Majesty meeke for God: yet hee chose rather to debas himselfe.

ⁱ If the same be equall with the Father, then is there of necessity an equalitie, which Arrius that Heretike denieth: and if the Son bee compared to the Father, then is there a distinction of persons, which Sabellius that Heretike denieth.

^j He brought himselfe from all things, as it were to nothing.

^k By taking our nature upon him.

^l He sheweth the most glorious event of Christs submission, to teach us that modestie is the true way to true praise and glory.

^m Dignitie and renowne, and the matter with it.

ⁿ All creatures shal at length bee subject to Christ.

^o Every nation.

^p The conclusion: We must goe on to salvation with humilitie and submission, by the way of our vocation.

^q Hee is said to make an end of his salvation, which runneth in the race of righteousness.

^r A most sure and grounded argument against pride, for that wee have nothing in us praise worthy, but it cometh of the free gift of God, and is without use for wee have no abilitie or power, so much as to will well, (much lesse to do well) but onely of the free mercy of God.

^s Why then? we are not stuck, but yet we doe not will well of nature, but only because God hath made of our naughtie will a good will.

^t He describeth modellie by the contrary effects of pride, teaching us, that it is ferre both from all malicious and close or inward hatred, and also from open contention and brawlings.

^u 1. Pet. 4. 9. To be short, hee requireth a life without faule, and pure, that being lightened with the word of God, they may shine in the darkness of this world.

^v Matt. 5. 14. The Gospel is called the word of life, because of the effects which it worketh.

^w Again he pricketh them more over, to the end they should not be forie for the greatnesse of his afflictions, no not although he should die to make perfit their oblation with his blood, as it were, with a drinke offering.

^x As if hee said, I brought you Philipians to Christ, my desire is that you present your selves a living sacrifice to him, and then shall I not grieve me to be offered up as a drinke offering, to accept of this your spirituall offering.

B b 2 19 And 9 Moreover, hee confirmeth their mindes, both by sending back Epaphroditus unto them, whose fidelitie towards them, and great paines in helping him, he commended: and also promising to send Timothy shortly unto them, by whose presence they shall receive great commoditie, and hoping also to come himselfe shortly unto them, if God will.

* Acts 16. 1.

9 May be confirmed in my joy of minde.

* 1. Cor. 10. 24.

* The most part.

19 And I trust in the Lord Iesus, to send * Timothy shortly unto you, that I also may bee of good comfort, when I know your state.

20 For I have no man like minded, who wil faithfully care for your matters.

21 * For all seeke their own, and not that which is Iesus Christs.

22 But ye know the prooffe of him, that as a sonne with the father, hee hath served with me in the Gospel.

23 Him therefore I hope to send, assoone as I know how it wil goe with me, 24 And I trust in the Lord, that I also my selfe shall come shortly.

25 But I supposed it necessary to send my brother Epaphroditus unto you, my companion in labour, and fellow souldier, even your messenger, and he that ministred unto me such things as I wanted.

26 For he longed after al you, and was full of heavinesse, because ye had heard that he had been sick.

27 And no doubt he was sick, very neere unto death: but God had mercy on him, and not on him onely, but on me also, lest I should have sorrow upon sorrow.

28 I sent him therefore the more diligently, that when ye should see him again, ye might rejoyce, and I might be the lesse sorrowfull.

29 Receive him therefore in the Lord with all gladnesse, and make much of such:

30 Because that for the worke of Christ he was neere unto death, and regarded not his life, to fulfill that service which was lacking on your part toward me.

f He calleth it here the worke of Christ, to visit Christ, being poore, and in bands, in the person of Paul.

C H A P. III.

2 He refuseth the vaine boastings of the false Apostles, 7 And setteth Christ against them. 10 He setteth out the force and nature of faith, 15 That laying all things aside, they may be partakers of the crosse of Christ, 18 The enemies whereof hee note h out.

1 A conclusion of whole things which have bene before said, to wit, that they goe forward cheerfully in the Lord.

2 A preface to the next admonition that followeth, to take good heed and beware of false apostles, which joyne circumcision with Christ, (that is to say, justification by works, with free justification by faith) and beat into mens heads the ceremonies which are abolished, for true exercises of godlinesse and charitie. And he calleth them dogges, as prophane barkers, and evil workemen, because they neglected true works, and did not reach the true use of them. To bee short, he calleth them Concision, because in urging Circumcision, they cut off themselves and others from the Church.

a Which you have oftentimes heard of mee. b Hee alludeth to circumcision, of the name whereof whiles they balled, they cut asunder the Church. 3 He sheweth that wee ought to use true circumcision, to wit, the circumcision of the heart, that cutting off all wicked affections by the vertue of Christ, we may serve God in puritie of life.

c In outward things which yett are not to the soule. 4 Hee doubteth not to preferre himselfe even according to the flesh, before those perverse hot urgers of the Law, that al men may know, that he doeth with good iudgement of minde, highly esteeme of all those outward things: for so much as he lacketh nothing, which hath Christ, nay, the confidence of our workes cannot stand with the free justification in Christ by faith.

Moreover, my brethren, rejoyce in the Lord. It grieveth mee not to write the same things to you, and for you it is a sure thing.

2 Beware of dogges: beware of evil workers: beware of the concision.

3 For wee are the circumcision, which worship God in the Spirit, and rejoyce in Christ Iesus, and have no confidence in the flesh:

4 Though I might also have confidence in the flesh. If any other man thinketh that he hath wherof he might trust in the flesh, much more I,

5 Circumcised the eight day, of the kindred of Israel, of the tribe of Benjamin, * an Ebrew of the Ebrewes, * by the Law a Pharisee:

6 Concerning zeale, I persecuted the Church: touching the righteousness which is in the Law, I was unrebukeable.

7 But the things that were ^d vantage unto me, the same I counted losse for Christs sake.

8 Yea, doubtlesse I think * all things but losse, for the excellent knowledge sake of Christ Iesus my Lord, for whom I have counted all things losse, and do judge them to be dung, that I might ^e winne Christ,

9 And might be found in ^g him, that is, ^h not having mine owne righteousness, which is of the Law, but that which is through the faith of Christ, even the righteousness which is of God through faith,

10 That I may ⁱ know him, and the vertue of his resurrection, and the ^k fellowship of his afflictions, and bee made conformable unto his death,

11 If by any meanes I might attaine unto the ^k resurrection of the dead:

12 Not as though I had already attained to it, either were already perfect: but I follow, if that I may comprehend that for whose sake also I am ^l comprehended of Christ Iesus.

13 Brethren, I count not my selfe, that I have attained to it, but one thing I doe: I forget that which is behind, and endeavour my selfe unto that which is before,

14 And follow hard toward the marke, for the price of the high calling of God in Christ Iesus.

15 Let us therefore as many as be ^m perfect, be thus minded: and if ye be otherwise minded, God shall reveale even the same unto you.

16 Neverthelesse, in that wherunto we are come, Let us proceed by one rule, that we may minde one thing.

17 Brethren, be followers of me, and looke on them, which walke so, as ye have us for an ensample.

18 * For many walke, of whom I have told you often, and now tell you weeping, that they are the enemies of the Crosse of Christ:

19 Whose end is damnation, whose god is their bellie, and whose glory is to their shame, which mind earthly things.

So that in this place hee calleth them perfect, which have somewhat profited in the knowledge of Christ and the Gospel, whom hee setteth against the rude and ignorant, as he expoundeth himselfe in the next verse following. 8 Hee painteth out the false Apostles in their colours, not upon malice or ambition, but with sorrow and teares, to wit, because that being enemies of the Gospel (for that is joyed with affliction) they regard nothing else, but the commodities of this life: that is to say, that flowing in peace, and quietnesse, and all worldly pleasures, they may live in great estimation amongst men, whose miserable end hee forewarned them of. * Rem. 16. 17. * Remward. • Which they know after at mens hands.

* 2. Cor. 11. 22;

* Acts 23. 6.

d Which I accounted for vantage.

e Hee sheweth out all workes, as well those that goe before, as those that come after faith.

f That in their place I might get Christ, and of a poore man become rich: so farre off am I from losing any thing.

g In Christ: for they that are found without Christ, are subject to condemnation.

h That is, to bee in Christ, to bee found not in a mans own righteousness, but clothed with the righteousness of Christ imputed to him.

i This is the end of righteousness by faith touching us, that by the vertue of his resurrection we may escape from death.

j That I may see him in deede, and have a triall of him.

k The way to that eternal salvation is to follow Christ his steps, by afflictions and persecutions, until we come to Christ himselfe, who is our marke whereto we shooete, and receive that reward wherunto God calleth us in him. And the Apostle setteth these true exercises of godlinesse, against those vaine ceremonies of the Law, wherein the false Apostles put the summe of godlinesse.

l To life everlasting, which followeth the resurrection of the Saints.

m For we runne not, but so farre forth, as we are layed hold on of Christ, that is: as God giveth us strength, and sheweth us the way.

n The conclusion of his exhortation standing upon three members: The one is, that such as have profited in the truth of this doctrine, should continue in it.

The second is, that if there be any which are yet ignorant, and understand not these things, and doubt of the abolishing of the Law, they should cause no trouble, and should bee gently borne withall, until they also bee instructed of the Lord.

The third is, that they esteeme the false Apostles, by their fruits: wherein he doubteth not to set forth himselfe for an example. m Hee said before that he was not perfect. So that in this place hee calleth them perfect, which have somewhat profited in the knowledge of Christ and the Gospel, whom hee setteth against the rude and ignorant, as he expoundeth himselfe in the next verse following.

8 Hee painteth out the false Apostles in their colours, not upon malice or ambition, but with sorrow and teares, to wit, because that being enemies of the Gospel (for that is joyed with affliction) they regard nothing else, but the commodities of this life: that is to say, that flowing in peace, and quietnesse, and all worldly pleasures, they may live in great estimation amongst men, whose miserable end hee forewarned them of.

* Rem. 16. 17. * Remward.

• Which they know after at mens hands.

He stretcheth against these fellows, true labours which neglect earthly things, and aspire to heaven onely, where they know, that even in their bodies they shall be clothed with that eternall glory, by the vertue of God.
* 1. Cor. 1. 7.
Tim. 2. 13.

20 ⁹ But our conversation is in heaven, from whence also we look for the * Saviour, even the Lord Jesus Christ, 21 Who shall change our vile bodie, that it may be fashioned like unto his glorious body, according to the working, whereby hee is able even to subdue all things unto himselfe.

CHAP IV.

1 From particular exhortations, 4 He cometh to general. 10 He saith that he took such joy in their readines to liberality.
12 That he wil patiently beare the want.

Therefore, ¹ my brethren, beloved and longed for, my joy and my ² crown, so continue in the ³ Lord, ye beloved.

2 ² I pray Evodias, and beseech Syntyche, that they be of one accord in the Lord

3 Yea, and I beseech thee, faithful yoke-fellow, help those women, which laboured with me in the Gospel, with Clement also, and with other my fellow labourers, whose names are in the * ⁴ book of life.

4 ³ Rejoyce in the ⁴ Lord alway, again I say, Rejoyce.

5 ⁴ Let your ⁵ patient minde be known unto al men. ⁵ The Lord is at hand.

6 ⁶ Bee nothing carefull, but in all things let your requests be shewed unto God in prayer and supplication with ⁷ giving of thanks.

7 And the ⁸ peace of God which passeth all understanding, shall preserve your ⁹ hearts and minds in Christ Jesus.

8 ⁷ Furthermore, brethren, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things ¹ are honest, whatsoever things ² are just, whatsoever things ³ are pure, whatsoever things ⁴ are worthy love, whatsoever things ⁵ are of good report, if there be any vertue, or if there be any praise, think on these things,

9 Which ye have both learned, and received, and heard, and seene in mee: those things do, and the Gospel of peace shal be with you.

10 ⁸ Now I rejoyce also in the Lord greatly, that now at the last your care for me springeth afresh, wherein notwithstanding yee were careful, but yee lacked opportunitie.

11 I speake not because of ⁹ want: for I have learned in whatsoever state I am, therewith to be content.

12 And I can be ¹⁰ abased, and I can abound: every where in al things I am ¹¹ instructed, both to be full, and to be hungry, and to abound, and to have want.

13 I am able to ¹² do al things through the help of Christ, which strengthneth mee.

14 Notwithstanding yee have well done, that yee did communicate to mine affliction.

15 ⁹ And ye Philippians know also that in the ¹³ beginning of the Gospel, when I departed from Macedonia, no Church communicated with mee, concerning the matter of giving and receiving, but yee onely.

16 For even ¹⁴ when I was in Thessalonica, ye sent once, and afterward again for my necessitie:

17 ¹⁰ Not that I desire a gift: but I desire the fruit which may further your reckoning.

18 Now I have received all, and have plentie: I was even filled, after that I had received of Epaphroditus that which ¹⁵ came from you, an ¹⁶ odour that smelleth sweet, a sacrifice acceptable and pleasant to God.

19 And my God shall fulfill all your necessities, through his riches, with glory in Jesus Christ.

20 Unto God even our Father be praise for evermore, Amen.

21 Salute all the Saints in Christ Jesus. The brethren which are with me, greet you.

22 All the Saints salute you, and most of all they which are of ¹⁷ Cesar's household.

23 The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you all, Amen.

¶ Written to the Philippians from Rome, and sent by Epaphroditus.

8 Hee witnesseth that their liberality was acceptable to him, wherewith they did help him in his extreme poverty: but yet to moderating his words, that hee might declare himselfe void of al suspicion of dishonestie, and that hee hath a minde contented both with prosperitie and adverity, and to be short, that hee rejoyceth himselfe in the onely will of God.

k As though I passed for my want.
l He useth a general word, and yet he speaketh but of one kinde of crasse, which is poverty, for commonly poverty bringeth all kinds of discomfort with it.
m This is a metaphor taken from holy things, or sacrifices, for our life is like a sacrifice.

9 Hee witnesseth that hee remembreth also their former benefites, and again, putteth away finisious suspicion of immoderate desire, in that that he received nought of any else.

n At the beginning, when I preached the Gospel among you.

10 He witnesseth again, that hee alloweth well of their benefite, not so much for his owne sake, as for theirs, because they gave it not so much to him, as they offered it to God as a sacrifice, whereof the Lord himselfe will not be forgetfull.

o He alludeth to the sweet smelling savours that were offered in the old law.

THE EPISTLE OF PAVL TO THE COLOSSIANS.

CHAP. I.

1 After the salutation, 4 He praiseth them the more, to make them attentive unto him. 7 He reporteth the testimony of the doctrine which they heard of Epaphras. 13 He magnifieth Gods grace towards them, 20 And sheweth that al the parts of our salvation consist in Christ alone.

PAVL an Apostle of Jesus Christ, by the will of God, and Timotheus our brother,

2 To them which are at Colosse, Saints, and faithfull brethren in Christ:

Grace be with you, & peace from God our Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ.

3 Wee give thanks to God even the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, alway praying for you:

4 Since we heard of your faith in Christ Jesus, and of your love toward al Saints,

5 For the hopes sake, which is laid up for you in heaven, wherof yee have heard before by the word of truth, which is the Gospel,

6 Which is come unto you, even as it is unto al the world, and is faithful, as it is also among you, from the day that yee heard and truly knew the grace of God,

7 As yee also learned of Epaphras our deare fellow servant, which is for you a faithfull minister of Christ:

8 Who hath also declared unto us your love in the Spirit.

9 For this cause wee also, since the day we heard of it, cease not to pray for you, & to desire that ye might be fulfilled with knowledge of his will, in all wisdom, and spirituall understanding.

10 That ye might walke worthy of the Lord, and please him in all things, being fruitful in all good works, and increasing in the knowledge of God,

11 Strengthened with al might through his glorious power, unto all patience, and long suffering with joyfulness,

12 Giving thanks unto the Father which hath made us meet to be partakers of the inheritance of the Saints in light:

13 Who hath delivered us from the power of darknesse, and hath translated us into the kingdom of his deare Sonne, 14 In whom wee have redemption through his blood, that is, the forgiveness of finnes.

15 Who is the image of the invisible God, the first begotten of every creature.

16 For by him were al things created which are in heaven, & which are in earth, things visible and invisible: whether they be Thrones, or Dominions, or Principalities, or Powers, al things were created by him, and for him.

17 And he is before al things, and in him all things consist.

18 And he is the head of the body of the Church: hee is the beginning, and the first begotten of the dead, that in all things he might have the preeminence.

19 For it pleased the Father, that in him should all fulnesse dwell, 20 And through peace made by that blood of that his crosse, to reconcile to him-selfe through him, through him, I say, all things, both which are in earth, and which are in heaven.

21 And you which were in times past strangers and enemies, because your minds were set in evill works, hath hee now also reconciled,

22 In that body of his flesh through death, to make you holy and unblameable, and without fault in his sight,

23 If ye continue grounded and stablished in the faith, and bee not moved away from the hope of the Gospel, wherof yee have heard, and which hath been preached to every creature which is under heaven, whereof I Paul am a minister.

*the Church. * Revel. 1. 5. I Cor. 15. 20. 1 Who is the first again that he should die no more, and who raiseth other from death to life by his power. * Iohn 1. 14. Chap. 2. 9. m Most plentiful abundance of all things pertaining to God. 9 Now he teacheth how Christ executed that office which his Father enjoyed him, to wit, by suffering the death of the Crosse (which was joynt with the curse of God) according to his decree, that by this sacrifice hee might reconcile to his Father all men, as well them which beleaved in him to come, and were already under this hope gathered into heaven, as them which should upon the earth beleave in him afterward. And thus is justification described of the Apostle, which is one and the chiefest part of the benefit of Christ. n The whole Church. 10 Sanctification is another worke of God in us by Christ, in that that hee restored us (which hated God extremely, and were wholly and willingly given to sinne) to his gracios favour, in such sort, that he therewithall purified us with his holy Spirit, and consecrated us to righteousness. o The Sonne. p In that fleshy body, to give us to understand that his body was not a fantastical body, but a true body. 11 The second treatise of this part of the Epistle, wherein he exhorteth the Colossians not to suffer themselves by any means to be moved from this doctrine, shewing and declaring that there is no where any other true Gospel. q To all men: whereby we learn that the Gospel was not kept up within the corners of Iudea alone. 12 He purchaseth authority to this doctrine by his Apostleship, and taketh a most true proof thereof, of his afflictions, which he suffereth for Christ his Name, to instruct the Churches with these examples of patience.*

a By the free voluntariness of God.

b Colosse is situated in Phrygia, not far from Hierapolis and Laodicea, on that side that they bend toward Lycia and Pamphylia.

1 He commendeth the doctrine that was delivered them by Epaphras, and their readiness in receiving it.

2 Wee cannot otherwise consider of God to our salvation, but as hee is Christ's Father, in whom we are adopted.

3 For the glory that is hoped for.

2 He declareth his good will towards them, telling them that they must not still remain at one stay, but go on further both in the knowledge of the Gospel, and also in the true use of it.

3 Your spiritual love, or your love which cometh from the spirit.

4 Gods will.

5 The gift of continuance is not of us, but it proceedeth from the virtue of God, which hee doth freely give us.

6 It must not be unwilling, and as it were dragged us by force, but proceed from a merry and joyful mind.

7 Having ended the preface, he goeth to the matter itselfe, that is to say, to an excellent description (although it be but short) of whole Christianitie, which is fitly divided into three treatises: for first of all, he expoundeth the true doctrine according to the order of the canons, beginning from this verse to the 21 verse, and from thence he beginneth to apply the same to the Colossians, with divers exhortations to the first verse of the second Chapter. And last of all in the third place, even to the third Chapter, he refuteth the corruptions of true doctrine.

8 The efficient cause of our salvation is the only mercy of God the Father, who maketh us meet to be partakers of eternal life, delivering us from the darknesse wherein we were borne and bringing us to the light of the knowledge of the glory of his Sonne.

² The afflictions of the Church are said to be Christs afflictions, by reason of that fellowship and knitting together that the body and the head have, the one with the other, not that there is any more need to have the Church redeemed, but that Christ sheweth his power in the daily weakness of his, and that for the comfort of the whole body.

³ He bringeth another proof of his Apollship to wit, that God is the au-thour of it, by whom also hee was appointed peculiarly Apoll of the Gentiles, to the end that by this meane, that same might be fulfilled by him, which the Prophets foretold of the calling of the Gentiles.

doth faithfully execute his Apollship in every place, bringing men unto Christ onely through the Lords plentiful blessing of his labours.

24 Now rejoyce I in my sufferings for you, and fulfill the rest of the afflictions of Christ in my flesh, for his bodies sake, which is the Church.

25 Whereof I am a minister, according to the dispensation of God, which is given me unto you-ward, to fulfil the word of God:

26 Which is the mystery hid since the world began, and from all ages, but now is made manifest unto his Saints,

27 To whom God would make known what is the riches of his glorious mysterie among the Gentiles, which riches is Christ in you, the hope of glory.

28 Whom we preach, admonishing every man, and teaching every man in all wisdom, that we may present every man perfect in Christ Jesus.

29 Whereunto I also labour and strive,

9 For in him dwelleth all the fulnesse of the God head bodily.

10 And ye are compleat in him, which is the head of all principality and power.

11 In whom also ye are circumcised with circumcission made without hands, by putting off the sinfull body of the flesh, through the circumcision of Christ:

12 In that ye are buried with him through baptisme, in whom ye are also raised up together through the faith of the operation of God, which raised him from the dead.

13 And you which were dead in sins, and in the uncircumcision of your flesh, hath he quickned together with him, forgiving you all your trespasses,

14 And putting off the hand writing of ordinances that was against us, which was contrary to us, hee even took it out of the way, and fastened it upon the crosse:

15 And hath spoyled the Principalities and Powers, and hath made a shew of them openly, and hath triumphed over them in the same crosse.

16 Let no man therefore condemn you in meat or drink, or in respect of an holy day, or of the new moon, or of the Sabbath dayes,

17 Which are but a shadow of things to come: but the body is in Christ.

18 Let no man at his pleasure beare rule over you by humbleness of minde, and worshipping of Angels, advancing himself in those things which he never saw,

19 And holdeth not the head, whereof all the body furnished and knit together
by joynts, and bands, increaseth with the increasing of God.

20 Where-
of all the body furnished and knit together
by joynts, and bands, increaseth with the increasing of God.

21 Where-
of all the body furnished and knit together
by joynts, and bands, increaseth with the increasing of God.

22 Where-
of all the body furnished and knit together
by joynts, and bands, increaseth with the increasing of God.

23 Where-
of all the body furnished and knit together
by joynts, and bands, increaseth with the increasing of God.

24 Where-
of all the body furnished and knit together
by joynts, and bands, increaseth with the increasing of God.

25 Where-
of all the body furnished and knit together
by joynts, and bands, increaseth with the increasing of God.

26 Where-
of all the body furnished and knit together
by joynts, and bands, increaseth with the increasing of God.

27 Where-
of all the body furnished and knit together
by joynts, and bands, increaseth with the increasing of God.

28 Where-
of all the body furnished and knit together
by joynts, and bands, increaseth with the increasing of God.

8 A reason: Because onely Christ, God and man, is most perfect, and passeth farre above all things, so that whoever hath him, may require nothing more.

9 By these words is shewed a distinction of the nature.

10 This word (dwelleth) sheweth out unto us the young together of these natures, in that of God and Man in Christ.

11 These words set downe a most perfect
God head to bee in Christ.

12 The knitting together of God and man is substantiall and effectuall.

13 Now he dealeth precisely against the third kinde, that is to say, 3-gists them which upheld the Jewish religion, and that of all, hee denieth that we have need of the circumcision of the flesh, seeing that without it, we are circumcised within by the verue of Christ.

14 Rom. 2. 29.
These many words are used to shew
what the old man is, whom Paul in other places calleth the body of sinne.

15 The taking away of an objection: Wee need not to much as the externall signe which our fathers had, seeing that our Baptisme is a newer, cleaer and winnle of that inward restoring and renewing of the heart.

16 Ephes. 1. 19.
q. Lame Rom. 6. 4.
r. So then all the force of the matter cometh not from us very dead dead, that is to say, it is not the dipping of us into the water by a Minister, that maketh us to be buried with Christ, as the Papists say, but the Baptisme sayeth that we are buried with Christ, and that we are raised up with him.

17 One end of Baptisme is he death and buriall of the old man, and that by the mighty power of God onely, whose verue we lay hold on by faith, in the death and resurrection of Christ.

18 Another end of Baptisme is, that we which were dead in sinne, might obtaine free remission of sinnes and eternal life, through faith in Christ who died for us.

19 A new argument which lieth in these few words, and it is thus: Vncircumcision was no hinderance to you, why then being justified in Christ should not obtaine life, therefore you need not circumcision to the attainment of salvation.

20 Hee speaketh now more generally against the whole service of the law, and sheweth by two reasons, that it is abolished. First, to what purpose should hee that hath obtained remission of all his sinnes in Christ, require those helps of the Law? Secondly, because that if a man doe rightly consider those rites, hee shall finde that they were so many testimonies of our guiltinesse, whereby wee manifestly witnessed as it were by our owne handwritings, that wee deserved damnation. Therefore did Christ put out that handwriting by his coming, and fastening it to the Crosse, triumphed over all our enemies, were they never so mighty. Therefore to what end and purpose should wee now use those ceremonies, as though wee were still guilty of sinne, and subject to the tyranny of our enemies?

21 Ephesians 2. 15.
Abolishing the rites and ceremonies,
v. Satan and his Angels.
x. As a conquerour made his shew of those captives, and put them to shame.

22 The crosse was as a chariot of triumph. No conquerour could have triumphed so gloriously in his chariot, as Christ did upon the crosse.

23 The conclusion: wherein also he nameth certain kindes, as the difference of dayes, and meares, and proveth by a new argument, that wee are not bound unto them: to wit, because those things were shadows of Christ to come, but wee possesse him now exhibited unto us.

24 The body as a thing of substance and substance, setteth against shadows, 16 Hee disputeth against the first kinde of corruptions, and setteth down the worshipping of Angels for an example: which kinde of false religion he confuteth first, this way:
because that they which bring in such a worship, attribute that unto themselves which is proper onely to God, to wit, authoritie to binde mens consciences with religion, although they seeme to bring in these words by humbleness of minde.

17 Secondly, because they rashly thrust upon them for oracles those things which they neither law nor heard, but devised of themselves.

18 Thirdly, because these things have no other ground whereupon they are built, but onely the opinion of men, which please themselves without all measure in their owne devices.

19 Without reason.

20 The fourth argument, which is of great weight: because they spoile Christ of his dignity, who onely is sufficient both to nomish and also to increase his whole body.

21 Christ.

22 With the increasing which cometh from God.

23 20 Where-

20 Now last of all, he fighteth against the second kinde of corruptions, that is to say, against meer superstitions, invented of men, which partly deceive the simplicity of some with their craftinesse, and partly with very foolish superstitions, and to bee laughed at: as when godlinesse, remission of sinnes, or any such like vertue, is put in some certain kinde of meate, and such like things, which the inventors of such rites themselves understand not, because indeed it is not.

And he useth an argument taken of comparison. If by the death of Christ who established a new covenant with his blood, you bee delivered from those externall rites where with it pleased the Lord to prepare the world, as it were by certain rudiments, to that full knowledge of true religion, why would ye be burdened with traditions, I wot not what, as though yee were citizens of this world, that is to say, as though yee depended upon this life, and earthly things? Now this is the cause why before verse 8. he followed another order then he doth in the confutation: because hee sheweth there, by what degrees false religions came into the world, to wit, beginning first by curious speculations of the wise, after which in proceesse of time succeeded grosse superstition, against which mischiefs, the Lord set at length that service of the Law, which some abused in like sort: but in the confutation hee began with the abolishing of the Law service, that he might shew by comparison, that those false services ought much more to be taken away.

As though your felicity stood in these earthly things, and the kingdom of God were not rather spirituall. 21 An imitation in the perion of these superstitious men, rightly expressing their nature and use of speech.

22 Another argument: The spirituall and inward kingdom of God cannot consist in these outward things, and such as perish with the using.

23 The third argument: Because God is not the author of these traditions, and therefore they doe not binde the consciences.

24 The taking away of an objection. These things have a goodly shew, because men by this meanes, seem to worship God with a good minde, and humble themselves, and neglect the body, which the most part of men curiously pamper up, and cherish: but yet notwithstanding the things themselves are of no value, for so much as they pertain not to the things that are spirituall and everlasting, but to the nourishment of the flesh.

Which seem indeed to be some exquisite thing, and so wise devices, as though they came from heaven. 25 Hence spring the works of supererogation, as the Papists term them, that is to say, needlesse works, as though men performed more than is commanded them: which was the beginning and the very ground, whereon Monks merits were brought in.

A lively description of Monks. 26 Seeing they stand in meat and drink, wherein the kingdom of God doth not stand.

CHAP. III.

- 1 Against earthly exercises, which the false Apostles urged, 2 he setteth heavenly: 3 And beginneth with the mortifying of the flesh, 4 whence he draweth particular exhortations, 5 and particular duties which depend on each mans calling.

1 Another part of this Epistle, wherein he taketh occasion, by reason of those vain exercises, to shew the duty of a Christian life: which is an ordinary thing with him, after he hath once set down the doctrine in itself.

2 Our renewing or new birth, which is wrought in us by being partakers of the resurrection of Christ, is the fountain of all holinesse, out of which sundry arms or rivers do afterwards flow.

3 For if we bee partakers of Christ, wee are carried out into another life, where wee shall need neither meat nor drink, for wee shall be like unto the Angels.

4 The end and mark which al the duties of Christian life shoot at, is to enter into the kingdom of heaven, and to give our selves to those things which leade us thither, that is, to true godlinesse, and not to those outward and corporall things.

5 So he calleth that stee of religion which he spake of in the former chapter.

6 A reason taken of the efficient causes, and others: you are dead as touching the flesh, that is, touching the old nature which seeketh after all transitory things, and on the other side, you have begun to live according to the Spirit, therefore give your selves to spirituall and heavenly, and not to carnall and earthly things.

7 The taking away of an objection: whiles wee are yet in this world, wee are subject to many miseries of this life, so that the life that is in us, as it were hidden: yet notwithstanding wee have the beginnings of life and glory, the accomplishment whereof which lieth now in Christs, and in Gods hand, shall be assuredly and manifestly performed in that glorious coming of the Lord.

8 Let not your dead nature be any more effectuell in you, but let your living nature be effectuell. Now the force of nature is known by the motions. Therefore let the affections of the world die in you, and let the contrary motions which are spirituall live. And he reckoneth up a great long scroule of vices, and their contrary vertues.

9 Ephes. 5. 3. c The motions and lusts that are in us, are in this place very properly called members: because that the reason and will of man corrupted, doth use them as the body doth his members.

10 For those wives do not well, that do not set God in Christ before them in their love, but this Philosophy knoweth not.

11 1. Pet. 3. 1. 12 Hee requireth of children, that according to Gods commandment they be obedient to their parents.

13 In the Lord, and so it is expounded, Ephes. 5. 19. 14 Of servants, that fearing God himselfe, that they be gentle towards their children.

15 Of servants, that fearing God himselfe, to whom their obedience is acceptable, they reverently, faithfully, and from the heart, obey their masters.

16 Ephes. 6. 5. Titus 2. 9. 1. Pet. 2. 18.

6 For the which things sake, the wrath of God cometh on the children of disobedience.

7 Wherein ye also walked once, when ye lived in them.

8 But now put ye away even all these things, wrath, anger, malicioufnes, cursed speaking, filthy speaking, out of your mouth.

9 Lie not one to another, seeing that ye have put off the old man with his works,

10 And have put on the new, which is renewed in knowledge, after the image of him that created him, 11 Where is neither Grecian nor Jew, circumcision nor uncircumcision, Barbarian, Scythian, bond, free: But Christ is all, and in all things.

12 Now therefore as the elect of God, holy and beloved, put on the bowels of mercies, kindnesse, humblenesse of minde, meeknesse, long suffering:

13 Forbearing one another, and forgiving one another, if any man have a quarrel to another: even as Christ forgave, even so do ye.

14 And above all these things put on love, which is the bond of perfectnesse.

15 And let the peace of God rule in your hearts, to the which ye are called in one body, and be ye thankfull.

16 Let the word of Christ dwell in you plenteously in all wisdome, teaching and admonishing your own selves, in Psalmes, and Hymnes, and spirituall songs, singing with a grace in your hearts to the Lord.

17 And whatsoever ye shal do, in word or deed, do all in the name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks to God even the Father by him.

18 ¶ 10 Wives, submit your selves unto your husbands, as it is comely in the Lord.

19 ¶ 11 Husbands, love your wives, and be not bitter unto them.

20 ¶ 12 Children, obey your parents in all things: for that is well pleasing unto the Lord.

21 ¶ 13 Fathers provoke not your children to anger, lest they be discouraged.

22 ¶ 14 Servants, be obedient unto them that are your masters according to the flesh, in all things, not with eye-service as men-pleasers, but in singleness of heart, fearing God.

23 And whatsoever ye do, do it hartily, as to the Lord, and not to men, civill life of man, to precepts pertaining to every mans family, and requireth of wives, subjection in the Lord.

For those wives do not well, that do not set God in Christ before them in their love, but this Philosophy knoweth not.

In the Lord, and so it is expounded, Ephes. 5. 19. 14 Of servants, that fearing God himselfe, that they be gentle towards their children.

15 Of servants, that fearing God himselfe, to whom their obedience is acceptable, they reverently, faithfully, and from the heart, obey their masters.

24 Know-

4 ¶ Jeth to come.

7 A definition of our new birth taken of the parts thereof, which are the putting off of the old man, that is to say, of the wickednesse, which is in us by nature, & the restoring, and repairing of the new man, that is to say, of purenesse, which is given us by grace: but both of them are but begun in us in this present life, and by certain degrees finished: the onedying in us by little and little, and the other coming to the perfection of another life, by little and little.

8 Newnesse of life consisteth in knowledge, which transformeth man to the image of God his maker, that is to say, to the sincerity and purenesse of the whole soul.

9 Hee speaketh of an effectual knowledge.

9 He telleth them again that the Gospel doth not respect those externall things, but true justification and sanctification in Christ only, which have many fruites, as he reckoneth them up here: But commendeth two things especially, to wit, godly concord, and continual studie of Gods word.

So put on, that ye never put off.

Those most tender affections of exceeding compassion.

Which bindeeth and knitteth together all the duties that passe from man to man.

You are joyned together into one body through Gods goodness, that you might help one another as fellow members.

By Psalmes he meaneth all godly songs, which were written upon divers occasions, and by Hymnes, all such as contain the praise of God, and by spirituall songs, other more peculiar and artificeous songs, which were also in praises of God, but they were made fuller of musick.

15 He requireth of masters, that being mindful how that they themselves also shall render an account before that heavenly Lord and Master, which will revenge wrongfull doings without any respect of masters or servants, they shew themselves just and upright, with equity, unto their servants.

CHAP. IV.

2 He returneth to generall exhortations, 3 touching prayer, and gracious speech, 7 and so endeth with greetings and commendations.

YE Masters, do unto your servants, that which is just and equall, knowing that ye also have a Master in heaven.

2 Continue in prayer, and watch in the same with thanksgiving,

3 Praying also for us, that God may open unto us the door of utterance, to speak the mystery of Christ, wherefore I am also in bonds,

4 That I may utter it, as it becometh me to speak.

5 Walk wisely toward them that are without, and redeem the season.

6 Let your speech be gracious alwayes, and powdered with salt, that ye may know how to answer every man.

9 With Onesimus a faithfull and a beloved, framed to the profit of your neighbour.

ved brother, who is one of you: They shall shew you of all things here.

10 Aristarchus my prison fellow saluteth you, and Marcus Barnabas cousin, (touching whom ye received commandements; If he come unto you, receive him.)

11 And Jesus which is called Justus, which are of the circumcision. These only are my workfellows unto the kingdom of God, which have been unto my consolation.

12 Epaphras the servant of Christ, which is one of you, saluteth you, and alwayes striveth for you in prayers, that ye may stand perfect, and full in all the will of God.

13 For I bear him record, that he hath a great zeal for you, and for them of Laodicea, and them of Hierapolis.

14 Luke the beloved Physician greeteth you, and Demas.

15 Salute the brethren which are of Laodicea, and Nymphas, and the Church which is in his house.

16 And when this Epistle is read of you, cause that it to be read in the Church of the Laodiceans also, and that ye likewise read the Epistle written from Laodicea.

17 And say to Archippus, Take heed to the ministry, that thou hast received in the Lord, that thou fulfill it.

18 The salutation by the hand of me Paul. Remember my bands. Grace be with you, Amen.

THE FIRST EPISTLE OF PAUL TO THE THESSALONIANS.

CHAP. I.

1 He therefore beginneth with thanksgiving; 4 to put them in mind that whatsoever was praise worthy in them, it came of Gods goodnesse: 7 and that they are ensamples unto others.

PAUL, and Silvanus, and Timotheus, unto the Church of the Thessalonians, which is in God the Father, and in the Lord Jesus Christ: Grace be with you, and peace from God our father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ.

2 We give God thanks alwayes for you all, making mention of you in our prayers.

3 Without ceasing, remembreing your effectuall faith, and diligent love, and the patience of your hope in our Lord Jesus Christ, in the sight of God, even our Father.

4 Knowing, beloved brethren, that ye are elect of God.

1 An example of a right Christian rejoicing, whereby also we learne, that such as have great gifts in them, are in two sorts bidden, to wit, if they consider that they have received all from God, and that continuance must be desired at his hands, whereunto also the whole Epistle exhorteth the Thessalonians.

3 Another reason, why they ought in no wise that back, but continue to the end, because they cannot doubt of his doctrine which hath bene so many wayes confirmed unto them even from heaven, as they themselves did well know.
4 Paul sheweth by two things that there followed very great fruit of his preaching, to wit, by the gifts of the holy Ghost, and that certain assurance which was thoroughly sealed in their minds, as appeared by their willing bearing of the Cross.

4 Another reason, because even to this day they embraced the Gospel with great cheerfulness, in so much that they were an example to all their neighbours: so that it should be more shame to them to faile in the mid race.

c With joy which cometh from the holy Ghost. d All the believers. e It is no true conversion to forsake idols, unless a man therewithall worship the true and living God, in Christ the only Redeemer. f This word (That) is not put here without cause, and by (wrath) it meant that revenge and punishment, wherewith the Lord will judge the world at length in his terrible wrath.

5 For our Gospel was not unto you in word only, but also in power, and in the holy Ghost, and in much assurance, as ye know after what manner we were among you for your sakes.

6 And ye became followers of us, and of the Lord, and received the word in much affliction, with joy of the holy Ghost:

7 So that ye were as ensamples to all that beleeve in Macedonia and in Achaia:

8 For from you sounded out the word of the Lord, not in Macedonia and in Achaia only: but your faith also which is toward God, spread abroad in all quarters, that we need not to speak any thing.

9 For they themselves shew of us what manner of entring in we had unto you, and how ye turned to God from Idols, to serve the living and true God,

10 And to look for his son from heaven, whom he raised from the dead, even Jesus which delivereth us from that wrath to come.

CHAP. II.

1 He declareth both faithfully he preached the Gospel unto them, seeking no gain. 2 nor praise of men: 3. and he proveth the same by their own testimonies: 4. that they did courageously bear persecutions of their country men. 5. that he desired very much to see them.

1 That which hee touched before thornly concerning his Apostleship, he handleth now more at large, and to that end and purpose which we spake of.

2 The vertues of a true Faithour are freely and without feare to preach the Gospel, even in the midst of dangers.

3 A 16. 12.

4 Through Gods his gracious helpe.

5 To preach pure doctrine faithfully and with a pure heart.

6 By any wicked and naughty kinde of dealing.

7 To approve his conscience to God, being free from all flattery and covetousnesse.

8 Seeing there is this difference between the judgements of God, and the judgements of men, that when men chuse, they respect the qualities of those things which stand before them, but God findeth the reason of his counsell only in himself, in felicitie, that seeing we are not able to think a good thought, that whosoever he first claspeth to those callings, he maketh them able, and doth not find them able.

9 And therefore in that we are allowed of God, it hangeth upon his mercy.

10 To submit himself even to the basest, to win them, and to eschew all pride.

11 When I might lawfully have lived upon the expenses of the Church, if we were not rough, but gentle as a nurse, that is, neither ambitious, nor covetous, but taketh all pains as patiently as if she were a mother.

12 To have the flock that is committed unto him in more estimation then his own life.

For ye yourselves know, brethren, that our entrance in unto you was not in vaine,

2 But even after that we had suffered before, and were shamefully intreated at Philippi, (as ye know) we were bold in our God, to speak unto you the Gospel of God with much striving.

3 For our exhortation was not by deceit, nor by uncleannesse, nor by guile:

4 But as we were allowed of God, that the Gospel should be committed unto us, so we speak, not as they that please men, but God, which approveth our hearts.

5 Neither yet did we ever use flattering words, as ye know, nor coloured covetousnesse, God is record.

6 Neither sought we praise of men, neither of you, nor of others, when we might have been chargeable, as the Apostles of Christ.

7 But we were gentle among you, even as a nurse cherisheth her children.

8 Thus being affectioned toward you, our good will was to have dealt unto you, not the Gospel of God onely, but also our own soules, because ye were dear unto us.

9 To submit himself even to the basest, to win them, and to eschew all pride. 10 When I might lawfully have lived upon the expenses of the Church, if we were not rough, but gentle as a nurse, that is, neither ambitious, nor covetous, but taketh all pains as patiently as if she were a mother.

11 To have the flock that is committed unto him in more estimation then his own life.

9 For ye remember, brethren, our labour and travell: for we laboured day and night, because we would not be chargeable unto any of you, and preached unto you the Gospel of God.

10 Ye are witnesses, and God also, how holily and justly, and unblameably we behaved our selves among you that beleeve.

11 As ye know how that we exhorted you, and comforted, and besought every one of you (as a father his children.)

12 That ye would walk worthy of God, who hath called you unto his kingdom and glory.

13 For this cause also thank we God without ceasing, that when ye received the word of God, which he heard of us, ye received it not as the word of men, but as it is indeed the word of God, which also worketh in you that beleeve.

14 For brethren, ye are become followers of the Churches of God, which in Judea are in Christ Jesus, because ye have also suffered the same things of your own countrymen, even as they have of the Jewes,

15 Who both killed the Lord Jesus and their own Prophets, and have persecuted us away, and God they please not, and are contrary to all men,

16 And forbid us to preach unto the Gentiles, that they might be saved, to fulfill their sins alwayes: for the wrath of God is come on them to the utmost.

17 Forasmuch, brethren, as we were kept from you for a season, concerning fight, but not in the heart, we enforced the more to see your face with great desire.

18 Therefore we would have come unto you (I Paul, at least once or twise) but Satan hindered us.

19 For what is our hope or joy, or crown of rejoycing? are not even you in the presence of our Lord Jesus Christ at his coming?

20 Yes, ye are our glory and joy.

1 To shew his affection towards them, he sendeth Timotheus unto them: 2 He is so moved by the report of their prosperous state, 3 that he cannot give sufficient thanks: 4 and therefore he breaketh out into prayer.

5 Therefore since we could no longer forbear, we thought it good to remain at Athens alone.

6 And have sent Timotheus our brother and minister of God, and our labour-fellow in the Gospel of Christ, to stablish you,

7 To depart with his owne right rather then to be chargeable to his sheep.

8 To exhort other in example of godly life.

9 To exhort all men diligently and earnestly to lead a godly life.

10 To exhort all men diligently and earnestly to lead a godly life.

11 Having approved his ministry, he commendeth again (to that end and purpose that I spake of) the cheerfulness of the Thessalonians, which was answerable to his diligence in preaching, and their manly patience.

12 He confirmeth them in their afflictions which they suffered of their own people, because they were afflicted of their owne countrymen: which came as well (saith he) to the Churches of the Jewes, as to them: and therefore they ought to take it in good part.

13 Which Christ hath gathered together.

14 Even of them, which are of the same country, and the same tongue that you are of.

15 He preventeth an offence which might be taken, for that the Jewes especially, above all other, persecuted the Gospel. That is no new thing, saith he, seeing they slew Christ himself, and his Prophets, and have banished me also.

16 He foretelleth the utter destruction of the Jewes, left any man should be moved by their rebellion.

17 For the Jewes would neither enter into the Kingdom of God themselves, nor suffer other to enter in.

18 Vntill that wickednesse of theirs which they have by inheritance, as it were, of their fathers, be given so great, that the measure of their iniquity be filled, God may come forth to wrath.

19 The judgement of God being angry, which indeed appeared shortly after in the destruction of the city of Hierusalem, whither many were driven out of divers Provinces, when it was besieged.

20 He meeteth with an objection, why he came not to them straightwayes being in so great misery. I desired oftentimes (saith he) and it lay not in me, but Satan hindered my endeavours, and therefore I sent Timotheus my faithfull companion unto you, because you are most dear to me.

21 We were kept asunder from you, and as it were orphans.

7 To depart with his owne right rather then to be chargeable to his sheep.

8 To exhort other in example of godly life.

¹The will of God, who calleth his, on this condition, to bring them to glory by affliction. ²Is a most sure remedy against all afflictions.

³ Because they have hitherto gone so well forward, hee exhorteth them againe to make an end of the rest of the journey, seeing that therein also they shall do him, their Apostle, a great pleasure.

⁴ For now you cannot otherwise thinke me safe and in good case, unless you go forward in religion and faith.

⁵ Rom. 1. 10. and 15. 23.

⁶ Paul was constrained through the importunate dealing of the enemies, to leave the building which he had scarce begun: And for that cause he had left Silas and Timotheus in Macedonia, and when Timotheus came to Achaia, he sent him backe againe straightway. So that he desireth to see the Thessalonians, that he may thereby throughly accomplish their faith and religion, that was as yet imperfect.

⁷ Another part of the Epistle, wherein hee speaketh of the duties of a Christian life. And he sheweth that the perfection of a Christian life, consisteth in two things, to wit, in charitie toward all men, and inward puritie of the heart, the accomplishment whereof notwithstanding is deferred to the next comming of Christ, who will then purifie his work by the same grace wherewith he begun it in us.

⁸ 1 Cor. 15. 8.

you, and to comfort you touching your faith,

3 That no man should be moved with these afflictions: for ye your selves know, that we are appointed thereunto.

4 For verily when we were with you, we told you before that we should suffer tribulations, even as it came to passe, and ye know it.

5 Even for this cause, when I could no longer forbear, I sent him that I might know of your faith, lest the tempter had tempted you in any sort, and that our labour had beene in vaine.

6 But now lately when Timotheus came from you unto us, and brought us good tidings of your faith and love, & that ye have good remembrance of us alwayes, desiring to see us, as we also doe you,

7 Therefore brethren, we had consolation in you, in all our affliction and necessity through your faith.

8 For now are we alive, if ye stand fast in the Lord.

9 For what thanks can we recompense to God again for you, for al the joy wherewith we rejoyce for your sakes before our God,

10 Night and day, * praying exceedingly that we might see your face, and might accomplish that which is lacking in your faith?

11 Now God himselfe, even our Father, and our Lord Jesus Christ, guid our journey unto you.

12 And the Lord increase you, and make you abound in love one toward another, and toward all men, even as we doe toward you:

13 To make your hearts stable and unblameable in holines before God even our Father, at the comming of our Lord Jesus Christ with all his Saints.

CHAP. IV.

1 He exhorteth them, 3 to holinesse, 9 and brotherly love.

13 He forbiddeth them to sorow after the manner of infidels.

15 He setteth out the History of our resurrection.

And furthermore we beseech you, brethren, and exhort you in the Lord Jesus, that ye increase more and more, as ye have received of us, how ye ought to walke, and to please God.

2 For ye know what commandments we gave you by the Lord Jesus.

3 For this is the will of God even your sanctification, and that ye should abstaine from fornication,

4 That every one of you should know, how to possesse his vessell in holinesse and honour,

5 And not in the lust of concupiscence, even as the Gentiles which know not God:

² Another reason, because it defileth the body. ³ The third, because the Saints are discerned from them which know not God by honestie and puritie.

6 That no man oppresse or defraud his brother in any matter: for the Lord is avenger of all such things, as we also have told you before time, and testified.

7 For God hath not called us unto uncleannesse, but unto holinesse.

8 He therefore that despiseth these things, despiseth not man, but God who hath even given you his holy Spirit.

9 But as touching brotherly love, ye need not that I write unto you: for ye are taught of God to love one another.

10 Yea, and that thing verily ye doe unto all the brethren, which are throughout all Macedonia: but we beseech you, brethren, that ye increase more and more,

11 And that ye studie to be quiet, and to meddle with your owne businesse, and to worke with your owne hands, as we commanded you,

12 That ye may behave your selves honestly toward them that are without, and that no thing be lacking unto you.

13 I would not, brethren, have you ignorant concerning them which are asleepe, that ye sorow not even as other which have no hope.

14 For if we beleve that Jesus is dead, and is risen, even so them which sleepe in Jesus, will God bring with him.

15 For this say we unto you by the word of the Lord, that we which live, and are remaining in the comming of the Lord, shall not prevent them which sleepe.

16 For the Lord himselfe shall descend from heaven with a shout, and with the voice of the Archangel, and with the trumpet of God: and the dead in Christ shall rise first:

17 Then shall we which live and remain, bee caught up with them also in the cloudes, to meet the Lord in the aire: and so shall we ever be with the Lord.

18 Wherefore, comfort your selves one another with these words.

¹ Christ, which continue in faith whereby they are grafted into Christ, even to the last glimpse. ² Will call their bodies out of their graves, and reigne their soules to them againe.

⁴ In the Name of the Lord, as though he himselfe spake unto you. ⁵ He speaketh of these things, as though he should be one of them whom the Lord shall finde alive at his comming, because that time is uncertaine: and therefore every one of us ought to be in such a readinesse, as if the Lord were comming at every moment.

⁶ The word which the Apostle useth here, signifieth properly that encouragement which mariners use one to another, when they at together with one shout put forth their oares and row together. ⁷ 1 Cor. 15. 52.

⁸ Suddenly and in the twinkling of an eye.

CHAP. V.

1 Condemning the curious searching for the seasons of Christs comming. 6 he warneth them to be ready daily to receive him: 11 And so giveth them sundry good lessons.

But of the times and seasons, brethren, ye have no need that I write unto you.

2 For ye yourselves know perfectly, that the day of the Lord shall come, even as a thiefe in the night.

³ 1 Cor. 1. 2.

⁴ These commandments which I gave you.

⁵ Thirdly, he requirerh a readie minde to all manner of lovingkindnesse, and exhorteth them to profite more and more in that vertue.

⁶ 1 John. 13. 34. and 15. 12.

⁷ 1 John 2. 8. and 4. 21.

⁸ He condemneth unquiet beaines, and such is curious in matters which appertaine not unto them.

⁹ He rebuketh idlenesse & idleness, which vices whosoever are given unto, fall into other wickednesse, to the great offence of the Church.

¹⁰ The third part of the Epistle, which is interlarded among the former exhortations (which he returneth unto afterward) wherein he speaketh of mourning for the dead, and the manner of the resurrection, and of the latter day.

¹¹ We must take heed that we doe not immoderately bewaile the dead, as they use to doe which thinke that they are utterly perished.

¹² A confirmation: for death is but a sleepe of the body (for he speaketh of the faithful) untill the Lord commeth.

¹³ A reason of the confirmation, for seeing that the head is risen, the members also shall rise, and that by the vertue of God.

¹⁴ They die in

¹⁵ The manner of the resurrection shalbe thus: The bodies of the dead shalbe as it were raised out of sleep at the found of the trumpet of God. Christ himselfe shall descend from heaven. The Saints (for he speaketh properly of them) which shall then be found alive, together with the dead which shall rise, shall be taken up into the clouds to meet the Lord, and shalbe in perpetuall glory with him.

¹⁶ In the Name of the Lord, as though he himselfe spake unto you.

¹⁹ 1 Cor. 15. 52.

²⁰ Suddenly and in the twinkling of an eye.

²¹ The day that God hath appointed for his judgement, we know not. But this is sure that it shall come upon men when they looke for nothing lesse.

²² Look 1 John. 17. 17

²³ Another reason, because it defileth the body.

²⁴ The third, because the Saints are discerned from them which know not God by honestie and puritie.

3 For when they ſhall ſay, Peace and ſafetie, then ſhall come upon them ſudden de-ſtruction, as the travail upon a woman with child, and they ſhall not eſcape.

4 ² But ye, brethren, are not in darkneſſe, that that day ſhall come on you, as it were a thief.

5 Ye are all the children of light, and the children of the day: we are not of the night, neither of darkneſſe.

6 Therefore let us not ſleep as do other, but let us watch and be ſober.

7 For they that ſleep, ſleep in the night, and they that be drunken, are drunken in the night.

8 ³ But let us which are of the day, be ſober, * putting on the breſtplate of faith and love, and the hope of ſalvation for an helmet.

9 ⁴ For God hath not appointed us unto wrath, but to obtain ſalvation by the means of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt,

10 ⁵ Which died for us, that whether we wake or ſleep, we ſhould live together with him.

11 ⁶ Wherefore exhort one another, and edify one another, even as ye do.

12 ⁷ Now we beſeech you, brethren, that ye ^b acknowledge them which labour
among you, and are over you in the ^c Lord,

THE SECOND EPISTLE OF PAUL TO THE THESS- SALONIANS.

CHAP. I.

3 He commendeth the increaſe of faith, and charitie, 4 and the patience of the Theſſalonians: 6 and deſcribing Gods vengeance againſt ſuch as oppreſſe the godly, 10 he teacheth the godly to wait for the laſt judgement.

Aul and Silvanus, and Timotheus, unto the Church of the Theſſalonians, which is in God our Father, and in the Lord
Jeſus Chriſt:

2 Grace be with you, and peace from God our father, and from the Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

3 ^{*} We ought to thank God adwayes for you, brethren, as it is meet, becauſe that your faith ^a groweth exceedingly, and the love of every one of you toward another aboundeth,

4 So that we our ſelves rejoyce of you in the Churches of God, becauſe of your patience and faith in all your perſecutions and tribulations that ye ſuffer.

5 ^{*} Which ^{is} a manifeſt token of the righteous judgement of God, that ye may be counted worthy of the Kingdom of God, for the which ye alſo ſuffer.

* Jude 6. 2 He openeth the fountain of al true comfort, to wit, ^y in afflictions which we ſuffer of the wicked for righteousneſſe ſake. we may behold as it were in a glaſſe ^y teſtimonie of ^y judgement to come, & ^y end thereof moſt acceptable to us, & moſt charge to his enemies.

3 A profe: God is just, therefore he will worthily punish the unjust, and will do away the miseries of his people.

4 He confirmeth them also by the way, by this means that the condition both of this present state and the state to come, is common to him with them.

* 1 Thes. 4. 16.

5 A most glorious description of the second coming of Christ, to be let against all the miseries of the godly, & the triumphs of the wicked.

6 There is no knowledge of God unto salvation, without the Gospel of Christ.

7 The children of God shall be counted by the faith which they have in the Gospel, which is preached unto them by the Apostles.

8 Seeing that we have the mark set before us, it remaineth that we go unto it. And we go to it, by certain degrees of causes: first by the free love and good pleasure of God, by virtue whereof all other inferior causes work: from thence proceedeth the free calling to Christ, and from calling, faith, whereupon followeth both the glorifying of Christ in us, and us in Christ.

9 By (calling) he meaneth not the very act of calling, but that self same thing whereunto we are called, which is the glory of that heavenly Kingdom. Which he determined long since, only upon his gracious and merciful goodness toward you. d So then, faith is an excellent work of God in us: and we see here plainly that the Apostle leaveth nothing to free will, to make us disagree with Gods working therein, as the Papists dream.

CHAP. II.

2 He sheweth that the day of the Lord shall not come till there be a departure from the faith, 3 and that Antichrist be revealed, 8 whose destruction he setteth out, 15 and thereupon exhorteth to constancy.

NOW we beseech you, brethren, by the comming of our Lord Jesus Christ, and by our assembling unto him,

2 That ye be not suddenly moved from your mind, nor troubled, neither by spirit, nor by word, nor by letter, as it were from us, as though the day of Christ were at hand.

3 Let no man deceive you by any means: for that day shall not come, except there come a departing first, and that that man of sin be disclosed, even the son of perdition:

4 Which is an adverfariie, and exalteth himself against all that is called God, or that is worshipped: so that he doth sit as God in the Temple of God, shewing himself that he is God.

5 Remember ye not, that when I was a If we think earnestly upon that unmeasurable glory, which we shall be partakers of with Christ, it will be an excellent remedy for us against wavering and impatience, so that neither the glorying of the world shall allure us, nor the dreadful fight of the crosse dismay us.

1 The second part of the epistle, containing an excellent prophetic of the state of the Church, which shall be from the Apostles time unto the latter day of judgement.

2 We must take heed of false Prophets, specially in this matter, which go about to deceive, and that for the most part after three sorts: for either they brag of fained propheticall revelations, or they bring conjectures and reasons of their own, or use counterfeit wittings.

b By dreams and fables, which men pretend to be spirittuall revelations. c Either by word of mouth, or by books written.

d Either by forged letter, or falsly glossed upon. 3 The Apostle foretelleth that before the comming of the Lord, there shall be a throne set up cleane contrary to Christs glory, where in that wicked man shall sit, and transerre all things that appertin to God, to himself, and many shall fall away from God to him.

e All men speaking of one, he pointeth out the body of the tyrannous and persecuting Church. f All men know who he is that sayth he can shut up heaven and open it at his pleasure, and took upon him to be Lord and Master above all Kings and Princes, before whom Kings and Princes fall down and worship, knowing that Antichrist as a god.

4 He foretelleth that Antichrist (that is, whosoever he be) shall occupie that seat that falleth away from God, shall not reigne without the Church, but in the very bosom of the Church. 5 This prophetic was continually declared to the ancient Church, but it was neglected of them that followed.

yet with you, I told you these things?

6 And now ye know what withholdeth, that he might be revealed in his time.

7 For the myserie of iniquitie doeth already work: only he which now withholdeth, shall let till he be taken out of the way.

8 And then shall that wicked man be revealed, whom the Lord shall consume with the Spirit of his mouth, and shall abolish with the brightness of his comming;

9 Even him whole comming is by the effectual working of Satan, with all power, and signes, and lying wonders,

10 And in all deceivablenesse of unrighteousnesse, among them that perish, because they received not the love of the truth, that they might be saved.

11 And therefore God shall send them a strong delusion, that they should beleieve lyes:

12 That all they might be damned which beleaved not the truth, but had pleasure in unrighteousnesse.

13 But we ought to give thanks alway to God for you, brethren, beloved of the Lord, because that God hath from the beginning chosen you to salvation, through sanctification of the Spirit, and the faith of truth, 14 Whereunto he called you by our Gospel, to obtain the glory of our Lord Jesus Christ.

15 Therefore, brethren, stand fast, and keep the instructions, which ye have been taught, either by word, or by our Epistle.

16 Now the same Jesus Christ our Lord, and our God, even the Father, which hath loved us, and hath given us everlasting consolation, and good hope through grace, 17 Comfort your hearts, and stablish you in every word and good work.

madnesse that may be. 10 The elect shall stand steadfast and safe from all their mischiefs, now election is known by these testimonies: faith is gathered by sanctification: faith, by that that we accord unto the truth: truth by calling, through the preaching of the Gospel: from whence we come at length to a certain hope of glorification.

q Faith which layeth hold not upon lies, but upon the truth of God, which is the Gospel. r To sanctifie you.

11 The conclusion: It remaineth then that we continue in the doctrine which was delivered unto us by the mouth and writings of the Apostles, through that free good will of God, which comforteth us with an invincible hope, and also in all godliness of our whole life long.

CHAP. III.

1 He desireth them to further the preaching of the Gospel with their prayers, 6 and to withdraw themselves from those, who through idleness, 11 and curiositie pervert good order:

14 Whom he excludeth from the company of the faithful.

FURTHERMORE, brethren, pray for us, that the word of the Lord may have free passage and be glorified, even as it is with you,

2 And that we may be delivered from free passage of the Gospel, and for the safety of the faithful ministers of the same, * Ephes. 6. 19. Colos. 4. 3.

g What hindereth and stayeth.

6 Even in the Apostles time the first foundation of the Apostolicall seat were laid, but yet so that they deceived men.

7 He foretelleth, that when the empire of Rome is taken away, the seat that falleth away from God, shall succeed and hold his place, as the old writers, Tertullian, Chrysostome and Hierome do expound it.

h He which is now in authority, and ruleth all, to wit, the Romane Empire.

8 That wickednesse shall at length be detected by the word of the Lord, and shall utterly be abolished by Christs comming.

i Word for word, that lawlesse fellow that is to say, he that shall tread Gods Law down under foot.

* Esai. 11. 4.

k Bring to nought.

l With his word, for the true Ministers of the word are as a mouth, whereby the Lord breatheth out that mighty and everlasting word, which shall break his enemies in sunder, as it were an iron rod.

9 He foretelleth, that Satan will bestow all his might and power, and use all false miracles that he can to establish that seat, & that with great successe because the wickednesse of the world doeth so deserve it: yet so that onely the unfaithfull shall perish through his deceit.

m Which are partly false, and partly wrought to establish a falsehood.

n A most mightie working to deceive them.

o They liked best so well, that they had pleasure therein, which is the greatest

1 He addeth now consequently according to his manner, divers admonitions: The first of them is, that they make prayers for the increase and safety of the faithful ministers of the same,

^a Which have no care of their duty.

² It is no marvel that the Gospel is hated of so many, seeing that faith is a rare gift of God.

Notwithstanding the Church shall never be destroyed by the multitude of the wicked, because it is grounded & stayed upon the faithful promise of God.

^b From Satans snares, or from evil.

³ The second admonition is, that they follow alwayes the doctrine of the Apostles as a rule for their life.

⁵ Fourthly, he faith, that idle and lazie persons ought not to be relieved of the Church, nay, that they are not to be suffered.

⁶ Left he might seem to deal hardly with them, he setteth forth himself for an example, who besides his travaile in preaching, laboured with his hands, which he sayth he was not simply bound to doe.

⁷ 1 Corin. 11.

⁸ 1 Thess. 4. 11.

⁹ What shall we doe then with those idle bellied Monkes, and sacrificing Priests? A Monke (sayth Sacratas, book 8. of his Tripartite Inſtitutio) which worketh not with his hands, is like a thief.

^a unreasonable and evill men : ² for all men have not faith.

³ But the Lord is faithfull, which will stablish you, and keep you from ^b evill.

⁴ ³ And we are perswaded of you through the Lord, that ye both do, and will do the things which we warne you of.

⁵ ⁴ And the Lord guid your hearts to the love of God, and the waiting for of Christ.

⁶ ⁵ We warn you, brethren, in the Name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that ye withdraw your selves from every brother that walketh inordinately, and not after the instruction which he received of us.

⁷ ⁶ For ye your selves know, ^{} how ye ought to follow us : ^{} for we behaved not our selves inordinately among you,

⁸ Neither tooke we bread of any man for nought : but we wrought with labour and travail night & day, because we would not be chargeable to any of you.

⁹ Not because we have not authoritie, but that we might make our selves an example unto you to follow us.

¹⁰ For even when we were with you, this we warned you of, that if there were any which would not work, that he should ^c not eat.

¹² ⁹ Therefore them that are such, we warn and exhort by our Lord Jesus Christ, that they work with quietnesse, and eat their own bread.

¹³ ¹⁰ And ye, brethren, be not wearie in well doing.

¹⁴ ¹¹ If any man obey not this our saying in this letter, note him, and have no ¹² companie with him, ¹³ that he may be ashamed :

¹⁵ ¹⁴ Yet count him not as an enemy, but admonish him as a brother.

¹⁶ ¹⁵ Now the Lord himself of peace give you peace alwayes by all means. The Lord ^{be} with you all.

¹⁷ ¹⁶ The salutation of me Paul, with mine own hand, which is the token in every Epistle : so I write, ¹⁸ The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ ^{be} with you all, Amen.

¶ The second Epistle to the Thessalonians, written from Athens.

⁷ How great a fault idlenesse is, he declareth by that, that God created no man in vain, or to no purpose, neither is there any unto whom he hath not allotted, as it were a certain standing and room. Whereupon it followeth, that the order which God hath appointed, is troubled by the idle, yea broken, which is greivous and wickednesse.

⁹ The Lord commandeth, and the Apostles pray in the Name of Christ, first, that no man be idle, and next, that every man doe quietly and carefully see to do his dutie in that office and calling wherein the Lord hath placed him.

¹⁰ We must take heed, that some mens unworthinesse cause us not to be slacke in well doing.

¹¹ Excommunication is a punishment for the obstinate.

¹² We must have no familiaritie nor fellowship with the excommunicate.

¹³ The end of excommunication is not the destruction, but the salvation of the sinner, that at least through shame he may be driven to repentance.

¹⁵ Prayers are the feales of all exhortations.

¹⁶ The Apostle subſcribeth his letter with his own hand, that false letters might not be brought and put in place of true.

THE FIRST EPISTLE OF PAUL TO TIMOTHY. THE V. S.

CHAP. I.

Setting forth a perfect patterne of a true Pastour, whose office especially consisteth in teaching. ⁴ he warneth him that vain questions set apart, he teach these things, ⁵ which further charitie and faith : ¹² and that his authoritie be not condemned. ¹⁴ he sheweth what an one he is made through the grace of God.

¹ First of all, he avoucheth his own free vocation and also Timotheus, that the one might be confirmed by the other: and therewithall he declareth the sum of the Apostollicall doctrine, to wit, the mercie of God in Christ Jesus, apprehended by faith, the end whereof is yet hoped for.

² Or, ordinance.

³ There is as much difference betwixt mercie and grace, as is betwixt the effect and the cause: for grace is that free good will of God, whereby he chooseth us in Christ, and mercie is that free justification which followeth in

PAUL an Apostle of Jesus Christ, by the [†] commandement of God our Saviour, and of our Lord Jesus Christ our hope :

² Unto Timotheus my naturall son in the faith : Grace, ^{*} mercy, and peace from God our Father, and from Christ Jesus our Lord.

³ ² As I besought thee to abide still in Ephesus, when I departed into Macedonia, ^{so} doe, that thou mayest warne some, that they teach none other doctrine,

⁵ ⁴ For ^{*} the end of the ^c commandement is ^d love out of a pure heart, and of a good conscience, and of faith unfained :

⁶ ⁵ From the which things some have erred, and have turned unto vaine jangling.

⁷ ⁶ The second admonition is, that the right use and practise of the doctrine must be joyined with the doctrine. And that consisteth in pure charitie, & a good conscience, and true faith.

⁸ ⁷ There is neither love without a good conscience, nor a good conscience without faith, nor faith without the word of God.

⁹ That which he spake before generally of vain and curious controversies, he applyeth to them which pretending a zeal of the Law, dwelled upon outward things, and never made an end of babbling of foolish trifles.

² This whole Epistle consisteth in admonitions, wherein all the duties of a faithful Pastour are lively set out. And the first admonition is this, that no innovation be made either in the Apostles doctrine it self, or in [†] manner of teaching it.

³ The doctrine is corrupted not only by false opinions, but also by vain and curious speculations : the declaration whereof can nothing help our faith.

⁴ He noteth out one kind of vain questions.

⁵ The end of the doctrine must be joyined with the doctrine. And that consisteth in pure charitie, & a good conscience, and true faith.

⁶ There is neither love without a good conscience, nor a good conscience without faith, nor faith without the word of God.

⁷ That which he spake before generally of vain and curious controversies, he applyeth to them which pretending a zeal of the Law, dwelled upon outward things, and never made an end of babbling of foolish trifles.

⁸ The second admonition is, that the right use and practise of the doctrine must be joyined with the doctrine. And that consisteth in pure charitie, & a good conscience, and true faith.

⁹ There is neither love without a good conscience, nor a good conscience without faith, nor faith without the word of God.

¹⁰ That which he spake before generally of vain and curious controversies, he applyeth to them which pretending a zeal of the Law, dwelled upon outward things, and never made an end of babbling of foolish trifles.

¹¹ The Apostle subſcribeth his letter with his own hand, that false letters might not be brought and put in place of true.

¹² We must take heed, that some mens unworthinesse cause us not to be slacke in well doing.

¹³ Excommunication is a punishment for the obstinate.

¹⁴ We must have no familiaritie nor fellowship with the excommunicate.

¹⁵ The end of excommunication is not the destruction, but the salvation of the sinner, that at least through shame he may be driven to repentance.

¹⁶ We must to elchew familiaritie with the excommunicate, that we diligently seek all occasions and means that may be to bring them again into the right way.

²⁹ The Apostle subſcribeth his letter with his own hand, that false letters might not be brought and put in place of true.

³⁰ The Apostle subſcribeth his letter with his own hand, that false letters might not be brought and put in place of true.

6 There are none more unlearned, and more impudent in usurping the name of holiness, then foolish sophistical babblers.

7 The taking away of an objection: He condemneth not the Law, but requireth the right use and practice of it.

8 He indeed expareth the curse of the Law, and therefore doeth not abhorre it, who fleeing and eschewing those things which the Law condemneth, giveth himselfe with all his heart, to observe it: and not he that maketh a vaine babbling of outward and curious matters.

9 And such a one is he, whom the Lord hath endued with true doctrine, and with the holy Ghost. f To such as make an art, as it were, of sinning.

10 He setteth against fond and vain babbling, not onely the Law, but the Gospell also, which condemneth not, but greatly commendeth the wholesome doctrine contained in the commandments of God, and therefore he calleth it a glorious Gospell, and the Gospell of the blessed God, the vertue whereof these babblers knew not.

11 A reason why neither any other Gospell is to bee taught then he hath taught in the Church, neither stir any other fort, because there is no other Gospell beside that, which God committed to him.

12 He maintaineth of necessity his Apostleship against some that did carp at his former life, defaming himselfe even to hell, to advance Christs onely mercie, wherewith he abolished all those his former doings, which gave mee strength, not onely when I had no will to doe well, but also when I was wilfully given to evil.

13 These are the preparative works which Paul braggeth of.

14 He proveth this change by the effects, for that, he that was a profane man, is become a beleever: and he that did most outrageously persecute Christ, burneth now in love toward him. 13 He turneth the reproch of the adversaries upon their own head, shewing that this singular example of the goodnesse of God, redoundeth to the commoditie of the whole Church. i Worthy to be believed. * Mat. 9. 13. Mark 2. 17. 14 He breaketh out into an exclamation, even for very zeale of mind, for that he cannot satisfie himselfe in amplifying the grace of God. k Look Iohn 17. 3. 15 The conclusion of both the former fatherly admonitions, to wit, that Timothee striving manfully against all lets, being called to the ministry according to many prophecies which went before of him, should both maintain the doctrine which he had received, and keep also a good conscience. l By the help of them. m Wholesome and sound doctrine. 16 Whosoever keep not a good conscience, do lose also by little and little, the gift of understanding: which he proveth by two most lamentable examples. * 1 Cor. 5. 5. 17 Such as fall from God, and his religion, are not to be suffered in the Church, but rather ought to be excommunicated. n Cast out of the Church, and so delivered them to Satan. o That by their smart they might learne what is to be shunned.

7 They would be doctors of the Law, and yet understand not what they speake, neither whereof they affirm.

8 And we know, that the Law is good; if a man use it lawfully.

9 Knowing this, that the Law is not given unto a righteous man, but unto the lawlesse and disobedient, to the ungodly, and to sinners, to the unholy, and to the profane, to murderers of fathers and mothers, to manslayers,

10 To whoremongers, to buggerers, to menstealers, to lyars, to the perjured, and if there be any other thing, that is contrary to wholesome doctrine, 11 Which is according to the glorious Gospell of the blessed God, which is committed unto me.

12 Therefore I thank him, which hath made me strong, that is, Christ Jesus our Lord: for he counted me faithfull, and put me in his service, 13 When before I was a blasphemers, and a persecuter, and an oppressor: but I was received to mercy: for I did it ignorantly through unbelief.

14 But the grace of our Lord was exceeding abundant with faith and love, which is in Christ Jesus.

15 This is a true saying, and by all means worthy to be received, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners of whom I am chief.

16 Notwithstanding for this cause was I received to mercy, that Jesus Christ should first shew on me all long suffering unto the ensample of them, which shall in time to come beleeve in him unto eternall life.

17 Now unto the King everlasting, immortall, invisable, unto God only wife, be honour, and glory, for ever and ever; Amen.

18 This Commandement commit I unto thee, son Timotheus, according to the prophecies, which went before upon thee, that thou by them shouldest fight a good fight, 19 Having faith and a good conscience, which some have put away, and as concerning faith, have made shipwrack.

20 Of whom is Hymeneus, and Alexander, whom I have delivered unto Satan, that they might learn not to blaspheme.

C H A P. II.

1 Hee exhorteth them to make publicke prayers for all men, 4. 5. and that for two causes. 8 And therefore be willeth, all men in all places to pray. 9 And declareth in what apparell. 11 and with what modesty, women ought to behave themselves in holy assemblies.

1 Exhort therefore, that first of all, supplications, prayers, intercessions, and giving of thanks be made for all men;

2 For Kings, and for all that are in authority, that we may lead a quiet and a peaceable life, in all godlinesse, and honesty:

3 For this is good and acceptable in the sight of God our Saviour, 4 Who will that all men shall be saved, and come unto the acknowledging of the truth.

5 For there is one God, and one Mediatour between God and man, which is the man Christ Jesus, 6 Who gave himself a ranfome for all men, to be that testimony in due time.

7 Whereunto I am ordained a Preacher and an Apostle (I speake the truth in Christ, and lie not) even a Teacher of the Gentiles in faith and verity, 8 I will therefore that the men pray, every where lifting up pure hands without wrath, or doubting.

9 Likewise also the women, that they aray themselves in comely apparell, with shamefastnesse and modesty, not with broided hair, or gold, or pearles, or costly apparell.

10 But (as becommeth women that profess the fear of God) with good works.

11 Let the woman learn in silence with all subjection.

12 I permit not a woman to teach, neither to usurpe authority over the man, but to be in silence.

13 For Adam was first formed; then Eve.

14 And Adam was not deceived, but the woman was deceived, and was in the transgression.

15 Notwithstanding, through bearing of children she shall be saved, if they continue in faith, and love, and holinesse with modesty.

attour between God & all sorts of men, by having taken upon him his nature, of man which is common to all men, unless he had satisfied for all sorts of men, and made intercession for all. b Christ Jesus which was made man. 5 A confirmation because that even to the Gentiles is y secret of salvation now opened & made manifest. 6 Apostle himself being appointed properly to this office, which he doth faithfully & sincerely execute. * 2 Tim. 1. 11. c Faithfully & sincerely: & by faith he meaneth wholesom & sound doctrine, & by truth, an upright and sincere handling of it. 6 He hath spoken of the persons for whom we must pray: and now he teacheth that the difference of places is taken away: for in times past, one only nation, and in one certain place, came together to publick services but now Churches or Congregations are gathered together every where, (orderly and decently) & men come together to serve God publicly with common prayer, neither must we strive for the nation, or for the purification of the body, or for the place, but for the mind to have it clean from all offence, and full of sure trust and confidence. d He putteth the signe for the thing it self, the lifting up of hands for the calling upon God. e Without these griefs and offences of the mind, which hinder us from calling upon God with a good conscience. f Doubting, which is against faith, 1 James, 1. 6. * 1 Pet. 3. 3. 7 Thirdly, he appointeth women to learn in the publick assemblies with silence and modesty, being comely apparelled, without any riot or excess in their apparell. * 1 Cor. 14. 34. 8 The first argument, why it is not lawfull for women to teach in the Congregation, because by this means, they should be placed above men; for they should be their masters: which is against Gods ordinance. 9 He proveth this ordinance of God, whereby the woman is subject to the man, by that that God made the woman after man, for mans sake. * Gen. 1. 27. & 2. 7. 21. * Gen. 3. 6. 10 Then, because after sin, God enjoyned the woman this punishment, for y the man was deceived by her. g Adam was deceived, but through his wives means, and therefore she is justly for this cause subject to her husband, and ought to be. 11 He addeth a comfort by the way, that their subjection hindreth not but that women may be saved as well as men, if they behave themselves in those burdens of marriage holily and modestly, with faith and charity.

1 Having dispatched those things, which pertaine to doctrine, he speaketh now in the second place of the ministerie of the word, to wit, of publicke prayers. And first of all, declaring this question, for whom we ought to pray: he teacheth that we must pray for all men, and especially for all manner of Magistrates; which thing was at that time somewhat doubted of, seeing that Kings, yea, and the most part of Magistrates, were at that time enemies of the Church.

2 An argument taken of the end: to wit, because that magistrates are appointed to this end, y men might peaceably and quietly live in all godlinesse and honesty, and therefore we must commend them especially to God: that they may faithfully execute so necessary an office.

3 Another argument, why Churches or Congregations ought to pray for all men, without any difference of nation, kind, age, or order: to wit, because the Lord by calling of all sorts, yea sometime those that are greatest enemies to the Gospell, will have his Church gathered together after this sort, and therefore prayers to be made for all.

4 God should not else be manifested to bee the onely God of all men, unless hee should shew his goodnesse in saving of all sorts of men: neither should Christ be seeme to be the onely Mediator between God & all sorts of men, by having taken upon him his nature, of man which is common to all men, unless he had satisfied for all sorts of men, and made intercession for all. b Christ Jesus which was made man. 5 A confirmation because that even to the Gentiles is y secret of salvation now opened & made manifest. 6 Apostle himself being appointed properly to this office, which he doth faithfully & sincerely execute. * 2 Tim. 1. 11. c Faithfully & sincerely: & by faith he meaneth wholesom & sound doctrine, & by truth, an upright and sincere handling of it. 6 He hath spoken of the persons for whom we must pray: and now he teacheth that the difference of places is taken away: for in times past, one only nation, and in one certain place, came together to publick services but now Churches or Congregations are gathered together every where, (orderly and decently) & men come together to serve God publicly with common prayer, neither must we strive for the nation, or for the purification of the body, or for the place, but for the mind to have it clean from all offence, and full of sure trust and confidence. d He putteth the signe for the thing it self, the lifting up of hands for the calling upon God. e Without these griefs and offences of the mind, which hinder us from calling upon God with a good conscience. f Doubting, which is against faith, 1 James, 1. 6. * 1 Pet. 3. 3. 7 Thirdly, he appointeth women to learn in the publick assemblies with silence and modesty, being comely apparelled, without any riot or excess in their apparell. * 1 Cor. 14. 34. 8 The first argument, why it is not lawfull for women to teach in the Congregation, because by this means, they should be placed above men; for they should be their masters: which is against Gods ordinance. 9 He proveth this ordinance of God, whereby the woman is subject to the man, by that that God made the woman after man, for mans sake. * Gen. 1. 27. & 2. 7. 21. * Gen. 3. 6. 10 Then, because after sin, God enjoyned the woman this punishment, for y the man was deceived by her. g Adam was deceived, but through his wives means, and therefore she is justly for this cause subject to her husband, and ought to be. 11 He addeth a comfort by the way, that their subjection hindreth not but that women may be saved as well as men, if they behave themselves in those burdens of marriage holily and modestly, with faith and charity.

C H A P.

C H A P. III.

He setteth out Bishops, 8 and Christian Deacons, with their wives, 12 children and family: 15 he calleth the Church the house of God.

THis is a true saying, If any man desire the office of a Bishop, he desireth a worthy work.

2 * A Bishop therefore must be unreprouvable, the husband of one wife, watching, temperate, modest, harberous, apt to teach,

3 Not given to wine, no striker, not given to filthy lucre, but gentle, no fighter, not covetous,

4 One that can rule his owne house honestly, having children under obedience with all honesty:

5 For if any cannot rule his own house, how shall he care for the Church of God?

6 He may not be a young scholler, lest he being puffed up fall into the condemnation of the devill.

7 He must also be well reported of, even of them which are without, lest he fall into rebuke, and the snare of the devill.

8 Likewise must Deacons be grave, not double tongued, not given unto much wine, neither to filthy lucre.

9 * Having, the mysterie of the faith in pure conscience.

10 And let them first be proved: then let them minister, if they be found blamelesse.

11 Likewise their wives must be honest, not evil speakers, but sober, and faithfull in all things.

12 Let the Deacons be the husbands of one wife, and such as can rule their children well, and their own households.

13 For they that have ministered well, get themselves a good degree, and great liberty in the faith, which is in Christ Jesus.

14 These things write I unto thee, trusting to come very shortly unto thee.

15 But if I tary long, that thou mayest yet know, how thou oughtest to behave thy self in the house of God, which is the Church of the living God, the pillar and ground of truth.

16 And without controversie, great is the mystery of godlineffe, which is, God is manifested in the flesh, justified in the Spirit, seen of Angels, preached unto the Gen-

1 Having dispatched the Treatise, as well of doctrine and of the manner of handling of it, as also of publicke prayer, he now in the third place commeth to the persons themselves, speaking first of Pastors, and afterward, of Deacons, and he useth a Preface, that the Church may know that these be certaine and sure rules.

2 A Bishoprick, or the ministerie of the word is not an idle dignitie, but a worke, and that an excellent worke, and therefore a Bishop must be furnished with many vertues both at home and abroad. Wherefore it is requisite before he be chosen, to examine well his learning, his gifts, and ablenesse, and his life.

a Hee speaketh not here of ambitious seeking, then the which there cannot be a worse fault in the Church, but generally of the minde and disposition of man, framed and disposed to helpe and edifie the Church of God, when, and wheresoever it shall please the Lord.

* Titus 2. 6. b Therefore he that spinneth out married men from the office of Bishops, only because they are married in Antichrist.

c A common tippler, and one that will sit by it.

d Lest by reason that hee is advanced to that degree, he take occasion to be proud, which will undoe him, and so he fall into the same condemnation that the devill himselfe is fallen into.

3 Likewise the Deacons must first be proved, that there may be a good trial of their honesty, truth, sobriety, mind void of covetousnesse, that they are well instructed in the doctrine of faith, and to be short, of their good conscience and integrity.

* Chap. 1. 19.

f The doctrine of the Gospel, which is a mystery indeed: for flesh and blood doe not reveale it.

g They that have more wives then one at one time, must neither be called to be Ministers, nor to be Deacons.

h Honour and estimation.

i Bold and assured confidence without feare.

j Paul purposing to adde many peculiar things pertaining to the daily office of a Pastour, speaketh first a word or two concerning his coming to Timothee, that he should be so much the more carefull, lest at his coming he might be reprooved of negligence.

k The Pastour hath alwayes to thinke, how that he is occupied in the house of the living God, wherein the treasure of the truth is kept.

l To wit, in respect of men: for the Church resteth upon the corner Stone, Christ, and is the preserver of the truth, but not the mother.

m There is nothing more excellent then this truth, whereof the Church is the keeper and preserver here among men, the ministerie of the word being appointed to that end and purpose: for it teacheth us the greatest matters that may be thought of, to wit, that God is become visible in the person of Christ by taking our nature upon him, whose Majestie notwithstanding in so great weaknesse was manifested many wayes, inasmuch that the light of it pierced the very Angels, and to conclude, he being preached unto the Gentiles, was received of them, and is now placed above in glory unspeakable.

n The power of the Godhead shewed it selfe so marvellously in that weaknesse of Christ, that though he were a weak man, yet all the world knoweth he was, and is God.

o These are they that had to see to the poore.

p Regard must be had also, to the Pastours and Deacons wives.

q Bold and assured confidence without feare.

r The power of the Godhead shewed it selfe so marvellously in that weaknesse of Christ, that though he were a weak man, yet all the world knoweth he was, and is God.

tiles, beleevd on in the world, and received up in glory.

C H A P. IV.

1 Hee condemneth aswell false doctrines, 3 of marriage and the choice of meates, 7 as also prophane fables: 8 And commendeth the godly exercise, 13 and the daily reading of the Scripture.

Now the Spirit speaketh evidently, that in the latter times some shall depart from the faith, and shall give heed unto spirits of error, and doctrines of devils,

2 Which speake lies through hypocrisie, and have their consciences burned with an hote yron,

3 Forbidding to marry, and commanding to abstaine from meates which God hath created to be received with giving thanks of them which beleve and know the truth.

4 For every creature of God is good, and nothing ought to be refused, if it be received with thanksgiving.

5 For it is sanctified by the word of God, and prayer.

6 If thou put the brethren in remembrance of these things, thou shalt be a good minister of Jesus Christ, which hath been nourished up in the words of faith, and of good doctrine, which thou hast continually followed.

7 But cast away profane, and old wives fables, and exercise thy selfe unto godlineffe.

8 For bodily exercise profiteth little: but godlineffe is profitable unto all things, which hath the promise of the life present, and of that that is to come.

9 This is a true saying, and by all means worthy to be received.

10 For therefore we labour and are rebuked, because we trust in the living God, which is the Saviour of all men, specially of those that beleve.

11 These things warn and teach.

12 Let no man despise thy youth, but be unto them that beleve, an ensample, in word, in conversation, in love, in spirit, in faith, and in purenesse.

of his glory, who will be honoured in the use of them. And herewithall, the Apostle declareth, that we must use the liberality of God, soberly, and with a good conscience.

7 He setteth an Apostolical rule, for taking away the difference of meates, against that false doctrine.

8 He useth Gods benefits rightly, which acknowledgeth the giver of them by his word, and calleth upon him.

d It is made pure and holy in respect of us, so that we may use it with a good conscience, as received at the Lords hands.

e We confesse and acknowledge that God is the maker and giver of these creatures which we use.

f Secondly, that we are of the number of those, who through Christs benefits have recovered that right over all creatures, which Adams lost by his fall.

g Thirdly, by our prayers we crave of the Lord, that we may use those meates with a good conscience, which we receive at his hands.

h Fourthly, we make an end of our eating and drinking, with thanksgiving and prayer: and so are our meates sanctified to us.

i The conclusion with an exhortation to Timothee, to propound these things diligently to the Churches, which he had sucked of the Apostle, even in a manner from the teate.

j Never departing from the side of us, 10 He setteth again true doctrine not only against that false and apostolical doctrine, but also against all vain and curious subtilties.

k It is not only requisite that the Minister of the word be found in doctrine, but also that his life be godly and religious.

l In the true serving of God, 12 Godlineffe consisteth in spirituall exercise, and not in outward austereenesse of life, which though it be something to be accounted of, if it be rightly used, yet it is in no wise comparable with godlinesse.

m For it profiteth not of it self, but through the benefit of another, but this hath promise both of the life present, and of that that is to come.

n He goeth a little from the matter, & sheweth that they which give themselves to godlinesse, although they are afflicted & reproached, are notwithstanding not to be counted miserable, as other men are, because they are not afflicted for that cause that other men are, and the end of them both is farr different one from the other.

o For how can God forsake his, which is bountifull, even toward his enemies? And he willeth that his doctrine be well beaten into their heads.

p Now he returneth to that exhortation, shewing which are the true vertues of a Pastour, whereby he may come to be revered, although he be but young, to wit, such speech and life as are witness of charity, zeale, faith, and purity: but here is no mention made of the srober stiffe, ring, clocke, and such other foolish and childish toys.

13 The private exercise of Pastours, is continually reading of the Scriptures, where-out they may draw water of whole-some doctrine and exhortation, both to themselves and to other.

b Faith is by hearing, and hearing by preaching: & therefore the Ministers of the word are so said to save themselves and others, for that in them the Lord hath put the sword of reformation.

1 Of keeping measure in private reprehensions, according to the degrees of ages and kinds.

2 The Apostle giveth these rules touching the care of widows.

a Have care of those widows which have need of help.

3 Widows children and nephews must take care for their parents according to their ability.

4 The first reason, because that which they bestowed upon theirs, they bestow it upon themselves.

5 Another, because nature it self teacheth us to recompense our parents.

6 The third: because this dutifullness pleaseth God.

7 The second rule. Let the Church have care of such as are widows indeed, that is to say, such as are poore and destitute of help of their own friends, and live godly and religiously.

8 The third rule: Let widows that live in pleasure, and neglect the care of their own familie, be holden and accounted as fallers away from God, and his religion, and worse then very infidels.

9 The fourth rule: Let none under threescore year old, be taken into the number of widows, to serve the Congregations or Churches, and such as are free from all reproach of unchastitie, and are well reported of, for their diligence, charity, and integrity.

b That hath had no more husbands, but one at one time. c This is spoken in respect of the manner of those countries. 10 The first reason, why younger widows are not to be admitted to this ministry, is to wit, because for the lightnes of their ages they will at length shake off the burden that Christ hath laid upon them, and thinke rather upon marrying againe: and so will forsake the ministry whereunto they had bound themselves.

d Take them not into the Colledge of widows. 11 Another reason: because they are for the most part prattlers and busibodies, and gadders up and down, neglecting their charge and duty.

13 ¹⁵ Till I come, give attendance to reading, to exhortation, and to doctrine.

14 Despise not the gift that is in thee, which was given thee by prophecie, with the laying on of the hands of the company of the Eldership.

15 These things exercise, and give thy selfe unto them, that it may be seene how thou profitest among all men.

16 Take heed unto thy selfe, and unto learning: continue therein: for in doing this thou shalt both ^b save thy self, and them that heare thee.

CHAP. V.

1 Having set down a manner how to rebuke all degrees, 3 he intreateth of widows, who then were chosen for the service of the Church: 17 Then he commeth to Elders, 23 and speaketh somewhat touching the health of the body.

Rebuke ^a not an Elder, but exhort him as a Father, and the younger men as brethren,

2 The elder women as Mothers, the younger as sisters, with all purenesse.

3 ^{2a} Honour widowes, which are widowes indeed.

4 ³ But if any widow have children, or nephews, let them learn first to shew godlinesse ^a toward their own house, and ^b to recompense their kinred: ^c for that is an honest thing, and acceptable before God.

5 ⁷ And she that is a widow indeed, and left alone, trusteth in God, and continueth in supplications and prayers night and day.

6 ⁸ But she that liveth in pleasure, is dead while she liveth.

7 These things therefore warn them of, that they may be blamelesse.

8 If there be any that provideth not for his own, and namely for them of his household, he denieth the faith, and is worse then an infidell.

9 ⁹ Let not a widow be taken into the number under threescore yeare old, that hath been the wife of ^b one husband,

10 And well reported of for good works, if she have nourished her children, if she have lodged the strangers, if she have ^c washed the Saints feet, if she have ministered unto them which were in adversity, if she were continually given unto every good work.

11 ¹⁰ But ^d refuse the younger widows: for when they have begun to wax wanton against Christ, they will marry, 12 Having damnation, because they have broken the first faith.

13 ¹¹ And likewise also being idle, they learn to goe about from house to house: yea, they are not onely idle, but also prattlers and busie-bodies, speaking things which are not comely.

14 ¹² I will therefore that the younger women marry, and beare children, and govern the house, and give none occasion to the adversary to speake evill.

15 For certain are already turned back after Satan.

16 ¹³ If any faithfull man or faithfull woman have widows, let them minister unto them, and let not the Church be charged, that there may be sufficient for them that are widows indeed.

17 ¶ ¹⁴ The Elders that rule wel, let them be had in ^a double honour, ^b especially they which labour in the word and doctrine.

18 For the Scripture faith, ^a Thou shalt not muzzle the mouth of the ox that treadeth out the corn: and, ^a The labourer is worthy of his wages.

19 ¹⁵ Against an Elder receive none accusation, but under two or three witnesses.

20 ¹⁶ Them that sinne, rebuke openly, that the rest also may feare.

21 ¶ ¹⁷ I charge thee before God, and the Lord Jesus Christ, and the elect Angels, that thou observe these things without preferring one before another, and do nothing partially.

22 ¹⁸ Lay hands ^b suddenly on no man, nither be partaker of other mens sins: keep thy self pure.

23 ¹⁹ Drink no longer water, but use a little wine for thy stomachs sake, and thine often infirmities.

24 ²⁰ Some mens sins are open before hand, and go before unto judgement: but some mens follow after.

25 ²¹ Likewise also the good works are manifest before-hand, and they that are otherwise, cannot be hid.

in Ecclesiasticall proceedings (especially against the Elders) because God himselfe is there present, and the Lord Jesus Christ with a multitude of Angels. 18 The first rule. Let the minister lay hands suddenly on no man. Let him not be faulty herein, either by favouring any mans folly, or perverse affection: If ought be done otherwise then well of his fellowes, let him keep his conscience pure. ^a As much as in thee lieth, doe not rashly admit any what sever to any Ecclesiasticall function. 19 The sixth rule. Let the Elders have indifferent consideration of their health, in the manner of their diet. 20 Because hypocrites sometimes creep into the ministry, although there be never so great diligence used, the Apostle willett the Pastours not to be troubled therefore, or slack any whit of their diligence in trying and examining, because the Lord hath appointed a time to discover the faults of such men, and it is our parts to take heed that we offend not therein. 21 Another comfort belonging to them, which sometimes are slandered and misreported of.

CHAP. VI.

1 He sheweth the duty of servants: 10 and what a mischievous evil covetousnesse is: 13 and having spoken somewhat of rich men, he once againe forbiddeth Timothy 20 to cumbe himselfe with vain babblings.

Let ^a as many servants as are under the Loke, count their masters worthy of all honour, ^a that the Name of God, and his doctrine be not evill spoken of.

by them, which tooke occasion by the Gospel to trouble the common state. And this is the first rule: Let servants that are come to the faith, and have infidels to their masters, serve them notwithstanding with great fidelity. 2 The reason, left God should seem by the doctrine of the Gospel to stirre up man to rebellion and all wickednesse.

12 The first rule: Let younger widows marry, and govern their houses godly.

13 The sixth rule: Let the faithfull help their widows at their own charges as much as they can, and let not the Congregation be burdened with these expences.

14 Now he giveth rules, and sheweth how he ought to behave himself with the Elders, that is to say, with the Pastours, and such as have the governance in the discipline of the Church, which is president of their company. The first rule. Let the Church or Congregation see unto this especially, as God himself hath commanded, that the Elders that doe their dutie well, be honestly maintained.

e Wee must be more careful for them then for the rest.

f There were two kinds of Elders, the one attended upon the government only, and looked to the manners of the Congregation, the other did beside that attend upon preaching and prayers, to and for the Congregation.

* Deuter. 25.4.

1 Cor. 9.9.

* Matth. 10. 10.

Luke 10.7.

15 The second rule. Let no accusation be admitted against an Elder, but under two or three witnesses.

16 The third rule. Let the Elders be convicted be rebuked openly, that they may be an example to others.

* Chap. 6. 13.

17 The fourth rule. Let sincerity be used without any prejudice or respect of persons 18 The first rule. Let the minister lay hands suddenly on no man.

19 The sixth rule. Let the Elders have indifferent consideration of their health, in the manner of their diet.

20 Because hypocrites sometimes creep into the ministry, although there be never so great diligence used, the Apostle willett the Pastours not to be troubled therefore, or slack any whit of their diligence in trying and examining, because the Lord hath appointed a time to discover the faults of such men, and it is our parts to take heed that we offend not therein.

21 Another comfort belonging to them, which sometimes are slandered and misreported of.

22 Lay hands suddenly on no man, nither be partaker of other mens sins: keep thy self pure.

23 Drink no longer water, but use a little wine for thy stomachs sake, and thine often infirmities.

24 Some mens sins are open before hand, and go before unto judgement: but some mens follow after.

25 Likewise also the good works are manifest before-hand, and they that are otherwise, cannot be hid.

1 He addeth also rules for the servants duty towards their masters: whereupon no doubt there were many questions then moved

And this is the first rule: Let servants that are come to the faith, and have infidels to their masters, serve them notwithstanding with great fidelity.

2 The reason, left God should seem by the doctrine of the Gospel to stirre up man to rebellion and all wickednesse.

3 The second rule: Let not servants that are come to the faith, and have also masters of the same profession and religion, abuse the name of brotherhood, but let them so much the rather obey them.

a Let this be sufficient, that as touching these things which pertain to everlasting life, they are partakers of the same good will and love of God, as their masters themselves are.

4 A generall conclusion, that these things ought not onely to be simply taught, but must with exhortations be diligently beaten into their heads.

5 He condemneth severely, and excommunicateth or casteth out of the Church as proud men, such as content not themselves with Christs doctrine, (that is to say, the doctrine of godlinesse) but wearie both themselves and others, in vain questions, (for all other things are vaine) because they content not themselves in Christs doctrine: and as lying deceivers, because they favour or fount of nothing but vanity: as mad men, because they trouble themselves so much in matters of nothing: as mischievous plagues, for that they cause great contentions, and corrupt mens mindes and judgment: to be short, as prophane and wicked, because they abuse the precious name of godlinesse and religion, to filthy lucre. b Striving about words, and not about matter: and by words he meaneth all those things which have not pitch in them, and whereby we can reape no profit. c Such as we see in those shamelesse Schooles of Popery, which are nothing else but vaine babling and prating. 6 He turneth away fully the name of gaine and lucre, confessing that godlinesse is great gaine, but farre after another sort, to wit, because it bringeth true sufficiency. 7 He mocketh their folly, which doe so greedily gape after fraile things, that they can in no wise be satisfied, and yet notwithstanding they cannot enjoy that exesse. 8 He fraieth Timothy from covetousnesse after another sort, to wit, because it draweth with it an infinite sort of lusts, & those very hurtfull, wherewith covetous men doe torment themselves so farre forth, that in the end they cast away from them their faith and salvation. d Sorrows and grieves do as it were pearce throu the mind of man, and are the harvest and true fruits of covetousnesse. 9 A peculiar exhortation to divers vertues, wherewith it becometh the Pastours especially to be furnished. e Whom the spirit of God ruleth.

2 And they which have believing masters, let them not despise them, because they are brethren, but rather doe service, because they are faithfull, and beloved, and partakers of the benefit. These things teach and exhort.

3 If any man teach otherwise, and consenteth not to the wholesome words of our Lord Jesus Christ, and to the doctrine, which is according to godlinesse,

4 He is putt up and knoweth nothing, but doteth about questions and strife of words, whereof commeth envie, strife, railings, evill surmisings,

5 Froward disputations of men of corrupt mindes, and destitute of the trueth, which thinke that gaine is godlinesse: from such separate thy selfe.

6 But godlinesse is great gain, if a man be content with that he hath.

7 For wee brought nothing into the world, and it is certaine, that we can cary nothing out.

8 Therefore when we have food and raiment, let us therewith be content.

9 For they that will be rich, fall into temptation and snares, and into many foolish and noisome lusts, which drown men in perdition and destruction.

10 For the desire of money is the root of all evill, which while some lusted after, they erred from the faith, and pearced themselves through with many sorrows.

11 But thou, O man of God, flee these things, and follow after righteousness, and corrupt mens mindes and judgment: to be short, as prophane and wicked, because they abuse the precious name of godlinesse and religion, to filthy lucre. b Striving about words, and not about matter: and by words he meaneth all those things which have not pitch in them, and whereby we can reape no profit. c Such as we see in those shamelesse Schooles of Popery, which are nothing else but vaine babling and prating. 6 He turneth away fully the name of gaine and lucre, confessing that godlinesse is great gaine, but farre after another sort, to wit, because it bringeth true sufficiency. 7 He mocketh their folly, which doe so greedily gape after fraile things, that they can in no wise be satisfied, and yet notwithstanding they cannot enjoy that exesse. 8 He fraieth Timothy from covetousnesse after another sort, to wit, because it draweth with it an infinite sort of lusts, & those very hurtfull, wherewith covetous men doe torment themselves so farre forth, that in the end they cast away from them their faith and salvation. d Sorrows and grieves do as it were pearce throu the mind of man, and are the harvest and true fruits of covetousnesse. 9 A peculiar exhortation to divers vertues, wherewith it becometh the Pastours especially to be furnished. e Whom the spirit of God ruleth.

godlines, faith, love, patience, and meeknes.

12 Fight the good fight of faith: lay hold of eternal life, whereunto thou art also called, and hast professed a good profession before many witnesses.

13 I charge thee in the sight of God, who quickeneth all things, and before Jesus Christ, which under Pontius Pilate witnessed a good confession, 14 That thou keep this commandment without spot, and unrebukeable, untill the appearing of our Lord Jesus Christ,

15 Which in due time he shall shew, that is blessed and Prince onely, the King of kings, and Lord of lords:

16 Who onely hath immortality, and dwelleth in the light that none can attaine unto; whom never man saw, neither can see, unto whom be honour and power everlasting, Amen.

17 Charge them that are rich in this world, that they be not high minded, and that they trust not in uncertain riches, but in the living God, (which giveth us abundantly, all things to enjoy.)

18 That they do good, and be rich in good works, and be ready to distribute, and communicate.

19 Laying up in store for themselves a good foundation against the time to come, that they may obtain eternall life.

20 O Timotheus, keep that which is committed unto thee, and avoid profane and vain babling, and oppositions of science falsely so called, 21 Which while some professe, they have erred concerning the faith. Grace be with thee, Amen.

The first epistle to Timotheus, written from Laodicea, which is the chiefest city of Phrygia Pacaciana.

ought to be deeply imprinted in the minds of all Ministers of the word, to wit, that they eschew all vaine babblings of Sophistry, and continue in the simplicity of sincere doctrine. i Not onely in word, but also in countenance and gesture: to be short, what their behaviour was such, that even when they held their peace, they would make men believe, their head were occupied about nothing but high and weighty matters, even then they erred concerning the faith.

* Chap. 5. 21. 10 A most earnest request and charge to observe & keep all the premisses faithfully, with our eyes set upon the coming of Jesus Christ, whose glory we have to set against the vaine glittering of this world, and his power against all the terrors of the wicked.

* Matt. 27. 11. John 18. 37. f He heapeth many words together, to one purpose: namely he couereth the power of God, which if we stick fast unto, we shall not be moved out of our standing.

* Chap. 1. 11. verse 17. 14. & 19. 16. * John 1. 18.

g He addeth for an overplus, as it were, a sharpe admonition to the rich, that they chiefly take heed of two mischiefs, to wit, of pride, & deceitfull hope, against which he setteth three excellent vertues, hope in the living God, liberality towards their neighbour, and gentle conditions.

h In things pertaining to this life, with which these men are compared, which are rich in good works.

* Marke 4. 19. Luke 12. 15.

i He is onely, and that everlasting: for he setteth the fraile nature of riches against G. d.

* Matth. 6. 2. 12 The praise of liberality, by the effects thereof: because it is a true testimony of the Spirit of God which dwelleth in us, and therefore of the salvation that shall be given us.

THE SECOND EPISTLE OF PAUL TO TIMOTHEVS,

CHAP. I.

5 He commendeth Timotheus faith, 6 and exhorteth him to go on faithfully in the charge committed unto him: 8 and that neither for the bonds, 15 nor the revoling of others, he faint. 11 He triumpheth of his Apostleship. 14 He willeth him to have care of the thing committed unto him, 16 and praiseth Onesiphorus.

Paul an Apostle of Jesus Christ, by the will of God, ^a according to the promise of life which is in Christ Jesus, ² To Timotheus my beloved son:

Grace, mercie and peace from God the Father, and from Jesus Christ our Lord.

3 I thanke God, ^{*} whom I serve from mine ^b Elders with pure conscience, that without ceasing I have remembrance of thee in my prayers night and day,

4 Desiring to see thee, mindefull of thy teares, that I may be filled with joy:

5 When I call to remembrance the unfained faith that is in thee, which dwelt first in thy grandmother Lois, and in thy mother Eunice, and am assured that it dwelleth in thee also.

6 ² Wherefore, I put thee in remembrance that thou ^c stirre up the gift of God which is in thee, by the putting on of mine hands:

7 For God hath not given us the spirit of ^d feare, but of power, and of love, and of a sound minde.

8 ³ Be not therefore ashamed of the testimony of our Lord, neither of mee ^e his prisoner: but be partaker of the afflictions of the ^f Gospel, according to the ^g power of God:

9 ⁴ Who hath saved us, and called us with an ^{} holy calling, not according to our ^{} works, but according to his own purpose

^a Sent of God to preach that life, which he promised in Christ Jesus.

¹ The chiefest marke that he shooteth at in this Epistle is to confirme Timotheus to continue constantly, and manfully, even to the end, setting first before him, the great good will he beareth him, and then reckoning up the excellent gifts which God would as it were have to be by inheritance in Timotheus, and his ancestors, which might so much the more make him bound to God.

^b Ab. 22. 3. ^c From Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob: for he speaketh not of Pharisaisme, but of Christianisme.

² He warneth us to set the invincible power of the Spirit, which God hath given us against those flames which may, and do come upon us.

³ The gift of God is as it were a certaine lively flame kindled in our hearts, which the flesh and the devill goe about to put out: and therefore we, on the contrary side, must labour as much as we can to foster and keepe it burning.

^d To persece as thov, and terrifie us, as men whom the Lord will destroy.

³ He proveth that the ignominie or shame of the crosse, is not onely, not to be ashamed of, but also that it is glorious and most honourable: first, because the Gospel, wherefore the godly are afflicted, is the testimonie of Christ: and secondly, because at length the great vertue and power of God appeareth in them.

^e For his sake.

^f The Gospel after a sort is said to be afflicted in them that preach it.

^g Through the power of God.

⁴ He sheweth with how great benefits God hath bound us, to maintaine boldly and constantly his glory which is joynd with our salvation, and reckoneth up the causes of our salvation, to wit, that free and eternall purpose of God, to save us in Christ, which was to come, whereby it should come to passe, that we should at length be freely called of God by the preaching of the Gospel, to Christ the destroyer of death, and author of immortalitie. ^{*} 1 Cor. 1. 2. ^{*} Tim. 3. 5.

and grace, which was ^h given to us through Christ Jesus ⁱ before the ^{*} world was,

10 But is now made manifest by that appearing of our Saviour Jesus Christ, who hath abolished death, and hath brought life and immortalitie unto ^k light through the Gospel, 11 ^{*} 5 Whereunto I am appointed a preacher, and an Apostle, and a teacher of Gentiles.

12 ⁶ For the which cause I also suffer these things, ⁷ but I am not ashamed: for I know whom I have beleevd, and I am perswaded that he is able to keep that which I have committed to him against that day.

13 ^{*} Keep the true paterne of the wholesome words, which thou hast heard of me, in faith and love which is in Christ Jesus.

14 ⁹ That worthy thing, which was committed to thee, keep ¹⁰ through the holy Ghost, which dwelleth in us.

15 ¹¹ This thou knowest, that all they which are in Asia, be turned from me: of which sort are Phygellus and Hermogenes.

16 The Lord give mercie unto the house of Onesiphorus: for he oft refreshed me, and was not ashamed of my chaine, 17 But when he was at Rome, he sought me out very diligently, and found me.

18 The Lord grant unto him, that he may find mercie with the Lord at that day: and in how many things he hath ministred unto me at Ephesus, thou knowest very well.

paterne and shape whereof Timotheus knew in the Apostle. ⁹ An amplification taken of the dignitie of so great a benefit committed to the ministers. ¹⁰ The taking away of an objection. It is an hard thing to doe it, but the spirit of God is mighty, who hath inwardly indued us with his vertue. ¹¹ He preventeth an offence which arose by the meanes of certaine that fell from God, and the religion, and uttereth also their names, that they might be knowne of all men. But he setteth against them the singular faith of one man, that one onely good example might counterpoise and weigh down all evil examples.

CHAP. II.

1 The better to set out perseverance in the Christian warfare, ³ he taketh similitudes ⁴ from souldiers, ⁶ and from husbandmen. ¹⁰ He sheweth that his bonds are for the profit of the Saints: ¹⁵ Then he warneth Timotheus to divide the word of truth aright, ¹⁷ to beware of the examples of the wicked, ²² and to doe all things modestly.

Thou therefore, my son, be strong in the grace that is in Christ Jesus.

2 And what things thou hast heard of they do not keep that worthy thing that is committed unto them, which keep it to themselves, but they rather, which do most freely communicate it with other, to the end that many may be partakers of it, without any mans losse or hinderance

Did 2 me,

^h He saith, that that grace was given us from everlasting, unto which we were predestinate from everlasting. So that the doctrine of foreseene faith & foreseene works, is cleane contrary to the doctrine which preacheth & teacheth the grace of God. ⁱ Before that course of yeares which hath runne on, ever since the beginning of the world. ^{*} Rom. 16. 25. Eph. 1. 4. Col. 1. 16. Titus 1. 2.

^k Hath caused life and immortalitie to appeare. ^{*} 1. Tim. 2. 7. ⁵ That is, the Gospel which the Apostle preached. ⁶ He confirmeth his Apostleship by a strange argument, to wit, because the world could not abide it, and therefore it persecuted him that preached it. ⁷ By setting his own example before us, he sheweth us how it may be, that we shall not be ashamed of the Crosse of Christ, to wit, if we be sure that God both can and will keep the salvation which he hath, as it were, layd up in store by himselfe for us against that day.

⁸ He sheweth wherein he ought to be most constant, to wit, both in the doctrine is selfe, the abridgement whereof is faith and charitie; and next in the manner of teaching it, a lively wherein he ought to be most constant, to wit, both in the doctrine is selfe, the abridgement whereof is faith and charitie; and next in the manner of teaching it, a lively

¹ The conclusion of the former exhortation: which hath also added unto it a declaration, how that they do not keep that worthy thing that is committed unto them, which keep it to themselves, but they rather, which do most freely communicate it with other, to the end that many may be partakers of it, without any mans losse or hinderance

¹ The conclusion of the former exhortation: which hath also added unto it a declaration, how that they do not keep that worthy thing that is committed unto them, which keep it to themselves, but they rather, which do most freely communicate it with other, to the end that many may be partakers of it, without any mans losse or hinderance

^a When many were by, which can beare witness of these things.

² Another admonition: That the ministerie of the word is a spirituall warfare, which no man can so traualle in, that he may please his captain, unless he forgoe and part with all hinderances which might draw him away from it.

⁴ Another similitude, tending to the same end, no man may looke for the harvest, unless he first take paines to plow and sow his ground.

⁵ All these things cannot be understood, and much lesse practised, unless we aske of God, and he give us understanding.

⁶ He confirmeth plainly two principles of our faith, which are always assaulted of heretikes. the one whereof (to wit, that Christ is the true Messias, made man of the seed of David) is the ground of our salvation: and the other is the highest part of it, to wit, that he is risen againe from the dead.

⁷ The taking away of an objection: True it is, that he is kept in prison as an evill doer, yet there is no cause, why therefore some should goe about to derogate credite from his Gospell, seeing that notwithstanding God did blese his ministerie, nay rather, that example of this his captivitie and patience, did fundrie wayes confirme the Church in the hope of a better life.

⁸ The fourth admonition: Wee ought not to contend upon words and questions, which are not onely unprofitable, but also for the most part hurtfull: but rather upon this, how we may frame our selves to all manner of patience, and to die also with Christ (that is so say, for Christs Name) because that is the plaine way to the most glorious life: as contrariwise, the talling away of men can diminish no part of the truth of God although by such meanes they procure most certaine destruction to themselves.

^a Rem. 6. 5. ^b Math. 10. 33. ^c Marke 8. 38.

^d Rom. 3. 31. ^e and 9. 6. ^f Call God to witnesse, or as a Judge: as Moses, 1. of Moses, Samuel, and Paul himselfe did, After 20.

^g The first admonition: A Minister must not be an idle disputer, but a faithfull steward, in dividing aright the word of truth, as to much that he must stop the mouthes of other vaine babblers.

^h By adding nothing to it, neither ever skipping any thing, neither mangling it, nor renting it in sunder, nor wresting of it: but marking diligently what his hearers are able to heare, and what is fit to edifying.

ⁱ Marke with much, and see they creep on no further.

^j He discovereth the subtiltie of Satan, who beginning with these principles, draweth us by little and little to ungodlinesse through the meanes of that wicked and prophane babbling, still creeping on: which he proveth by the horrible example of them that taught, that the resurrection was already past.

me by ^a many witnesses, the same deliver to faithfull men, which shall be able to teach others also.

³ ² Thou therefore suffer affliction as a good souldier of Jesus Christ.

⁴ No man that warreth, entangleth himselfe with the affaires of ^b this life, because he would please him that hath chosen him to be a souldier.

⁵ ³ And if any man also strive for a matterie, he is not crowned, except he strive as he ought to doe.

⁶ ⁴ The husbandman must labour before he receive the fruits.

⁷ ⁵ Consider what I say: and the Lord give thee understanding in all things.

⁸ ⁶ Remember that Jesus Christ, made of the seed of David, was raised againe from the dead, according to my Gospell, ⁹ ⁷ Wherein I suffer trouble as an evill doer, even unto bonds: but the word of God is not bound.

¹⁰ Therefore I suffer all things for the elects sake, that they might also obtaine the salvation which is in Christ Jesus, with eternall glory.

¹¹ ⁸ It is a true saying, For if we be ^c dead together with him, we shall also live together with him.

¹² If we suffer, we shall also reigne together with him: ^d if we denie him, he also will denie us.

¹³ If ^e we beleieve not, yet abideth he faithfull: he cannot denie himselfe.

¹⁴ Of these things put them in remembrance, and ^f protest before the Lord, that they strive not about words, which is to no profit, but to the perverting of the hearers.

¹⁵ ⁹ Studie to shew thy selfe approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, dividing the word of truth aright.

¹⁶ ^f Stay prophane and vaine babblings: for they shall increase unto more ungodlinesse.

¹⁷ And their word shall fret as a canker: ^g of which sort is Hymeneus and Philetus, ¹⁸ Which as concerning the truth, have erred from the marke, saying, that the resurrection is past already, and do destroy the faith of certaine.

²⁰ ¹² Notwithstanding, in a great house are not onely vessels of gold, and of silver, but also of wood, and of earth, ⁱ and some for honour, and some unto dishonour.

²³ ^{*} And put away foolish and unlearned questions, knowing that they ingender strife.

²⁴ But the servant of the Lord must not strive, but ^m must be gentle toward all men, apt to teach, ⁿ suffering the evill.

²⁶ And come to amendment out of the snare of the devill, of whom they are taken prisoners, to doe his will.

^{worketh in us a good and an effectfull will.} ¹³ Returning to the matter from whence he digressed, verse 16. he warneth him to exercise himselfe in weighty matters, and such as pertaine to godlinesse. ¹⁴ The sixth admonition: We must above all things eschew all bitterness of mind, both in teaching all men, and also in calling them backe which have gone out of the way. ^{} 1 Cor. 1. 2. ^{} 1 Tim. 1. 4. and 4. 7. Titus 3. 9. ⁱ To winne them through our patient bearing with them, but not to please them, or excuse them in their wickednesse. ^k He meaneth such as doe not yet see the trueth.

CHAP. III.

¹ He foretelleth the dangerous times that are to ensue: ⁹ But with the certaine hope of victorie, ¹⁰ he encourgeth him to the combat, setting out especially the triall of sound doctrine.

THis ^{} know also, that in the ^{} last dayes shall come perillous times:

² For men shall be lovers of their own selves, covetous, boasters, proud, cursed speakers, disobedient to parents, unthankfull, ^{*} unholy,

³ Without naturall affection, truce breakers, false accusers, intemperate, fierce, no lovers at all of them which are good,

⁴ Traitours, headie, high minded, lovers of pleasures more then lovers of God, ⁵ Having a shew of godlinesse, but have denied the power thereof: ^{*} turn away therefore from such.

⁶ For of this sort are they which creepe into houses, and leade captive simple women laden with finnes, and led with divers lusts, ⁷ Which women are ever learning, and are never able to come to the acknowledging of the trueth.

⁸ ^{*} And as Jannes and Jambres withstood Moses, so doe these also resist the trueth, men

¹¹ A digression, wherein he saveth that offence that role by their falling away, shewing first, that the elect are out of all danger of any such falling away: secondly, that they are known to God, and not to us: and therefore it is no marvelle if we count hypocrites offenders for the true brethren: but we must take heed that we be not like them, but rather that we be indeede such as we are laid to be.

^g That jerome and woordshipp him, and as it were named of him, a faithfull man, or Christian.

¹² The taking away of an objection: It is no dishonour to the good man of the house, that he hath not in a great house all vessels of one sort and for one service, but we must looke to this, that we be found vessels prepared to honour.

^{*} Rom. 9. 21. ^h By these words is meant the execution of the matter, and not the cause: for in that we purge ourselves, it is not to be attributed to any free will that is in us, but to God, who freely and wholly

¹ The seventh admonition: We may not hope for any Church in this world without corruption: but there shall be rather great abundance of most wicked men, even in the very bosome of the Church, which notwithstanding shall make a shew and countenance of great holinesse, and charitie.

fort: The Lord

hypocrites, we must set before us the vertues of the holy servants of God, and we must not be afraid of persecution which they suffered willingly, and which always followeth true godlinesse.

But we must especially hold fast the doctrine of the Apostles, the summe whereof is this,
that we are saved
through faith in tion which is men of corrupt mindes, reprobate concerning the faith.

⁹ But they shall prevail no longer: for their madnesse shall be evident unto all men, as theirs also was.

¹⁰ ¶ But thou hast fully known my doctrine, manner of living, purpose, faith, long-suffering, love, patience,

¹¹ Persecutions, and afflictions which came unto me at Antiochia, at Iconium, and at Lystra, which persecutions I suffered: but from them all the Lord delivered me.

¹² Yea, and all that will live godly in Christ Jesus, shall suffer persecution.

¹³ But the evil men and deceivers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived.

¹⁴ But continue thou in the things which thou hast learned, and which are committed unto thee, knowing of whom thou hast learned them:

¹⁵ And that thou hast known the holy Scriptures of a child, which are able to make thee wise unto salvation, through the faith which is in Christ Jesus.

¹⁶ * For the whole Scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable to teach, to convince, to correct, and to instruct in righteousness:

¹⁷ That the man of God may be absolute, being made perfect unto all good works.

CHAP. IV.

¹ He chargeth him to preach the Gospel with all diligence. ³ In that so miserable a time: ⁶ That his death is hard at hand, ⁸ yet so, that as a conquerour, he maketh haste to a glorious triumph. ¹⁰ He sheweth the cause why he sendeth for Timo-theus, ¹¹ even by reason of his present state.

and out of season, improve, rebuke, exhort with all long-suffering and doctrine:

³ For the time will come, when they will not suffer wholesome doctrine: but having their eares itching, shall after their own lusts, get them an heape of teachers,

⁴ And shall turn their eares from the truth, and shall be given unto fables.

⁵ But watch thou in all things: suffer adversitie: do the work of an Evangelist:
cause thy ministry to be thoroughly liked of.

⁶ For I am now ready to be offered, and the time of my departing is at hand.

⁷ I have fought a good fight, and have finished my course: I have kept the faith.

ed me, but all forsook me: I pray God, that it may not be laid to their charge.

me, and strengthened me, that by me the preaching might be fully beleaved, and that all the Gentiles should heare: and I was delivered out of the mouth of the lion.

11 * For that grace of God, that bringeth salvation unto all men, hath appeared,

12 And teacheth us that we should deny ungodlinesse and worldly lusts, and that we should live soberly, and righteously, and godly in this present world:

13 * Looking for that blessed hope, and appearing of that glory of that mighty God, and of our Saviour Jesus Christ, 14 Who gave himselfe for us, that he might redeeme us from all iniquity, and purge us, to be a peculiar people unto himselfe, zealous of good works.

e Christ is here most plainly called that mighty God, and his appearance and coming is called by the figure Metonymie, our hope. f As it were a thing peculiarly laid up for himselfe. g With all authority possible.

CHAP. III.

1 He willeth that all generally be put in minde to reverence such as be in authority: 3 That they remember their former life, and attribute all justification unto grace. 9 And if any braver wish stand these things, 10 he willeth that he be rejected.

Put them in remembrance that they be subject to the Principalities and powers, and that they be obedient, and ready to every good work,

2 That they speak evill of no man, that they be no fighters, but soft, shewing all meeknesse unto all men.

3 * For we our selves also were in times past unwise, disobedient, deceived, serving the lusts and divers pleasures, living in maliciousnesse and envy, hatefull, and hating one another.

4 But when that bountifulnesse and that love of God our Saviour toward man appeared,

5 * Not by the works of righteousness, which we had done, but according to his mercy he saved us, by the washing of the new birth, and the renewing of the holy Ghost,

6 Which hee shed on us abundantly, through Jesus Christ our Saviour,

7 That we, being justified by his grace, should be made heires according to the hope of eternall life.

8 This is a true saying, and these things I wil thou shouldest affirm, that they which have beleev'd God, might be carefull to shew forth good works. These things are good and profitable unto men.

9 * But stay foolish questions, and genealogies, and contentions, and brawlings about the law: for they are unprofitable and vain.

THE EPISTLE OF PAUL TO PHILEMON.

1 Paul handling a base and small matter, yet according to his manner mounteth aloft unto God. 8 Sending again to Philemon his vagabound and theevish servant, he entreateth pardon for him, and very gravely preacheth of Christian equity.

Aula prisoner of Jesus Christ and our brother Timotheus, unto Philemon our deare friend, and fellow helper,

3 Grace be with you, and peace from God our Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ.

4 I * give thanks to my God, making mention alwayes of thee in my prayers, a By fellowship of faith, he meaneth those duties of charity which are bestowed upon the Saints, and flow forth of an effectual faith.

b That by this means all men may perceive how rich you are in Christ, to wit, in faith, charity, and all bountifullness.

7 For we have great joy and consolation in thy love, because by thee, brother, the Saints^e bowels are comforted.

8 Wherefore, though I by very bold in Christ to command thee, that which is inconvenient, 9 ⁱ Yet for loves sake, I rather beseech thee, though I be as I am, even Paul aged, and even now a prisoner for Jesus Christ.

10 I beseech thee for my son * Onesimus, whom I have begotten in my bonds,

11 Which in times past was to thee unprofitable, but now profitable both to thee and to me,

12 Whom I have sent again: thou therefore, receive him, that is, mine own ^dbowels:

13 Whom I would have retained with me, that in thy stead he might have ministered unto me in the bonds of the Gospel.

14 But without thy minde would I do nothing, that thy benefit should not be as it were of ^e necessity, but willingly.

15 It may be that he therefore ^f departed for ^g a season, that thou shouldest receive him for ever,

16 Not now as a servant, but above a servant, even as a brother beloved, especially to me: how much more then unto thee, both in the ^h flesh, and in the Lord?

17 If therefore thou count our things common, receive him as my self.

18 If he hath hurt thee, or oweth thee ought, that put on mine accounts.

19 I Paul have written this with mine own hand: I will recompense it, albeit I do not say to thee, that thou owest moreover unto me even thine own self.

20 ⁱ Yea, brother, let me obtaine this pleasure of thee in the Lord: comfort my bowels in the Lord.

21 Trusting in thine obedience, I wrote unto thee, knowing that thou wilt do even more then I say.

22 Moreover also prepare me a lodging: for I trust through your prayers I shall be freely given unto you.

23 There salute thee Epaphras my fellow-prisoner in Christ Jesus, 24 Marcus, Aristarchus, Demas, and Luke my fellow helpers.

25 The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, be with your spirit, Amen.

¶ Written from Rome to Philemon, and sent by Onesimus a servant.

^e Because thou didst so dutifully and cheerfully refresh the Saints, that they conceived inwardly a marvellous joy: for by this word (bowels) is meant not only the inward feeling of joys and miseries that men have one of another's state, but also that joy & comfort which entrench in to the very bowels, as though the heart were refreshed and comforted.

^q Good brother, let me obtain this benefit at thine hand.

THE EPISTLE TO THE HEBREWS.

The drift and end of this epistle, is to shew that Jesus Christ the Son of God, both God and man, is that true eternall and onely Prophet, King, and high Priest, that was shadowed by the figures of the old law, and is now indeed exhibited: of whom the whole Church ought to be taught, governed, and sanctified.

CHAP. I.

1 To shew that the doctrine which Christ brought, is most excellent, in that it is the knitting up of all prophecies, 4 he advanceth him above the Angels: 10 And proveth by divers testimonies of the Scripture, that he farre passeth all other.

1 The first part of the general proposition of this Epistle: the sonne of God is indeed that Prophet or teacher, which hath actually now performed that, that God after a sort, & in shadows signified by his Prophets, and hath fully opened his Father's will to the world.

^a So that the former declaration made by the Prophets was not full, and nothing must be added to this later. ^b Which one Sonne is God and man.

2 The second part of the same proposition: The same Son is appointed of the Father to be our King, and Lord, by whom also he made all things: and in whom only he setteth forth his glory, yea, and himself also to be beholden of us, who beareth up and sustaineth all things by his will and pleasure. ^c Possessor and equal partner of all things with the Father. ^d That is, what ever hath been at any time, is, or shall be. ^e Col. 1. 15. ^f He in whom this glory and Majesty of the Father shineth, which is otherwise infinite, and cannot be beholden.

A sundry times, and in divers manners, God spake in the old time to our fathers by the Prophets: in these ^h last dayes he hath spoken unto us by his ⁱ Sonne,

2 ^a Whom he hath made ^e heire of all things, by whom also he made the ^d worlds.

3 ^{*} Who being the ^e brightnesse of the glory, and the ingraven form of his ^f person, and ^g bearing up all things by his mighty word, ^h hath by himself purged our sins, and ⁱ sitteth at the right hand of the majesty in the highest places,

4 ^{*} And is made so much more excellent then the Angels, in as much as he hath obtained a more excellent ⁱ Name then they:

5 ^{} For unto which of the Angels said he at any time, ^{} Thou art my Son, ^{} this day begat I thee? ^{} and again, I ^{*} will be his Father, and he shall be my Sonne?

6 ^{} And ⁱ again, when he bringeth in his first begotten Sonne into the world, he saith, ^{} And let all the Angels of God worship him.

7 ^{} And of the Angels he saith, ^{} He that therewithall he is God also. ⁱ Dignity and honour. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. He proveth and confirmeth the dignity of Christ manifested in the flesh, by these six evident testimonies, whereby it appeareth that he farre passeth all Angels, inasmuch that he is called both Son, and God, in verities 5. 6. 7. 8. 10. 13. ^{} Psal. 2. 7. Chap. 5. 5. ^k The Father begat the Son, from everlasting, but that everlasting generation was made manifest and represented to the world in his time, and therefore be addeth this word (To day) ^{} 2 Sam. 7. 14. 1 Chron. 22. 10 ^l The Lord was not content to have spoken it once, but he repeateth it in another place. ^{} Psal. 97. 7. ^{} Psal. 104. 4.

^f His fathers person. ^g Sustaineth, defendeth, and cherisheth. ^h The third part of the same proposition: The same Son executed the office of the high Priest in offering up himself, and is our onely and most mighty Mediator in heaven. ⁱ This sheweth that the favour of that his sacrifice is not onely most acceptable to the Father, but also everlasting, and furthermore, how farre this high Priest passeth all the other high Priests.

^k Before he cometh to declare the office of Christ, he setteth forth the excellency of his person, and first of all he sheweth him to be man.

maketh the spirits his ^m messengers, and his ministers a ⁿ flame of fire.

8 But unto the Son he saith, * O God thy throne is for ever and ever: the scepter of thy kingdom is a scepter of righteousness.

14 Are they not all * ministring spirits, sent forth to minister, for their sakes which shall be heires of salvation?

CHAP. II.

Therefore he inferreth that good heed must be given to Christs doctrine: 9 And he setteth him out unto us even as our brother in our flesh, that wee may with a good will yeeld up our selves wholly unto him.

Wherefore we ought diligently to give heed to the things which we have heard, least at any time wee run out.

2 For if the word spoken by Angels was stedfast, and every transgression and disobedience received a just recompence of reward,

3 How shall we escape, if we neglect so great salvation, which at the first began to be preached by the Lord, and afterward was confirmed unto us by them that heard him,

4 * God bearing witness thereto, both with signs and wonders, and with divers miracles, and gifts of the holy Ghost, according to his owne will?

5 For hee hath not put in subjection unto the Angels the world to come, whereof we speake.

6 But one in a certaine place witnessed, saying, * What is man that thou shouldest be mindfull of him? or the son of man, that thou wouldest consider him?

*Now as it were pausing with himselfe, and shewing to what end and purpose all these things were spoken, to wit, to understand by the excellency of Christ, above all creatures, that his doctrine, majesty, and Priesthood, is most perfect, hee useth an exhortation taken from a comparison. a Hee maketh himselfe an hearer. b They are said to let the word run out, which hold it not fast when they have heard it. c The Law which appointed punishment for the offenders: and which Paul saith was given by Angels, Galat. 3. 19. and Seven. Acts 7. 53. d If the breach & transgression of the word spoken by Angels was not suffered unpunished, much lesse shall it be lawful for us to neglect the Gospell which the Lord of Angels preached, and was confirmed by the voice of the Apostles, and with so many signes and wonders from heaven, and especially with so great and mighty working of the holy Ghost. e By the Apostles. * Marke 16. 20. f This is the true end of miracles. Now they are called signes, because they appeare one thing, and represent another: and they are called wonders, because they represent some strange and unaccustomed things: and virtues, because they give us a glimpse of Gods mighty power. g If it were an hainous matter to contemne the Angels which are but servants, much more hainous is it to contemne that most mighty King of the restored world. h The world to come, whereof Christ is Father. Esa. 9. 6. or the Church, which as a new world, was to be gathered together by the Gospell. i He sheweth that the use of this kingly dignity consisteth herein, that men might not only in Christ recover that dignity which they have lost, but also might be through him advanced above all things, which dignity of men, David describeth most excellently. * P. sal. 8. 6. k What is there in man that thou shouldest have so great regard of him, and doe him that honour? l Hee calleth all the citizens of that heavenly kingdom, as they are considered in themselves, before that God giveth them the liberty of that city in Christ. Man, and the Son of man.*

7 Thou madest him a little inferiour to the Angels: thou crownedst him with glory and honour, and hast set him above the workes of thine hands.

8 * Thou hast put all things in subjection under his feet. And in that he hath put all things in subjection under him, hee left nothing that should not be subject unto him. But we yet see not all things subdued unto him.

9 But we see Jesus crowned with glory and honour, which was made a little inferiour to the Angels, through the suffering of death, that by Gods grace he might taste death for all men.

10 For it became him, for whom are all these things, and by whom are all these things, seeing that he brought many children unto glory, that he should consecrate the prince of their salvation through afflictions:

11 For he that sanctifieth, and they which are sanctified are all of one: wherefore he is not ashamed to call them brethren.

12 Saying, * I will declare thy Name unto my brethren: in the mids of the Church will I sing praises to thee.

13 And againe, * I will put my trust in him. And againe, * Behold, here am I, and the children which God hath given mee.

14 For as much then as the children are partakers of flesh and blood, he also himselfe likewise tooke part with them that he might destroy through death, him that had the power of death, that is, the devil,

15 And that he might deliver all them, which for feare of death were all their lifetime subject to bondage:

16 For hee in no sort tooke on him

*ther arguments, why it behoved the Son of God who is true God (as he proved a little before) to become man notwithstanding, subject to all miseries, sin only except. * Gal. 10 First of all, because the Father, to whose glory all things are to be referred, purposed to bring many sons unto glory. And how could hee have men for his sons, unless his only begotten son had become brother to men. 11 Secondly, The Father determined to bring those sons to glory, to wit, out of that ignominy wherein they lay before. Therefore the son should not have beene seene plainly to be made man, unless he had beene made like unto other men, that hee might come to glory by the selfe same way, by the which hee should bring other: yea rather, it became him which was Prince of the salvation of other, to be consecrated above other, through those afflictions, Prophet, King, and Priest, which are the parts of that principality for the salvation of other. g The Chief name, who as he is chiefest in dignity, so is he the first begotten from among the dead, amongst many brethren. 12 The ground of both the former arguments, for neither should we be ious through him, neither could he be consecrated through afflictions unless he had bin made man like unto us. But because this Son of God dependeth not upon nature only, for no man is accounted the sons of God, unless besides that, he is a son of man, hee be also Christs brother. (which is by sanctification, that is, by becoming one with Christ, who sanctifieth us through faith) therefore the Apostle maketh mention of the sanctifier, to wit, of Christ, and of them that are sanctified, to wit, of all the faithfull, whom therefore Christ vouchsafeth to call brethren. 13 He useth the time that now is, to shew us that wee are yet still going on, and increasing in this sanctification: and by sanctification hee meaneth our separation from the rest of the world, our cleansing from sin, and our dedication wholly unto God, all which Christ alone worketh in us. f One, of one selfe same nature of man. 13 That which hee taught before of the incarnation of the sanctifier, hee applieth to the propheticall office. * P. sal. 22. 25. 14 Hee applieth the same to the kingly power of Christ, in delivering his from the power of the devil and death. * P. sal. 18. 2. I will commit my selfe to him, and to his defence. * Esa. 8. 18. v This Esai saith of himselfe and his disciples, but betokening thereby all ministers, as also his disciples figure the whole Church. And therefore seeing Christ is the head of the Prophets and ministers, these words are more rightly verified of him, then of Esai. x Are made of flesh and blood, which is a frail and brittle nature. * Hebr. 13. 14. 1 Cor. 15. 55. y The devil is said to have the power of death, because he is the author of sin: and from sin cometh death, and for this cause hee useth us daily to sin. z He speaketh of one, as of the Prince, saying to him secretly all his Angels. a By (death) thou shalt understand here, that death which is ioynd with the wrath of God, as it must needs be if it be without Christ, then the which there can be nothing devised more miserable. 15 Hee expoundeth those words of flesh and blood, shewing that Christ is true man, and that not by turning his divine nature, but by taking of mans nature. And hee nameth Abraham, respecting the promises made to Abraham in this behalfe.*

This is the first bene of the citizen of the world to come, that they are next the Angels.

k For they shall be in very great honour when they shall be partakers of the kingdom. And hee speaketh of the thing that shall be, as though it were already, because it is so certain.

 1 Cor. 15. 27.*

5 An objection: But where is this so great rule and dominion?

6 The answer: This is already fulfilled in Jesus Christ our head, who was for a time for our sake inferiour to the Angels, being made man: but now is advanced into most high glory.

o That he might die.

p Feels death.

q Herein consisteth the force of the argument: for wee could not as length: hee glorified with him, unless he had beene abated for us, even all the faithfull. And by this occasion the Apostle cometh to the other part of the declaration of Christs person, wherein hee proveth him to be in such sort God, as he is also man.

r Hee proveth moreover by o-

⁴ The nature of Angels.

^c The very nature of man.

¹⁶ Hee applieth the same to the Priesthood, for which hee should not have bene fit, unless hee had become man, and that like unto us in all things, sin onely except.

^d Not onely as touching nature, but qualities also.

^e That he might be truly touched with the feeling of our miseries.

^f Doing his office sincerely.

the^b Angels nature, but he tooke on him the^c seed of Abraham.

¹⁷ ¹⁶ Wherefore in^d all things it behoved him to be made like unto his brethren, that he might be^e mercifull, and a^f faithfull high Priest in things concerning God, that he might make reconciliation for the sins of the people:

¹⁸ For in that hee suffered, and was tempted, he is able to succour them that are tempted.

^g Was tried and egged to wickednesse by the devill.

CHAP. III.

¹ Now he sheweth how far inferiour Moses is to Christ, 5. 6. even so much as the servant to the master: and so he bringeth in certaine exhortations and threatnings, taken out of David, 3. against such as either stubbornly resist, 12. or else are vary flow to oley.

¹ Having laid the foundation, that is to say, declared and proved both the natures of one selfe same Christ, hee giveth him three offices, to wit, the office of a Prophet, King, and Priest, and as touching the office of teaching, and governing, compareth him with Moses and Joshua, unto the 14. verse of the next Chapter, and with Aaron touching the Priesthood. And hee propoundeth that which hee purposed to speak of, with a most grave exhortation, that all our faith may tend to Christ, as to the onely everlasting teacher, gover-nour, and high Priest.

^a The Embassadour or messenger, Rom. 15. hee is called the minister of Circumcision.

^b Of the doctrine of the Gospel which we profess.

² Hee confirmeth his exhortation with two reasons, first of all, because Christ Jesus was appointed such an one of God, secondly, because hee thoroughly executed the offices that his Father enjoyed him.

^c Apostle and high Priest.

³ Now hee commeth to the comparison with Moses, had hee ma-ked them like one of the other in this, that they were both appointed rulers over Gods house, and executed faithfully their offices: but by and by after hee sheweth that there is great unlikenesse in that same similitude. * Num. 12. 7.

⁴ The first comparison: The builder of the house is better then the house it selfe, therefore is Christ better then Moses. The reason of the consequent is this: because the builder of this house is God, which cannot be attributed to Moses: and therefore Moses was not properly the builder, but a part of the house: but Christ as Lord and God made all this house.

⁵ Another comparison: Moses was a faithful servant in this house, that is, in the Church, serving the Lord that was to come, but Christ ruleth and governeth his house as Lord.

⁶ Hee applieth the former doctrine to his end, exhorting all men by the words of David to heare the Son himselfe speake, and to give full credite to his words, seeing that otherwise they cannot enter into that eternall rest. ^d To wit, Christ. ^e He calleth that excellent effect of faith whereby we cry Abba that is, Father confidence, and to confidence bea ieynah hope. * Psal.

⁷ Now weighing the words of David, hee sheweth first by this word, To day, that wee must not neglect the occasion while wee have it: for that word is not to bee restrained to Davids time, but it comprehendeth all that time wherein God calleth us.

Therefore, ¹ holy brethren, partakers of the heavenly vocation, consider the ^a Apostle and high Priest of our^b profession Christ Jesus:

² ² Who was faithfull to him that hath appointed him, ³ even as ^{*} Moses was in all his house.

³ ⁴ For this man is counted worthy of more glory then Moses, in as much as he which hath builded the house, hath more honour then the house.

⁴ For every house is builded of some man, and hee that hath built all things, is God.

⁵ ⁵ Now Moses verily was faithfull in all his house, as a servant, for a witnesse of things which should be spoken after:

⁶ But Christ is as the son, over his owne house, ⁶ whose^d house we are, if we hold fast that ^e confidence and that rejoycing of that hope unto the end.

⁷ Wherefore, as the holy Ghost faith,
^{*} To day if ye^f shall heare his voice,

⁸ Harden not your hearts, as in the ⁸ provocation, according to the day of the tentation in the wilderness,

⁹ Where your fathers tempted mee, proved mee, and saw my workes forty yeares long.

¹⁰ Wherefore I was grieved with that generation, and said, They^h erre ever in their heart, neither have they knowen my wayes.

¹¹ Therefore I sware in my wrath, If they shall enter into my rest.

¹² ⁷ Take heed, brethren, lest at any time there be in any of you an evill heart, and unfaithfull, to depart away from the living God,

¹³ But exhort one another dayly, ⁱ while it is called to day, lest any of you be hardned through the deceitfulness of sin.

¹⁴ ^{*} For wee are made partakers of Christ, if wee keepe sure unto the end that beginning, wherewith we are upholden,

¹⁵ ¹ So long as it is said, To day if yee heare his voyce, harden not your hearts, as in the provocation.

¹⁶ For some when they heard, provoked him to anger: howbeit, not all that came out of Egypt by Moses.

¹⁷ But with whom was he displeased fourty yeares? Was hee not displeased with them that sinned, ^{*} whose karkeifes fell in the wilderness?

¹⁸ And to whom sware he that they should not enter into his rest, but unto them that obeyed not?

¹⁹ So wee see that they could not enter in, because of unbeliefe.

CHAP. IV.

¹ He joyneth exhortation with threatning, lest they, even as their fathers were, be deprived of the rest offered unto them, ¹¹ but that they endeavour to enter into it. ¹⁴ And so he beginneth to entreat of Christs Priesthood.

Let us feare therefore, lest at any time by forsaking the promise of entring into his rest, any of you should seeme to bee deprived.

² ¹ For unto us was the Gospel preached as also unto them: but the word that they heard, profited not them, because it was not ^{*} mixed with faith in those that heard it.

³ ² For wee which have beleevd, doe enter into rest, as he said to the other, ^{*} As I have sworn in my wrath, If they shall enter into my rest: although the workes were finished from the foundation of the world.

⁴ For he spake in a certaine place of the seventh day on this wise, ^{*} And God did rest the seventh day from all his works.

⁵ And in this place againe, If they shall enter into my rest.

⁶ Seeing therefore it remaineth that some must enter thereinto, and they to whom it was first preached, entered not therein for unbeliefs sake:

⁷ Again he appointed in David a certaine day, by To day, after so long a time, people: but this rest is not the last rest wherunto wee are called: and that hee proveth by two reasons. For seeing that David so long time after, speaking to the people which were then placed in the land of Canaan, with these words, To day, and threatneth them still that they shall not enter into the rest of God, which refused then the voyce of God that sounded in their eares, wee must needs say that hee meant another time then the time of Moses, and another rest then the rest of the land of Canaan: And that is, that everlasting rest, wherein wee begin to live to God, after that the race of this life ceaseth: as God rested the seventh day from those his workes, that is to say, from making the world. Moreover the Apostle therewithall signifieth that the way to his rest, which Moses and the land of Canaan, and all that order of the Law did shadow, is opened in the Gospel onely. * Psal.

95. 11. * Gen. 2. 2. Deut. 5. 14.

ⁱ While to day lasteth, that is to say, so long as the Gospel
is offered to us.

⁸ Now hee confi-dereth these words, If you heare his voice, &c. shew-ing that they are spoken and meant of the hearing of faith, against which hee setteth hardening through unbelief.

^k That beginning of trust and confidence:
and after the manner of the Hebrewes, he calleth that, beginning, which is chiefest.

^l So long as this voyce soundeth out.
* Numb. 14. 37.

¹ By these words,
His voyce, he sheweth that David meant the preaching of Christ, who was then also preached, for Moses and the Prophets respected none other.

^a Hee compareth the preaching of the Gospel to drinke,
which being drunke,
that is to say, heard,
profiteth nothing un-lesse it bee tempered with faith.

² Lest any man should object that those words were meant of the land of Canaan, and of Moses doctrine, and therefore cannot be well draw-en to Christ, and to eternall life, the Apostle sheweth that there are two manner of rests spoken of in the Scriptures: the one of the seventh day, wherein God is said to have rested from all his workes: another is said to bee that same, wherunto Joshua led the saying,

* Chap. 3. 7.

^b He speaketh of Joshua the son of Nun: and as the land of Canaan was a figure of our true rest, so was Joshua a figure of Christ.

^c As God rested the seventh day, so must we rest from our works, that is, from such as proceed from our corrupt nature.

³ He returneth to an exhortation.

^d Let any man become a like example of infidelity.

⁴ An amplification taken from the nature of the word of God, the power whereof is such, that it entereth even to the deepest and most inward and secret parts of the heart, wounding them deadly that are stubborn, and plainly quickning the believers.

^e The doctrine of God which is preached both in the Law and in the Gospel.

^f He calleth the word of God lively, by reason of the effect it worketh in them to whom it is preached.

^g He calleth that the soul, which hath the affections resident in it.

^h By the spirit, he meaneth that noblest part which is called the mind.

ⁱ In Gods sight.

^j Now he entereth into the comparison of Christs Priesthood with Aarons, and declareth even in the very beginning the marvellous excellency of this Priesthood, calling him the son of God, and placing him in the seat of God in heaven, plainly and evidently setting him against Aarons Priests, and the transitory tabernacle: which comparisons he setteth forth afterward more at large.

^k And let it not go out of your hands.

⁶ Left he might seeme by this great glory of our high Priest, to stay and stop us from going unto him, he addeth straight wayes after, that he is notwithstanding our brother indeed, (as he proved it also before) and that he accompteth all our miseries his owne, to call us boldly to him.

saying, as it is said, * This day, If yee heare his voice, harden not your hearts.

8 For if ^b Jesus had given them rest, then would he not after this have spoken of another day.

9 There remaineth therefore a rest to the people of God.

10 * For he that is entred into his rest, hath also ceased from his owne works, as God did from his.

11 * Let us study therefore to enter into that rest, lest any man fall after the same ensample of disobedience.

12 * For the * word of God is ^f lively, and mighty in operation, and sharper then any two edged sword, and entreth through, even unto the dividing asunder of the ^g soul and the ^h spirit, and of the joynts, and the marrow, and is a discernor of the thoughts, and the intents of the heart.

13 Neither is there any creature, which is not manifest in ⁱ his sight: but all things are naked and open unto his eyes, with whom we have to doe.

14 * Seeing then that we have a great high Priest, which is entred into heaven, even Jesus the Son of God, let us ^k hold fast our profession.

15 * For we have not an high Priest, which cannot be touched with the feeling of our infirmities, but was in all things tempted in like sort, yet without sin.

16 Let us therefore go boldly unto the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy, & find grace to help in the time of need.

C H A P. V.

¹ First he sheweth the duty of the high Priest. ² Secondly, that Christ is appointed of God to be our high Priest, ³ and that he hath fulfilled all things belonging thereunto.

FOR every high Priest is taken from among men, and is ordained for men, in things pertaining to God, ² that he may offer both ^a gifts and ^b sacrifices for sins,

2 Which is ^c able sufficiently to have compassion ^d on them that are ignorant, and that are out of the way, because that he also is ^e compassed with infirmity,

3 And for the same sake he is bound to offer for sins, as well for his owne part, as for the peoples.

4 * ³ And no man taketh this honour unto himself, but he that is called of God, as was Aaron.

¹ The first part of the first comparison of Christs high Priesthood, with Aarons: Other high Priests are taken from among men, and are called after the order of men.

² The first part of the second comparison: Others as weake, are made high Priests, to the end that feeling the same infirmity in themselves which is in all the rest of the people, they should in their owne, and the peoples name offer gifts and sacrifices, which are witnesses of common faith and repentance.

^a Offerings of things without life.

^b Beasts which were killed, but especially in the sacrifices for sins and offences.

^c Fit and meet.

^d On them that are sinfull: for in the Hebrew tongue, under ignorance and error is every sin named, even that sin that is voluntary.

^e For that he himselfe beareth about with him a nature subject to the same discommodities and vices.

* 1 Chron. 13. 10. and 23. 13. 3 The third comparison which is whole. The others are called of God, and so was Christ, but in another order then Aaron: for Christ is called the Son, begotten of God, and a Priest for ever after the order of Melchi-sedec.

5 So likewise Christ took not to himselfe this honour, to be made the high Priest, but he that said unto him, * Thou art my Son, this day begate I thee, gave it him.

6 As he also in another place speaketh, * Thou art a Priest for ever, after the ^f order of Melchi-sedec:

7 * Who in the ^g dayes of his flesh did offer up prayers and supplications, with strong crying and teares unto him, that was able to ^h save him from death, and was also heard in that which he feared.

8 And though he were the Son, yet ⁱ learned hee obedience, by the things which he suffered.

9 * And being ^k consecrate, was made the authour of eternall salvation unto all them that obey him:

10 And is called of God an high Priest after the order of Melchi-sedec:

11 * Of whom we have many things to say, which are hard to be uttered, because yee are dull of hearing.

12 * For when as concerning the time yee ought to be teachers, yet have ye need againe that we teach you what are the first principles of the word of God: and are become such as have need of milk, and not of strong meat.

13 For every one that useth milk, is inexpert in the ^l word of righteousness: for he is a babe.

14 But strong meat belongeth to them that are of age, which through long custome have their ^m wittes exercised, to discerne both good and evill.

C H A P. VI.

¹ He briefly toucheth the childish slothfulness of the Hebrewes, and terrifieth them with severe threatnings. ² He stirreth them up to endeavour in time to go forward. ³ He hopeth well of them. ⁴ He allegeth Abrahams example: ⁵ 17 and compareth faith that taketh hold on the word, ⁶ 19 unto an ancre.

THEREFORE, leaving the doctrine of the ^a beginnings of Christ, let us bee led forward unto perfection, ¹ not laying againe the foundation of repentance from dead works, and of faith toward God,

2 Of the doctrine of Baptisme, and laying on of hands, and of the resurrection from the dead, and of eternall judgement.

3 And this will we doe if God permit:

4 * ² For it is ^b impossible that they which were once lightned, and have ^c tastof the children of the faithfull which were baptized in their infancy, when hands were laid upon them. And of those articles, two are by name recited: the resurrection of the flesh, and the eternall judgement. ² He addeth a vehemency to his exhortation, and a most sharp threatening of the certaine destruction that shall come to them which fall from God and his religion. * Chap. 10. 26. Math. 12. 45. 2 Pet. 2. 20. ^b He speaketh of a generall backsliding, and such as doe altogether fall away from the faith, and not of sins which are committed through the frailty of a man against the first and the second Table. ^c We must mark the force of this word, for it is one thing to believe as Lydia did, whose heart God opened. 6 If they fall away, should be renewed againe by repentance: seeing they^d crucified againe to themselves the Son of God, and make a mock of him.

7³ For the earth which drinketh in the raine that commeth oft upon it, and bringeth forth herbs meet for them by whom it is dressed, receiveth blessing of God.

8 But that which beareth thorns and briars, ^{is} reprov'd, and is neere unto cursing, whose end ^{is} to be burned.

9⁴ But beloved, we have perswaded our selves better things of you, and such as accompany salvation, though we thus speake.

10⁵ For God ^{is} not unrighteous, that he should forget your worke, and labour of love, which yee shewed toward his Name, in that yee have ministered unto the Saints, and yet minister.

11 And we desire that every one of you shew the same diligence, to the full assurance of hope unto the end.

12⁶ That ye be not slothfull, but followers of them, which through faith and patience inherite the promises.

13⁷ For when God made the promise to Abraham, because he had no greater to swear by, he swore by himselfe, 14 Saying, ^{*} Surely I will ^{abundantly} blesse thee, and multiply thee marvelously.

15 And so after that he had taried patiently, he enjoyed the promise.

16 For men verily swear by him that is greater ^{then themselves}, and an oath for confirmation is among them an end of all strife.

17 So God willing more^f abundantly to shew unto the heires of promise the stability of his counsell, bound himselfe by an oath,

18 That by two immutable things, wherein it is impossible that God should lie, we might have strong consolation, which have our refuge to lay hold upon that hope that is set before us,

19⁸ Which ^{hope} we have, as an ancre of the soule, both sure and stedfast, and it entred into that which is within the vaile, 20⁹ Whither the forerunner is for us entred in, ^{even} Jesus that is made an high Priest for ever after the order of Melchisedec.

CHAP. VII.

¹ He hath hitherto stirred them up, to marke diligently what things are to be considered in Melchisedec, ¹⁵ wherein he is like unto Christ, ²⁰ Wherefore the Law should give place to the Gospel.

For this¹ Melchisedec^{} was King of Salem, the Priest of the most high God, who met Abraham, as he returned from the slaughter of the kings, and^{} blessed him:

2 To whom also Abraham gave the tithe of all things: who first is by interpretation King of righteousness: after that, ^{he is} also King of Salem, that is, King of peace.

3² Without father, without mother, without kindred, and hath neither beginning of ^{his} dayes, neither end of life: but is likened unto the Son of God, and continueth a Priest for ever.

4³ Now consider how great this man was, unto whom even the Patriarch Abraham gave the tithe of the spoiles.

5 For verily they which are the children of Levi, which receive the office of the Priest-hood, have a^{*} commandement to take according to the Law, tithes of the people (that is, of their brethren) though they came out of the^b loynes of Abraham.

6 But he whose kindred is not counted among them, received tithes of Abraham, and blessed him that had the promises.

7 And^c without all contradiction the lesse is blessed of the greater.

8 And here men that die receive tithes: but there he ^{receiveth them}, of whom it is witnessed, that he liveth.

9⁴ And to say as the thing is, Levi also which receiveth tithes, payed tithes in Abraham:

10 For he was yet in the loynes of his father Abraham, when Melchisedec met him.

11⁵ If therefore^d perfection had been by the Priest-hood of the Levites (for under it the Law was established to the people) what needed it furthermore, that another Priest should rise after the order of Melchisedec, and not to be called after the order of Aaron?

12⁶ For if the Priest-hood be changed, then of necessity must there be a change of the^e Law.

13 For he of whom these things are spoken, pertaineth unto another tribe, vitall Priests, as mortall men, for they succeed one another: the second, that Levi himselfe was tithed in Abraham by Melchisedec. Therefore the Priest-hood of Melchisedec (that is, Christ, who is pronounced to be an everlasting Priest according to this order) is more excellent then the Levitical. 5 The third treatise of this Epistle, wherein after he hath proved Christ, to be a King, a Prophet and Priest, he now handleth distinctly the condition and excellency of all these offices, shewing that all these were but shadows in all other, but in Christ they are true and perfect. And hee beginneth with the Priesthood, wherewith also the former treatise ended, that by this meanes all the parts and members of the disputation, may better hang together. And first of all he proveth that the Levitical Priesthood was imperfect, because another Priest is promised a long time after, according to another order, that is to say, of another manner of rule and fashion. 4 If the Priesthood of Levi could have made any man perfect. 6 He sheweth how that by the institution of the new Priesthood, not onely the imperfection of the Priesthood of Levi was declared, but also that it was changed for this: for these two cannot stand together, because that first appointment of the tribe of Levi, did thrust forth the tribe of Juda, and made it also inferiour to Levi: and this latter doth place the Priesthood in the tribe of Juda. 8 Of the institution of Aaron.

¹ A man that hate Christ, and as though they crucified him againe, make him a mocking stock to all the world, and that to their owne destruction, as Iulian the Apostata or backslider did.

³ He setteth forth the former threatening with a similitude.

⁴ He mitigateth and asswageth all that sharpnesse, hoping better of them to whom he writeth.

⁵ He praiseth them for their charity, thereby encouraging them to goe forward, and to hold out to the end.

⁶ Hee sheweth what vertues chiefly they have need of to goe forward constantly, and also to profit: to wit, of charity, and patience: and left any man should object and say, that these things are impossible to be done, he willeth them to set before themselves the examples of their ancestors, and to follow them.

⁷ Another prick to prick them forward: Because the hope of the inheritance is certaine, if we continue to the end, for God hath not onely promised it, but also promised it with an oath.

⁸ Gen. 12. 2. and 17. 4. and 22. 17. 9 I will heape up benefits most plentifully upon thee.

⁹ If we then may needfull, were it not for the wickedesse of men which beleeveth not God, no, though he sweare.

¹⁰ Hee likeneth hope to an ancre: because that even as an ancre being cast into the bottom of the sea, stayeth the whole ship, so doth hope also enter even into the very secret places of heaven. And hee maketh mention of the Sanctuary, alluding to the old Tabernacle, and by this meanes returneth to the comparisons of the Priesthood of Christ with the Levitical.

¹ Declaring those words, According to the order of Melchisedec, whereupon that comparison standeth of the Priesthood of Christ with the Levitical: first, Melchisedec himselfe is considered as the figure of Christ, and these are the heads of that comparison: Melchisedec was a King and a Priest, and such an one indeed is Christ alone. He was a King of peace and righteousness, such an one indeed is Christ alone.

² Gen. 14. 18. 3 With a solemn and Priestly blessing.

² Another figure: Melchisedec is set before us to be considered as one without beginning and without ending, for neither his father, nor his mother, nor his ancestors, nor his death are written of: and such an one indeed is the Son of God: to wit, an everlasting Priest: as hee is God, without mother begotten: as he is man, without father wonderfully conceived.

⁴ Num. 18. 21. 5 Were begotten of Abraham.

⁶ He speaketh of the public blessing which the Priests used.

⁷ A double amplification: The first, that Melchisedec tooke the tithes as one immortal (to wit, in respect that he is the figure of Christ, for his death is in no place made mention of, and David setteth him forth as an everlasting Priest) but the Levitical Priests, as mortall men, for they succeed one another: the second, that Levi himselfe was tithed in Abraham by Melchisedec.

⁸ The third treatise of this Epistle, wherein after he hath proved Christ, to be a King, a Prophet and Priest, he now handleth distinctly the condition and excellency of all these offices, shewing that all these were but shadows in all other, but in Christ they are true and perfect. And hee beginneth with the Priesthood, wherewith also the former treatise ended, that by this meanes all the parts and members of the disputation, may better hang together. And first of all he proveth that the Levitical Priesthood was imperfect, because another Priest is promised a long time after, according to another order, that is to say, of another manner of rule and fashion. 4 If the Priesthood of Levi could have made any man perfect. 6 He sheweth how that by the institution of the new Priesthood, not onely the imperfection of the Priesthood of Levi was declared, but also that it was changed for this: for these two cannot stand together, because that first appointment of the tribe of Levi, did thrust forth the tribe of Juda, and made it also inferiour to Levi: and this latter doth place the Priesthood in the tribe of Juda. 8 Of the institution of Aaron.

f Had any thing to do about the altar.

whereof no man^f served at the altar.

14 For it is evident, that our Lord sprung out of Judah, concerning the which tribe Moses spake nothing, touching the Priesthood.

15 ⁷ And it is yet a more evident thing, because that after the similitude of Melchisedec, there is risen up another Priest, 16 ⁸ Which is not made Priest after the law of the carnall commandment, but after the power of the endlesse life.

17 For he testifieth thus, * Thou art a Priest for ever, after the order of Melchisedec.

18 ⁹ For the^b commandment that went afore, is disannulled, because of the weaknes thereof, and unprofitableness.

19 For the law made nothing perfect, but the bringing in of a better hope made perfect, whereby we draw neare unto God.

20 ¹⁰ And for as much as it is not without an oath (for these are made Priests without an oath :

21 But this is made with an oath by him that said unto him, * The Lord hath sworn, and will not repent, Thou art a Priest for ever, after the order of Melchisedec,) 22 By so much is Jesus made a surety of a better Testament.

23 ¹¹ And among them many were made Priests, because they were not suffered to endure, by the reason of death :

24 But this man, because he endureth ever, hath a Priesthood, whichⁱ cannot passe from one to another.

25 Wherefore, he is^k able also perfectly to save them that come unto God by him, seeing he ever liveth, to make intercession for them.

26 ¹² For such an high Priest it became us to have, which is holy, harmlesse, undefiled, separate from sinners, and made higher then the heavens :

27 Which needeth not dayly as those high Priests to offer up sacrifice, * first for his owne sins, and then for the peoples : for^l that did he^m once, when he offered up himselfe.

28 For the Law maketh men high Priests, which have infirmity : but theⁿ word of the oath¹⁴ that^o was since the Law, maketh the Son, who is consecrated for evermore.

⁹ Not after the ordination, which commandeth fraile and transitory things, as was done in Aarons consecration, and all that whole Priesthood.

* Psal. 110. 4.

Chap. 5. 6.

⁹ Again, that no man might object, that the last Priesthood was added to make a perfect one, by the coupling of them both together, hee proveth that the first was abrogated by the latter, as unprofitable, and that by the nature of them both. For how could those corporall and transitory things sanctifie us, either of themselves, or being joyned with another?

¹⁰ The ceremoniall law.

¹⁰ Another argument, whereby he proveth that the Priesthood of Christ is better then the Priesthood of Levi, because his was established with an oath, but theirs was not so.

* Psal. 110. 4.

¹¹ Another argument tending to the same purpose. The Leviticall Priests (as mortall men) could not be everlasting, but Christ as hee is everlasting, to hath he also an everlasting Priesthood, making most effectuall intercession for them which by him come unto God.

¹² Another argument: There are required in an high Priest innocency and perfect purenesse, which may separate him from sinners, for whom he offereth. But the Leviticall high Priests shall not be found to be such, for they offer first for their owne sins: but Christ only is such a one, and therefore the true and onely high Priest. Levit. 16. 11. ¹³ Another argument, which notwithstanding he handleth after ward: The Leviticall Priests offered sacrifice after sacrifice, first for themselves, and then for the people. But Christ offered not for himselfe, but for other, not sacrifices, but himselfe, not oftentimes, but once. And this ought not to seeme strange, saith he, for as much as they are weake, but this Man is consecrate an everlasting Priest, and that by an oath. 1 That sacrifice which he offered. m It was so done, that it needeth not to be repeated or offered againe any more. n The commandment of God which was bound with an oath. ¹⁴ Another argument taken of the time: Former things are taken away by the latter. o Excluded.

CHAP. VIII.

¹ To prove more certainly that the ceremonies of the law are abrogated, ⁵ he sheweth that they were appointed to serve the heavenly pattern. ⁸ Hee bringeth in the place of Jeremy, ¹⁵ to prove the amendment of the old covenant.

NOW¹ of the things which we have spoken, this is the sum, that we have such an high Priest, that sitteth at the right hand of the throne of the Majesty in heavens,

2 ² And is a Minister of the^a Sanctuary, and of that^b true Tabernacle which the Lord pight, and not man.

3 ⁴ For every high Priest is ordained to offer both gifts and sacrifices: wherefore it was of necessity, that this man should have somewhat also to offer.

4 ⁵ For he were not a Priest, if he were on the earth, seeing there are Priests that according to the law offer gifts,

5 Who serve unto the patern and shadow of heavenly things, as Moses was warned by God, when he was about to finish the Tabernacle. * See, said he, that thou make all things according to the patern shewed to thee in the mount.

6 ⁶ But now our high Priest hath obtained a more excellent office, in as much as he is the Mediatour of a better Testament, which is established upon better promises.

7 ⁷ For if that first Testament had beene unblameable, no place should have beene sought for the second.

8 For in rebuking them he saith, * Behold, the dayes will come, saith the Lord, when I shal make with the house of Israel, & with the house of Juda a new Testament.

9 Not like the Testament that I made with their fathers, in the day that I tooke them by the hand, to lead them out of the land of Egypt: for they continued not in my Testament, and I regarded them not, saith the Lord.

10 For this is the Testament that I will make with the house of Israel, After those dayes, saith the Lord, I will put my lawes in their mind, and in their heart I will write them, and I will be their God, and they shall be my people.

11 And they shall not teach every man his neighbour, and every man his brother, saying, Know the Lord: for all shall know mee, from the least of them to the greatest of them.

12 For I will be mercifull to their unrighteousnesse, and I will remember their sins and their iniquities no more.

13 ⁸ In that he saith, A new Testament, he hath abrogated the old: now that which is disannulled and waxed old, is ready to vanish away.

Jeremy, that there is a second testament or covenant, & therefore that the first was not perfect. 1 Jer. 31. 31. 32. 33. 34. 2 Cor. 11. 27. Chap. 10. 16. a He calleth it an house, as it were one family of the whole kingdom: for so hee the kingdom of David was divided into two factions, the Trophie greiveth us to understand, that through the new Testament they shall be joyned together again in one. ⁸ The conclusion: therefore by the latter & the new, the first and old is taken away, for it could not be called new, if it differed not from the old, and again, that same is at length taken away, which is subject to corruption, and therefore imperfect.

² They of Levi were high Priests in an earthly sanctuary, but Christ is in the heavenly.

³ They of Levi exercised their Priesthood in a fraile tabernacle, but Christ beareth about with him a far other tabernacle, to wit, his body which God himselfe made to be everlasting, as it shall afterward be declared, chap. 9. 11.

⁴ Of his body.

⁵ Hee bringeth a reason, why it must needs be that Christ should have a body, (which he calleth a Tabernacle, which the Lord pight, and no man) to wit, that hee might have what to offer: for otherwise he could not bee an high Priest. And the selfe same body is both the Tabernacle and the sacrifice.

⁶ He giveth a reason, why he said that our high Priest is in the heavenly Sanctuary, and not in the earthly: because saith hee, if hee were now on the earth, he could not minister in the earthly sanctuary, seeing there are yet Leviticall Priests which are appointed for him, that is to say, to be patterns of that perfect example. And to what purpose should the patterns serve when the true & original example is present? Exod. 25. 40. Mat. 7. 44.

⁷ He entrencheth into the comparison of the old and transitory Testament of Covenant, being but for a time, whereof the Leviticall Priests were mediators, with the new, the everlasting Mediatour whereof is Christ, to shew, that this is not only better, then that in all respects, but also that that was abrogated by this.

⁸ He proveth by the testimony of the first that it was not perfect.

CHAP. IX.

2 Comparing the form of the Tabernacle, 10 and the ceremonies of the law, 11 unto the truth set out in Christ, 15 He concludeth that now there is no more need of another Priest, 24 Because Christ himselfe hath fulfilled these duties under the new covenants.

A division of the first Tabernacle, which he calleth worldly, that is to say, transitory, and earthly, into two parts, to wit, into the holy places, and the holiest of all. A earthly and a fitting.

He calleth it the second vail, not because there was two vails, but because it was behind the Sanctuary, or the first Tabernacle.

The Holiest Sanctuary.

Numb. 17. 10.

1 Kings 8. 9.

2 Chron. 5. 10.

Exod. 25. 22.

The Hebrewes call the cover of the Ark of the covenant, the mercy seat, whom both the Grecians and we follow.

Now he cometh to the sacrifices, which he divideth into those daily sacrifices, and that yearly and solemn sacrifice, with the which the high Priest onely, but once every year entering into the Holiest of all with blood, offered for himselfe and the people.

Exod. 30. 10.

Levit. 16. 2.

For the sins.

Look chap. 5. 2.

Of that yearly rite and ceremony, he gathereth that the way was not by such sacrifices opened into heaven, which was shadowed by the Holiest of all: for why did the high Priest alone enter in thither, shutting out all other, and that to offer sacrifices there, both for himselfe, and for others, and after did shut the Holiest of all againe?

An objection: If the way were not opened into heaven by those sacrifices (that is to say, if the worshippers were not purged by them) why then were those ceremonies used? To wit, that men might be called back to that spirituall example, that is to say, to Christ, who should correct all those things at his coming.

For that time that that figure had to last.

An other reason why they could not make cleane the conscience of the worshippers, to wit, because they were outward and carnall, or corporal things.

For they were as you would say, a burden, from which Christ delivered us.

Now he entred into the declaration of the figures, and first of all comparing the Levitical high Priest with Christ, (that is to say, the figure with the thing it selfe) he attributeth to Christ the administration of good things to come, that is, everlasting, which those carnall things had respect unto.

An other comparison of the first corruptible Tabernacle, with the latter, (that is to say, with the humane nature of Christ) which is the true incorruptible Temple of God, whereinto the Son of God entred, as the Levitical high Priests into the other which was fraile and transitory.

By a more excellent and better.

Another comparison of the blood of the sacrifices with Christ. The Levitical high Priests entering by those their holy places into their Sanctuary, offered corruptible blood for one year onely: but Christ entering into that holy body of his, entred by it into heaven it selfe, offering his owne most pure blood for an everlasting redemption: For one selfe same Christ answereth both to the high Priest, and the Tabernacle, and the sacrifices, and the offerings themselves as the truth to the figures, so that Christ is both high Priest, and Tabernacle, and Sacrifice, yea, all those both truly and for ever.

For in this yearly sacrifice of wherein a man there were two kinds of sacrifices, the one a goat, the other a heifer or calf.

Then the first Testament had also ordinances of religion, and a worldly Sanctuary.

2 For the first Tabernacle was made, wherein was the candlestick, and the table, and the shewbread, which Tabernacle is called the Holy places.

3 And after the second vail was the Tabernacle, which is called the Holiest of all,

4 Which had the golden censer, and the Ark of the Testament overlaid round about with gold, wherein the golden pot, which had Manna, was, and Aarons rod that had budded, and the tables of the Testament.

5 And over the ark were the glorious Cherubims, shadowing the mercy seate: of which things we will not now speake particularly.

6 Now when these things were thus ordained, the Priests went alwayes into the first Tabernacle, and accomplished the service.

7 But into the second went the high Priest alone, once every yeare, not without blood which he offered for himselfe, and for the ignorances of the people,

8 Whereby the holy Ghost this signified, that the way into the Holiest of all was not yet opened, while as yet the first Tabernacle was standing,

9 Which was a figure for that present time, wherein were offered gifts and sacrifices that could not make holy, concerning the conscience, him that did the service,

10 Which onely stood in meats and drinks, and divers washings, and carnall rites, which were enjoyed, untill the time of reformation.

11 But Christ being come an high Priest of good things to come, by a greater and a more perfect Tabernacle, not made with hands, that is, not of this building,

12 Neither by the blood of goats and calves: but by his owne blood entred he in once into the Holy place, and obtained eternall redemption for us.

13 For if the blood of bulls, and of goats, and the ashes of an heifer, sprinkling them that are unclean, sanctifieth as touching the purifying of the flesh,

14 How much more shall the blood of Christ, which through the eternall spirit offered himselfe without fault to God, purge your conscience from dead works, to serve the living God?

15 And for this cause he is the Mediatour of the new Testament, that through death which was for the redemption of the transgressions that were in the former Testament, they which were called, might receive the promise of eternall inheritance.

16 For where a Testament is, there must be the death of him that made the Testament.

17 For the Testament is confirmed when men are dead: for it is yet of no force as long as he that made it is alive.

18 Wherefore, neither was the first ordained without blood.

19 For when Moses had spoken every precept to the people, according to the Law, he took the blood of calves and of goats, with water and purple wooll and hyssop, and sprinkled both the book, and all the people, 20 Saying, This is the blood of the Testament, which God hath appointed unto you.

21 Moreover, he sprinkled likewise the Tabernacle with blood also, and all the ministring vessels.

22 And almost all things are by the law purged with blood, and without shedding of blood is no remission.

23 It was then necessary, that the similitudes of heavenly things should be purified with such things: but the heavenly things themselves are purified with better sacrifices then are these:

24 For Christ is not entred into the holy places that are made with hands, which are similitudes of the true Sanctuary: but is entred into very heaven, to appeare now in the sight of God for us, caused this Testament hath the condition of a Testament or gift, which is made effectually by death, and therefore that it might be effectual, it must needs be that he that made the Testament, should die. Gal. 3. 15. 12 There must be a proportion between those things which purifie, and those which are purified: Under the Law all those figures were earthly, The Tabernacle, the book, the vessels, the sacrifices, although they were the signes of heavenly things. Therefore it was requisite that all those should be purified with some matter and ceremony of the same nature, to wit, with the blood of beasts, with water, wooll, hyssop. But under Christ all things are heavenly, an heavenly Tabernacle, an heavenly Sacrifice, an heavenly people, an heavenly doctrine, and heaven it selfe is set open before us for an everlasting habitation. Therefore all these things are sanctified in like sort, to wit, with that everlasting offering of the quickning blood of Christ. As the Lord had commanded. He used to sprinkle. Exod. 24. 8. The similitudes of heavenly things were earthly, and therefore they were to be set forth with earthly things, as with the blood of beasts, and wooll, and hyssop. But under Christ all things are heavenly, and therefore they could not but be sanctified with the offering of his lively blood. 13 Another double comparison: The Levitical high Priest entred into the Sanctuary, which was made indeed by the commandment of God, but yet with mens hands, that it might be a pattern of another more excellent, to wit, of the heavenly palace. But Christ entred even into heaven it selfe. Again, he appeared before the Ark, but Christ before God the Father himselfe.

Levit. 16. 14.

Numb. 19. 4.

9 If the outward sprinkling of blood and ashes of beasts, was a true and effectual sign of purifying and cleansing, how much more shall the thing it selfe, and the truth being present, which in times past was shadowed by those external Sacraments, that is to say, his blood which is in such fort mans blood, that it is also the blood of the Son of God, and therefore hath an everlasting verue of purifying and cleansing, doe it?

He considereth the signes apart, being separate from the thing it selfe.

From sins which proceed from death, and bring forth nothing but death.

10 The conclusion of the former argument: therefore seeing the blood of beasts did not purge sins, the new Testament which was before time promised, whereunto those outward things had respect, is now indeed established, by the verue whereof all transgressions might be taken away, and heaven indeed opened unto us: whereof it followeth, that Christ shed his blood also for the fathers, for he was shadowed by these old ceremonies, otherwise, unless they had served to represent him, they had beene nothing at all profitable. Therefore this Testament is called the latter, not as concerning the verue of it, (that is to say, remission of sins) but in respect of that time, wherein the thing it selfe was finished, that is to say, wherein Christ was indeed exhibited to the world, and fulfilled all things which were necessary to our salvation.

Rom. 5. 6.

1 Pet. 3. 18.

11 A reason why the Testament must be established by the death of the Mediatour, because this Testament hath the condition of a Testament or gift, which is made effectually by death, and therefore that it might be effectual, it must needs be that he that made the Testament, should die.

Gal. 3. 15.

12 There must be a proportion between those things which purifie, and those which are purified: Under the Law all those figures were earthly, The Tabernacle, the book, the vessels, the sacrifices, although they were the signes of heavenly things. Therefore it was requisite that all those should be purified with some matter and ceremony of the same nature, to wit, with the blood of beasts, with water, wooll, hyssop. But under Christ all things are heavenly, an heavenly Tabernacle, an heavenly Sacrifice, an heavenly people, an heavenly doctrine, and heaven it selfe is set open before us for an everlasting habitation. Therefore all these things are sanctified in like sort, to wit, with that everlasting offering of the quickning blood of Christ.

As the Lord had commanded.

He used to sprinkle.

Exod. 24. 8.

The similitudes of heavenly things were earthly, and therefore they were to be set forth with earthly things, as with the blood of beasts, and wooll, and hyssop. But under Christ all things are heavenly, and therefore they could not but be sanctified with the offering of his lively blood.

13 Another double comparison: The Levitical high Priest entred into the Sanctuary, which was made indeed by the commandment of God, but yet with mens hands, that it might be a pattern of another more excellent, to wit, of the heavenly palace. But Christ entred even into heaven it selfe. Again, he appeared before the Ark, but Christ before God the Father himselfe.

14 Another double comparison: The Levitical high Priest offered other blood, but Christ offered his own: hee every year once iterated his offering: Christ offering himselfe but once abolished sin altogether, both of the former ages, and of the ages to come.

15 An argument to prove that Christs offering ought not to be repeated: Seeing that sins were to be purged from the beginning of the world, and it is proved that sins cannot be purged, but by the only blood of Christ: hee must needs have died oftentimes, since the beginning of the world.

But a man can die but once, therefore Christs oblation which was once done in the latter dayes, neither could nor can be repeated. Seeing then it is so, surely the virtue of it extendeth both to sins that were before, and to sins that are after his comming. p In the latter dayes. q That whole root of sin. r He speaketh of the naturall state and condition of man: For as for Lazarus and certaine other that died twice, that was no usuall thing, but extraordinary: and as for them that shall bee changed, their changing is a kind of death, 1 Cor. 15. 51. * Rom. 5. 8. 1 Pet. 3. 18. s Thus the generall promise is restrained to the elect only: and we have to seeke the testimony of our election, not in the secret counsell of God, but in the effects that our faith worketh, and so we must climb up from the lowest step to the highest, there to find such comfort as is most certaine, and shall never bee moved. 16 Shortly by the way hee letteth our Christ as Judge, partly to terrifie them, which doe not rest themselves in the only oblation of Christ once made, and partly to keepe the faithfull in their duty, that they goe not back.

CHAP. X.

1 He proveth that the sacrifices of the law were imperfect, 2 because they were yearly renewed: 3 But that the sacrifice of Christ is one, and perpetual, 4 he proveth by Davids testimony. 19 Then hee addeth an exhortation, 29 and severely threatneth them that reject the grace of Christ. 36 In the end hee praiseeth patience. 38 that commeth of faith.

1 He preventeth a privy objection. Why then were those sacrifices offered? The Apostle answereth, first touching that yearly sacrifice which was the solemnity of all, wherein (saith he) there was made every year a remembrance again of all former sins. Therefore that sacrifice had no power to sanctifie: for to what purpose should those sins which are purged bee repeated againe, and wherefore should new sins come to be repeated every year, if those sacrifices did abolish sin?

2 Of things which are everlasting, which were promised to the Fathers and exhibited in Christ.

3 A conclusion following of those things that went before, and comprehending also the other sacrifices: Seeing that the sacrifices of the law could not doe it, therefore Christ speaking of himselfe as of our high Priest, manifested in the flesh, witnesseth evidently that God rested not in the sacrifices, but in the obedience of his Son our high Priest, in whose obedience he offered up himselfe once to his Father for us. 6 The Son of God is said to come into the world, when he was made man. * Psal. 40. 7. c It is word for word in the Hebrew text. Thou hast pierced mine eares through, that I might not be made more obedient, and willing to heare. d That is, the sacrifice, is established in second, that is, in the obedience of God.

FOR the Law having the shadow of good things to come, and not the very image of the things, can never with those sacrifices, which they offer year by year continually, sanctifie the comers therunto:

2 For would they not then have ceased to have beene offered, because that the offerers once purged, should have had no more conscience of sins?

3 But in those sacrifices there is a remembrance againe of sins every year.

4 For it is impossible that the blood of buls and goats should take away sins.

5 Wherefore when he cometh into the world, he saith, * Sacrifice and offering thou wouldest not: but a body hast thou ordained mee.

6 In burnt-offerings, and sin-offerings thou hast had no pleasure.

7 Then I said, Lo I come (In the beginning of the book it is written of mee) that I should doe thy will, O God.

8 Above, when he said, Sacrifice and offering, and burnt-offerings, and sin-offerings thou wouldest not have, neither hadst pleasure therein (which are offered by the Law)

9 Then said he, Lo, I come to doe thy will, O God: he taketh away the first, that he may establish the second.

10 By the which will wee are sanctified, even by the offering of the body of Jesus Christ once made.

11 And every Priest standeth daily ministring, and oft times offereth one manner of offering, which can never take away sins:

12 But this man after he had offered one sacrifice for sins, sitteth for ever at the right hand of God.

13 And from henceforth tareth, * till his enemies be made his footstool.

14 For with one offering hath he consecrated for ever them that are sanctified.

15 For the holy Ghost also beareth us record: for after that he had said before,

16 * This is the Testament that I will make unto them after those dayes, saith the Lord, I will put my laws in their heart, and in their minds I will write them:

17 And their sins and iniquities will I remember no more.

18 Now where remission of these things is, there is no more offering for sin.

19 Seeing therefore, brethren, that by the blood of Jesus we may be bold to enter into the holy place,

20 By the new and living way, which he hath prepared for us, through the vaile, that is, his flesh:

21 And seeing we have an high Priest, which is, over the house of God,

22 Let us draw neare with a true heart in assurance of faith, our hearts being pure from an evill conscience, 23 And washed in our bodies with pure water, let us keepe the profession of our hope, without wavering (for he is faithful that promised).

24 And let us consider one another, to provoke unto love, and to good works, 25 Not forsaking the fellowship that we have among our selves, as the manner of some is: but let us exhort one another, and that so much the more, because yee see that the day draweth neere.

26 For if wee sin willingly after that we have received and acknowledged that truth, there remaineth no more sacrifice for sins,

27 But a fearefull looking for of judgement, and violent fire, which shall devoure the adversaries:

28 He that despiseth Moses law, dieth

the fault, and the punishment? a Hee said well, for sin: for there remaineth another offering, to wit, of thanksgiving. b The sum of the former treatise: Wee are not shut out now of the holy place, as the Fathers were, but we have an entrance into the true holy place, that is, into heaven: seeing that wee are purged with the blood, not of beasts, but of Jesus. Neither is in times past, doth the high Priest shut us out by setting the vaile against us, but through the vaile which is his flesh, he hath brought us into heaven in himselfe, being present with us, so that wee have now truly an high Priest, which is over the house of God. c So Christ hath sanctified us the Goodwill as it were under a vaile. For otherwise wee were not able to abide the brightness of his face. d A most grave exhortation, wherein hee sheweth how that sacrifice of Christ may be applied to us: to wit, by faith, which also he describeth by the consequences, to wit, by sanctification of the Spirit, which causeth us surely to hope in God, and to procure by all meanes possible one anothers salvation, through the love that is in us one towards another. e With no doubt and counterfeite heart, but with such an hearty and truely & inward given to God. f This is it which the Lord saith, Be ye holy, for I am holy. g With the grace of the holy Ghost. h Having mentioned the last coming of Christ, hee stirreth up the godly to the meditation of an holy life, and cirteth the faithlesse fallers from God to the fearefull judgement seat of the Judge, because they wickedly rejected him in whom only salvation consisteth. i Chap. 6. 4. m Without any cause or occasion, or shew of occasion. n For it is another matter to sin through the frailty of human nature, & another thing to proclaime that as it were to God as to an enemy. o If the breach of the law of Moses was punished by death, how much more worthy death is it to fall away from Christ?

3 A conclusion with the other part of the comparison: The Levitical high Priest repeated the same sacrifices dayly in his sanctuary: whereupon it followeth that neither those sacrifices, neither those offerings, neither those high Priests could take away sins. But Christ having offered one sacrifice once for the sins of all men, and having sanctified his owne for ever, sitteth at the right hand of the Father, having all power in his hands.

4 At the altar. * Chap. 1. 13. Psal. 110. 1.

1 Cor. 15. 25.

4 He preventeth a privy objection, to wit, that yet notwithstanding wee are subject to sin and death, whereunto the Apostle answereth, that the full efficacy of Christs vertue hath not yet shewed itselfe, but shall at length appeare when hee will at once put to flight all his enemies, with whom as yet wee strive.

* Chap. 1. 13.

5 Although there doe yet remain in us residues of sin, yet the worke of our sanctification which is to bee perfected, hangeth upon the selfe same sacrifice which never shall be repeated: and that the Apostle proveth by alleging againe the testimony of Ieremy, thus: Sin is taken away by the new Testament, seeing the Lord saith, that it shall come to passe, that according to the forme of it, hee will no more remember our sins: Therefore we need now no purging sacrifice to take away, that which is already taken away but wee must rather take paines, that wee may now through faith bee partakers of that sacrifice.

37 For yet a very ¹⁵ little while,& he that shall come,will come,and will not tarry.

38 ¹⁶ Now the just shall live by faith: but if ¹⁷ any withdraw himselfe, my soule shall have no pleasure in him.

39 But we are not they which withdraw our selves unto perdition, but ¹⁸ follow faith unto the conservation of the soule.

CHAP. XI.

¹ He declareth in the whole chapter, that the Fathers, which from the beginning of the world were approved of God, attained salvation no other way then by faith, that the Lawes may know, that by the same onely, they are knit unto the Fathers in an holy union.

Now faith is the ground of things which are hoped for, and the evidence of things which are not seene.

2 ² For by it ³ our ⁴ elders were well reported of.

3 ⁵ Through faith we understand that the world was ordained by the word of God,so that the things which we ⁶ see, are not made of things which did appeare.

4 ⁷ By faith Abel ⁸ offered unto God a greater sacrifice then Cain, by the which hee obtained witnessse that hee was righteous, God testifying of his gifts: by ⁹ the which ¹⁰ faith also he being dead, yet speaketh.

5 ¹¹ By faith was ¹² Enoch translated, as from the beginning of the world excelleth in the Church. ¹³ So that the world which we see, was not made of any matter that appeared, or was before, but of nothing. 4 Abel, * Gen. 44. * Matth. 23. 35. 5 Enoch, * Gen. 5. 24.

that he should not ¹⁴ see death: neither was he found: for God had translated him: for before he was translated, he was reported of, that he had pleased God.

6 But without faith it is impossible to please ¹⁵ him: for he that cometh to God, must beleeve that God is, and that he is a ¹⁶ rewarder of them that seeke him.

7 ¹⁷ By faith ¹⁸ Noe being warned of God of the things which were as yet not seene, moved with reverence, prepared the ark to the saving of his household, through the which ¹⁹ Ark he condemned the world, and was made heire of the righteousnesse, which is by faith.

8 ²⁰ By faith ²¹ Abraham when hee was called, obeyed God, to goe out into a place, which he should afterward receive for inheritance, and he went out, not knowing whither he went.

9 By faith he abode in the land of promise, as in a strange countrey, as one that dwelt in tents with Isaac and Jacob, heirs with him of the same promise:

10 For hee looked for a city having a ²² foundation, whose builder and maker is God.

11 Through faith ²³ Sara also received strength to conceive seed, and was delivered of a child when she was past age, because she judged him faithfull which had promised.

12 And therefore sprang thereof one, even of one which was ²⁴ dead, so many as the stars of the skie in multitude, and as the sand of the sea shore wch is innumerable.

13 All these died in ²⁵ faith, and received not the ²⁶ promises, but saw them a far off, and beleeved ²⁷ them, and ²⁸ received ²⁹ them thankfully, and confessed that they were strangers and pilgrims on the earth.

14 For they that saw such things, declare plainly, that they seeke a countrey.

15 And if they had beene mindfull of that ³⁰ countrey from whence they came out, they had leasure to have returned.

16 But now they desire a better, that is, an heavenly: wherefore God is not ashamed of them to be called their God: for he hath prepared for them a city.

17 By faith ³¹ Abraham offered up Isaac, when he was ³² tried, and he that had received the ³³ promises, offered his onely begotten Son,

18 (To whom it was said, ³⁴ * In Isaac shall thy seed be called)

19 For he considered that God was able to raise ³⁵ him up even from the dead: from whence he received him also after ³⁶ a sort.

20 ³⁷ By faith ³⁸ Isaac blessed Jacob and Esau, concerning things to come.

21 ³⁹ By faith ⁴⁰ Jacob when he was a dying blessed both the sons of Joseph, and

⁴¹ leaning

¹⁴ That hee should not die.

¹⁵ This reward is not referred to our merits, but to the free promise, as Paul teacheth in Abraham the father of all the faithfull, Rom. 4. 4. 6 Noe. * Gen. 6. 13.

²¹ Abraham and Sara. * Gen. 12. 4.

²⁵ In faith, which they had while they lived, and followed them even to their grave.

²⁶ This is the figure Metonymia, for the things promised. ²⁷ For the Patriarches were wont when they received the promises, to profess their religion, by building of altars, and calling on the name of the Lord.

* Gen. 22. 10.

³¹ Tried of the Lord, ³² Although the promises of life, were made in that onely begotten son Isaac, yet he appointed him to die, and so against hope, hee beleeved in hope.

³⁸ Isaac.

* Gen. 27. 28. 39.

⁴⁰ Jacob.

* Gen. 48. 15.

¹⁰ The reason of all these things is, because God is a revenger of such as despise him: otherwise hee should not rightly governe his Church. Now there is nothing more horrible then the wrath of the living God.

33 Which through faith subdued kingdoms, wrought righteousness, obtained the promises, stopped the mouths of lions,

34 Quenched the violence of fire, escaped the edge of the sword, of weak were made strong, waxed valiant in battell, turned to flight the armies of the aliens:

35 The ^t women received their dead raised to life: other also were ^v racked, and would not be delivered, that they might receive a better resurrection.

C H A P. XII.

¹ He doeth not onely by the examples of the Fathers before recited exhort them to patience and constancy, ³ but also by the example of Christ. ¹¹ That the chastening of God cannot be rightly judged by the outward sense of our flesh.

Wherefore, ¹ let us also, seeing that we are compassed with so great a cloud of witnesses, cast away every thing that presseth down, and the sin that ^a hangeth so fast on: let us run with patience the race that is set before us,

2 ² Looking unto Jesus the authour and finisher of our faith, who for the ^c joy that was set before him, endured the crosse, and despised the shame, and is set at the right hand of the throne of God.

3 ³ Consider therefore him that endured such speaking against of sinners, lest ye should be wearied & faint in your minds.

4 ⁴ Ye have not yet resisted unto blood, striving against sin.

5 ⁵ And ye have forgotten the consolation, which speaketh unto you as unto children, * My son, despise not the chastening of the Lord, neither faint when thou art rebuked of him.

6 For whom the Lord loveth, he chasteneth: and he scourgeth every son that he receiveth.

7 If ye endure chastening, God offereth himselfe unto you as unto sons: for what son is it whom the father chasteneth not?

8 If therefore ye be without correction, whereof all are partakers, then are ye bastards, and not sons.

9 ⁶ Moreover we have had the fathers of our bodies which corrected us, and we gave them reverence: should we not much rather be in subjection unto the father of spirits, that we might live?

10 ⁷ For they verily for a few dayes chastened us after their own pleasure; but he ^{chasteneth us} for our profit, that we might be partakers of his holiness.

11 Now no chastening for the present seemeth to be joyous, but grievous: but afterward, it bringeth the quiet fruit of righteousness, unto them which are thereby exercised.

12 ⁸ Wherefore lift up ^{your} hands which more subject to ³ our Father, who is the authour of the spirit, and everlasting life? ⁷ An amplification of the same argument: Those fathers have corrected us, after their fancy, for some frail and transitory profit: but God chasteneth and instructeth us for our singular profit, to make us partakers of his holiness: which thing although these our senses do not presently perceive, yet the end of the matter proveth it. ⁸ The conclusion, we must goe forward contagiously and keep always a right course, and (as for forth as we may) without any staggering or stumbling.

16 An amplification taken of the circumstance of the time: their faith is so much the more to be marvelled at, by how much the promises of things to come were more dark, yet as length were a For sin beseegeth us on all sides, so that we cannot escape it.

2 Hee setteth before us, as the mark of this race, Jesus himselfe our captaine, who willingly overcame all the roughness of the same way.

3 An amplification, taken of the circumstance of the persons and the things themselves, which he compared between themselves: for how great is Jesus in comparison of us, and how far more grievous things did he suffer then we?

4 He taketh an argument of the profit which cometh to us by Gods chastisements, unless we be in fault. First of all, because sin, or that rebellious wickedness of our flesh, is by this means tamed.

5 Secondly, because they are testimonies of his fatherly good will toward us, in so much that they shew themselves to be bastards, which cannot abide to be chastened of God.

* Prov. 3. 11.

6 Thirdly, if all men yeeld this right to fathers, to whom next after God we owe this life, that they may rightfully correct their children, that we nor be much more subject to ³ our Father, who is the authour of the spirit, and everlasting life? ⁷ An amplification of the same argument: Those fathers have corrected us, after their fancy, for some frail and transitory profit: but God chasteneth and instructeth us for our singular profit, to make us partakers of his holiness: which thing although these our senses do not presently perceive, yet the end of the matter proveth it. ⁸ The conclusion, we must goe forward contagiously and keep always a right course, and (as for forth as we may) without any staggering or stumbling.

They which in times past served the Tabernacle, did not eat of the sacrifices whose blood was brought for sin into the holy place by the high Priest. Moreover these sacrifices did represent Christ our offering. Therefore they cannot be partakers of him which serve the Tabernacle, that is, such as stand in the service of the Law: but let us not be ashamed to follow him out of Hierusalem, from whence he was cast out and suffered: for in this also Christ, who is the truth, sheweth that figure, in that he suffered without the gate. ^{aq} By the Altar, he meaneth the offering. ^{ar} We have if they cannot be partakers which stubbornly retain the rites of the Law. ^{as} Levit. 4. 11. and 6. 30. and 16. 27. ^{at} He goeth on further in this comparison, and sheweth that this also is signified unto us, that the godly followers of Christ must as it were go out of the world bearing his cross. ^{au} Mat. 2. 10. ^{av} Now yf those corporall sacrifices are taken away, he teacheth us yf the true sacrifices of confession remain, which consist partly in giving of thanks, and partly in liberality, with which sacrifices indeed God is now delighted.

10 We must obey the warnings and admonitions of our Ministers and Elders, which watch for the salvation of the souls which are committed unto them. 11 The last part of this Epistle, wherein hee commendeth his ministry to the Hebrewes, and wisheth them continuance and increase of graces from the Lord; and exhorteth himselfe in that he hath used but few words to comfort them, having spent the Epistle in disputing: and salureth certaine brethren familiarly and friendly.

18 * Pray for us: for we are assured that wee have a good conscience in all things, desiring to live honestly.

19 And I desire you somewhat the more earnestly, that yee so doe, that I may be restored to you the more quickly.

THE ^a GENERALL EPISTLE OF IAMES.

CHAP. I.

4 He entreateth of patience, 6 of faith, 10 and of lowliness of mind in rich men. 13 That temptations come not of God for our evils: 17 because hee is the author of all goodnesse. 21 In what manner the word of life must be received.

IAMES a servant of God, and of the Lord Jesus Christ, to the twelve Tribes, which are ^b scattered abroad, salutation.

2 * My brethren, count it exceeding joy, ^c when yee fall into divers temptations;

3 *^a Knowing that the ^d trying of your faith bringeth forth patience,

4 * And let patience have her perfect work, that yee may be perfect and entire, lacking nothing.

5 * If any of you lack ^e wisdom, let him aske of God, which giveth to all men liberally, and reprocheth no man, and it shall be given him:

6 * But let him aske in faith, and ^f waver not: ^g for he that wavereth, is like a wave of the sea, tost of the wind, and caried away.

7 Neither let that man thinke that hee shall receive any thing of the Lord.

8 A double minded man ^h unstable in ⁱ all his wayes.

9 7 Let the brother of ^j low degree rejoyce in that he is exalted:

10 * Again, he that is ^k rich, in that he is made low: ^l for as the flowre of the grasse, shall he ^m vanish away.

11 For ⁿ as when the sun riseth with heat, then the grasse withereth, and his flowre falleth away, and the goodly shape of it perissheth: even so shall the rich man wither away in ^o all his ^p wayes.

12 10 * Blessed ^q the man, that endureth ^r temptation: for when he is tried, he shall receive the crowne of life, which the Lord hath promised to them that love him.

13 * Let no man say when he is ^s tempted, I am tempted of God: ^t for God cannot be tempted with evill, neither tempteth hee any man:

14 But every man is tempted, when he is drawn away by his owne concupiscence, and is enticed.

g In all his thoughts and his deeds.
h He returneth to his purpose, repeating the proposition, which is what we must rejoyce in the crosse, for it doth not presse us downe, but exalts us.

i Who is afflicted with poverty, or content, or with any kind of calamity.

j Before he concludeth, he giveth a doctrine contrary to the former: to wit, how wee ought to use prosperity, which is plenty of all things: to wit, so that no man therefore please himselfe, but bee so much the more void of pride.

k Who hath all things at his will.

l An argument taken of the very nature of the things themselves, for that they are most vain and uncertain.

m Isai. 40. 6.

n Per. 1. 24.

o Whatsoever he can the purpose in his mind, or death. 10 The conclusion: therefore we must patiently beare the crosse: and he addeth a fourth argument, which comprahendeth the sum of all the former, to wit, because we come by this way to the crowne of life, but yet of grace according to the promise. * Job. 5. 17. 1 Affliction whereby the Lord trieth him. 11 The third part of this Epistle, wherein he descendeth from outward temptations, that is, from afflictions whereby God trieth us: to inward, that is, to those lusts whereby we are stirred up to doe evill. The sum is this: Every man is the author of these temptations to himselfe, and not God: for wee beare about in our bosoms that wicked corruption, which taketh occasion by what means soever, to stir up evill motions in us, whence out at length proceed wicked doings, and in conclusion followeth death, the just reward of them. 20 When hee is provoked to the evill. 12 Here is a reason shewed, why God cannot be the author of evill doing in us, because he desireth not evill.

15 Then a That is, written to one man, city, or country, but to all the Jewes generally, being now disperst.

b To all the believing Jewes, of what tribe soever they be, and are disperst thorow the whole world.

c The first place or part touching comfort in afflictions, wherein we ought not to be cast downe, and be faint hearted, but rather rejoyce and be glad.

d Seeing their condition was miserable in that scattering abroad, hee doth well to begin as he doth.

e The first argument, because our faith is tried through afflictions: which ought to be most pure, for so it is becommeable for us.

f Rom. 5. 3.

g The second, because patience, a far passing and most excellent vertue, is by this meanes ingendred in us. d That wherewith your faith is tried, to wit, those manifold temptations. 4 The third argument propounded in manner of an exhortation, that true and continuall patience may be discerned from fained, and for a time. The crosse is as it were the instrument wherewith God doth polish and fine us. Therefore the work and effect of afflictions, is the perfecting of us in Christ. 5 An answer to a privy objection. It is easily said, but it is not so easily done. He answereth that we need in this case a far other manner of wisdom, then the wisdom of man, to judge those things best for us, which are most contrary to the flesh: but yet wee shall easily obtaine this gift of wisdom, if we aske it rightly, that is, with a sure confidence of God, who is most bountifull and liberall. e By wisdom, he meaneth the knowledge of that doctrine wherewith mention is made before, to wit, wherefore we are afflicted of God, and what fruit we have to reap of affliction. f Matth. 7. 7. Marke 11. 25. Luke 11. 9. Iohn 14. 13. and 16. 23. g Why then, what need other Mediators? 6 A digression, or going aside from his matter, against prayers, which are conceived with a doubting mind, whereas we have a certaine promise of God, and this is the second part of the Epistle.

^a By sin is meant in this place, actual sin.

¹³ Another reason taken of contraries: God is the author of all goodnesse, and so, that he is alwayes like himselfe: how then can hee bee thought to be the author of euill?

^e From him who is the fountain and author of all goodnesse.

^f Hee goeth on in the metaphor, for the sun by his manifold and sundry kindes of turning, maketh heates, dayes, minuts, yeares, light, and darkness.

¹⁴ The fourth part concerning the excellency and fruit of the word of God. The sum is this: wee must heare the word of God most carefully and diligently, seeing it is the seed, wherewith God of his free fauour and love hath begotten us unto himselfe, picking us out of the number of his creatures. And the Apostle condemneth two faults, which doe greatly trouble us in this manner, to wit, for that wee so please our selves, that wee had rather speake our fancies, then heare Gods speaking: yea we truste and are angry when wee are reprehended: against which faults, he setteth a peaceable and quiet mind, and such an one as is desirous of purity.

^g This is it which Paul calleth gracious fauour, and good will, which is the fountain of our salvation.

^h As it were an holy kind of offering, taken out of the residue of men.

ⁱ Preu. 17. 27.

^j That which God appereth.

^k By meeknesse, hee meaneth modesty, and whatsoeuer is contrary to an haughty and proud stomack. Math. 7. 21. Rem. 2. 13.

^l Another admonition: therefore is Gods word heard, that we may frame our liues according to the precept thereof.

^m He addeth reasons, and those most weighty: First, because they that do otherwise, do very much hurt themselves.

ⁿ Secondly, because they lose the chiefest use of Gods word, which correct not by it faults they know.

^o He alludeth to the naturall spot, to which is contrary that purity wherunto we are borne againe, the truly change wherof we behold in the law.

^p Behaving himselfe so: for works doe shew faith.

^q The third admonition, the word of God preferibeth a rule not onely to doe well, but also to speake well.

^r The fountain of all brabing, and cursed speaking, and fauouritisme, is that, that men know not themselves.

^s The fourth: the true service of God standeth in charity toward our neighbours (especially such as need others help, as the fatherlesse and widowes) and purity of liue.

^t To haue a care of them, and to help them, as much as we can.

^u The fifth: charity which proceedeth from a true faith, cannot stand with the accepting of persons: which he prooeth plainly, by setting forth their example, who with the reproach or disdain of the poore, honour the rich.

^v For if wee know what Christs glory is, and esteeme it: as we ought to doe, there would not be such respect of persons as there is.

^w Levit. 19. 5. Deut. 1. 17, and 36. 19. Preu. 24. 23.

15 Then when lust hath conceived, it bringeth forth ^a sin, and sin when it is finished, bringeth forth death:

16 ¹³ Erre not, my deare brethren.

17 Every good giving, and every perfect gift is from above, and cometh downe from the ^o Father of lights, with whom is no variablenesse, neither ^p shadow of turning.

18 ¹⁴ Of his own ^q will begate he us with the word of truth, that we should be as the ^r first fruits of his creatures.

19 Wherefore, my deare brethren, ^s let every man be swift to heare, slow to speak, and slow to wrath.

20 For the wrath of man doeth not accomplish the ^t righteousness of God.

21 Wherefore lay apart all filthines, & superfluity of malicioussnesse, and receive with ^u meeknesse the word that is graffed in you, which is able to save your soules.

22 ¹⁵ And be yee doers of the word, and not hearers onely; ^v deceiving your owne selves.

23 ¹⁷ For if any heare the word, and do it not, he is like unto a man, that beholdeth his ^w naturall face in a glasse.

24 For when he hath considered himselfe, he goeth his way, and forgetteth immediately what manner of one he was.

25 But who so looketh in the perfect law of liberty, and continueth therein, he not being a forgetfull hearer, but a doer of the work, shall be blessed in his ^x deed.

26 ¹⁸ If any man among you seemeth religious, and refraineth not his tongue, but deceiveth his ^y owne heart, this mans religion is vaine.

27 ¹⁹ Pure religion and undefiled before God, even the Father, is this, to ^z visite the fatherlesse, and widowes in their aduersity, and to keep himselfe unspotted of the world.

CHAP. II.

¹ He saith, that to haue respect of persons is not agreeable to Christian faith, ¹⁴ which to professe in words is not enough, unless ¹⁵ we shew it also in deeds of mercy and charity, as after the example of Abraham.

MY brethren, have not the faith of our glorious Lord Jesus Christ ^{*} in respect of persons.

2 For if there come into your company a man with a gold ring, and in goodly apparell, and there come in also a poore man in vile raiment,

3 And yee have a respect to him that weareth the gay clothing, and say unto him, Sit thou heere in a ^b goodly place, and say unto the poore, Stand thou there, or sit here under my footstool.

4 Are yee not partiall in ^c your selves, and are become judges of euill thoughts?

5 ² Harken my beloved brethren, hath not God chosen the ^d poore of his world, that they should be rich in faith, and heires of the kingdome which he promised to them that love him?

6 But ye have despised the poore. ^e Doe not the rich oppresse you by tyranny, and doe not they draw you before the judgement sears?

7 Doe not they blaspheme the worthy Name after which ye be ^f named?

8 ⁴ But if ye fulfill the ^g royall Law, according to the Scripture, which saith, Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thy selfe, yee doe well.

9 But if ye regard the persons, ye commit sin, and are rebuked of the Law, as transgressours.

10 ⁵ For whosoever shall keepe the whole Law, and yet faileth in one point, he is guilty of ^h all.

11 ⁶ For he that said, Thou shalt not commit adultery, said also, Thou shalt not kill. Now though thou doest none adultery, yet if thou killest, thou art a transgressor of the Law.

12 ⁷ So speake yee, and so do, as they that shall be judged by the Law of liberty.

13 For there shall bee condemnation mercilesse to him that sheweth ⁱ not mercy, and mercy rejoyceth against condemnation.

14 ^{*} What availeth it, my brethren, though a man faith he hath faith, when he hath no works? can that faith save him?

15 ⁹ For if a brother or a sister be naked and destitute of dayly food, 16 And one of you say unto them, Depart in peace, warme yours selves, and fill your bellies: notwithstanding yee give them not those things which are needfull to the body, what helpeth it?

17 Even so the faith, if it have no works, is dead in it selfe.

18 But ^j some man might say, Thou hast the faith, and I have works: shew mee thy faith out of thy works, and I will shew thee my faith by my works.

⁶ A prooof: because the Law maker is alwayes one and the selfe same, and the body of the Law cannot be diuided. ⁷ The conclusion of the whole treatise: we are upon this condition delivered from the curse of the Law by the mercy of God, that in like sort we should maintaine and cherish charity and good will one towards another, and who to do so, shall not tast of the grace of God. ⁸ He that is hard and curst against his neighbour, or else helpeth him not, he shall find God an hard and rough iudge to himselfe. ⁹ The fifth place which hangeth very well with the former treatise, touching a true and lively faith. And the proposition of the place is this: Faith which bringeth not forth works, is not that faith whereby we are iustified, but an image of faith: or else this, they are not iustified by faith, which shew not the effects of faith. ¹⁰ The first reason taken of a similitude: If a man say to one that is hungry, Fill thy belly, and yet giveth him nothing, this shall not be true charity: so if a man say he beleeveth, and bringeth forth no works by his faith, this shall not be a true faith, but a certaine dead thing set out with the name of faith, whereof no man hath to brag, unless he will openly incur reprobation, seeing that the cause is understood by the effect. ¹¹ Nay: how may every man boast himselfe thy pride.

19 ¹⁰ Thou

^b In a worshipfull and honourable place.

^c Have yee not (which yett ye doe not) to doe yett the meares within your ieiues iudged one man to be preferred before another?

^d Hee sheweth, that they are perverse and naughty Judges, which preferre the rich before the poore, by that that God on the contrary side preferreth the poore, whom hee hath enriched with true riches, before the rich.

^e The needy and wretched, and if ye measure it after the opinion of the world, the vertues abound of all men.

^f Secondly, hee prooeth them to be mad men: for that the rich men are rather to be holden execrable and cursed, considering that they persecute the Church, and blaspheme Christ: for hee speaketh of wicked and prophane rich men, such as the most part of them have become alwayes, against whom he setteth the poore and abiection.

^g Word for word, which is called upon of you.

^h The conclusion: Charity which God preferibeth cannot agree with the accepting of persons, seeing that wee must walk in the kings high way.

ⁱ The Law is said to be royall and like the kings high way, for that it is plaine and without turning, and that the Law calleth every one our neighbour without respect, whom we may helpe by any kind of duty.

^j A new argument to prove the same conclusion: They doe not love their neighbours, which neglect some, and ambitiously honour others: for he doeth not obey God, which cutteth off from the commandements of God that is not to commo-dious for him, nay he is rather guilty generally of the breach of the whole Law, although he observe the residue.

^k Not that all sin are equal, but because he that breaketh one titlle of the Law, offendeth the maiesty of the Law-giver.

^l A prooof: because the Law maker is alwayes one and the selfe same, and the body of the Law cannot be diuided.

^m The conclusion of the whole treatise: we are upon this condition delivered from the curse of the Law by the mercy of God, that in like sort we should maintaine and cherish charity and good will one towards another, and who to do so, shall not tast of the grace of God.

ⁿ He that is hard and curst against his neighbour, or else helpeth him not, he shall find God an hard and rough iudge to himselfe.

^o The fifth place which hangeth very well with the former treatise, touching a true and lively faith. And the proposition of the place is this: Faith which bringeth not forth works, is not that faith whereby we are iustified, but an image of faith: or else this, they are not iustified by faith, which shew not the effects of faith.

^p The first reason taken of a similitude: If a man say to one that is hungry, Fill thy belly, and yet giveth him nothing, this shall not be true charity: so if a man say he beleeveth, and bringeth forth no works by his faith, this shall not be a true faith, but a certaine dead thing set out with the name of faith, whereof no man hath to brag, unless he will openly incur reprobation, seeing that the cause is understood by the effect.

^q Nay: how may every man boast himselfe thy pride.

ye not that the amity of the world is the enmity of God? Whosoever therefore will be a friend of the world, maketh himselfe the enemy of God.

5 * Doe yee thinke that the Scripture faith in vaine, The Spirit that dwelleth in us, lusteth after envy?

6 But the Scripture offereth more grace, and therefore saith, * God resisteth the proud, and giveth grace to the humble.

7 * Submit your selves to God: resist the devill, and he will flee from you.

8 Draw neere to God, and he will draw neer to you. Cleanse your hands, yee sinners, and purge your hearts, yee double minded.

9 * Suffer afflictions, and sorrow ye, & weep: let your laughter be turned into mourning, and your joy into heavinesse.

10 * Cast down your selves before the Lord, and he will lift you up.

11 ⁷ Speak not evill one of another, brethren. Hee that speaketh evill of his brother, or he that condemneth his brother, speaketh evill of the Law, and condemneth the Law: and if thou condemnest the Law, thou art not an observer of the Law, but a Judge.

12 There is one Lawgiver, which is able to save, and to destroy. * Who art thou that judgest another man?

13 * Go to now, ye that say. To day or to morrow we will goe into such a city, and continue there a yeare, and buy and sell, and get gaine,

14 (And yet ye cannot tell what shall be to morrow. For what is your life? It is even a vapour that appeareth for a little time, and afterward vanisheth away)

15 For that yee ought to say, * If the Lord will, and, If we live, wee will doe this or that.

16 But now yee rejoyce in your boastings: all such rejoycing is evill.

17 * Therefore, to him that knoweth how to doe well, and doeth it not, to him it is sin.

CHAP. V.

12 He threatneth the rich with Gods severe judgement, for their pride. 7 that the poore hearing the miserable end of the rich, 8 may patiently beare afflictions, 11 as Job did, 14 even in their distresses.

GOe to now, yee rich men: weep, and howle for your miseries that shall come upon you.

4 The taking away of an objection: In deed our minds run headlong into these vices, but wee ought so much the more diligently to take heed of them: which care and study shall not be in vaine, seeing that God resisteth the stubborne, and giveth that grace to the modest and humble that surmounteth all those vices.

* Proverb. 3. 34. 1 Pet. 5. 5.

* Ephes. 4. 27.

5 The conclusion:

Wee must let the contrary vertues against those vices, and therefore whereas we obeyed the suggestions of the devill, wee must submit our minds to God, and resist the devill, with a certaine and assured hope of victory. To be short, we must employ our selves to come neere unto God by purity and sincerity of life.

6 Hee goeth on in the same comparison of contraries, and setteth against those profane ioyes and earnest sorrow of mind, and against pride and arrogance, holy modesty. a By this word, the Grecians mean an heaviness of heart, which is to be seen in a cast down countenance, and settled as it were upon the ground.

* 1 Pet. 5. 6.

7 He reprehendeth most sharply another double mischief of pride: the one is, in that the proud will have other men to live according to their will and pleasure, and therefore they doe most arrogantly condemne whatsoever pleaseth them not: which thing cannot be done without great injury to our onely Lawmaker, for by this meanes his Lawes are found fault withall, as not circumpectly enough written, and men challenge that unto themselves, which properly belongeth to God alone, in that they lay a Law upon mens consciences. * Rom. 14. 4. 8 The other fault is this: That men doe so confidently determine upon these and those matters and businesses, as though that every moment of their life did not depend of God. * 1 Cor. 4. 19. 9 The conclusion of all the former Treatise. The knowledge of the will of God, doeth not onely nothing at all profit, unless the life be answerable unto it, but also maketh the sins far more grievous.

1 He denounceth utter destruction to the wicked and profane rich men, and such as are drowned in their riotousnesse, mocking at their foolish confidence, when as there is nothing indeed more vaine then such things.

2 Your riches are corrupt, and your garments are moth-eaten.

3 Your gold and silver is cankered, and the rust of them shall be a witness against you, and shall eat your flesh, as it were fire. Ye have heaped up treasure for the last dayes.

4 Behold, the hire of the labourers, which have reaped your fields (which is of you kept back by fraud) crieth, and the cries of them which have reaped, are entered into the eares of the Lord of hostes.

5 Ye have lived in pleasure on the earth, and in wantonnesse. Yee have^b nourished your hearts, as in a^c day of slaughter.

6 Yee have condemned and have killed the just, and he hath not resisted you.

7 * Be patient therefore, brethren, unto the comming of the Lord. * Behold, the husbandman waiteth for the precious fruit of the earth, & hath long patience for it, untill he receive the former, & the latter rain.

8 Be ye also patient therefore, and settle your hearts: for the comming of the Lord draweth neere.

9 * ^d Grudge not one against another, brethren, lest ye be condemned: behold, the judge standeth before the doore.

10 * Take, my brethren, the Prophets for an example of suffering adversity, and of long patience, which have spoken in the Name of the Lord.

11 Behold, wee count them blessed which endure. Yee have heard of the patience of Job, and have knowen what^e end the Lord made. For the Lord is very pitifull and mercifull.

12 ⁷ But before all things, my brethren, * sweare not, neither by heaven, nor by earth, nor by any other oath: but let^f your yea, be yea, and your nay, nay, lest ye fall into condemnation.

13 * Is any among you afflicted? Let him pray. Is any merry? Let him sing.

14 * Is any sick among you? Let him call for the Elders of the Church, and let them pray for him, and anoint him with^g oyle in the^h Name of the Lord.

15 And the prayer of faith shall save the sick, and the Lord shall raise him up: and if he have committedⁱ sins, they shall be forgiven him.

16 * Acknowledge your faults one to another, and pray one for another, that ye may be healed: ^j for the prayer of a right a The Lord who is more mighty then ye are, hath heard them.

b Ye have pampered up your selves.

c The Hebrewes call a day that is appointed to solemn banqueting, a day of slaughter or feasting.

d He applieth that to the poore, which hee speake against the rich, warning them to wait for the Lords comming patiently, who will revenge the injuries which the rich men doe them.

e The taking away of an objection: Although his comming seeme to linger, yet at the last we must follow the husbandmen, who doe patiently wait for the times that are proper for the fruits of the earth.

f And againe, God will not deferre the least iot of the time that he hath appointed.

g He commendeth Christian patience, for that whereas other through impatience use to accuse one another, the faithfull on the contrary side, complaine not, although they receive injury.

h By grudging, hee meaneth a certain inward complaining which betokeneth impatience.

i The conclusion: the Lord is at the doore: who will defend his owne, and revenge his enemies, and therefore we need not to trouble our selves.

j Because most men are wont to object, that it is good to repell injuries by what meanes soever, hee setteth against that the examples of the fathers, whose patience had a most happy end, because God as a most bountifull Father, never forsaketh his children.

k What end the Lord saith.

l Because even the best men sometimes through impatience breake out into oaths, sometimes lesser, sometimes greater, the Apostle warneth us to detest such wickednesse, and to accustom our tongues to simple and true talke.

m Matth. 5. 34.

n That that you have to say or affirme, speake or affirme it simply, and without an oath: and that that you will deny, deny it simply and flatly.

o He sheweth the best remedy against all afflictions, to wit, prayers which have their place both in sorrow and joy.

p He sheweth peculiarly, to what physicians especially we must goe, when we are diseased, to wit, to the prayers of the Elders, which then also could cure the body, (for so much as the gift of healing was then in force) and take away the chiefeest cause of sicknesses and diseases, by obtaining for us sick through their prayers and exhortation, remission of sins.

q This is a sign of the gift of healing, and now seeing we have the gift no more, the signe is no longer necessary.

r By calling on the Name of the Lord, he hath reason in making mention of sins, for diseases are for the most part sent because of sins.

s Because God pardoneth their sins which confesse and acknowledge them, and not theirs which iustifie themselves, therefore the Apostle addeth, that we ought freely to confesse one with another touching those inward diseases, that we may help one another with our prayers.

t He commendeth prayers by the effects that come of them, that all men may understand that there is nothing more effectfull then they are, so that they proceed from a pure mind.

THE FIRST EPISTLE GENERALL OF PETER.

CHAP. I.

1 He extollet Gods mercy shewed in Christ which we lay hold on by faith, and possesse through hope: 10. whereof the Prophets foretold. 13 He exhorteth 15 to renounce the world, 23 and their former life, and so wholly yeeld themselves to God.

ETER an Apostle of JESVS CHRIST, to the strangers that dwell heere and there throughout Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, Asia, and Bithynia,

2 1 Elect according to the foreknowledge of God the Father unto sanctification of the Spirit, through obedience and sprinkling of the blood of Jesus Christ: Grace and peace be multiplied unto you.

3 Blessed be God, even the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, which according to his abundant mercy hath begotten us againe unto a lively hope by the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead,

4 To an inheritance immortall and undefiled, and that withereth not, reserved in heaven for us,

5 2 Which are kept by the power of God through faith unto salvation, which is prepared to be shewed in the last time.

6 Wherein yee rejoyce, though now for a season (if need require) ye are in heaviness, through manifold tentations,

7 That the triall of your faith, being much more precious then gold that perisheth (though it be tried with fire) might be found unto your praise, and honour and glory at the appearing of Jesus Christ:

8 Whom ye have not seen, and yet love him, in whom now, though ye see him not, yet do you beleeve, and rejoyce with joy unspeakable and glorious,

1 Peter purposing to speak of the duties of a Christian life, reasoneth first of the principles and beginnings of all Christian actions, rising farre higher then nature, and carrying us also far above the same. For hee sheweth that wee which are otherwise of nature sinners, were through the free mercy of God the Father, first chosen from everlasting: then according to that everlasting decree, were by a certaine second creation made his sons in Christ his only begotten, by whose Spirit wee are inwardly changed, and by whose blood wee are also reconciled, to the end, that as Christ himselfe rose againe from the dead, wee also might bee received into that same heavenly and everlasting glory. Or, according to the purpose of God, who never altereth nor shaketh the same. That being set apart from the rest of this wicked world, through the working of the holy Ghost, they should be consecrated to God, Ephes. 1. 5. Everlasting hope. Now he sheweth by what way wee come unto that glory, to wit, through all kind of afflictions, wherein notwithstanding faith maketh us so secure, that we are not onely not overcome with sorrow, but also through the beholding of God himselfe (who otherwise is invisible) with the eyes of faith: are unspeakably joyfull: because, all such things, as they are but for a time, so are they not applied unto us to destroy us, but as it were by fire to purge us, and to make us perfect, that at the length we may obtaine salvation. That is that time which Daniel calleth the time of the end, when as that great restoring of all things shall be, which all creatures looke for. Rom. 8. 19. He speaketh of the second coming of Christ.

9 Receiving the end of your faith, even the salvation of your soules.

10 3 Of the which salvation the Prophets have enquired and searched, which prophesied of the grace that should come unto you,

11 Searching when or at what time the Spirit which testified before of Christ which was in them, should declare the sufferings that should come unto Christ, and the glory that should follow.

12 Unto whom it was revealed, that not unto themselves, but unto us they should minister the things, which are now shewed unto you by them which have preached unto you, the Gospel by the holy Ghost sent down from heaven, the which things the Angels desire to behold.

13 4 Wherefore, gird up the loyns of your mind: be sober, and trust perfectly on that grace that is brought unto you, in the revelation of Jesus Christ,

14 5 As obedient children, not fashioning your selves unto the former lusts of your ignorance:

15 But as he which hath called you is holy, so be ye holy in all manner of conversation, 16 9 Because it is written, * Be ye holy, for I am holy.

17 10 And if ye call him Father, which without respect of person judgeth according to every mans work, passe the time of your dwelling here in feare:

18 11 Knowing that ye were not redemed

unless they girded up themselves: and hence it is that Christ said, Let your loynes be girded up. 5 He setteth forth very briefly, what manners of hope ours ought to be, to wit, continuall, untill we enjoy the thing we hope for: then, what we have to hope for: to wit, grace (that is, free salvation revealed to us in the Gospel, and not that, that men doe rashly and fondly promise to themselves. 6 Soundly and sincerely. 6 An argument to stir up our minds, seeing that God doeth not waite till we seeke him, but causeth so great a benefit to be brought even unto us. 7 He setteth out the end of faith, lest any should promise himselfe, either soone or latter, that full salvation, to wit, the latter coming of Christ, and therewithall warneth us, not to measure the dignity of the Gospel according to the present estate, seeing that that which we are now, is not yet revealed. 8 He passeth from faith and hope, to the fruits of them both, which are understood in the name of obedience: And it consisteth in two things, in renouncing our lusts, and living godly: which lusts have their beginning of that blindness wherein all men are borne: but holiness proceedeth from the grace and favour of God which adopteth us, and therefore regenerateth us, that the father and the children may be of one disposition. * Luke 1. 75. 9 He sheweth that sanctification doeth necessarily follow adoption. * Levit. 11. 44. and 19. 2. and 20. 7. 10 As before he distinguished true faith and hope from false; so doeth he now obedience, setting the quick and sharp sight of God, against an outward mark, and earnest reverence against vaine severity. 11 You will be called the sons of that Father. * Deut. 10. 17. Rom. 2. 11. Gal. 2. 6. 11 An exhortation, wherein he setteth forth the excellency and greatness of the benefit of God the Father in sanctifying us by the death of his owne Son. And he partly setteth the purifyings of the Law against the thing it selfe, that is, against the blood of Christ, and partly also mens traditions, which he condemneth as utterly vaine and superstitious, be they never so old and ancient.

med with corruptible things, as silver and gold, from your vaine conversation, received by the traditions of the fathers, 19 * But with the precious blood of Christ, as of a Lamb undefiled, and without spot.

20 ¹³ Which was * ordained before the * foundation of the world, but was declared in the last times for your sakes,

21 Which by his meanes do beleewe in God that raised him from the dead, and gave him glory, that your faith and hope might be in God,

22 ¹³ Having purified your soules in obeying the truth through the spirit, to * love brotherly without faining: love one another with a pure heart fervently, 23 Being borne a new, not of mortall seed, but of immortall, by the word of God, who liveth and endureth for ever.

24 ¹⁴ For all * ¹ flesh is as grasse, and all the glory of man is as the flower of grasse. The grasse withereth, and the flower falleth away:

25 ¹⁵ But the word of the Lord endureth for ever: and this is the word which is preached among you.

CHAP. II.

1 He exhorteth the new borne in faith, to lead their lives answerable to the same: 6 and left their faith should stagger, he bringeth in that which was foretold touching Christ. 11 Then he willet them to be obedient to Magistrates, 19 and that they patiently beare adversity after Christs example.

Wherefore, * ¹ laying aside all malicioufnesse, and all guile, and dissimulation, and envy, and all evill speaking,

2 ² As * new borne babes desire that sincere milk of the word, that yee may grow thereby,

3 ³ Because yee have tasted that the Lord is bountifull.

4 ⁴ To whom comming, as unto a living stone, disallowed of men, but chosen of God, and precious.

5 Ye also as lively stones, be made a spirituall house, * an holy * Priesthood to offer up spirituall sacrifices acceptable to God by Jesus Christ.

6 ⁶ Wherefore also it is contained in the Scripture, * Behold, I put in Sion a chiefe corner stone, elect and precious: and he that beleeveth therein, shall not be ashamed.

7 ⁷ Unto you therefore which beleewe, it is precious: but unto them which be disobedient, the * stone which the builders disallowed, the same is made the head of the corner,

8 And a * stone to stumble at, and a rock of offence, even to them which stumble at the word, being disobedient, unto the which thing they were even ordained.

9 ⁸ But yee are a chosen generation, a royall * Priesthood, an holy nation, a people set at liberty, that ye should shew forth the vertues of him that hath called you out of darknesse into his marvellous light,

10 ⁹ Which in times past were not a people, yet are now the people of God: which in time past were not under mercy, but now have obtained mercy.

11 ¹⁰ Dearly beloved, ¹⁰ I beseech you, as strangers and pilgrims, * ¹¹ abstaine from fleshly lusts, ¹² which fight against the soul, 12 ¹³ * And have your conversation honest among the Gentiles, that they which speak evill of you as of evill doers, ¹⁴ may by your * good works which they shall see, glorifie God in the day of visitation.

13 ¹⁵ * Therefore submit your selves unto * all manner ordinance of man ¹⁶ for the Lords sake, ¹⁷ whether it be unto the king, as unto the superiour, 14 Or unto governours, as unto them that are sent of him, ¹⁸ for the punishment of evill doers, and for the praise of them that doe well.

15 ¹⁹ For so is the will of God, that by end and purpose, yet their fall and decay is not to be attributed to God, but to their owne obdurate stubbornnesse, which cometh between Gods decree and the execution thereof, or their condemnation, and is the true and proper cause of their destruction. * Psal. 118. 22. Matth. 21. 42. Act. 4. 11. * Ezra. 8. 14. Rom. 9. 33. 8 The contrary member, to wit, he describeth the singular excellency of the elect: and also lett any man should doubt whether he be chosen or not, the Apostle calleth us back to the effectual calling, that is to the voice of the Gospel sounding both in our eares and minds, by the outward preaching and Sacraments, whereby we may certainly understand that everlastig decree of our salvation, (which otherwise is most secret and hidden) and that through the only mercy of God, who freely chureth and calleth us. Therefore this onely remaineth, faith hee, that by all means possible we set forth to great goodnesse of the most mighty God. * Exod. 19. 6. * Heb. 2. 23. Rom. 2. 25. 9 Hee returneth to that generall exhortation, to a reason why we ought to live holily, to wit, because we are citizens of heaven, and therefore we ought to live according to the Lawes not of this world, which is most corrupt, but of the heavenly city, although we be strangers in the world. * Rom. 13. 14. Gal. 5. 16. 11 Another argument: The children of God live not according to the flesh, that is, according to that corrupt nature, but according to the Spirit. Therefore fleshly motions ought not to bear rule in us. 12 The third argument: For although those lusts flatter us, yet they cease not to fight against our salvation. 13 The fourth argument, taken of the profit of so doing: for by this means also wee provide for our good name and estimation, whilst we compell them at length to change their minds, which speake evill of us. * Chap. 3. 16. 14 The fifth argument, which also is of great force: Because the glory of God is greatly set forth by that means, whilst by example of our honest life, even the most profane men are brought unto God, and submit themselves unto him. * Matth. 5. 16. 15 When God shall also have mercy on them. 15 That which he speake generally, he now expoundeth by parts, describing severally every mans duty. And first of all he speaketh of obedience, which is due both to the Lawes, and also to the Magistrates, both higher and lower. * Rom. 13. 1. 16 By ordinance means the framing and ordering of civil government, which he calleth ordinance of man, not because man invented it, but because it is proper to men. 16 The first argument: Because the Lord is the author and revenger of this policy of men, that is, which is set amongst men: and therefore the true servants of the Lord must above all others be diligent observers of this order. 17 He preventeth a cavill which is made by some, that say they will obey Kings and the higher Magistrates, and yet contemne their Ministers: as though their Ministers were not armed with their authority which sent them. 18 The second argument taken of the end of this order, which is not onely most profitable, but also very necessary: seeing that by this means vertue is rewarded, and vice punished: wherein the quietnesse and happinesse of this life consisteth. 19 He declareth the first argument more amply, shewing that Christian liberty doeth amongst all things, least, or not at all, consist herein, to wit, to cast off the bridle of Lawes, (as at that time some altogether unskillfull in the Kingdome of God reported) but rather in this, that living holily according to the will of God, we should make manifest to all men, that the Gospel is not a cloak for sin and wickednesse, seeing we are in such sort free, that yet we are still the servants of God, and not of sin.

The Apostle answereth, that Christ was ordained and appointed to redeeme and deliver mankind, before that mankind was: much lesse was there any Church without him before his coming in the flesh: yet wee are happiest above the rest, to whom Christ was exhibited indeed, in this that he having suffered and overcome death for us, doeth now most effectually worke in us by the vertue of his Spirit, to create in us faith, hope, and charity. * Rom. 16. 25. Ephes. 3. 9. Coloss. 1. 26. 2 Tim. 1. 10. Titus 1. 2.

k From everlasting. 13 Hee commendeth the practise of obedience, that is, charity: earnestly beating into their heads again, that he speaketh not of any common charity, and such as proceedeth from that our corrupt nature, but of that whole beginning is the Spirit of God, which purifieth our soules through the word laid hold on by faith, and ingendreth also in us a spiritual and everlasting life, as God himselfe is most pure and truly living. * Chap. 2. 17. Rom. 2. 10. Ephes. 4. 2. 14 A reason why we have need of this heavenly generation, to wit, because that men, be their glory never so great, are of nature void of all true and sound goodnesse. * Ezra 40. 6. 1 Peter 1. 10. 1 The word (flesh) sheweth the weaknesse of our nature, which is chiefly to be considered in the flesh itselfe. 15 Againe, lett any man should seeke that spirituall force and vertue in fained imaginations, the Apostle calleth us back to the word of God: teaching us furthermore, that there is no other word of the Lord to be looked for, then this which is preached, in which onely we must rest.

* Rom. 6. 4. Ephes. 4. 23. Coloss. 3. 8. Hebr. 12. 1. 1 Having laid for that foundation the Spirit of God, effectually working by the word, and having built thereupon three vertues which are the grounds of all Christian actions, to wit, faith, hope, and charity: now he proceedeth to a generall exhortation, the first member whereof is, that we flee all shew, both of secret and also open malice. 2 The second is that being newly begotten and born of the new seed of the uncorrupt word, drawing and sucking greedily the same word as milk, we should more and more as it were grow up in y spiritual life. And he calleth it, sincere, not only because it is a most pure thing, but also that we should take heed of them which corrupt it. a As becometh new men. 3 He commendeth that spirituall nourishment for the sweetnesse and profite of it. 4 Or, doest. 4 He goeth on forward in the same exhortation, but useth another kind of borrowed speech, alluding to the Temple. Therefore he faith, that the company of the faithful is, as it were, a certaine holy and spirituall building, built of lively stones, the foundation whereof is Christ, as a lively stone sustaining all that are joyed unto him with his living vertue, and knitting them together with himselfe, although this so great a treasure be neglected of men. 5 Going forward in the same similitude, he compareth us now to Priests, placed to this end in that spirituall Temple, that we should serve him with a spirituall worship, that is, with holinesse and righteousnesse: but as the Temple, so is the Priesthood built upon Christ, in whom onely all our spirituall offerings are accepted. * Revel. 1. 6.

6 He proveth it by the testimony of the Prophet Ezra. 28. 16. Rom. 9. 33. 7 By setting the most blessed condition of the beleevvers, and the most miserable of the rebellious, one against the other, he pricketh forward the beleevvers, and triumpheth over the other: and also preventeth an offence which ariseth hereof, that none doe more resist this doctrine of the Gospel, then they which are chiefest amongst the people of God, as were at that time that Peter wrote these things, the Priests, and Elders, and Scribes. Therefore he answereth first of all, that there is no cause why any man should bee ashamed at their stubbornnesse, as though it were a strange matter, seeing wee have bene forewarned so long before, that it should come to pass: and moreover, that it pleased God to create and make certain to this self same purpose, that the Soe of God might bee glorified in their iust condemnation. Thirdly, for that the glory of Christ is hereby set forth greatly, whereas notwithstanding Christ remaineth the sure head of his Church, and they that stumble at him, cast downe and overthrow themselves, and not Christ. Fourthly, although they be created to this wel doing ye may put to silence the ignorance of the foolish men, 16 As free, and not as having the libertie for a cloak of malicioufnes, but as the servants of God.

17 ²⁰ Honour al men: * love * brotherly fellowship: feare God: honour the King.

18 * ²¹ Servants, be subject to your masters with all feare, not onely to the good and courteous, but also to the froward.

19 * ²² For this is thanke worthy, if a man for ^f conscience toward God endure griefe, suffering wrongfully.

20 For what praise is it, if when ye be buffeted for your faults, yee take it patiently? but & if when ye do wel, ye suffer wrong & take it patiently, this is acceptable to God.

21 ²³ For hereunto ye are called: for Christ also suffered for you, leaving you an example that ye should follow his steps, 22 * Who did no sin, neither was there guile found in his mouth.

23 Who when he was reviled, reviled not againe: when he suffered, he threatned not, but ²⁴ committed it to him ²⁵ that judgeth righteously.

24 * ²⁶ Who his own selfe bare our sins in his body on the tree, that we being dead to sin, should live in righteoufnesse: by whose stripes ye were healed.

25 For ye were as sheep going astray: but are now returned unto the shepheard and Byshop of your foules.

26 The condition of servants is hard, especially if they have froward masters: but this their subjection shalbe so much the more acceptable to God, if his will prevaille more with servants, then the masters injuries. ^f Because he maketh a conscience of it, to offend God, by whose good will and appointment he knoweth this burden is layd upon him. 23 He mitigateth the grievousnesse of servitude, while hee sheweth plainly that Christ died also for servants, that they should beare to much the more patiently this inequality betwixt men which are of one selfe same nature: moreover setting before them Christ that Lord of lords for an example, hee signifieth that they cannot but seem too delicate, which themselves more grieved in bearing of injuries, then Christ himselfe who was must just and most sharpe of all afflicted, and yet was most patient. ^g A borrowed kind of speech taken of painters and Schoolemasters. * ^{Esa. 53. 9.} 1. ^{Iohn. 3. 5.} 24 Hee sheweth them a remedie against injuries, to wit, that they commend their cause to God, by the example of Christ.

25 Hee teemeth now to turn his speech to masters, which have also themselves a master and judge in heaven, who will justly revenge the injuries that are done to servants, without any respect of persons. * ^{Esa. 53. 5.} ^{Mat. 8. 17.} 26 Hee calleth the servants backe from the consideration of the injuries which they are constrained to beare, to thinke upon the greatnesse and the end of the benefit received of Christ.

CHAP. III.

1 That Christian women should not contemn their husbands though they be infidels, 5 he bringeth in examples of godly women. 8 Generall exhortations, 14 patiently to beare persecutions, 15 and boldly to yeeld a reason of their faith.

18 Christs example.

Likewise * ¹ let the wives be subject to their husbands, ² that even they which obey not the word, may without the word be won by the conversation of the wives,

2 While they behold your pure conversation, which is with feare.

3 * ³ Whose apparelling, let it not be that outward, with broided haire, and gold put about, or in putting on of apparell:

4 But let it be the ^a hid man of the heart, which consisteth in the incorruption of a meek and quiet spirit, which is ^b before God a thing much set by.

5 * For even after this manner in time past, did the holy women, which trusted in God tire themselves, and were subject to their husbands.

6 As Sara obeyed Abraham, and * called him, Sir: whose daughters ye are, whiles ye do wel, ^c not being afraid of any terrour.

7 * ⁶ Likewise ye husbands, ^c dwell with them as men of ^d knowledge, ⁷ giving ^e honour unto the woman, as unto the weaker ^f vessell, ⁸ even as they which are heires together of the ^g grace of life, ⁹ that your prayers be not interrupted.

8 ¹⁰ Finally, be ye all of one minde: one suffer with another: love as brethren: be pitiful: be courteous, 9 * ¹¹ Not rendring evil for evil, neither rebuke for rebuke: but contrariwise, bleffe, ¹² knowing that yee are thereunto called, that ye should be heires of blessing.

10 * ¹³ For if any man long after life, and to ^h see good dayes, let him refraine his tongue from evill, and his lippes that they speake no guile.

11 * Let him eschew evill, and doe good: let him seeke peace, and follow after it.

12 For the eyes of the Lord are over the righteous, and his eares are open unto their prayers: and the face of the Lord is against them that do evil.

13 ¹⁴ And who is it that wil harme you, if ye follow that which is good?

14 * Notwithstanding blessed are ye, if ye suffer for rightoufnesse sake, ¹⁵ Yea, * feare not their ^k feare, neither be troubled.

15 But ^l sanctifie the Lord God in your hearts: ¹⁶ and be ready alwayes to give an answer to every man that asketh you a reason of the hope that is in you; with meekenesse and reverence,

16 Having a good conscience, that when they speake evill of you as of evill doers, that which is the chiefeft (that is to say, in the benefit of eternal life) which otherwise are unequal as touching the governance and conversation at home, and therefore they are not to be despised although they be weak. ^g Of that gracious and free benefit whereby wee have everlasting life given us. 9 The fourth argument: Al brawlings and chidings must be eschewed, because they hinder prayers and the whole service of God, whereunto both the husband and wife are equally called.

10 He returneth to common exhortations, and commandeth concord, and whatsoever things pertaine to the maintenance of peace and mutuall love. ^{Prov. 17. 13.} and 20. 22. ^{Mat. 5. 39.} ^{Rom. 12. 17.} 1. ^{Thess. 5. 15.} 11 We must not only not recompense injurie for injurie, but we must also recompense them with benefits.

12 An argument taken of comparison: Seeing that we our selves are called of God whom wee offend so often, to so great a benefit, (so farre is he from revenging the injuries which we do unto him) shall wee rather make our selves unworthy of so great benefit, then forgive one anothers faults? And from this verse to the end of the Chapter, there is a digression or going from the matter hee is in hand with, to exhort us valiantly to beare afflictions. * ^{Psal. 34. 13.} 13 A secret objection: But this our patience shall be nothing else but a flensing and hardening of the wicked in their wickednesse, to make them to set upon us more boldly and destroy us. Nay, (saith the Apostle by the words of David) to live without doing hurt, and to follow after peace when it flieth away, is the way to that happie and quiet peace. And if so bee any man bee afflicted for doing justly, the Lord marketh all things, and will in his time deliver the godly, which crye unto him, and will destroy the wicked; ^{Leade a blessed and happy life.} ^{Esa. 1. 16.} 14 This word (Face) after the manner of the Hebrews, is taken for (anger.)

15 The second argument: when the wicked are provoked, they are more wayward: therefore they must rather be overcome with good turnes. And if they cannot be gotten by that means also, yet notwithstanding we shall be blessed, if we suffer for rightoufnesse sake. * ^{Mat. 5. 10.} 16 A most certaine counsel in afflictions, be they never so terrible, to be of a constant mind, and to stand fast. But how shall wee attaine unto it? If we sanctifie God in our mindes and hearts, that is to say, if wee rest upon him, as one that is Almighty, that loveth mankind, that is good and true indeed. * ^{Esa. 8. 12. 13.} ¹ ² ³ ⁴ ⁵ ⁶ ⁷ ⁸ ⁹ ¹⁰ ¹¹ ¹² ¹³ ¹⁴ ¹⁵ ¹⁶ ¹⁷ ¹⁸ ¹⁹ ²⁰ ²¹ ²² ²³ ²⁴ ²⁵ ²⁶ ²⁷ ²⁸ ²⁹ ³⁰ ³¹ ³² ³³ ³⁴ ³⁵ ³⁶ ³⁷ ³⁸ ³⁹ ⁴⁰ ⁴¹ ⁴² ⁴³ ⁴⁴ ⁴⁵ ⁴⁶ ⁴⁷ ⁴⁸ ⁴⁹ ⁵⁰ ⁵¹ ⁵² ⁵³ ⁵⁴ ⁵⁵ ⁵⁶ ⁵⁷ ⁵⁸ ⁵⁹ ⁶⁰ ⁶¹ ⁶² ⁶³ ⁶⁴ ⁶⁵ ⁶⁶ ⁶⁷ ⁶⁸ ⁶⁹ ⁷⁰ ⁷¹ ⁷² ⁷³ ⁷⁴ ⁷⁵ ⁷⁶ ⁷⁷ ⁷⁸ ⁷⁹ ⁸⁰ ⁸¹ ⁸² ⁸³ ⁸⁴ ⁸⁵ ⁸⁶ ⁸⁷ ⁸⁸ ⁸⁹ ⁹⁰ ⁹¹ ⁹² ⁹³ ⁹⁴ ⁹⁵ ⁹⁶ ⁹⁷ ⁹⁸ ⁹⁹ ¹⁰⁰ ¹⁰¹ ¹⁰² ¹⁰³ ¹⁰⁴ ¹⁰⁵ ¹⁰⁶ ¹⁰⁷ ¹⁰⁸ ¹⁰⁹ ¹¹⁰ ¹¹¹ ¹¹² ¹¹³ ¹¹⁴ ¹¹⁵ ¹¹⁶ ¹¹⁷ ¹¹⁸ ¹¹⁹ ¹²⁰ ¹²¹ ¹²² ¹²³ ¹²⁴ ¹²⁵ ¹²⁶ ¹²⁷ ¹²⁸ ¹²⁹ ¹³⁰ ¹³¹ ¹³² ¹³³ ¹³⁴ ¹³⁵ ¹³⁶ ¹³⁷ ¹³⁸ ¹³⁹ ¹⁴⁰ ¹⁴¹ ¹⁴² ¹⁴³ ¹⁴⁴ ¹⁴⁵ ¹⁴⁶ ¹⁴⁷ ¹⁴⁸ ¹⁴⁹ ¹⁵⁰ ¹⁵¹ ¹⁵² ¹⁵³ ¹⁵⁴ ¹⁵⁵ ¹⁵⁶ ¹⁵⁷ ¹⁵⁸ ¹⁵⁹ ¹⁶⁰ ¹⁶¹ ¹⁶² ¹⁶³ ¹⁶⁴ ¹⁶⁵ ¹⁶⁶ ¹⁶⁷ ¹⁶⁸ ¹⁶⁹ ¹⁷⁰ ¹⁷¹ ¹⁷² ¹⁷³ ¹⁷⁴ ¹⁷⁵ ¹⁷⁶ ¹⁷⁷ ¹⁷⁸ ¹⁷⁹ ¹⁸⁰ ¹⁸¹ ¹⁸² ¹⁸³ ¹⁸⁴ ¹⁸⁵ ¹⁸⁶ ¹⁸⁷ ¹⁸⁸ ¹⁸⁹ ¹⁹⁰ ¹⁹¹ ¹⁹² ¹⁹³ ¹⁹⁴ ¹⁹⁵ ¹⁹⁶ ¹⁹⁷ ¹⁹⁸ ¹⁹⁹ ²⁰⁰ ²⁰¹ ²⁰² ²⁰³ ²⁰⁴ ²⁰⁵ ²⁰⁶ ²⁰⁷ ²⁰⁸ ²⁰⁹ ²¹⁰ ²¹¹ ²¹² ²¹³ ²¹⁴ ²¹⁵ ²¹⁶ ²¹⁷ ²¹⁸ ²¹⁹ ²²⁰ ²²¹ ²²² ²²³ ²²⁴ ²²⁵ ²²⁶ ²²⁷ ²²⁸ ²²⁹ ²³⁰ ²³¹ ²³² ²³³ ²³⁴ ²³⁵ ²³⁶ ²³⁷ ²³⁸ ²³⁹ ²⁴⁰ ²⁴¹ ²⁴² ²⁴³ ²⁴⁴ ²⁴⁵ ²⁴⁶ ²⁴⁷ ²⁴⁸ ²⁴⁹ ²⁵⁰ ²⁵¹ ²⁵² ²⁵³ ²⁵⁴ ²⁵⁵ ²⁵⁶ ²⁵⁷ ²⁵⁸ ²⁵⁹ ²⁶⁰ ²⁶¹ ²⁶² ²⁶³ ²⁶⁴ ²⁶⁵ ²⁶⁶ ²⁶⁷ ²⁶⁸ ²⁶⁹ ²⁷⁰ ²⁷¹ ²⁷² ²⁷³ ²⁷⁴ ²⁷⁵ ²⁷⁶ ²⁷⁷ ²⁷⁸ ²⁷⁹ ²⁸⁰ ²⁸¹ ²⁸² ²⁸³ ²⁸⁴ ²⁸⁵ ²⁸⁶ ²⁸⁷ ²⁸⁸ ²⁸⁹ ²⁹⁰ ²⁹¹ ²⁹² ²⁹³ ²⁹⁴ ²⁹⁵ ²⁹⁶ ²⁹⁷ ²⁹⁸ ²⁹⁹ ³⁰⁰ ³⁰¹ ³⁰² ³⁰³ ³⁰⁴ ³⁰⁵ ³⁰⁶ ³⁰⁷ ³⁰⁸ ³⁰⁹ ³¹⁰ ³¹¹ ³¹² ³¹³ ³¹⁴ ³¹⁵ ³¹⁶ ³¹⁷ ³¹⁸ ³¹⁹ ³²⁰ ³²¹ ³²² ³²³ ³²⁴ ³²⁵ ³²⁶ ³²⁷ ³²⁸ ³²⁹ ³³⁰ ³³¹ ³³² ³³³ ³³⁴ ³³⁵ ³³⁶ ³³⁷ ³³⁸ ³³⁹ ³⁴⁰ ³⁴¹ ³⁴² ³⁴³ ³⁴⁴ ³⁴⁵ ³⁴⁶ ³⁴⁷ ³⁴⁸ ³⁴⁹ ³⁵⁰ ³⁵¹ ³⁵² ³⁵³ ³⁵⁴ ³⁵⁵ ³⁵⁶ ³⁵⁷ ³⁵⁸ ³⁵⁹ ³⁶⁰ ³⁶¹ ³⁶² ³⁶³ ³⁶⁴ ³⁶⁵ ³⁶⁶ ³⁶⁷ ³⁶⁸ ³⁶⁹ ³⁷⁰ ³⁷¹ ³⁷² ³⁷³ ³⁷⁴ ³⁷⁵ ³⁷⁶ ³⁷⁷ ³⁷⁸ ³⁷⁹ ³⁸⁰ ³⁸¹ ³⁸² ³⁸³ ³⁸⁴ ³⁸⁵ ³⁸⁶ ³⁸⁷ ³⁸⁸ ³⁸⁹ ³⁹⁰ ³⁹¹ ³⁹² ³⁹³ ³⁹⁴ ³⁹⁵ ³⁹⁶ ³⁹⁷ ³⁹⁸ ³⁹⁹ ⁴⁰⁰ ⁴⁰¹ ⁴⁰² ⁴⁰³ ⁴⁰⁴ ⁴⁰⁵ ⁴⁰⁶ ⁴⁰⁷ ⁴⁰⁸ ⁴⁰⁹ ⁴¹⁰ ⁴¹¹ ⁴¹² ⁴¹³ ⁴¹⁴ ⁴¹⁵ ⁴¹⁶ ⁴¹⁷ ⁴¹⁸ ⁴¹⁹ ⁴²⁰ ⁴²¹ ⁴²² ⁴²³ ⁴²⁴ ⁴²⁵ ⁴²⁶ ⁴²⁷ ⁴²⁸ ⁴²⁹ ⁴³⁰ ⁴³¹ ⁴³² ⁴³³ ⁴³⁴ ⁴³⁵ ⁴³⁶ ⁴³⁷ ⁴³⁸ ⁴³⁹ ⁴⁴⁰ ⁴⁴¹ ⁴⁴² ⁴⁴³ ⁴⁴⁴ ⁴⁴⁵ ⁴⁴⁶ ⁴⁴⁷ ⁴⁴⁸ ⁴⁴⁹ ⁴⁵⁰ ⁴⁵¹ ⁴⁵² ⁴⁵³ ⁴⁵⁴ ⁴⁵⁵ ⁴⁵⁶ ⁴⁵⁷ ⁴⁵⁸ ⁴⁵⁹ ⁴⁶⁰ ⁴⁶¹ ⁴⁶² ⁴⁶³ ⁴⁶⁴ ⁴⁶⁵ ⁴⁶⁶ ⁴⁶⁷ ⁴⁶⁸ ⁴⁶⁹ ⁴⁷⁰ ⁴⁷¹ ⁴⁷² ⁴⁷³ ⁴⁷⁴ ⁴⁷⁵ ⁴⁷⁶ ⁴⁷⁷ ⁴⁷⁸ ⁴⁷⁹ ⁴⁸⁰ ⁴⁸¹ ⁴⁸² ⁴⁸³ ⁴⁸⁴ ⁴⁸⁵ ⁴⁸⁶ ⁴⁸⁷ ⁴⁸⁸ ⁴⁸⁹ ⁴⁹⁰ ⁴⁹¹ ⁴⁹² ⁴⁹³ ⁴⁹⁴ ⁴⁹⁵ ⁴⁹⁶ ⁴⁹⁷ ⁴⁹⁸ ⁴⁹⁹ ⁵⁰⁰ ⁵⁰¹ ⁵⁰² ⁵⁰³ ⁵⁰⁴ ⁵⁰⁵ ⁵⁰⁶ ⁵⁰⁷ ⁵⁰⁸ ⁵⁰⁹ ⁵¹⁰ ⁵¹¹ ⁵¹² ⁵¹³ ⁵¹⁴ ⁵¹⁵ ⁵¹⁶ ⁵¹⁷ ⁵¹⁸ ⁵¹⁹ ⁵²⁰ ⁵²¹ ⁵²² ⁵²³ ⁵²⁴ ⁵²⁵ ⁵²⁶ ⁵²⁷ ⁵²⁸ ⁵²⁹ ⁵³⁰ ⁵³¹ ⁵³² ⁵³³ ⁵³⁴ ⁵³⁵ ⁵³⁶ ⁵³⁷ ⁵³⁸ ⁵³⁹ ⁵⁴⁰ ⁵⁴¹ ⁵⁴² ⁵⁴³ ⁵⁴⁴ ⁵⁴⁵ ⁵⁴⁶ ⁵⁴⁷ ⁵⁴⁸ ⁵⁴⁹ ⁵⁵⁰ ⁵⁵¹ ⁵⁵² ⁵⁵³ ⁵⁵⁴ ⁵⁵⁵ ⁵⁵⁶ ⁵⁵⁷ ⁵⁵⁸ ⁵⁵⁹ ⁵⁶⁰ ⁵⁶¹ ⁵⁶² ⁵⁶³ ⁵⁶⁴ ⁵⁶⁵ ⁵⁶⁶ ⁵⁶⁷ ⁵⁶⁸ ⁵⁶⁹ ⁵⁷⁰ ⁵⁷¹ ⁵⁷² ⁵⁷³ ⁵⁷⁴ ⁵⁷⁵ ⁵⁷⁶ ⁵⁷⁷ ⁵⁷⁸ ⁵⁷⁹ ⁵⁸⁰ ⁵⁸¹ ⁵⁸² ⁵⁸³ ⁵⁸⁴ ⁵⁸⁵ ⁵⁸⁶ ⁵⁸⁷ ⁵⁸⁸ ⁵⁸⁹ ⁵⁹⁰ ⁵⁹¹ ⁵⁹² ⁵⁹³ ⁵⁹⁴ ⁵⁹⁵ ⁵⁹⁶ ⁵⁹⁷ ⁵⁹⁸ ⁵⁹⁹ ⁶⁰⁰ ⁶⁰¹ ⁶⁰² ⁶⁰³ ⁶⁰⁴ ⁶⁰⁵ ⁶⁰⁶ ⁶⁰⁷ ⁶⁰⁸ ⁶⁰⁹ ⁶¹⁰ ⁶¹¹ ⁶¹² ⁶¹³ ⁶¹⁴ ⁶¹⁵ ⁶¹⁶ ⁶¹⁷ ⁶¹⁸ ⁶¹⁹ ⁶²⁰ ⁶²¹ ⁶²² ⁶²³ ⁶²⁴ ⁶²⁵ ⁶²⁶ ⁶²⁷ ⁶²⁸ ⁶²⁹ ⁶³⁰ ⁶³¹ ⁶³² ⁶³³ ⁶³⁴ ⁶³⁵ ⁶³⁶ ⁶³⁷ ⁶³⁸ ⁶³⁹ ⁶⁴⁰ ⁶⁴¹ ⁶⁴² ⁶⁴³ ⁶⁴⁴ ⁶⁴⁵ ⁶⁴⁶ ⁶⁴⁷ ⁶⁴⁸ ⁶⁴⁹ ⁶⁵⁰ ⁶⁵¹ ⁶⁵² ⁶⁵³ ⁶⁵⁴ ⁶⁵⁵ ⁶⁵⁶ ⁶⁵⁷ ⁶⁵⁸ ⁶⁵⁹ ⁶⁶⁰ ⁶⁶¹ ⁶⁶² ⁶⁶³ ⁶⁶⁴ ⁶⁶⁵ ⁶⁶⁶ ⁶⁶⁷ ⁶⁶⁸ ⁶⁶⁹ ⁶⁷⁰ ⁶⁷¹ ⁶⁷² ⁶⁷³ ⁶⁷⁴ ⁶⁷⁵ ⁶⁷⁶ ⁶⁷⁷ ⁶⁷⁸ ⁶⁷⁹ ⁶⁸⁰ ⁶⁸¹ ⁶⁸² ⁶⁸³ ⁶⁸⁴ ⁶⁸⁵ ⁶⁸⁶ ⁶⁸⁷ ⁶⁸⁸ ⁶⁸⁹ ⁶⁹⁰ ⁶⁹¹ ⁶⁹² ⁶⁹³ ⁶⁹⁴ ⁶⁹⁵ ⁶⁹⁶ ⁶⁹⁷ ⁶⁹⁸ ⁶⁹⁹ ⁷⁰⁰ ⁷⁰¹ ⁷⁰² ⁷⁰³ ⁷⁰⁴ ⁷⁰⁵ ⁷⁰⁶ ⁷⁰⁷ ⁷⁰⁸ ⁷⁰⁹ ⁷¹⁰ ⁷¹¹ ⁷¹² ⁷¹³ ⁷¹⁴ ⁷¹⁵ ⁷¹⁶ ⁷¹⁷ ⁷¹⁸ ⁷¹⁹ ⁷²⁰ ⁷²¹ ⁷²² ⁷²³ ⁷²⁴ ⁷²⁵ ⁷²⁶ ⁷²⁷ ⁷²⁸ ⁷²⁹ ⁷³⁰ ⁷³¹ ⁷³² ⁷³³ ⁷³⁴ ⁷³⁵ ⁷³⁶ ⁷³⁷ ⁷³⁸ ⁷³⁹ ⁷⁴⁰ ⁷⁴¹ ⁷⁴² ⁷⁴³ ⁷⁴⁴ ⁷⁴⁵ ⁷⁴⁶ ⁷⁴⁷ ⁷⁴⁸ ⁷⁴⁹ ⁷⁵⁰ ⁷⁵¹ ⁷⁵² ⁷⁵³ ⁷⁵⁴ ⁷⁵⁵ ⁷⁵⁶ ⁷⁵⁷ ⁷⁵⁸ ⁷⁵⁹ ⁷⁶⁰ ⁷⁶¹ ⁷⁶² ⁷⁶³ ⁷⁶⁴ ⁷⁶⁵ ⁷⁶⁶ ⁷⁶⁷ ⁷⁶⁸ ⁷⁶⁹ ⁷⁷⁰ ⁷⁷¹ ⁷⁷² ⁷⁷³ ⁷⁷⁴ ⁷⁷⁵ ⁷⁷⁶ ⁷⁷⁷ ⁷⁷⁸ ⁷⁷⁹ ⁷⁸⁰ ⁷⁸¹ ⁷⁸² ⁷⁸³ ⁷⁸⁴ ⁷⁸⁵ ⁷⁸⁶ ⁷⁸⁷ ⁷⁸⁸ ⁷⁸⁹ ⁷⁹⁰ ⁷⁹¹ ⁷⁹² ⁷⁹³ ⁷⁹⁴ ⁷⁹⁵ ⁷⁹⁶ ⁷⁹⁷ ⁷⁹⁸ ⁷⁹⁹ ⁸⁰⁰ ⁸⁰¹ ⁸⁰² ⁸⁰³ ⁸⁰⁴ ⁸⁰⁵ ⁸⁰⁶ ⁸⁰⁷ ⁸⁰⁸ ⁸⁰⁹ ⁸¹⁰ ⁸¹¹ ⁸¹² ⁸¹³ ⁸¹⁴ ⁸¹⁵ ⁸¹⁶ ⁸¹⁷ ⁸¹⁸ ⁸¹⁹ ⁸²⁰ ⁸²¹ ⁸²² ⁸²³ ⁸²⁴ ⁸²⁵ ⁸²⁶ ⁸²⁷ ⁸²⁸ ⁸²⁹ ⁸³⁰ ⁸³¹ ⁸³² ⁸³³ ⁸³⁴ ⁸³⁵ ⁸³⁶ ⁸³⁷ ⁸³⁸ ⁸³⁹ ⁸⁴⁰ ⁸⁴¹ ⁸⁴² ⁸⁴³ ⁸⁴⁴ ⁸⁴⁵ ⁸⁴⁶ ⁸⁴⁷ ⁸⁴⁸ ⁸⁴⁹ ⁸⁵⁰ ⁸⁵¹ ⁸⁵² ⁸⁵³ ⁸⁵⁴ ⁸⁵⁵ ⁸⁵⁶ ⁸⁵⁷ ⁸⁵⁸ ⁸⁵⁹ ⁸⁶⁰ ⁸⁶¹ ⁸⁶² ⁸⁶³ ⁸⁶⁴ ⁸⁶⁵ ⁸⁶⁶ ⁸⁶⁷ ⁸⁶⁸ ⁸⁶⁹ ⁸⁷⁰ ⁸⁷¹ ⁸⁷² ⁸⁷³ ⁸⁷⁴ ⁸⁷⁵ ⁸⁷⁶ ⁸⁷⁷ ⁸⁷⁸ ⁸⁷⁹ ⁸⁸⁰ ⁸⁸¹ ⁸⁸² ⁸⁸³ ⁸⁸⁴ ⁸⁸⁵ ⁸⁸⁶ ⁸⁸⁷ ⁸⁸⁸ ⁸⁸⁹ ⁸⁹⁰ ⁸⁹¹ ⁸⁹² ⁸⁹³ ⁸⁹⁴ ⁸⁹⁵ ⁸⁹⁶ ⁸⁹⁷ ⁸⁹⁸ ⁸⁹⁹ ⁹⁰⁰ ⁹⁰¹ ⁹⁰² ⁹⁰³ ⁹⁰⁴ ⁹⁰⁵ ⁹⁰⁶ ⁹⁰⁷ ⁹⁰⁸ ⁹⁰⁹ ⁹¹⁰ ⁹¹¹ ⁹¹² ⁹¹³ ⁹¹⁴ ⁹¹⁵ ⁹¹⁶ ⁹¹⁷ ⁹¹⁸ ⁹¹⁹ ⁹²⁰ ⁹²¹ ⁹²² ⁹²³ ⁹²⁴ ⁹²⁵ ⁹²⁶ ⁹²⁷ ⁹²⁸ ⁹²⁹ ⁹³⁰ ⁹³¹ ⁹³² ⁹³³ ⁹³⁴ ⁹³⁵ ⁹³⁶ ⁹³⁷ ⁹³⁸ ⁹³⁹ ⁹⁴⁰ ⁹⁴¹ ⁹⁴² ⁹⁴³ ⁹⁴⁴ ⁹⁴⁵ ⁹⁴⁶ ⁹⁴⁷ ⁹⁴⁸ ⁹⁴⁹ ⁹⁵⁰ ⁹⁵¹ ⁹⁵² ⁹⁵³ ⁹⁵⁴ ⁹⁵⁵ ⁹⁵⁶ ⁹⁵⁷ ⁹⁵⁸ ⁹⁵⁹ ⁹⁶⁰ ⁹⁶¹ ⁹⁶² ⁹⁶³ ⁹⁶⁴ ⁹⁶⁵ ⁹⁶⁶ ⁹⁶⁷ ⁹⁶⁸ ⁹⁶⁹ ⁹⁷⁰ ⁹⁷¹ ⁹⁷² ⁹⁷³ ⁹⁷⁴ ⁹⁷⁵ ⁹⁷⁶ ⁹⁷⁷ ⁹⁷⁸ ⁹⁷⁹ ⁹⁸⁰ they may be ashamed, which slander your good conuersation in Christ.

17 A reason which standeth upon two generall rules of Christianitie, which notwithstanding all men allow not of. The one is, if we must needs suffer afflictions, it is better to suffer wrongfully then rightfully: the other is this, because wee are so afflicted, not by his, but by the will of our God.

18 Rem. 5. 6.

Hebr. 9. 15.

19 A proofe of either of the rules, by the example of Christ himselfe our chiefe patterne, who was afflicted not for his owne sins (which were none) but for ours, and therefore according to his Fathers decree.

20 An argument taken of comparison: Christ the iust, suffered for us that are unjust, and shal it grieve us which are unjust, to suffer for the Iusts cause?

21 Another argument, being partly taken of things coupled together, to wit, because Christ bringeth us to his Father that same way that he went himselfe, and partly, from the cause efficient: to wit, because Christ is not onely set before us for an example to follow, but also he holdeth us up by his vertue in all the difficulties of this life, until he bring us to his Father.

22 An other argument, taken of the happie end of these afflictions, wherein also Christ goeth before us both in example and vertue, as one who suffered most grievous torments even unto death, although but in one part onely of him, to wit, in the flesh, or mans nature: but yet became conquerour by the vertue of his diuinitie.

23 A secret objection: Christ indeed might do this, but what is that to us? Yes (saith the Apostle) for Christ hath shewed forth his vertue in all ages both to the preservation of the godly, were they neuer so few and miserable, and to revenge the rebellion of his enemies, as it appeareth by the historie of the flood: for Christ is he which in those dayes (when God through his patience appointed a time of repentance to the world) was present, not in corporall presence, but by his diuine vertue, preaching repentance, even by the mouth of Noe himselfe, who then prepared the Arke, to those disobedient spirits which are now in prison, waiting for the full recompence of their rebellion, and laved those few, (that is, eight onely persons) in the water.

24 By the vertue of which Spirit, that is to say, of the diuinitie, therefore this word, Spirit, cannot in this place be taken for the soule, unless wee will say that Christ was raised up againe, and quickened by the vertue of his soule. He calleth them spirits, in respect of his time, not in respect of the time that they were in the flesh. This word (once) sheweth that there was a furthest day appointed, and if that were once past, there should be no more. Gen. 6. 14. Matt. 24. 38. Luke 17. 26. Men. 25 A proportionall applying of the former example to the time which followed the coming of Christ: for that preservation of Noe in the waters was a figure of our baptisme, not as though that materiall water of baptisme, saueh us, as those waters which bare up the Arke laved Noe, but because Christ with his inward vertue, which the outward Baptisme shadoweth, preserveth us being washed, so that we may call upon God with a good conscience. The conscience being sanctified may freely call upon God. That selfe same vertue, whereby Christ rose againe, and now being carried up into heaven, hath received al power, doeth at this day defend and prelerue us.

C H A P. I V.

1 He bringeth in Christs example, and applieth it 6 to the mortifying of the flesh, especially commending charitie: 12 And so entreateth of patience. 17 That it is necessary that correction begin at the Church.

1 Having ended his digression, and sliding from his matter, now he returneth to the exhortation which hee brake off, taking occasion by that which he said touching the death and resurrection of Christ, so defining our sanctification, that to be sanctified, is al one as to suffer in the flesh, that is to say, to leave off from our wickednesse, and viciousnesse: and to rise againe to God, that is to say, to be renewed by the vertue of the holy Ghost, that we may lead the rest of our life which remaineth, after the will of God. a So much of this present life as remaineth yet to be passed over. Ephes. 4. 22.

2 By putting us in minde of the dishonestie of our former life led in the filth of sin, he calleth us to earnest repentance.

Forasmuch then as Christ hath suffered for us in the flesh, arme your selves likewise with the same minde, which is, that hee which hath suffered in the flesh, hath ceased from sin:

2 That he henceforward should live (as much time as remaineth in the flesh) not after the lusts of men, but after the will of God.

3 For it is sufficient for us that we have spent the time past of the life, after the lust of the Gentiles, walking in wantonnesse, lustes, drunkennesse, in gluttonie, drinkings, and in abominable idolatries:

4 Wherein it seemeth to them strange, that yee run not with them unto the same excessse of riot: therefore speake they evill of you:

5 Which shal give accounts to him, that is ready to judge quicke and dead.

6 For unto this purpose was the Gospel preached also unto the dead, that they might be condemned, according to men in the flesh, but might live according to God in the spirit.

7 Now the end of all things is at hand, Be yee therefore sober, and watching in prayer.

8 But above all things, have fervent love among you: for love shall cover the multitude of sins.

9 Be ye harberous one to another, without grudging.

10 Let every man as he hath received the gift, minister the same one to another, as good disposers of the manifold graces of God.

11 If any man speake, let him speake as the words of God, If any man minister, let him do it as of the abilitie which God ministrereth, that God in all things may be glorified through Iesus Christ, to whom is praise and dominion for ever, and ever, Amen.

12 Dearly beloved, thinke it not strange, concerning the fierie trial, which is among you to prove you, as though some strange thing were come unto you.

13 But rejoyce, in as much as ye are partakers of Christs sufferings, that when his glory shall appeare, yee may be glad and rejoyce.

14 If ye be railed upon for the Name of Christ, blessed are ye: for the Spirit of glory, and of God resteth upon you: which on their part is evill spoken of, but on your part is glorified.

15 But let none of you suffer as a mur-derer

he commendeth one, namely, which was at that time most necessarie, to wit, hospitallitie, which he will have to be voluntarie, and most courteous and bountifull.

13. Hebr. 13. 2. He sheweth the use of charitie, to wit, that every man below that gift which he hath received, to the profit of his neighbour.

14. A reason: Because that whatsoever gift we have, we have received it of God upon this condition, to be his disposers and stewards.

15. He reckoneth up two Kindes of these gifts as chiefe, to wit, the office of teaching in the Church, and the other Ecclesiastical function, wherein two things especially are to be observed; to wit, that the pure word of God be taught, and whatsoever is done, be referred to the glory of God the Father in Christ, as to the proper mark.

16. Because the crosse is joynd with the sincere profession of Religion, the Apostle fidly repeateth that which he touched before, warning us not to be troubled at persecutions and afflictions, as at a new and strange thing.

17. As though some new thing had befallen you, which you never thought of before.

18. The first reason: Because the Lord meaneth not to consume us with this fire (as it were) but to purge us of our drossie, and make us perfit.

19. Another reason: Because the afflictions of the godly and the wicked differ very much, and chiefly in three points. First, because the godly communicate with Christ in their afflictions, and therefore shall in their time be partakers also of his glory.

20. Secondly, because that although the infidels thinke farre otherwise, who in afflicting the godly, blaspheme God, yet the godly in that they are so railed upon, are honoured of God with the true spiritual glory, and their adoption is sealed to them by the Spirit of God.

21. By Spirit, hee meaneth the gifts of the Spirit.

22. The third difference: for the godly are not afflicted for their evill doings, but for righteounesse sake as Christians: whereby it cometh to passe, that the crosse, leeing it is a testimony unto them of faith and righteounesse, ministrereth to them not an occasion of sorrow, but of unspeakable joy: now the Apostle propounded this third difference under the forme of an exhortation.

6 Wickedly and licentiously after the manner of the Gentiles.

3 That we be not moved with the enemies perverse and slanderous judgements of us, wee have to set against them that fast judgement of God which remaineth for them: for none, whether they bee then found living, or were dead before, shall escape it.

c They thinke it a new and strange matter.

4 A digression: because hee made mention of the last generall judgement. And hee preventeth an objection, that seeing Christ came very lately, they may seem to be excusable which died before. But this the Apostle denieth: for (saith he) this selfe same Gospel was preached unto them also (for hee speaketh unto the Iewes) and that to the same end: that I now preach it unto you, to wit, that the flesh being abolished and put away (that is to say, that wicked and naughty corruption which reigneth in men) they should suffer themselves to be governed by the vertue of the Spirit of God.

5 He returneth to his purpose, using an argument taken from the circumstance of the time. Because the last end is at hand, and therefore we must so much the more diligently watch and pray, with true sobrietie of minde.

6 Hee commendeth charitie of one towards another, because it doeth as it were burie a multitude of sins, and therefore preserveth and maintaineth peace and concord: for they that love one another, do easily forgive one another their offences.

7 Of all the duties of Charitie.

therer, or as a thiefe, or an evill doer, or as a busie bodie in other mens matters.

16 But if any man suffer as a Christian, let him not be ashamed: but let him glorifie God in this behalfe:

17 ¹⁶ For the time is come, that judgement must begin at the house of God. ¹⁷ If it first begin at us, what shall the end be of them which obey not the Gospel of God?

18 * And if the righteous scarcely be saved, where shall the ungodly and the sinner appeare?

19 ¹⁸ Wherefore let them that suffer according to the will of God, commit their soules to him in well doing: as unto a faithfull Creator.

¹⁶ The third reason: Because the Lord of all the world being especially careful for them of his household, doeth therefore chastise them first of all, yet so that he keepeth a measure in his greatest severity. And as he hath alwayes used to doe therefore, so doeth he now, especially when as he exhibited himselfe in person to his Church.

¹⁷ Left the godly should be offended & stumble at the vaine shadow of felicitie of the wicked, as though God were not the governour of the world, for that the wicked are in good case, and the godly in evil, the Apostle teacheth by an Argument of a comparison of them together, that God who spareth not his own, but nourisheth them under the Crosse, will at length in his time handle the rebellious and wicked farre otherwise, whom he hath appointed to utter destruction. * Prov. 2. 31. ¹⁸ The conclusion: Seeing the godly are not afflicted by chance, but by the will of God, they ought not to despaire, but go forward notwithstanding in the way of holinesse and well doing, commending themselves to God their faithfull Creator, that is to say, their Father.

CHAP. V.

* He warneth the Elders not to usurpe authoritie over the Church, & willing the younger sort to be willing to be taught, and to be modest, & to be sober and watchfull to resist the cruell adversarie.

1 He describeth peculiarly the office of the Elders, that is to say, of them that have the care of the Church.

2 He useth a preface touching the circumstance of his own person: to wit, that he as their companion communeth with them not of matters which he knoweth not, but wherein he is as well experienced as any, and propoundeth unto them no other condition but that which he himselfe hath sustained before them, and doeth still take the same paines, and also hath one selfe same hope together with them.

3 He saith not, offer for the quicke and the dead, and sing patched streds in a strange tongue, but (feed.)

4 The second: Let the shepherds consider, that the flock is not his, but Gods.

5 The third: Let not the shepherds invade other mens flocks, but let them feed that which God hath committed unto them.

6 Let the shepherds govern the Church with the word, and example: of godly and unblameable life, not by constraint, but willingly, not for filthy lucre, but of a ready minde, not as lords over Gods portion and heritage, but as his ministers.

THe Elders which are among you ² I beseech, which am also an Elder, and a witnesse of the sufferings of Christ, and also a partaker of the glory that shall be revealed.

2 ³ * Feed the ⁴ flock of God, which ⁵ dependeth upon you, ⁶ caring for it not by constraint, but willingly: not for filthy lucre, but of a ready minde:

3 Not as though ye were lords over Gods ⁴ heritage, but that ye may be ensamples to the flock.

4 The first rule, He that is a shepherd let him feed the flocke.

5 The second: Let the shepherds consider, that the flock is not his, but Gods.

6 Let the shepherds govern the Church with the word, and example: of godly and unblameable life, not by constraint, but willingly, not for filthy lucre, but of a ready minde, not as lords over Gods portion and heritage, but as his ministers.

7 Which is the Christian people.

4 ⁷ And when that chiefe shepherd shall appeare, ye shall receive an incorruptible crown of glory.

5 ⁸ Likewise ye yonger, submit your selves unto the Elders, and submit your selves every man one to another: * deck your selves inwardly in lowlinesse of mind: ⁹ for * God resisteth the proud, and giveth grace to the humble.

6 Humble ¹⁰ your selves therefore under the mighty hand of God, that he may exalt you in due time.

7 * Cast all your care on him: for he careth for you.

8 ¹¹ Be sober, and watch: for * your adversarie the devil as a roaring Lion walketh about, seeking whom he may devour.

9 Whom resist stedfast in the faith, ¹² knowing that the same afflictions are accomplished in your ¹³ brethren which are in the world.

10 ¹³ And the God of all grace, which hath called us unto his eternall glory by Christ Jesus, after that ye have suffered a little, make you perfit, confirme, strengthen and stablish you.

11 To him be glory and dominion for ever and ever, Amen.

12 ¹⁴ By Sylvanus a faithfull brother unto you, as I suppose, have I written briefly, exhorting and testifying how that this is the true grace of God, wherein ye stand.

13 ¹⁵ The Church that is at ¹⁶ Babylon elected together with you, saluteth you, and Marcus my son.

14 Greet ye one another with the * kisse of love. Peace be with you all which are in Christ Jesus, Amen.

15 Familiar salutations. ¹⁶ In that famous cite of Assyria, where the Apostle of the circumcision then was.

17 He saileth up as it were with a seale the former exhortation with a solemn prayer, againe willing them to aske increase of strength at his hands, of whom they had the beginning, and hope to have the accomplishment. To wit, of God the Father in Christ Jesus, in whom we are sure of the glory of eternall life.

18 Continuance and perseverance in the doctrine of the Apostles, is the onely ground and foundation of Christian strength: Now the sum of the Apostles doctrine, is salvation freely given of God.

⁷ That the shepherds mindes be not overcome either with the wickednesse of men, or their cruelty, he warneth them to cast their eyes continually upon that chiefe shepherd, and the crown which is layd up for them in heaven.

⁸ He commendeth many peculiar Christian virtues, & especially modestie, which admonition all of us stand in need of, but especially the younger sort, by reason of the untowardnesse and pride of that age.

⁹ Because pride seemeth to many to be the way unto the glory of this life, the Apostle witnesseth on the contrary side, that ignominie and shame is the reward of pride, and glory the reward of modestie.

THE SECOND EPISTLE

GENERALL OF PETER.

CHAP. I.

3 Having spoken of the bountiffulnesse of God, 5 and of the vertues of faith, 6 He exhorteth them to holinesse of life, 12 and that his counsell may be the more effectuell, 14 He sheweth that his death is at hand, 16 and that himself did see the power of Christ which he opened unto them.

1 A salutation, wherein he giveth them to understand, that he dealeth with them as Christs ambassadour, and otherwise agreeth with them in one selfe same faith which is grounded upon the righteounesse of Jesus Christ, our God and Saviour.

a In that that God standing to his promises, shewed himselfe faithfull, and therefore just unto us.

2 Faith is the acknowledging of God and Christ, from whence all our blessednesse issueth and floweth.

3 Christ setteth forth himselfe unto us plainly, in the Gospel, and that by his onely power, and giveth us all things which are requisite both to eternall life, wherein he hath appointed to glorifie us, and also to godlines, in that he doth furnish us with true vertue.

b He speaketh of Christ, whom he maketh God, and the onely Saviour.

c Vnto salvation, d This is the sum of true religion, to be led by Christ to the Father, as it were by the hand.

4 An explication of the former sentence, declaring the causes of so great benefits, to wit, God and his free promise, from whence all these benefits proceed. I say, these most excellent benefits, whereby we are delivered from the corruption of the world, (that is, from the wicked lusts which we carie about us) and are made after a sort, like unto God himselfe.

e By the divine nature he meaneth not the substance of the Godhead, but the partaking of those qualities, whereby the image of God is restored in us.

f In men. g For lust is the seate of corruption, and hath his place even in our very bowels and inward parts.

5 Having layd the foundation, (that is, having declared the causes of our salvation, and especially of our sanctification) now he beginneth to exhort us to give our minds wholly to the true use of this grace. And he beginneth with faith, without which nothing can please God, and he warneth us to have it full fraught with vertue, (that is to say, with good and godly manners) being joynt with the knowledge of Gods will, without which, there is neither faith, neither any true vertue.

6 He reckoneth up certaine other principall vertues, whereof some pertaine to the first Table of the Law, others to the last.

7 As those fruits doe spring from the true knowledge of Christ, so in like sort the knowledge it selfe is fostered, and groweth by bringing forth such fruits, in so much that he that is unfruitfull, did either never know the true light, or hath forgotten the gift of sanctification which he hath received.

8 He that hath not an effectuall knowledge of God in him, is blind as touching the kingdom of God, for he cannot see things that are as farre off, that is to say, heavenly things.

Imon¹ Peter a servant and an Apostle of Jesus Christ, to you which have obtained like precious faith with us by the^a righteounesse of our God, and saviour Jesus Christ:

2 Grace and peace be multiplied unto you, through the acknowledging of God, and of Jesus our Lord,

3 According as his^b divine power hath given unto us all things that pertaine unto^c life and godlinesse, through the^d acknowledging of him that hath called us unto glory and vertue,

4 Whereby most great and precious promises are given unto us, that by them ye should be partakers of the^e divine nature, in that ye flee the corruption, which is in the^f world through^g lust.

5 Therefore give even all diligence thereunto: h joyne moreover vertue with your faith: and with vertue, knowledge:

6 And with knowledge, temperance: and with temperance, patience: and with patience, godlinesse:

7 And with godlinesse, brotherly kindnesse: and with brotherly kindnesse, love.

8 For if these things be among you, and abound, they will make you that ye neither shall be idle, nor unfruitfull in the knowledge of our Lord Iesus Christ:

9 For he that hath not these things, is blinde, and i cannot see farre off, and hath forgotten that he was purged from his old sins.

10 Wherefore, brethren, give rather diligence to make your calling and election sure: for if ye doe these things, ye shall never fall.

11 For by this means an entring shall be ministred unto you abundantly into the everlasting kingdome of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ.

12 Wherefore, I will not be negligent to put you alwayes in remembrance of these things, though that ye have knowledge, & be stablished in the present trueth.

13 For I thinke it meet as long as I am in this^k tabernacle, to stirre you up by putting you in remembrance, 14 Seeing I know that the time is at hand that I must lay down this my tabernacle, even as our Lord Iesus Christ hath^{*} shewed me.

15 I will endeavour therefore alwayes, that ye also my be able to have remembrance of these things after my departing:

16 For we followed not deceivable fables when we opened unto you the power, and comming of our Lord Iesus Christ, but with our eyes we saw his Majestie:

17 For he received of God the Father honour and glory, when there came such a voyce to him from that excellent glory, * This in my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased.

18 And this voyce we heard when it came from heaven, being with him in the holy mount.

19 We have also a most sure word of the Prophets, 12 to the which ye doe well that ye take heed, as unto a light that shineth in a darke place untill the day¹ dawn, and the^m day-starre arise in your hearts.

20 So that ye first know this, that no prophetic of theⁿ Scripture is of any^o private interpretation:

21 For the prophetic came not in old time by the will of man: but^p holy men of God spake as they were^q mooved by the holy Ghost.

to shine. 1 A more full and open knowledge, then was under the shadowes of the Law. m The clearer doctrine of the Gospel. n The Prophets are to be read, but so, that we aske of God the gift of interpretation, for he that is the authour of the writings of the Prophets, is also the interpreter of them. o For all interpretation cometh from God. p The godly interpreters and messengers. q Inspired of God: and the their motions were in very good order, and not such as were the motions of the prophane flatterers, and foretellers of things to come.

8 The conclusion: Therefore seeing our calling and election is approved by those fruits, and is confirmed in us, & moreover seeing this is the onely way to the everlasting kingdome of Christ, it remaining that we cast our mindes wholly that way. 9 An amplifying of the conclusion joyned with a modest exculc, wherein he declarerh his love towards them, and foretellerh them of his death which is at hand. k In this body.

* Iohn 2.1. 18.

* 1 Cor. 1.17. and 2.1. 10 Another amplification taken both of the great certaintie, and also excellencie of his doctrine, as whereof our Lord Iesus Christ the Son of God is author, whose glory, the Apostle himselfe both saw and heard. * Matth. 17.5.

11 The truth of the Gospel is hereby also manifested, in that it agreeth wholly with the foretellings of the Prophets.

12 The doctrine of the Apostles doeth not shut out the doctrine of the Prophets, for they confirme each other, by each others testimonies, but the Prophets were as candles, which gave light unto the blinde, untill the brightnesse, of the Gospel began to shine.

CHAP:

C H A P. I I.

1 He foretelleth them of false teachers, 3 whose wicked sleights and destruction he declareth. 12 He compareth them to brut beasts, 17 and to wells without water, 20 because they seek to withdraw men from God to their old filthinesse.

BUt there were false prophets also among the people, even as there shall be false teachers among you: which privily shall bring in damnable heresies, even denying the Lord that hath bought them, and bring upon themselves swift damnation.

2 And many shall follow their destructions, by whom the way of truth shall be evil spoken of,

3 And through covetousnesse shall they with fained words make merchandise of you, whose condemnation long since resteth not, and their destruction slumbereth not.

4 For if God spared not the Angels that had sinned, but cast them down into hell, and delivered them into chaines of darkness, to be kept unto damnation:

5 Neither hath spared the old world, but saved Noe the eight person, a preacher of righteousness, and brought in the flood upon the world of the ungodly,

6 And turned the cities of Sodom and Gomorrhe into ashes, condemned them, and overthrew them, and made them an ensample unto them that after should live ungodly,

7 And delivered just Lot vexed with the uncleanly conversation of the wicked:

8 (For he being righteous, and dwelling among them, in seeing and hearing, vexed his righteous soul from day to day with their unlawfull deeds)

9 The Lord knoweth to deliver the godly out of temptation, and to reserve the unjust unto the day of judgement under punishment,

10 And chiefly them that walk after the flesh in the lust of uncleannesse, and despise government, which are bold, and stand in their own conceit, and feare not to speak evill of them that are in dignitie,

11 Whereas the Angels which are greater both in power and might, give not railing judgement against them before the Lord:

12 But these, as naturall brut beasts, led with sensuality and made to be taken and destroyed, speake evill of those things which they know not, and shall perill through their own corruption,

13 And shall receive the wages of unrighteousnesse, as they which count it pleasure daily to live deliciously. Spots they are and blots, delighting themselves in their deceivings, in feasting with you,

14 Having eyes full of adultery, and that cannot cease to sin, beguiling unstable souls, they have hearts exercised with covetousnesse, they are the children of curse:

15 Which forsaking the right way, have gone astray, following the way of Baalam, the son of Bosor, which loved the wages of unrighteousnesse:

16 But he was rebuked for his iniquitie: for the dumbe beast speaking with mans voice, forbad the foolishnesse of the Prophet.

17 These are wells without water, and clouds caried about with a tempest, to whom the black darknesse is reserved for ever.

18 For in speaking swelling words of vanitie, they beguile with wantonnesse through the lusts of the flesh, them that were cleane escaped from them which are wrapped in error,

19 Promising unto them liberty, and are themselves the servants of corruption: for of whomsoever a man is overcome, even unto the same is he in bondage.

20 For if they, after they have escaped from the filthines of the world, through the acknowledging of the Lord and of the Saviour Jesus Christ, are yet tangled again therein, and overcome, the latter end is worse with them then the beginning.

21 For it had been better for them, not to have acknowledged the way of righteousness, then after they have acknowledged it, to turn from the holy commandment given unto them,

22 But it is come unto them, according to the true Proverb, The dog is returned to his own vomit: and, The sow that was washed, to the wallowing in the myre.

C H A P. I I I.

1 He sheweth that he writeth the same things again, 2 because they must often be stirred up, 4 because dangers hang over their heads through certain mockers. 8 Therefore he warneth the godly that they do not after the judgement of the flesh, 12 appoint the day of the Lord. 14 but that they think it alwayes at hand, 15 in which doctrine he sheweth that Paul agreeeth with him.

THis second Epistle I now write unto you, beloved, wherewith I stirre up, and warn your pure mindes,

2 To call to remembrance the words which were told before of the holy Prophets, and also the commandment of us the Apostles of the Lord, and Saviour.

3 This first understand, that there shall come in the last dayes, mockers, which will walk after their lusts,

4 And

Or, little recks. When as by being amongst the Christians in the holy banquets which the Church keepeth, they would seem by that means to be true members of the Church, yet they are indeed but blots of the Church.

He condemneth those that as shewing, even in their behaviour and countenance an unmeasurable lust, as making merchandise of the souls of light persons, as men exercised in all the crafts of covetousnesse, to be short, as men that sell themselves for money, to curse the sons of God after Balams example, whom the dumbe beast reproved.

Num. 22. 23.

Iude 12.

Another note, wherby they may be well known, what manner of men they are, because they have inwardly nothing but either utterly vain or very hurtfull, although they make a shew of some great goodness, but they shall not escape unpunished for it, because under pretence of false liberty, they draw men into most miserable slavery of sinne.

Which beast of knowledge, and have nothing in them.

Which grosse darkness.

They deceive men with vain and swelling words.

They take them as fishes are taken with the hook.

Vnfaithfully and indeed, clean departed from idelity.

It were better to have never known the way of righteousness, then to turn back from it to the old filthinesse: & men that do so, are compared to dogs & swine.

Matth. 12. 45.

Hebr. 6. 4.

Prov. 26. 11.

The remedy against those wicked enemies, both of true doctrine & holines, is to be sought for by the continual meditation of the Prophets & Apostles.

1 Tim. 4. 1.

2 Tim. 3. 1.

Iude 18.

He voucheth the second coming of Christ against the Epicures by name.

Monstrous men, who would seem wise by their contempt of God, and wicked boldnesse.

1 As in times past there were two kinds of prophets, the one true, the other false, so Peter foretelleth the, that there shall be some true, & some false teachers in the Church, in so much that Christ himself shall be denied of some, which notwithstanding shall call him Redeemer.

2 There shall not onely be heresies but also many followers of them.

3 Covetousnesse for the most part is a companion of heresie, & maketh merchandise even of souls.

4 A comfort for godly: God who cast the Angels that fel away from him, headlong into the darknesse of hell, at length to be judged, and who destroyed the old world with the flood, and preserved Noe the eight person: and who burned Sodom, & saved Lot, will deliver his elect from these errors, and will utterly destroy those unrighteous.

5 So the Grecians called the deep dungeons under the earth, which should be appointed to torment the souls of the wicked in.

6 Bound them with chaines: and by darkness he meaneth that most miserable state of life that is full of horror.

7 Which was before the flood: not that God made a new world, but because the world seemed new.

8 For he ceased not the space of an hundred and twenty years to warn the wicked both by word and deed, what wrath of God hangeth over their heads.

9 Which way soever he looked, and turned his eyes.

10 He had a troubled soul, and being vehemently grieved, lived a painful life.

11 Hath been long praised in saving and delivering the righteous.

12 He goeth to another sort of corrupt men, which notwithstanding are within the bosome of the Church, which are wickedly given, & do feloniously speake evill of the authority of Magistrates (which the Angels themselves that minister before God, do not dispraise.) A true and lively description of the Romish clergy (as they call it.)

13 Princes and great men, be they never so high in authority.

14 A lively painting out of the same persons, wherein they are compared to beasts which are made to snare themselves to destruction, while they give themselves to fill their bellies: for there is no greater ignorance then is in these men, although they most impudently finde fault with those things which they know not: and it shall come to passe that they shall destroy themselves as beasts with those pleasures wherewith they are delighted, and dishonour and defile the company of the godly.

15 Made to this end to be a prey to others: So do these men willingly cast themselves into Satans snare.

16 Their own wicked manners shall bring them to destruction.

17 Their own wicked manners shall bring them to destruction.

18 Their own wicked manners shall bring them to destruction.

19 Their own wicked manners shall bring them to destruction.

20 Their own wicked manners shall bring them to destruction.

21 Their own wicked manners shall bring them to destruction.

22 Their own wicked manners shall bring them to destruction.

23 Their own wicked manners shall bring them to destruction.

24 Their own wicked manners shall bring them to destruction.

25 Their own wicked manners shall bring them to destruction.

26 Their own wicked manners shall bring them to destruction.

27 Their own wicked manners shall bring them to destruction.

28 Their own wicked manners shall bring them to destruction.

29 Their own wicked manners shall bring them to destruction.

30 Their own wicked manners shall bring them to destruction.

31 Their own wicked manners shall bring them to destruction.

32 Their own wicked manners shall bring them to destruction.

33 Their own wicked manners shall bring them to destruction.

34 Their own wicked manners shall bring them to destruction.

3 The reason which these mockers pretend, because the course of nature is all one as it was from the beginning, therefore the world was from everlasting, and shall be for ever. 4 He setteth against them the creation of heaven & earth by the word of God, which these men are willingly ignorant of.

5 Which appeared, when the waters were gathered together into one place.

6 Secondly, he setteth against them the universal flood, which was the destruction, as it were of the whole world.

7 For the waters returning into their former place, thus world, that is to say, this beauty of the earth which we see, and all living creatures which live upon the earth, perished.

8 Thirdly, he pronounceth that it shall not be harder for God to burn heaven and earth with fire, in that day which is appointed for the destruction of the wicked (which thing he will also do) then it was for him in times past to make the world with his only word, & afterward to overthrow it with water.

9 The taking away of an objection: In that he seemeth to deferre this judgement a long season, in respect of us it is true, but not before God, with whom there is no time either long or short. * Psal. 90. 4. 8 The Lord will surely come, because he hath promised: and that neither sooner nor later then he hath promised. 9 A reason why the latter day cometh not out of hand, because God doth patiently wait till the elect be brought to repentance, that none of them may perish. * Ezech. 18. 32. and 33. 11. 1 Tim. 2. 4. 10 A very short description of the last destruction of the world, but in such sort as nothing could be spoken more gravely. * Math. 24. 44. 1 Thess. 5. 2. Revel. 3. 3. and 16. 15. d With the violence as it were of a hissing storm.

4 And say, where is the promise of his coming? for since the fathers died, all things continue alike from the beginning of the creation:

5 For this they willingly know not, that the heavens were of old, and the earth that was of the water and by the water, by the word of God.

6 Wherefore the world that then was, perished, overflowed with the water.

7 But the heavens and the earth, which are now, are kept by the same word in store, and reserved unto fire against the day of condemnation, and of the destruction of ungodly men.

8 Dearely beloved, be not ignorant of this one thing, that one day with the Lord as a thousand yeares, and a thousand yeares as one day.

9 The Lord of that promise is not slack (as some men count slackness) but is patient toward us, and would have no man to perish, but would all men to come to repentance.

10 But the day of the Lord wil come as a thief in the night, in the which the heavens shall passe away with a noise, and the elements shall melt with heate, and the earth with the works that are therein, shall be burnt up.

11 Seeing therefore that all these things must be dissolved, what manner of persons ought ye to be in holy conversation and godliness, 12 Looking for, and hastening unto the coming of that day of God, by the which the heavens being on fire, shall be dissolved, and the elements shall melt with heate.

13 But we look for new heavens, and a new earth, according to his promise, wherein dwelleth righteousness.

14 Wherefore, beloved, seeing that ye looke for such things, be diligent that ye may be found of him in peace, without spot and blamelesse.

15 And suppose that the long suffering of our Lord is salvation, even as our beloved brother Paul according to the wisdom given unto him, wrote unto you,

16 As one that in all his Epistles speaketh of these things: among the which some things are hard to be understood, which they that are unlearned and unstable, wrest, as they do also other Scriptures unto their own destruction.

17 Ye therefore beloved, seeing ye know these things before, beware, lest ye be also plucked away with the error of the wicked, and fall from your own steadfastness.

18 But grow in grace, and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ: to him be glory both now and evermore, Amen.

11 An exhortation to puritie of life. sitting before us that horrible judgement of God, both to bridle our wantonnesse, and also to comfort us, to that we be found watching, and ready to meet him at his coming.

12 requireth patience of us, yet such patience as is not slothfull.

* Esai. 65. 17. and 66. 22. Revel. 21. 1.

13 In which heavens, that you may try to your profit, keep gentle and peaceable hearts.

* Rom. 2. 4. 12 Pauls Epistles are allowed by the expresse testimony of Peter.

13 There be certain of these things obscure & darke, whereof the unlearned take occasion to overthrow some men that stand not fast, wresting the testimonies of the Scripture to their own destruction. But this is the remedy against such deceit, to labour that we may daily grow up and increase in the knowledge of Christ.

14 That is to say, among the which things: for he distinguisheth not here whether Pauls Epistles be plain or darke, but saith, that among these things which Paul hath written in his Epistles, and Peter himself in these two of his eyes, there are some things which cannot be so easily understood, and therefore are of some drawn to their own destruction: and this he saith to make us more attentive and diligent, and not to remove us from the reading of holy things: for to what end should they have written vain speculations?

THE

THE FIRST EPISTLE GENERALL OF IOHN.

CHAP. I.

1 He testifieth that he bringeth the eternall word wherein is life, and light. 9 God wil be mercifull unto the faithfull, if groaning under the burden of their finnes, they learne to flee unto his mercy.

1 Hee beginneth with the description of the person of Christ, whom he maketh one and not two: and him both God from everlastings (for he was with the Father from the beginning, and is that eternall life) and also made true man, whom John himselfe and his companions, both heard and beheld, and handled.

IHat which was from the beginning, which wee have heard, which we have seen with these our eyes, which we have looked upon, and these hands of ours have handled of that word of life:

2 (For that life was made manifest, and wee have seen it, and beare witnesse, and shew unto you that eternall life, which was with the Father, and was manifest unto us)

3 That, Isay, which we have seen and heard, declare wee unto you, that ye may also have fellowship with us, and that our fellowship also may be with the Father; and with his Sonne IESVS Christ.

4 And these things write wee unto you, that your joy may be full.

5 This then is the message which we have heard of him, and declare unto you: that God ^a is light, and in him is no darknesse.

6 If we say that we have fellowship with him, and walk in darknesse, we lie, and do not truly:

7 But if we walk in the ^d light as he is in the light, we have fellowship one with another, and the ^e blood of Iesus Christ his Sonne cleanseth us from all sinne.

8 ^f If we say that wee have no sinne, wee ^g deceive our selves, and ^h truth is not in us.

9 ⁱ If we acknowledge our finnes, hee which are lightsome, but with them that are darksome hee hath no fellowship.

^a Iohn. 8. 12. ^d God is said to be light of his own nature, and to be in light that is to say, in that everlasting infinite blessednesse: and we are said to walk in light, in that the beames of that light doe shine unto us in the word. ^e A digression, or going from the matter he is in hand with, to the remission of finnes: for this our sanctification which walk in the light, is a testimony of our joyning and knitting together with Christ: but because this our light is very dark, wee must needs obtain another benefit in Christ, to wit, that our finnes may be forgiven us being sprinkled with his blood: and this in conclusion is the prop and stay of our salvation. ^f Hebr. 9. 28. 1. Pet. 1. 19. Revel. 1. 5. ^g There is none but needeth this benefit, because there is none that is not a sinner. ^h 1. Kings. 8. 46. 2. Chron. 6. 36. Prov. 20. 9. ⁱ This place doth fully refute that persequer and works of supererogation, which the Papists dream of. ^j So then, I do not speak thus for modestie sake, as some say, but because it is so indeed. ^k Therefore the beginning of salvation is to acknowledge our wickednesse, and to require pardon of him, who freely forgiveth all finnes, because he hath promised so to do, and he is faithfull and just.

is ^k faithfull and just, to ^h forgive us our finnes, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousnesse.

10 ^l If we say we have not sinned, wee make him ^m a liar, and his ⁿ word is not in us.

⁷ A rehearsal of the former sentence, wherein he condemned all of sinne without exception: in so much that if any man persuade himself otherwise, he doth as much as in him lieth make the word of God himselfe vain, and to no purpose, yea, he maketh God a liar: for to what end, either in times past needed sacrifices, or now Christ and the Gospel, if wee bee not sinners? They do not onely deceive themselves, but are blasphemous against God. ^k His doctrine shall have no place in us: that is, in our hearts.

CHAP. II.

1 Hee declareth that Christ is our Mediatour and Advocate, 3 and sheweth that the knowledge of God consisteth in holinesse of life, 12 which appertaineth to all sorts, 14 that depend on Christ alone. 15 Then having exhorted them to contemn the world, 18 He giveth warning that Antichrists be avoyded, 24 and that the known truth be stood unto.

MY little children, these things write I unto you, that yee sin not: and if any man sin, we have an ^a Advocate with the Father, Iesus Christ the Just.

2 And he is the ^b reconciliation for our finnes: and not for ours onely, but also for the finnes of the ^c whole world.

3 ² And hereby we are sure that we ^d know him, ^e if we keep his commandments.

4 ³ He that saith, I know him, and keepeth not his commandments, is a liar, and the truth is not in him.

5 ⁴ But he that keepeth his word, in him is the ^f love of God perfect indeed: hereby we know that we are in ^g him.

6 ⁵ Hee that saith he remaineth in him, ought even so to walk, as he hath walked.

7 ⁶ Brethren, I write no new commandment unto you, but an old commandment which yee have had from the beginning: this old commandment is that word, which ye have heard from the beginning.

8 ⁷ Again, a new commandment I write unto you, that ^h which is true in him, and also in you: for the darknesse is past, and that true light now shineth.

¹ to walk in the light, to wit, to keep Gods commandments. Whereby it followeth, that holines doth not consist in those things which men have devised, neither in a vain profession of the Gospel. ^d This must be understood of such knowledge as hath faith with it, and not of a common knowledge. ^e For the true is known by the fruit. ³ Holinesse, that is, a life ordered according to the precept of Gods commandments, how weak so ever wee be, is of necessity joyned with faith, that is, with the true knowledge of the Father in the Son. ⁴ Hee that keepeth Gods commandments loveth God indeed. He that loveth God, is in God, or is joyned together with God. Therefore he that keepeth his commandments is in him. ^f Wherein we love God. ^g He meaneth our conjunction with Christ. ⁵ Hee that is one with Christ, much needs live his life, that is, must walk in his steps. ⁶ The Apostle going about to expound the commandment of charity one towards another, telleth first, that when he urgeth holines, he bringeth no new trade of life (as they use to do which devise traditions one after another) but putteth them in minde of that same law which God gave in the beginning, to wit, by Moses, at that time that God began to make laws to his people. ⁷ He addeth that the doctrine indeed is old, but it is now after a sort new, both in respect of Christ, & also of us, in who he through the Gospel, engraven his law effectually, not in tables of stone, but in our mindes, his last thing, (to wit, that the doctrine is new) which he wrote into your hearts in him, & in you.

8 Now he cometh to the second table, that is, to charity one towards another, and denieth that, that man hath true light in him, or is indeed regenerate and the son of God, which hateth his brother; and such an one wandereth miserably in darknesse, brag hee of never so great knowledge of God, for that wittingly and willingly hee casteth himself headlong into hell.

* Chap. 3. 14. 9 He returneth again from sanctification to remission of sins, because that free reconciliation in Christ is the ground of our salvation, whereupon afterwards sanctification must be built as upon a foundation.

i Therefore I write unto you, because ye are of their number whom God hath reconciled to himselfe.

k For his own sake: And in that sense, Christ hateth out all other, whether they be in heaven or earth.

10 He sheweth that this doctrine agreeth to all ages, and first of all speaking to old men, hee sheweth that Christ and his doctrine are passing ancient, and therefore if they be delighted with old things, nothing ought to be more acceptable unto them.

11 He advertiseth young men, if they be desirous to shew their strength, that they have a most glorious combat for here before them, to wit, Satan the worst enemy who must be overcome: willing them to be as sure of the victory as if they had already gotten it.

12 Finally, hee sheweth to children, that that true Father from whom they have to look for all good things, is set forth unto them in the Gospel.

13 He addeth afterward in like order, as many exhortations: as if hee should say, Remember, you fathers, as I wrote even now, that the everlasting Sonne of God is revealed to us.

14 The world which is full of wicked desires, lusts, or pleasures, and pride, is utterly hated of our heavenly Father. Therefore the Father and the world cannot be loved together: and this admonition is very necessary for green and flourishing youth.

15 Hee speaketh of the world, as it agreeth not with the will of God, for otherwise God is said to love the world with an infinite love, John 3. 16. that is to say, those whom hee chose out of the world.

16 Whereupon the Father is loved. 17 Hee sheweth how much better it is to obey the Fathers will, then the lusts of the world, by both their natures and unlike event.

18 Now, he turneth himself to little children, which notwithstanding are well instructed in the sum of Religion, and willett them by divers reasons to shake off foolishnesse, which is too familiar with that age.

19 Hee useth this word (Little) not because hee speaketh to children, but to allure them the more by using such sweet words.

20 Secondly, because Antichrists, that is, such as fall from God, are already come, even as they heard that they should come. And it was very requisite to warn that unheedy and warlike age of that danger.

21 A digression against certain offences and stumbling blocks wherewith that rude age especially might stumble and be shaken. Therefore that they should not be terrified with the foule falling back of certain, first hee maketh plain unto them, that although such as fall from God and his religion had place in the Church, yet they were never of the Church: because the Church is the company of the elect, which cannot perish, and therefore cannot fall from Christ.

22 So then the elect can never fall from grace. 23 Secondly, he sheweth that these things fall out to the profit of the Church, that hypocrites may be plainly known.

9 * He that saith that he is in that light, and hateth his brother, is in darknesse until this time.

10 * He that loveth his brother, abideth in that light, and there is none occasion of evill in him.

11 But he that hateth his brother, is in darknesse, and walketh in darknesse, and knoweth not whither he goeth, because that darknesse hath blinded his eyes.

12 * Little children, I write unto you, because your finnes are forgiven you, for his ^k Names sake.

13 ⁱ I write unto you, fathers, because ye have known him that is from the beginning. ⁱⁱ I write unto you, young men, because ye have overcome that wicked one.

14 I write unto you, little children, because ye have known the Father.

15 ^j I have written unto you, fathers, because yee have known him that is from the beginning, I have written unto you, young men, because ye are strong, and the word of God abideth in you, and ye have overcome that wicked one.

16 ^k Love not this ^l world, neither the things that are in this world. If any man love this world, the ^m love of the Father is not in him.

17 For all that is in this world (as the lust of the flesh, the lust of the eyes, and the pride of life) is not of the Father, but is of this world.

18 And this world passeth away, and the lust thereof: but hee that fulfilleth the will of God, abideth ever.

19 ⁿ Little children, ^o it is the last time, and as ye have heard that Antichrist shal come, even now there are many Antichrists. wherby we know that it is the last time.

20 They went out from us, but they were not of us: for if they had been of us, they would have continued with us. ^p But this cometh to passe, that it might appeare, that they are not all of us.

21 But yee have an ^q oymntment from that ^r Holy one, and know all things.

22 I have not written unto you, because ye know not the truth: but because ye know it, and that ^s no ly is of the truth.

23 Who is a liar, but he that denieth that Jesus is ^t that Christ? the same is that Antichrist that denieth the Father and the Sonne.

24 Whosoever denieth the Sonne, the same hath not the Father.

25 Let therefore abide in you, that same which ye have heard from the beginning: If that which ye have heard from the beginning, shall remaine in you, yee also shal continue in the Sonne, and in the Father.

26 And this is the promise that he hath promised us, even that eternall life.

27 These things have I written unto you, concerning them that deceive you.

28 But that ^u anynting which ye received of him, dwelleth in you: and ye ^v need not that any man teach you: but as the same ^w anointing teacheth you of all things, and it is true, and it is not lying, and as it taught you, ye shal abide in him.

29 And now, little children, abide in him, that when he shal appeare, we may be bold, and not be ashamed before him at his coming.

30 If ye know that hee is righteous, know ye that he which doth righteously, is born of him.

31 Hee sheweth that newnesse of life must be testified by good works, wherof Charitie is a manifest token. 19 of faith, 22 and praying unto God.

32 The conclusion both of the whole exhortation, and also of the former treatise.

33 A passing over to the treatise following, which tendeth to the same purpose, but yet is more ample, and handleth the same matter after another order, for before he taught us to goe up from the effects to the cause, and in this that followeth, he goeth down from the causes to the effects: And this is the sum of this argument. God is the fountain of all righteounesse, and therefore they that give themselves to righteounesse, are known to be born of him, because they resemble God the Father.

CHAP. III.

1 Setting down the inestimable glory of this, that we are Gods sonnes, 7 Hee sheweth that newnesse of life must be testified by good works, wherof Charitie is a manifest token. 19 of faith, 22 and praying unto God.

Behold, ^a what love the Father hath given to us, that wee should bee ^b called the sonnes of God: ^c for this cause this world knoweth you not, because it knoweth not him.

2 ^d Dearely beloved, now are wee the sons of God, but yet it is not made manifest what wee shall bee: and we know that when he shal be made manifest, we shal be ^e like him: for we shal see him ^f as he is.

3 Before he declareth this adoption, hee saith two things: the one, that this so great a dignity, is not to be esteemed according to the judgement of the flesh, because it is unknown to the world, for the world knoweth not God the Father himselfe. 3 The other, this dignity is not fully made manifest to us our selves, much lesse to strangers, but wee are sure of the accomplishment of it, inasmuch that we shall be like unto the Son of God himselfe, and shall enjoy his sight indeed, such as he is now, but yet notwithstanding this is deferred until his next coming. e Like him not equal. d For now we see as in a glasse, 1. Cor. 13. 12.

21 Thirdly, hee comforteth them, to make them stand fast, inasmuch as they are anointed of the holy Ghost with the true knowledge of salvation.

22 The grace of the holy Ghost, and this is a borrowed kind of speech taken from the writings used in the Law.

23 From Christ who is peculiarly called Holy.

24 The taking away of an objection. He wrote not these things as to men which are ignorant of religion, but rather as to them which do well know the truth, yea, so far forth that they are able to discern truth from falsehood.

25 Hee sheweth now plainly that false doctrine of the Antichrists, to wit, that either they fight against the person of Christ, or his office, or both together, and at once. And they that doe so, doe in vain boast & brag of God, for that in denying the Sonne, the Father also is denied.

26 The true Messiah. They then are deceived themselves, and also deceive other which say that the Turk and other infidels worship the same God that we do.

27 The whole preaching of the Prophets and Apostles is contrary to that doctrine.

28 Therefore it is utterly to be cast away, and this wholly to be holden, and kept, which leadeth us to seek eternall life in the free promise, that is to say, in Christ alone, who is given us of the Father.

29 The same Spirit which indwelleth the elect with the knowledge of the truth and sanctifieth them, giveth them therewithal the gift of perseverance, to continue to the end.

30 The Spirit which you have received of Christ, and which hath led you into all truth. You are not ignorant of these things, and therefore I teach them not as things that were never heard of, but call them to your remembrance as things which you do know.

31 Hee commendeth both the doctrine which they had embraced, and also highly praiseth their faith, and the diligence of such as taught them, yet so, that he taketh nothing from the honour due to the holy Ghost.

32 The conclusion both of the whole exhortation, and also of the former treatise. 27 A passing over to the treatise following, which tendeth to the same purpose, but yet is more ample, and handleth the same matter after another order, for before he taught us to goe up from the effects to the cause, and in this that followeth, he goeth down from the causes to the effects: And this is the sum of this argument. God is the fountain of all righteounesse, and therefore they that give themselves to righteounesse, are known to be born of him, because they resemble God the Father.

33 Hee beginneth to declare this agreement of the Father and the Son, at the highest cause, to wit, at that free love of God towards us, wherewith he so loveth us, that also hee adopteth us to bee his children.

34 What a gift, of how great love.

35 That we should be the sons of God, and so that all the world may perceive we are so.

3 * And every man that hath this hope in him, purgeth himselfe, even * as he is pure.

4 * Whosoever committeth sin, transgresseth also the Law: for sin is the transgression of the Law.

5 * And ye know that he was made manifest, that he might * take away our sins, and in him is no sin.

6 Whosoever abideth in him, sinneth not: whosoever sinneth, hath not seene him, neither hath knowen him.

7 * Little children, let no man deceive you: he that doeth righteousness, is righteous, as he is righteous.

8 * He that committeth sin, is of the devill: for the devill sinneth from the beginning: for this purpose was made manifest that Son of God, that he might loose the works of the devill.

6 Whosoever is born of God, sinneth not: for his seed remaineth in him, neither can he sin, because he is born of God.

10 * In this are the children of God known, and the children of the devill: whosoever doeth not righteousness, is not of God, neither he that loveth not his brother.

11 * For this is the message, that ye heard from the beginning, that * we should love one another.

12 * Not as * Cain which was of that wicked one, and slew his brother: and wherefore slew he him? because his own works were evil, and his brothers good.

13 Marvell not, my brethren, though this world hate you.

14 * We know that we are translated from death unto life, because we love the brethren: * he that loveth not his brother, abideth in death.

15 * Whosoever hateth his brother, is a manslayer: and ye know that no manslayer hath eternall life abiding in him.

16 * Hereby have we perceived love, that he layd down his life for us: therefore we ought also to lay down our lives for the brethren.

17 * And whosoever hath this world's good, and seeth his brother have need, and shutteth up his compassion from him, how dwelleth the love of God in him?

18 * My little children, let us not love in word, neither in tongue only, but in deed and in truth.

19 * For thereby we know that we are of the truth, and shall before him assure our hearts.

20 For if our heart condemn us, God is greater then our heart, and knoweth all things.

21 * Beloved, if our heart condemn us not, then have we boldnesse toward God.

22 * And whatsoever we aske, we receive of him, because we keep his commandments, and doe those things which are pleasing in his sight.

23 * This is then his commandment, That we beleve in the Name of his Son Jesus Christ, and love one another, as he gave commandment.

24 * For he that keepeth his commandments, dwelleth in him, and he in him: and hereby we know that he abideth in us, even by that Spirit which he hath given us.

Lake 3.11. 17 He reasoneth by comparisons: for if we are bound even to give our life for our neighbours, how much more are we bound to help our brothers in need? 18 Whosoever shutteth up his heart to his brother, he shutteth up his heart to God. 19 He committeth charity, by a triple effect: first of all, by the knowledge that we are indeed the sons of God, as he shewed before. 20 Therefore it cometh that we have a quiet conscience, as on the contrary side, he that thinketh that he hath God for a judge, because he is guilty to himselfe, either he is never, or else very rarely quiet, for God hath a farre quicker sight then we, and judgeth more severely. 21 If an evill conscience condemneth us, much more ought the judgement of God to condemn us, who knoweth our hearts better then we our selves do. 22 A third affect ariseth also of the former, that in these miseries we are sure to be heard, because we are the sons of God: as we understand by the grace of sanctification, which is proper to the elect. 23 Matt. 21. 22. Luke 17. 7. and 16. 23. Chap. 5. 14. 24 The Conclusion. That faith in Christ, and love one towards another, are things joyed together, and therefore the outward testimonies of sanctification must, and doe answer that inward testimonie of the spirit given unto us. 25 Iohn 6. 23. and 17. 3. 26 Iohn 13. 34. and 15. 10. 27 He meaneth the spirit of sanctification, whereby we are borne anew and live unto God.

CHAP. IV.

1 Having spoken somewhat touching the trying of spirits: 4 For some speake after the world, 5 and some after God: 7 He returneth to charity, 11. 19 and by the example of God his exhorteth to brotherly love.

Dearly beloved, beleve not every spirit, but trie the spirits whether they are of God: for many false prophets are gone out into the world.

2 * Heereby shall ye know the spirit of God, Every spirit which confesseth that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh, is of God.

3 And every spirit that confesseth not that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh, is not of God: but this is the spirit of Antichrist, of whom ye have heard, how that he should come, and now already he is in the world.

4 * Little children, ye are of God, and have overcome them: for greater is he that is in you, then he that is in the world.

5 * They are of the world, therefore then observe a meane, that we may be able to discern the Spirit of God, which are altogether to be followed, from impure spirits which are to be elchewed. 4 This is spoken by the figure Mattheus, and it is, as if he had said, beleve not every one that saith that he hath a gift of the holy Ghost to doe the office of a Prophet. 2 He giveth a certaine and perpetuall rule to know the doctrine of Antichrist by a wit. If either the divine or humane nature of Christ, or the true uniting of them together be denied: or if the least for that may be, be derogated from his office who is our only King, Prophet, and everlasting high Priest. 6 He speaketh simply of the doctrine, and not of the person. 7 The true Messias is a true man. 3 He comforteth the elect with a most sure hope of victory; but yet so, that he teacheth them that they fight not with their own vertue, but with the vertue and power of God. 4 He bringeth a reason why the world receiveth these teachers more willingly then the true, to wit, because they breathe out nothing but that which is worldly: which is another note also to know the doctrine of Antichrist by.

1 Taking occasion, left by the name of the Spirit, love and charity should be separated from the worship of God, which chiefly dependeth of his true knowledge, he returneth to that which he spake of in the second chapter, touching the taking heed of Antichrist. And he will have us here to take heed of two things, the one is, that seeing there be many false prophets, we doe not lightly give credit to every man: the other is, that because many men teach false things, we should not therefore beleve any. We must then observe a meane, that we may be able to discern the Spirit of God, which are altogether to be followed, from impure spirits which are to be elchewed. 4 This is spoken by the figure Mattheus, and it is, as if he had said, beleve not every one that saith that he hath a gift of the holy Ghost to doe the office of a Prophet. 2 He giveth a certaine and perpetuall rule to know the doctrine of Antichrist by a wit. If either the divine or humane nature of Christ, or the true uniting of them together be denied: or if the least for that may be, be derogated from his office who is our only King, Prophet, and everlasting high Priest. 6 He speaketh simply of the doctrine, and not of the person. 7 The true Messias is a true man. 3 He comforteth the elect with a most sure hope of victory; but yet so, that he teacheth them that they fight not with their own vertue, but with the vertue and power of God. 4 He bringeth a reason why the world receiveth these teachers more willingly then the true, to wit, because they breathe out nothing but that which is worldly: which is another note also to know the doctrine of Antichrist by.

H h speake

16 The first reason taken of comparison, why we cannot hate our neighbour, and love God, to wit, because that he that cannot love his brother, whom he seeth: how can he love God whom he seeth not?

* Iohn. 13. 34. and 15. 12. 17 A second reason, why God cannot be hated, and our neighbour loved, because the selfe same Law maker commandeth both to love him and

C_HA P.^d V2

1 He sheweth that brotherly love and faith, are things inseparable.

10 And that there is no faith towards God, but by believing in Christ: 14 Hence proceedeth calling upon God with assu-rance, 16 and also that our prayers be available for our brethren.

WHosoever beleeveth that Jesus is that a Christ, is born of God: and every one that loveth him, which begate, loveth^b him also which is begotten of him:

2 2 In this we know that we love the children of God, when we love God, and keep his^c commandments.

3³ For this is the love of God, that we keep his commandments;⁴ and * his commandments are not ^dburdenous.

4 For all that is born of God, overcome meth this world : 6 and this is the victory that e hath overcome this world , even our f faith.

5 *7 Who is it that overcommeth this world, but he which beleeveth that Jesus is that Son of God ?

6. This is that Iesus Christ that came by water and blood: not by water onely, but by water and blood: and it is that Spirit, that beareth witnesse: for that Spirit is truth.

7 For there are three, which beare record in heaven, the Father, the ^h Word, and the holy Ghost : and these three are ⁱ one.

8 And there are three, which beare record in the earth, the spirit, and the water, and the blood: and these three agree in one.

the selfe same Lawmaker, (as he taught before) it followeth also, that we doe not love our neighbours, when we breake Gods commandment, because we have not experience teacheth us, that there is no ability in our flesh, either yet will to performe Gods commandments, therefore left the Apostle should seeme, by to often putting them in minde of the commandments of God, to require things that are impossible, he pronounceth that the commandments of God are not in such sort grievous or burdensome, that we canbe oppressed with the burden of them. * Matt. 11. 30. d. To them that be regenerate, that is to 5 A reason: Because by regeneration we have gotten strength to overcome the world, that is to say, whatsoever lieth against the commandments of God. 6 He declareth what that strength is, to wit, faith. He useth the time that is past, to give us to understand, that although we be in the battell, yet undoubtedly we shall be conquerours. Which is the instrument and are most certaine of the victory.

all cause, and as a means and hand whereby we lay hold on him, who indeede doeth performe this; that his bath and doth overcome the world. euen Christ Iesus, + 1 Cor. 15. 57. 7 Moreover, he declareth two things, the one, what true faith is, to wit, that which rethel upon Iesus Christ the Son of God alone: whereupon followeth the other, to wit, that this strength is not proper to faith, but by faith as an instrument is drawn from Iesus Christ the Son of God. 8 He prooveth the excellencie of Christ in whom onely all things are given us, by fix witnesses, three heavenly and three earthly, which wholly and fully agree together. The heavenly Witnesses are, the Father, who sent the Son, the word it selfe, which became flesh, and the holy Ghost. The earthly witnesses are water, (that is, our sanctification) blood, (that is, our justification) the Spirit, (that is, acknowledging of God the Father in Christ by faith through the testimony of the holy Ghost.) 9 He warneth us not to separate water from blood (that is sanctification from justification, or righteousnesse beinge from righteousness imputed) for we stand not upon sanctification, but so farre forth as it is a witness of Christs righteousness imputed unto us: and although this imputation of Christs righteousness be never separated from sanctification, yet is it the only matter of our salvation.

g Our spirit which is the third witness, testifieth that the holy Ghost is truth, that is to say that that is true which he telleth us, so yet, that we are the sons of God.

h Look Iohn 8. 14.

Arraies one.

9¹⁰ If

10 He sheweth by an argument of comparison, of what great weight the heavenly testimony is, that the Father hath given of the Son, unto whom agreeth both the Son himselfe and the holy Ghost. h I conclude thus aright: for that testimony which I said is given in heaven, cometh from God, who saith for his Son. * 1oh. 3.36.

11 He proveth the suretie of the earthly witnesses by every mans conscience, having that testimony in it selfe, which conscience, he saith, cannot be deceived, because it consenteth to the heavenly testimonie which the Father giveth of the Son: for otherwise if Father mult needs be a liar, if the conscience which accordeth and assenteth to the Father, should lie.

12 Now at length he sheweth what this testimonie is, that is confirmed with so many witnesses: to wit, that life, or everlasting felicity is the meere and onely gift of God, which is in the Son, and proceedeth from him unto us, which by faith are joyed in him, so that without him, life is no where to be found. 13 The conclusion of the Epistle, wherein he sheweth first of all, that even they which already beleeve, doe stand in need of this doctrine, to the end that they may grow more and more in faith: that is to say, to the end that they may be daily more and more certified of their salvation in Christ, through faith. 14 Because we doe not yet in effect obtaine that which we hope for, the Apostle joyneth invocation or prayer with faith, which he will have to proceed from faith, and moreover to be conceived in such sort, that nothing be asked but that which is agreeable to the will of God: and such prayers cannot be vaine. * Chap. 3. 22.

9 10 If we receive the witness of men, the witness of God is greater: for this is the witness of God, which he testified of his Son.

10 11 He that beleeveth in that Son of God, hath the witness in himselfe: he that beleeveth not God, hath made him a liar, because he beleeved not the record, that God witnessed of that his Son.

11 12 And this is that record, to wit, that God hath given unto us eternall life, and this life is in that his Son.

12 He that hath that Son, hath that life: and he that hath not that Son of God, hath not that life.

13 13 These things have I written unto you that beleeve in the Name of that Son of God, that ye may know that ye have eternall life, and that ye may beleeve in the Name of that Son of God.

14 14 And this is that assurance that we have in him, * that if we aske any thing according to his will, he heareth us.

15 And if we know that he heareth us, whatsoever we aske, we know that we have the petitions, that we have desired of him.

16 15 If any man see his brother sinne a sin that is not unto death, let him aske, and he shall give him life for them that sin not unto death. * There is a sin unto death: I say not that thou shouldest pray for it.

17 16 All unrighteousnesse is sin, but there is a sin not unto death.

18 17 We know that whosoever is born of God, sinneth not: but he that is begotten of God, keepeth himselfe, and that wicked one toucheth him not.

19 18 We know that we are of God, and this whole world lieth in wickednesse.

20 But we know that that Son of God is come, and hath given us a minde to know him, which is true: and we are in him that is true, that is, in that his Son Jesus Christ: this same is that very God and that eternall life.

21 19 Little children keep your selves from idoles, Amen.

that is to say, made the sons of God in Christ, & being indued with his Spirit, they do not serve sin, neither are deadly wounded of Satan. 18 Every man must particularly apply to himselfe the generall promises, that we may certainly persuade our selves, that whereas all the world is by nature lost, we are freely made the sons of God, by the sending of Iesus Christ his son unto us, of whom we are lightened with the knowledge of the true God and everlasting life. * Luke 24.45. m The divinitie of Christ is most plainly proved by this place. 19 He expreth a plaine precept of taking heed of idoles: which he setteth against the onely true God, that with this lease as it were he might seale up all the former doctrine.

15 We are to make prayers not onely for our selves, but also for our brethren which doe sin, that their sins be not unto them, to death: and yet he excepteth that sin which is never forgiven, or the sin against the holy Ghost, that is to say, an universall and wilfull falling away from the known truth of the Gospel.

1 This is as much as if he said, let him desire the Lord to forgive him, and he will forgive him being so desired.

* Matt. 12.31.

Mark 3.29.

16 The taking away of an objection: indeed all iniquitie is comprehended under the name of sin: but yet we must not despair therefore, because every sin is not deadly, and without hope of remedy.

17 A reason why not all, nay rather why no sin is mortal to some to wit, because they be born of God.

THE SECOND EPISTLE OF JOHN.

This Epistle is written to a woman of great renown, 4 who brought up her children in the feare of God: 6 he exhorteth her to continue in Christian charity, 7 that she accompany not with Antichrists, 10 but avoid them.

a This is no proper name, but to be taken as the word fourth, that is to say, to the worthy and noble Lady.

b Excellent and honorable dame.

1 The bond of Christian conjunction, or linking together, is the true and constant profession of the truth.

c With true knowledge which hath alwayes love joyed with it, and fellowshiping it.

2 This true profession consisteth both in love one towards another, which the Lord hath commanded, and also especially in wholesome and found doctrine, which also is delighted unto us: for the commandment of God is a found and sure foundation, both of the rule of manners, and of doctrine, and these cannot be separated the one from the other. d According as the truth directeth them.

He Elder to the a elect b Lady, and her children, c whom I love in the truth: and not I onely, but also all that have known the truth,

2 For the truths sake which dwelleth in us, and shall be with us for ever:

3 Grace be with you, mercie and peace from God the Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ the son of the Father, with truth and love.

4 I rejoyced greatly, that I found of thy children walking in d truth, as we have received a commandment of the Father, 5 And now beseech I thee, Lady, (not as writing a new commandment unto thee, but that same which we had from the beginning) that we * love one another. * 1oh. 15.12.

6 And this is that love, that we should walke after his commandments. This commandment is, that as ye have heard from the beginning, ye should walke in it.

7 7 For many deceivers are entred into the world, which confesse not that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh. He that is such one, is a deceiver and an Antichrist.

8 8 Looke to your selves, that we lose not the things which we have done, but that we may receive a full reward.

9 Whosoever transgresseth, and abideth not in the doctrine of Christ, hath not God. He that continueth in the doctrine of Christ, he hath both the Father and the Son.

10 10 If there come any unto you, and bring not this doctrine, * receive him not to house,

3 Antichrists fighting against the person and office of Christ, were already crept into the Church, in the time of the Apostles.

4 He that maketh shipwrecke of doctrine, loseth all.

5 Beware, and take good heed.

6 We ought to have nothing to doe with them that defend perverſe doctrine.

* Rom. 16.17.

house neither bid him, God speed.

1 For he that biddeth him, God speed, is partaker of his evill deeds. Although I had many things to write unto you, yet I would not write with paper and ynke: but I trust to come unto you, and speake mouth to mouth, that our joy may be full.

12 The sons of thine elect sifter greet thee, Amen.

THE THIRD EPISTLE OF JOHN.

1 He commendeth Gaius for hospitalitie, 9 and reprehendeth Diotrophes for unaine glory: 10 he exhorteth Gaius to continue in well doing: 12 and in the end commendeth Demetrius.

1 An example of a Christian gratulation.

He 1 Elder unto the beloved Gaius, whom I love in the trueth.

2 Beloved, I wish chiefly that thou prosperedst and faredst well as thy soule prospereth.

3 For I rejoyced greatly when the brethren came, and testified of the trueth that is in thee, how thou walkest in the trueth.

4 Then these joyes.

4 I have no greater joy then a these, that is, to heare that my sons walke in veritie.

5 As becommeth a believer, and a Christian.

5 Beloved, thou doest faithfully, whatsoever thou doest to the brethren, and to strangers,

6 He commendeth to Gaius, either those selfe (as some say) whom he had entertained before, returning now againe to him, about the affaires of the Church, or else some other which had like business.

6 Which bare witness of thy love before the Churches. Whom if thou bringest on their journey as it becometh according to God, thou shalt doe well, 7 Because that for his Names sake they went forth, and tooke nothing of the Gentiles.

8 Wee therefore ought to receive such, that we might be helpers to the trueth.

9 I wrote unto the Church: but Diotrophes which loveth to have the preeminence among them, receiveth us not.

10 Wherefore if I come, I will call to your remembrance his deeds which he doth, prating against us with malicious words, and not therewith content, neither he himselfe receiveth the brethren, but forbiddeth them that would, & thrusteth them out of the Church.

11 Beloved, follow not that which is evill, but that which is good: he that doth well, is of God: but he that doeth evill, hath not seene God.

d That we our selves may helpe somewhat to the preaching of the trueth.

2 Ambition and covetousnesse, two pestilent plagues (especially in them which have any Ecclesiastical function) are condemned in Diotrophes person.

e Hath not known God.

12 Demetrius hath good report of all men, and of the trueth it selfe: yea, and we our selves beare record, and ye know that our record is true.

13 I have many things to write: but I will not with ynke and pen write unto thee:

14 For I trust I shall shortly see thee, and we shall speake mouth to mouth. Peace be with thee. The friends salute thee. Greet the friends by name.

THE GENERAL EPISTLE OF JUDE.

3 He warneth the godly to take heede of such men, 4 that make the grace of God a cloak for their wantonnesse: 5 and that they shall not escape unpunished, for the contempt of that grace, 6. 7. he proveith by three examples: 14 and alledgeth the prophesie of Enoch. 20 Finally, he sheweth the godly a meane, to overthrow all the snares of those deceivers.

a This is put to make a difference betweene Iam and Judas Iscariot. b By Gods Father. c Set apart by the everlasting covenant of God, to be delivered to Christ to be kept.

JUDE a servant of Jesus Christ, and brother of James, to them which are called & sanctified of God the Father, and reserved to Jesus Christ:

2 Mercie unto you, and peace and love be multiplied.

3 Beloved, when I gave all diligence to write unto you of the common salvation, it was needfull for mee to write unto you, to exhort you, that ye should earnestly contend for the maintenance of the faith, which was once given unto the Saints.

4 For there are certaine men crept in, which were before of old ordained to this condemnation: ungodly men they are, which turn the grace of our God, into wantonnesse, and denie God the onely

1 The end and marke wherewith he sheweth in this Epistle, is that he confirmeth the godly against certaine wicked men, both in wholesome doctrine and good manners.

d Of those things that pertaine to the salvation of all of us. e That ye should defend the faith by all the might you can, both by true doctrine and good example of life. f Which was once given, that it may never be changed.

2 It is by Gods providence and not by chance: that many wicked men creep into the Church. 3 He condemneth this first in them, that they take a pretence or occasion to waxe wanton, by the grace of God: which cannot be, but the chief empire of Christ must be abrogated, in that such men give up themselves to Satan, as at this day the sect of Anabaptists doth, which they call Libertines. 2 Pet. 2. 1.

Lord,

4 He setteth forth the horrible punishment of them which have abused the grace of God to follow their own lusts.

* Num. 14. 37.

5 The fall of the Angels was most severely punished, how much more then will the Lord punish wicked and faithlesse men?

* 2 Pet. 2. 4.

* Gen. 19. 24.

6 Following the steps of Sodom and Gomorrah.

h Thus he covertly setteth forth their horrible and monstrous lusts.

i Which are so blackish and void of reason, as if all their senses and wits were in a most dead sleep.

6 Another most pernicious doctrine of theirs, in that they take away the authority of Magistrates, and speake evill of them, as at this day the Anabaptists do.

k It is a greater matter to despise government then the governments that is to say, the matter is selfe then the persons.

7 An argument of comparison: Michael one of the chiefest Angels, was content to deliver Satan, although a most cursed enemy, to the judgment of God to be punished:

and these pervers men are not ashamed to speake evill of the powers which are ordained of God.

8 The conclusion: These men are in a double fault, to wit both for their rash folly in condemning some, and for their impudent & shamelesse contempt of knowledge, when they had gotten, yet notwithstanding they lived as brut beasts, serving their bellies.

9 He foretelleth their destruction, because they resemble or shew forth, Cains shameles malice, Balaams filthy covetousnesse, and to be short, Cores seditious and ambitious head.

* Gen. 4. 8. * Num. 22. 21. 2 Pet. 2. 15. * Num. 16. 1. 10 He rebuketh most sharply with many other notes and marks, both their dishonesty or filthinesse, and their lawcinesse, but especially, their vain bravery of words and most vain pride, joyning therewithal a most grave and heavy threatening out of a most ancient prophesie of Enoch touching the judgement to come.

1 The feasts of charitie were certain banquetts, which the brethren which were members of the Church kept altogether, as Tertullian setteth forth in his Apologie, chap. 39.

m Imprudently, without all reverence either to God or man.

* 2 Pet. 2. 17.

Lord, and our Lord Jesus Christ.

5 * I will therefore put you in remembrance, forasmuch as ye once knew this, how that the Lord, after that he had delivered the people out of Egypt, * destroyed them afterward which beleevd not.

6 * The * Angels also which kept not their first estate, but left their own habitation, he hath reserved in everlasting chaines under darknesse unto the judgement of the great day.

7 As * Sodom and Gomorrah, and the cities about them, which in like manner as they did, committed fornication, and followed strange flesh, are set forth for an example, and suffer the vengeance of eternall fire.

8 Likewise notwithstanding these sleepers also defile the flesh, * and despise * government, and speake evill of them that are in authority.

9 * Yet Michael the Archangel, when he strove against the devill, and disputed about the body of Moses, durst not blame him with cursed speaking, but said, The Lord rebuke thee.

10 * But these speake evill of those things which they know not: and whatsoever things they know naturally, as beasts, which are without reason, in those things they corrupt themselves.

11 * Wo be unto them: for they have followed the way of * Cain, and are cast away by the deceit * of Balaams wages, and perish in the gainfaying * of Core.

12 * These are rocks in your¹ feasts of charitie when they feast with you, without all feare, feeding themselves: * clouds they are without water, caried about of winds, corrupt trees, and without fruit, twise dead, and plucked up by the roots.

13 They are the raging waves of the sea, foming out their own shame: they are wandering starres, to whom is reserved the * blacknesse of darknesse for ever.

14 And Enoch also the seventh from Adam, prophesied of such, saying, * Behold, the Lord * cometh with thousands of his Saints, 15 To give judgement against all men, and to rebuke all the ungodly among them of all their wicked deeds, which they have ungodly committed, and of their cruell speakings, which wicked sinners have spoken against him.

16 These are murmurers, complainers, walking after their own lusts: * whose mouthes speake proud things, having mens persons in admiration, because of advantage.

17 * But, ye beloved, remember the words which were spoken before of the Apostles of our Lord Jesus Christ, 18 How that they told you that there should be mockers * in the last time, which should walk after their own ungodly lusts.

19 * These are they that separate themselves from other, naturall, having not the Spirit.

20 But, ye beloved, edifie your selves in your most holy faith, praying in the holy Ghost, 21 And keep your selves in the love of God, looking for the mercy of our Lord Jesus Christ, unto eternall life.

22 * And have compassion of some, in putting difference:

23 And other save with feare, pulling them out of the fire, and hate even that garment which is spotted by the flesh.

24 * Now unto him that is able to keep you, that ye fall not, and to present you faultlesse before the presence of his glory with joy, 25 That is, to God onely wise, our Saviour, be glory, and majestie, and dominion, and power, both now and for ever, Amen.

* Most grosse darkness.

* Revel. 1. 7.

* The present time, for the time to come.

* Tsal. 17. 10.

11 The rising up of such monsters was spoken of before, y we should not be troubled at the newnes of the matter.

* 4 Tim. 4. 1.

2 Tim. 3. 1.

2 Pet. 3. 3.

12 It is the property of Antichrists to separate themselves from the godly, because they are not governed by the Spirit of God: and contrariwise, it is the property of Christians to edifie one another through godly prayers, both in faith, and also in love, untill the mercy of Christ appear to their full salvation.

13 Amongst them which wander and go astray, the godly have to use this choice, that they handle some of them gently, and that other some being even in the very flame, they endeavour to save & severe, and shap instruction of the present danger, yet so, that they do in such sort abhorre the wicked and dishonest, that they eschew even the least contagion that may be.

p By fearing them, & holding them back with godly severity.

q An amplification taken from the forbidden things of the law which did defile.

14 He commendeth them to the grace of God, declaring sufficiently that it is God onely that can give us that constancie, which he requir-eth of us.

THE ORDER OF TIME WHEREVNTO THE CONTENTS OF THIS BOOK ARE TO BE REFERRED.

The yeare

THE

THE REVELATION OF SAINT JOHN THE APOSTLE AND

Evangelist, with the Annotations of

FRANCIS IUNIUS.

CHAP. I.

¹ He declareth what kinde of doctrine is here handled, ⁸ Even his, that is the beginning and ending: ¹² Then the myste-rie of the seven candlesticks and starres ²⁰ is expounded.

¹ This chapter hath two principal parts, the title or inscription which standeth in stead of an exordium: and a narration going before the whole prophesie of this book. The inscription is double, generall, and particular. The generall containeth the kinde of prophesie, the author, end, matter, instruments and manner of communicating the same, in the first verse: the most religious faithfulness of the Apostle as a publick witness, verse 2. And the use of communicating the same taken from the promise of God, and from the circumstance of the time, vers. 3.

He ^{1a} Revelation of Jesus Christ, which God gave unto him, to shew unto his servants things which must shortly be done: which he sent, and shewed by his Angel unto his servant John,

² Who bare record of the word of God, and of the Testimony of Jesus Christ, and of all things that he saw.

³ Blessed is he that readeth, and they that heare the words of this prophesie, & keep those things which are written therein: for the time is at hand.

⁴ ² John to the seven Churches which are in Asia: Grace be with you, and peace from him, ^c Which ^{*} is, and which was, and which is to come, and from ⁴ the ¹ An opening of a hid and secret thing. ² Which the Son opened to us out of his Fathers bosome by Angels. ³ This is the particular or singular inscription: wherein salutation is written unto certain Churches by name, which represent the Church Catholick: and the certaintie and truth of the same is declared, from the Author thereof, unto the eight verse. ⁴ That is, from God the Father, eternall, immortall, immutable: whose unchangeableness, Saint John declareth by a form of speech which is undeclined. For there is no incongruities in this place, where, of necessity the words must be attempted unto the mysteries, and not the mysteries corrupted or impaired by the words. ⁵ By these three times, ^{1st} I was, and ^{2nd} shall be, ^{3rd} is signified this word ^{Yehovah}, which is the proper name of God. ⁶ Exod. 3. 14. ⁷ That is, from the holy Ghost which proceedeth from the Father and the Son. This Spirit is one in person according to his substance, but in communication of his virtue, and in demonstration of his divine works in those seven Churches, doth so perfectly manifest himselfe, as if there were so many spirits, every one perfectly working in his owne Church. Wherefore after, Chapter 5. 6. they are called the seven horns and seven eyes of the Lambe, as much to say, as his most absolute power and wisdom: and Chapter 3. 1. Christ is said to have those seven Spirits of God, and Chapter 4. 5. it is said, that seven lampes doe burne before his throne, which also are those seven Spirits of God. That this place ought to be so understood, it is thus proved. For first, grace and peace is asked by prayer of this Spirit, which is a divine worke, and an action incommunicable in respect of the most high Deitie. Secondly, hee is placed betweene the Father and the Sonne, as if in the same degree of dignitie and operation with them, besides, hee is before the throne, as of the same substance with the Father and the Sonne: as the seven eyes and the seven horns of the Lambe. Moreover, these Spirits are never said to adore God, as all other things are. Finally, that is the power whereby the Lambe openeth the book, and loosed the seven seales thereof, when none could be found amongst all creatures by whom the book might be opened. Chap. 5. Of these things long ago Master Iohn Luide of Oxford wrote learnedly unto mee. Now the holy Ghost is set in order of words before Christ, because there was in that which followeth a long processe of speech to be used concerning Christ.

⁴ seven Spirits which are before his Throne,

⁵ And from Jesus Christ, ^s which is that ^{} faithfull witness, and ^{} that first begotten of the dead, and that Prince of the kings of the earth, unto him that loved us, and washed us from our sinnes in his ^{} blood, ⁶ And made us ^{} kings and Priests unto God even his Father; to him, I say, be glory and dominion for evermore, Amen.

⁷ Behold, he cometh with ^{} clouds, and every ^{} eye shall see him: yea, even they which pierced him thorow: and all kinreds of the earth shall waile before him. Even so, Amen.

⁸ ⁶ I am ^α Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the ending, saith the Lord, Which is, and which was, and which is to come, even the Almighty.

⁹ ⁷ I John, even your brother and companion in tribulation, and in the kingdome and patience of Jesus Christ, was in the Isle called Patmos, for the word of God, and for the witnessing of Jesus Christ:

¹⁰ And I was ravished in ^h spirit on the ⁱ Lords day, and heard behind mee a great voyce, as it had beene of a trumpet,

¹¹ Saying, I am Alpha and Omega, that first & that last: and that which thou seest, write in a book, and send it unto the seven mutable eternitie that is in himself, and his omnipotencie in all things, and concludeth in the unitie of his own essence, that Trinity of persons which was before spoken of. ^{*} Chap. 21. 6. and 22. 13. ^f I am he before whom there is nothing, yea, by whom every thing that is made, was made, and shall remain though all they be made perishing. ⁷ The narration opening the way to the declaring of the authority and calling of Saint Iohn the Evangelist in this singular Revelation, and to procure faith and credit unto this prophesie. This is the second part of this Chapter, consisting of a proposition, and an exposition. The proposition sheweth first who was called unto this Revelation, in what place, and how occupied, verse 9. Then at what time, and by what means, namely, by the Spirits and the word, and that on the Lords day, which day ever since the resurrection of Christ, was consecrated for Christians unto the religion of the Sabbath: that is to say, to be a day of rest, verse 10. Thirdly, who is the author that calleth him, and what is the time of his calling. ^g Patmos is one of the Isles of Spargos, whither Iohn was banished, as some write. ^h This is that holy paradise, expressed, where with the Prophets were ravished, and being as it were carried out of the world, were conversant with God: and so Ezekiel saith often, that he was carried from place to place of the Lords Spirit, and that the Spirit of the Lord fell upon him. ⁱ He calleth it the Lords day, which Paul call the first day of the week. 1. Cor. 16. 2.

Church-

8 The exposition declaring 9 third and last point of the proposition (for the other points are evident of themselves) wherein is spoken, first of the Author of his calling, unto the 17. verse, secondly, of the calling it self, unto the end of the chapt. And first of all the occasion is noted in this verse, in that Saint John turned himself towards the vision, after is set down the description of the Author, in the verses following, 13, 14, 15, 16.

9 To see him whose voice I had heard. 10 The description of the Author, which is Christ: by 7 candlesticks that stand about him, that is, the Churches that stand before him, and depend upon his direction in this verse: that he is one furnished with wisdom and dexterity to the archiving of great things, verse 13. with ancient gravity and most excellent sight of the eye, verse 14. with strength invincible, and with a mighty word, verse 15. By his operations that he ruleth the ministry of his servants in 9 Churches, giveth effect therunto by the sword of his word, and enligning all things by his countenance, doth most mightily provide for every one by his divine providence, verse 16.

10 A religious feare that goeth before the calling of the Saints, and their full confirmation to take upon them the vocation of God. 11 A divine confirmation of this calling, partly by signes, and partly by word of power. 12 A most elegant description of this calling contained in three things, which are necessary unto a just vocation: First, the authority of him that calleth, for that he is the beginning and end of all things, in this verse, for that he is eternall and omnipotent, verse 18. Secondly, the sum of this Propheatical calling and revelation, verse 19. Lastly, a declaration of those persons unto whom this prophesie is by the commandment of God, directed in the description thereof, verse 20. * Esa. 41. 4. 13 The sum of this prophesie, that the Apostle must write whatsoever he should see, adding nothing, nor taking away any thing, verse 2. Hereof there are two parts: one is a narration of those things which are, that is, which then were at that time, contained in the second and third chapter: the other part is of those things which were to come, contained in the rest of this booke. 14 That is, the thing which was mytical, signified by the particulars of the vision before going. 15 By Angels be meant the ministers of the Church.

CHAP. II.

1 John is commanded to write those things which the Lord knew necessary to the Churches of Ephesus, 3. of the Smyrnians, 12. of Pergamus, 18. and of Thyatira, 25. that they keep those things which they received of the Apostles.

1 The former part of this booke is comprised in a narration of those things which then were, as 5. John taught us, chap. 1. 19. it belongeth wholly unto instruction, and in these two next chapters, containeth seven places, according to the number and condition of those Churches which were named before, chap. 1. 11. figured verse 12, and distributed most aptly into their pastures and flocks, verse 20. which verse of that chapter is as it were a passage unto the first part. Every one of these seven places hath three principall members: an Exordium taken from the person of the author: a proposition, in which is praise and commendation of that which is good, reprehension of that which is evil: and instruction, containing either an exhortation alone, or withall a dissuasion opposite unto it, and a conclusion stirring up unto attention, by divine promises. And this first place is unto the Pastors of the Church of Ephesus. 2 The Exordium, wherein are contained the special praises of Christ Jesus the author of this prophesie, out of the 6. and 13. verses of the first chap. 2. r.

Vnto the Angel of the Church of Ephesus write, 2 These things saith he Churches, which are in Asia, unto Ephesus, and unto Smyrna, and unto Pergamus, and unto Thyatira, and unto Sardis, and unto Philadelphia, and unto Laodicea.

12 Then I turned back to see the voice that spake with me: and when I was turned, I saw seven golden candlesticks;

13 And in the mids of the seven candlesticks one like unto the Sonne of man, clothed with a garment down to the feet, and girded about the paps with a golden girdle.

14 His head, and haire were white as white wool, and as snow, and his eyes were as a flame of fire, 15 And his feet like unto fine brasse, burning as in a furnace: and his voyce as the sound of many waters.

16 And he had in his right hand seven starres: and out of his mouth went a sharp two edged sword: and his face shone as the Sun shineth in his strength.

17 And when I saw him, I fell at his feet as dead: then he laid his right hand upon me, saying unto me, Feare not: I am that first and that last,

18 And am alive, but I was dead: and behold, I am alive for evermore, Amen: and I have the keyes of hell and of death.

19 Write the things which thou hast seen, and the things which are, and the things which shall come hereafter.

20 The myserie of the seven starres which thou sawest in my right hand, and the seven golden candlesticks, isthis, The seven starres are the 1 Angels of the seven Churches: and the seven candlesticks which thou sawest are the seven Churches.

that holdeth the seven starres in his right hand, and walketh in the mids of the seven golden candlesticks,

2 I know thy works, and thy labour, and thy patience, and how thou canst not beare with them which are evill, and hast examined them which say they are Apostles, and are not, and hast found them liars.

3 And thou wast burdened, and hast patience, and for my names sake hast laboured, and hast not fainted.

4 Neverthelesse, I have somewhat against thee, because thou hast left thy first love.

5 Remember therefore from whence thou art fallen, and repent, and do the first works: or else I will come against thee shortly, and will remove thy candlestick out of his place, except thou amend.

6 But this thou hast, that thou hatest the works of the Nicolaitanes, which I also hate.

7 Let him that hath an eare, heare what the Spirit saith unto the Churches: To him that overcometh, will I give to eat of the tree of life which is in the mids of the Paradife of God.

8 And unto the Angel of the church of the Smyrnians, write, These things saith he that is first, and last, which was dead and is alive,

9 I know thy works and tribulation, and poverty (but thou art rich) and I know the blasphemy of them, which say they are Jewes, and are not, but are the synagogue of Satan.

10 Feare none of those things, which thou shalt suffer: behold, it shall come to passe, that the devill shall cast some of you into prison, that ye may be tryed, and ye shall have tribulation ten dayes: be thou faithfull unto the death, and I will give thee the crown of life.

11 Let him that hath an eare, heare what the Spirit saith to the Churches. He that overcometh, shall not be hurt of the second death.

12 And to the Angel of the Church, which is at Pergamus write, Thus saith he which hath that sharpe sword with two edges.

13 I know thy works, and where thou dwellest, even where Satans throne is, and thou keepest my name, and hast not denied my faith, even in those dayes when Antipas my faithfull martyr was slain among you, where Satan dwelleth.

which are here mentioned. 9 The conclusion, verse 7. 10 See chap. 20. 6. 11 The third place is unto the Pastors of Pergamus. The Exordium is taken out of the 16. verse of the first chapter. 12 Pergamus was the name of a famous city in old time in Asia where the kings of the Attalians were alwayes resident. 12 The proposition of praise, is in this verse, of reprehension in the two following, and of exhortation joynd with a conditional threat, as verse 16. Now this Antipas was the Angel or minister of the Church of Pergamus, as Aretas writeth. 13 The faith of them of Pergamus is so much the more highly commended, because they remained constant even in the very heate of persecution. * Num. 24. 14. and 25. 1.

14 But

3 The proposition first commending the Pastors of this Church, verse 2. 3. then reproving him, verse 4. after informing him, & withall, threatening that he will translate the Church to another place, verse 5. This commendation, or threat Christ mitigateth by a kinde of correction, calling to minde the particular vertue and piety of that Church, which God never leaveth without recompense, verse 6. Concerning the Nicolaitane see after upon the 15. verse.

4 To deale with thee. 4 The conclusion containing a commandment of attention, & a promise of everlasting life, shadowed out in a figure, of which Gen. 2. 9.

5 That is, in Paradise after the manner of the Hebrew phrase.

6 This Christ speaketh as he is Mediator.

7 The second place is unto the Pastors of the Church of the Smyrnians. The Exordium is taken out of the 17. and 18. verses of the first chapter. 8 Smyrna was one of the cities of Ionia in Asia.

9 The proposition of praise is in this verse, and of exhortation joynd with promise, is in the next verse.

10 That is, of ten years. For commonly both in this booke, and in Daniel, years are signified by the name of dayes that God thereby might declare, that the space of time is appointed by him, and the same very short. Now because 9. John wrote this booke in the end of Domitian the Emperour, as Julius and Irenaeus doe witness, it is altogether necessary that this should be referred unto that persecution which was done by the authority of the Emperour Trajan: who began to make havock of the Christian Churches in the tenth year of his reign, as his bloody persecution continued untill Adrian the Emperour had succeeded in his place: The space of which time is precisely ten years.

11 Let him that hath an eare, heare what the Spirit saith to the Churches. He that overcometh, shall not be hurt of the second death. 12 And to the Angel of the Church, which is at Pergamus write, Thus saith he which hath that sharpe sword with two edges. 13 I know thy works, and where thou dwellest, even where Satans throne is, and thou keepest my name, and hast not denied my faith, even in those dayes when Antipas my faithfull martyr was slain among you, where Satan dwelleth.

14 But I have a few things against thee, because thou hast there them that maintaine the doctrine of * Balaam, which taught Balac to put a stumbling block before the children of Israel, that they should eat of things sacrificed unto Idoles, and commit fornication, 15 Even so hast thou them, that maintaine the doctrine of the ¹³ Nicholaitanes, which thing I hate.

16 Repent thy selfe, or else I will come unto thee shortly, and will fight against thee with the sword of my mouth.

17 ¹⁴ Let him that hath an eare, heare what the Spirit saith unto the Churches. To him that overcommeth, will I give to eat ¹⁵ of the ⁸ Manna that is hid, and will give him a ¹⁶ white stone, and in the stone, a new ¹⁷ name written, which no man knoweth, saving he that receiveth it.

18 ¶ And unto ¹⁸ the Angel of the Church which is at Thyatira write, These things saith the Son of God, which hath his eyes like unto a flame of fire, and his feet like fine brasse.

19 I know ¹⁹ thy works, and thy love, and ¹ service, and faith, and thy patience, and thy works, and that they are more at the last, then at the first.

20 Notwithstanding, I have a few things against thee, that thou sufferest the woman Jezabel, which calleth her selfe a prophetesse, to teach and to deceive my servants, to make them commit ^k fornication, and to eat meat sacrificed unto idoles.

21 And I gave her space to repent of her fornication, but shee repented not.

22 Behold, I will cast her into a bed, and them that commit fornication with her, into great affliction, except they repent them of their workes.

23 And I will kill her children with death, and all the Churches shall know that I am he which ^{*} search the reines and hearts: and I will give unto every one of you according unto your workes.

24 And unto you I say, the rest of them of Thyatira, As many as have not this learning, neither have knowen the ¹ deepnesse of Satan (as they speake) I will ^m put upon you none other burden,

25 But that which yee have already: hold fast till I come:

26 ²⁶ For hee that overcommeth and keepeth my workes unto the end, to him will I give ²¹ power over nations, 27 ^{*} And he shall rule them with a rod of yron: and as the vessels of a potter, shall they bee broken.

28 Even as I received of my Father, so will I give him the ²² morning star.

29 Let him that hath an eare, heare what the Spirit saith to the Churches.

CHAP. III.

¹ The first Epistle sent to the Pastours of the Church of Sardis, ⁷ Of Philadelphia, ¹⁴ and of the Laodiceans, ¹⁶ that they be not taken warme, ²⁰ But endeavour to further Gods glory.

And write unto the Angel of the Church which is at ^{*} Sardis, These things saith hee that hath the seven Spirits of God, and the seven stars, ² I know thy workes: for thou hast a ^b name that thou livest, but thou art dead.

2 Be awake, and strengthen the things which remaine, that are ^c ready to die: for I have not found thy workes perfect before God.

3 Remember therefore, how thou hast received and heard, and hold fast and repent. ^{*} If therefore thou wilt not watch, I will come on thee as a thiefe, and thou shalt not know what houre I will come upon thee.

4 Notwithstanding thou hast a few names yet in Sardis, ³ which have not defiled their garments: and they shall walke with mee in ⁴ white: ³ for they are ^d worthy.

5 He that overcommeth shall be clothed in white aray, and I will not put out his name out of the ^{*} booke of life, but I will confesse his name before my Father, and before his Angels.

8 ⁷ I know thy workes: behold I have set before thee an open doore, and no man can shut it: for thou hast a little strength, and hast kept my word, and hast not denied my Name.

9 Behold, I will make them ^f of the Synagogue of Satan; which call themselves Jewes, and are not, but do lie: behold, I say, I will make them that they shall come ⁸ and worship before thy feet, and shall know that I have loved thee.

CHAP. IV.

¹ Another vision containing the glory of Gods Majesty: ⁸ which is magnified of the foure beasts, ¹⁰ and the foure and twenty Elders.

After ¹ this I looked, and behold a doore was open in heaven, and the first voice ^{wh} I heard, was as it were of a trumpet talking with me, saying, Come up hither, and I will shew thee things which must be done hereafter.

2 And ² immediatly I was ravished ^a in the spirit, ³ and behold, a throne was set in heaven, and one sat upon the throne.

3 ⁴ And he that sat, was to look upon, like unto a Jasper stone, and a Sardine, and there was a rainbow round about the throne, in sight like to an emerald.

4 ⁵ And round about the throne were foure and twenty seats, and upon the seats I saw foure and twenty Elders sitting, cloathed in white raiment, and had on their heads crownes of gold.

5 ⁶ And out of the throne proceeded lightnings, and thundrings, and voices, and there were seven lamps of fire burning before the throne, which are the seven Spirits of God.

6 ⁷ And before the throne there was a sea of glasse like unto crysell: and in the mids of the throne, and round about the throne were foure beasts, full of eyes before and behind.

7 And the first beast was like a lion, and the second beast like a calfe, and the third beast had a face as a man, and the fourth beast was like a flying eagle.

8 And the ^b foure beasts had each one of them six wings about him, and they were full of eyes within, and they ceased not ^{*} day nor night, saying, Holy, holy, holy, Lord God almighty, Which was, and Which is, and Which is to come.

¹⁵ The conclusion consisting of a promise, as chap. 2. verse 26, and of an exhortation. Hitherto hath beene the first part of the booke of the Apocalypse.

¹⁶ Hereafter followeth the second part of this book, allegorically, foretelling those things which were to come, as was said before, chap. 1. 19.

This is divided into two histories: one common unto the whole world, unto the 9. chapter: and another singular of the Church of God, thence unto the 22. chap. and these histories are said to be described in severall books, chap. 5. 1. and 10. 2. Now this first verse, is as it were a passage from the former part unto the second: where it is said, that the heaven was opened, that is, that heavenly things were unlocked, and that a voice of a trumpet sounded in heaven, to stirre up the Apostle, and call him to the understanding of things to come. The first history hath two parts: one of the causes of things done, and of this whole Revelation, in this and the next chapter. Another of the Acts done in the next four chapters. The principall causes according to the distinction of persons in the unity of the divine essence, and according to the economy or dispensation thereof, are two: One the beginning, which none shall approach unto, that is, God the Father, of whom is spoken in this chapter. The other, the Son, who is the meane cause, esse to be approached unto, in respect that he is God and man in person, of whom, chap. 5.

² The manner of Revelation, as before, 1. 10.

^a Look chap. 1. 10.

³ A description of God the Father, and of his glory in the heavens, framed unto the manner of men by his office, nature, company, attending, effect, instruments, and events, that follow afterwards. In this verse he is presented in office as a Judge, as Abraham said, Gen. 18. which is declared by his throne, as an ensigne of judgement, and his sitting thereupon.

⁴ By his nature, in that hee is the Father, most glorious in his owne person, and with his glory overthining all other things.

⁵ By the company attending about him, in that as that most high Judge, he is accompanied with the most honourable attendance of Prophets and Apostles both of the old and new Church: whom Christ hath made to be Priests and Kings, Chap. 1. 6. and 5. 10.

⁶ By effects, in that most mightily hee speaketh all things by his voice, and word, as Psal. 29. 3. and with the light of his spirit and prudence penetrateth and pisseth through all.

⁸ By events, in that for all the causes before mentioned, God is glorified both of Angels, as holy, Judge, omnipotent, eternal, and immutable, verse 8, and also after their example he is glorified of holy men, verse 9. in signe and in speech, verse 10. 11. ^c God is said to have glory, honour, kingdom, and such like, given unto him, when he godly and reverently set forth that which is properly and only his.

¹⁰ The summe of their speech: that all glory must be given unto God: the reason, because hee is the eternall beginning of all things, from whole onely will they have their being, and are governed: and finally, in all respect are that which they are. ^{*} Chap. 5. 12.

¹¹ That is, that thou shouldest challenge the same to thy selfe alone. But as for us wee are unworthy, that even by thy goodnesse we should be made partakers of this glory. And hitherto hath beene handled the principall cause unapproachable, which is God.

ANd I saw in the right hand of him that sat upon the throne, a booke written within, and on the backside sealed with seven seales.

2 And I saw a strong Angel which preached with a lowd voyce, Who is worthy to open the booke, and to loose the seales thereof?

3 And no man in heaven nor in earth, neither under the earth, was able to open the booke, neither to look thereon.

4 Then I wept much, because no man was found worthy to open, and to read the booke, neither to looke thereon.

5 And one of the Elders said unto me, Weep not: behold, that Lion which is of the tribe of Judah, that root of David, hath obtained to open the booke, and to loose the seven seales thereof.

6 Then I beheld, and loe, in the mids of the throne, and of the four beasts, and in the mids of the Elders stood a Lambe, as though he had been killed, which had seven hornes, and seven eyes, which are the seven Spirits of God, sent into all the world.

7 And he came, and took the booke out of the right hand of him that sat upon the throne.

8 And when he had taken the booke, the four beasts, and the four and twenty Elders fell down before the Lambe, having every one harps and golden vials full of odours, which are the prayers of the Saints,

9 And they sung a new song, saying, Thou art worthy to take the booke, and to open the seales thereof, because thou wast killed, and hast redeemed us to God by thy blood out of every kinred, and tongue, and people, and nation:

10 And hast made us unto our God, Kings, and Priests, and we shall reigne on the earth.

11 Then I beheld, and I heard the voice of many Angels round about the throne, and about the beasts, and the Elders, 12 And they said, Blessing him that cometh in the name of the Lord our God, who is seated upon the throne.

13 And I heard the voice of the four beasts, saying, Amen. And I heard the voice of the Elders, saying, Amen.

14 And I heard the voice of the Lambe, saying, Come and see.

15 And I heard the voice of the four beasts, saying, Come and see.

16 And I heard the voice of the Elders, saying, Come and see.

17 And I heard the voice of the Lambe, saying, Come and see.

18 And I heard the voice of the four beasts, saying, Come and see.

19 And I heard the voice of the Elders, saying, Come and see.

20 And I heard the voice of the Lambe, saying, Come and see.

14 and there were ten thousand times ten thousand, and thousands of thousands,

12 Saying with a loud voice, Worthy is the Lambe that was killed, to receive power, and riches, and wisdom, and strength, and honour, and glory, & prayse.

13 And all the creatures which are in heaven, and on the earth, and under the earth, and in the sea, and all that are in them, heard I, saying, Praise, and honour, and glory, and power be unto him that sitteth upon the throne, and unto the Lambe for evermore.

14 And the four beasts said, Amen: and the four and twentie Elders fell down, and worshipped him that liveth for evermore.

CHAP. VI.

1 The Lambe openeth the first seale of the booke, 3 the second, 5 the third, 7 the fourth, 9 The fifth, 12 and the sixth, and then arise murders, famine, pestilence, outcries of Saints, earthquakes, and divers strange sights in heaven.

After, I beheld when the Lambe had opened one of the seales, and I heard one of the four beasts say, as it were the noise of thunder, Come and see.

2 Therefore I beheld, and loe, there was a white horse, and he that sat on him had a bow, and a crown was given unto him, and he went forth conquering that he might overcome.

3 And when he had opened the second seale, I heard the second beast say, Come and see.

4 And there went out another horse, that was red, and power was given to him that sat thereon, to take peace from the earth, and that they should kill one another, and there was given unto him a great sword.

5 And when he had opened the third seale, I heard the third beast say, Come and see. Then I beheld, and loe, a black horse, and he that sat on him had balances in his hand.

6 And I heard a voice in the middes of the four beasts say, A measure of wheat for a peny, and three measures of barley for a peny, and oyle and wine hurt thou not.

7 And when he had opened the fourth

14 A number finite, but almost infinite, for one infinite indeed.

12 Dan. 7. 10.

13 By this is meant a great number.

14 To have all praise given to him as to the mightiest and wisest, &c.

15 The consent of all the common multitude of the creatures.

16 A confirmation of the praise before going from the contestation of the nobles expressed in word and signes, as once or twice before this.

1 This is the second part of this first historie (which I said was common, and of the whole world) of the works of God in the government of all things. Of this there are generally 3 members: the fore-signifying the caution, and the execution of all the evils, which God powreth our upon this world, which hath most hardly deserved of him. The fore-signifying is set down in this chapter, the caution for preferring the Church is in the next chapter, and the execution is described, chap. 8. 9. In every part of the fore-signifying, there are three branches: 1. A general and expresse calling of Saint John, to prepare himselfe to take knowledge of the things that were to be shewed unto him in the opening of the seales, the signe, & word expounding the signe: And albeit the expresse calling of S. Iohn be cited only in four of the signes, yet the same is also to be understood in the rest that follow. The author of the fore-signifying, is the Lambe, as that word of the Father made the Mediator, opening the seales of the booke. The instruments are the Angels in most of the visions, who expound the signe & the words thereof. Now this first verse containeth an expresse calling of S. Iohn to make the opening of the first seale. 2. The first signe joyned with declaration is, that God for the finnes and horrible rebellion of the world, will invade the same: and first of all will as a farre off, with his darts of pestilence most suddenly mightily and gloriously, beat down the same as judge, and triumph over it as conquerour. 3. The second signe joyned with words of declaration (after the expresse calling of S. Iohn as before) is, that God being provoked unto wrath by the obstinacie & hard heartednesse of the world, not repenting for the former plague: as setting upon the same at hand, will kindle the fire of debate amongst men, and will destroy the inhabitants of this world, one by the sword of another. 4. The third signe with declaration, is, that God will destroy the world with famine, withdrawing all provision: which is by the figure Synecdoche comprehended in wheate, barley, wine, and oyle. A Horse by signified what great scarcitie of corne there was, for the word here used is a kind of measure of dry things which is in quantitie but the eight part of a bushel, which was an ordinary portion used to be given to servants for their first of meat for one day. 5. I had rather distinguish and read the words thus, And the wine & the oyle thou shalt not deale unjustly. In this sense likewise the oyle and the wine that be sold a very little for a peny. Thou shalt not deale unjustly, namely, when thou shalt measure out a very little for a great price: so is the place evident: otherwise it is most true, which the wise man saith, That who withholdeth the corne, shall be cursed of the people, Prov. 11. 26. 6. The fourth signe joyned with words of declaration, is, that God will addict the fourth part of the world indifferently, unto death and hel, or the grave, by all those means at once, by which before severally and in order, he had recalled their minds unto amendment. Unto these are also added the wilde and cruel beasts of the earth, out of Leviticus 26. 22. Thus doth God according to his wisdom, dispense the treasures of his power, justly towards all, mercifully towards the good, and with patience or long suffering towards his enemies.

7 The fifth signe is, that the holy Martyrs which are under the altar, whereby they are sanctified, that is, received into the trust and tuition of Christ (into whose hands they are committed) shall cry out for the justice of God, in an holy zeale to advance his kingdom, and not of any private perturbation of the mind, in this and the next verse, and that God will in deed, signe, and word comfort them, verl. 11.

8 As before 3. 4. b. Untill their number be fulfilled.

9 The sixth signe, the narration whereof lieth two parts: the signe, & the event. The signe is, that the earth, heaven, and the things that are in them, for horror of the sins of the world upon those most heave foretellings of God, & complaint of the Saints shall be shaken most vehemently, trembling in horrible manner, & losing their light, in this verse: falling from on high, verse 13, withdrawing themselves, and flying away for the greatness of trouble, verl. 14. So holily do all creatures depend upon the will of God, and content themselves in his glory.

10 The event of the signe foregoing: that there is no man that shall not be astonished at that general commotion, flee away for fear, and hide himself, in this verse, & with unto himself most bitter death, for exceeding horror of the wrath of God, and of the Lambe, at which before he was astonished. Now this perplexitie is not of the godly but of the wicked, whose portion is in this life, as the Psalmist speaketh, Psal. 17. 14. Not that sorrow which is according unto God, which worketh repentance, unto salvation, whereof a man shall never repent him, but that worldly sorrow that bringeth death, 2 Cor. 7. 9. as their wishings do declare: for this history of the whole world, is severed from the history of the Church, as I have shewed before, Chap. 4. 1. These are words of such as despair of their escape: of which despair there are two arguments, the presence of God, and of the Lambe provoked to wrath against the world, in this verse: and the confidence of their own weaknesse, whereby men feel that they are no way able to stand in the day of the wrath of God, Verse 17 as it is said, * Esay 14. 27. * Esay 2. 19. Heze 10. 8. Luke 23. 30.

seale, I heard the voyce of the fourth beaft say, Come and see.

8 And I looked, and behold, a pale horse, and his name that sat on him was Death, and Hell followed after him, & power was given unto them over the fourth part of the earth, to kil with sword, and with hunger, & with death, & with the beasts of the earth.

9 And when he had opened the fifth seal, I saw under the altar the soules of them that were killed for the word of God, and for the testimonie which they maintained.

10 And they cryed with a loud voyce, saying, How long, Lord, which art holy and true! doest not thou judge and avenge our blood on them that dwell on the earth?

11 And long white robes were given unto every one, and it was said unto them, that they should rest for a litle season untill their fellow servants, and their brethren that should be killed even as they were, were fulfilled.

12 And I beheld when he had opened the sixth seal, & loe, there was a great earthquake, and the Sun was as black as sackcloth of hair, and the Moon was like blood.

13 And the stars of heaven fell unto the earth, as a fig tree casteth her green figges, when it is shaken of a mighty wind.

14 And heaven departed away as a scroul, when it is rolled, and every mountain & yle were moved out of their places.

15 And the Kings of the earth, and the great men, and the rich men, and the chiefe captaines, and the mighty men, and every bondman, and every freeman, hid themselves in dens, and among the rocks of the mountains,

16 And said to the mountains and rocks, fall on us, and hide us from the presence of him that sitteth on the throne, and from the wrath of the Lambe:

17 For the great day of his wrath is come, and who can stand?

Now this perplexitie is not of the godly but of the wicked, whose portion is in this life, as the Psalmist speaketh, Psal. 17. 14. Not that sorrow which is according unto God, which worketh repentance, unto salvation, whereof a man shall never repent him, but that worldly sorrow that bringeth death, 2 Cor. 7. 9. as their wishings do declare: for this history of the whole world, is severed from the history of the Church, as I have shewed before, Chap. 4. 1. These are words of such as despair of their escape: of which despair there are two arguments, the presence of God, and of the Lambe provoked to wrath against the world, in this verse: and the confidence of their own weaknesse, whereby men feel that they are no way able to stand in the day of the wrath of God, Verse 17 as it is said, * Esay 14. 27. * Esay 2. 19. Heze 10. 8. Luke 23. 30.

CHAP. VII.

1 The Angels coming to hurt the earth, 3 are stayed untill the elect of the Lord 5 of all tribes were sealed. 13 Such as suffered persecution for Christs sake, 16 have great felicitie, 17 and joy.

And after that, I saw four Angels stand on the four corners of the earth, holding the four winds of the earth, that the winds should not blow on the earth, neither on the sea, neither on any tree.

2 And I saw another Angel come up from the East, which had the seale of the living God, and he cryed with a loud voice to the four Angels, to whom power was given to hurt the earth, and the sea, saying,

3 Hurt ye not the earth, neither the sea, neither the trees, till we have sealed the servants of our God in their foreheads.

4 And I heard the number of them, which were sealed, and there were sealed an hundred and foure and fortie thousand of all the tribes of the children of Israel.

5 Of the tribe of Juda were sealed twelve thousand. Of the tribe of Reuben were sealed twelve thousand. Of the tribe of Gad were sealed twelve thousand.

6 Of the tribe of Asher were sealed twelve thousand. Of the tribe of Nephtali were sealed twelve thousand. Of the tribe of Manasses were sealed twelve thousand.

7 Of the tribe of Simeon were sealed twelve thousand. Of the tribe of Levi were sealed twelve thousand. Of the tribe of Issachar were sealed twelve thousand. Of the tribe of Zebulon were sealed twelve thousand.

8 Of the tribe of Joseph were sealed twelve thousand. Of the tribe of Benjamin were sealed twelve thousand.

9 After these things I beheld, and loe, a great multitude, which no man could number, of all nations, and kinreds, and people, and tongues, stood before the throne, and before the Lamb, clothed with long white robes, and palms in their hands;

10 And they cryed with a loud voice, saying, Salvation cometh of our God, that sitteth upon the throne, and of the Lamb.

11 And all the Angels stood round about the throne, and about the elders; and the four beasts, and they fell before the throne on their faces, & worshipped God, 12 Saying, Amen, Praise, and glory, and wisdom, and thanks, and honour, & power, and might, be unto our God for evermore, Amen.

13 And one of the elders spake, saying unto me, What are these which are arrayed in long white robes? and whence came they?

14 And I said unto him, Lord, thou knowest. And he said unto me, These are they which came out of great tribulation, and they which came out of great tribulation, and they have washed their robes, and made them white in the blood of the Lamb. 7 See before upon the 4 verse. 8 As Priests, Kings, & glorious conquerors by martyrdom: which things are noted by their proper signes in this verse. 9 The praise of God, celebrated first by the holy men in this verse, then by the heavenly Angels, in the two verses following. 10 A passage over unto the expounding of the vision, of which the Angel enquireth of S. Iohn to stir him up withall, in this verse, & Iohn in the form of speech, both acknowledgeth his own ignorance, attributing knowledge unto the Angel, and also in most modest manner requesteth the expounding of the vision. 11 The exposition of the vision, wherein the Angel telleth first the Acts of the Saints, & their sufferings & work of faith in Christ Iesus, in this verse. Secondly, their glory, both present, which consisteth in two things, that they minister unto God, & that God protecteth them, verse 15, and to come in their perfect deliverance from all annoyances, verse 16, and in participation of all good things which even the memory of former evils shall never be able to diminish, verse 17. The cause efficient, & which containeth all these things, is only one, even the Lambe of God, the Lord, the Mediator and the Saviour Iesus Christ.

2 That is: neither into the aire, into which the tops of trees are advanced. 3 Now God provideth against the danger of his elect by his commandment, verse 2 & 3, and by signe or figure, both for those of the nation of the Jews, thence unto the 8 verse, and also of the Gentiles, verse 9.

4 Not only another, or differing in number from the common Angels of God, but also in essence, office, and operation exceeding all Angels: that is, Christ Iesus the eternal Angel or word of God, and mediator of the covenant. So hereafter chap. 8. 3. and 10. 15.

5 That is, of the Jews a number certain in it selfe before God, and such as may be numbered of us: for which cause also the same is here set down as certain. But of the elect which are of the Gentiles, the number indeed is in it selfe certain with God, but of us not possibly to be numbered, as God, Gen. 15. 5, and often elsewhere, and Esay figured most excellently, Chap. 49. and 60. This therefore is spoken with respect, when a certaine number is put in an uncertaine. Conferre this with verse 9.

6 He skipped Dan, and reckoned Levi. 7 Of Ephraim who was Josephs other name, and had the birthright given him, whereof he is called Joseph.

8 Here the tribe of Levi is reckoned up in common with the rest, because all the 12, naelies were equally made Priests with them in Christ by his Priesthood, Chap. 1. 6. and 5. 10. and Rom. 12. 1. and 1 Pet. 2. 9. The name of Dan is not mentioned, because the Danites long before forsaking the worship of God, were fallen away from the fellowship of Gods people, unto the part of the Gentiles: which evil many ages before, Iacob foresaw. Gen. 49. 18. for which cause also there is no mention made of this tribe in the first book of the Chronicles. 9 See before upon the 4 verse.

10 As Priests, Kings, & glorious conquerors by martyrdom: which things are noted by their proper signes in this verse. 11 The exposition of the vision, wherein the Angel telleth first the Acts of the Saints, & their sufferings & work of faith in Christ Iesus, in this verse. Secondly, their glory, both present, which consisteth in two things, that they minister unto God, & that God protecteth them, verse 15, and to come in their perfect deliverance from all annoyances, verse 16, and in participation of all good things which even the memory of former evils shall never be able to diminish, verse 17. The cause efficient, & which containeth all these things, is only one, even the Lambe of God, the Lord, the Mediator and the Saviour Iesus Christ.

and have washed their long robes, and have made their long robes white in the blood of the Lambe.

15 Therefore are they in the presence of the throne of God, and serve him day and night in his Temple, and he that sitteth on the throne will dwell among them.

16 * They shall hunger no more, neither thirst any more, neither shall the sunne light on them, neither any heat :

17 For the lambe which is in the mids of the throne shall governe them, and shall lead them unto the lively fountaines of waters, and * God shall wipe away all teares from their eyes.

CHAP. VIII.

1 After the opening of the seventh seale, 3 the Saints prayers are offered up with odours. 6 The seven Angels come forth with trumpets. 7 The foure first blow, and fire falleth on the earth, 8 the sea is turned into blood, 10. 11 the waters wax bitter, 12 and the starres are darkened.

And when he had opened the seventh seale, there was silence in heaven about halfe an houre.

2 And I saw the seven Angels, which stood before God, and to them were given seven trumpets.

3 Then another Angel came and stood before the altar, having a golden censer, and much odours was given unto him, that he should offer with the prayers of all Saints upon the golden altar, which is before the throne.

4 And the smoke of the odors with the prayers of the Saints, went up before God, out of the Angels hand.

5 And the Angel took the censer, and filled it with fire of the altar, and cast it into the earth, and there were voyces, and thunders, and lightnings, and earthquake.

6 Then the seven Angels, which had the seven trumpets, prepared themselves to blow the trumpets.

7 So the first Angel blew the trumpet, and there was haile, and fire mingled with blood, and they were cast into the earth, d He alludeth to the Levites, which served day and night, for else there is no night in heaven.

e Or, upon them whereby is meant Gods defence and protection, as it were toward them, who are as safe, as men in the Lords tent.
* Esai 25. 8. chap. 21. 4.

1 He returneth to the history of the seales of the book, which the Lambe opened. The seventh seale is the next forefiguration, and a precise commandment of the execution of the most heave judgements of God upon this wicked world, which forefiguration being understood by the seale, all things in heaven are silent, and in horror through admiration, untill commandment of execution be severally given of God unto the ministers of his wrath. So he passeth unto the third member, of which I spake before in Chap. 6. vers. 1. which is of the execution of those evils wherewith God most justly determined to afflict the world.
2 Now followeth the third branch of the common history, as even now I said: which is the executions of the judgements of God upon the world. This is the first generally prepared unto the 6. verse: then by severall parts expounded according to the order of those that administered the same, unto the end of the Chapter following. Unto the preparation of this execution, are declared these things: first, who are the administrators and instruments thereof in this verse. Secondly, what is the worke both of the Prince and Angels, giving order for this execution, thence unto the 5. verse, and of his administrators in the 6. verse. The administrators of the execution are said to be seven Angels: their instruments, trumpets, whereby they should, as it were, found the alarm at the commandment of God. They are propounded seven in number, because it pleased God not at once to powre out his wrath upon the rebellious world, but at divers times, and by piecemeale, and in slow order, and as with an unwilling minde to exercise his judgements upon his creatures, so long called upon both by word and figures, if happily they had learned to repent.

Which appeareth before him at his ministers. 3 This is that great Emperour the Lord Jesus Christ, our King and Saviour, who both maketh intercession to God: the Father for the Saints, filling the heavenly sanctuaries with most sweet odour, and offering up their prayers, as the calves and burnt sacrifices of their lips, in this verse: in such sort as every one of them (so powerfull is that sweet favour of Christ, and the efficacitie of his sacrifice) are held in reconciliation with God and themselves, made most acceptable unto him, verse 4. And then also out of his treasure, and from the same sanctuaries powreth forth upon the world the fire of his wrath, adding also divine tokens thereto: and by that means (as of olde the heralds of Rome were wont to doe) he proclaimeth warre against the rebellious world.

Our prayers are nothing worth, unless that true and sweet favour of that only oblation be especially and before all things with them, that is to say, unless we being first of all justified through faith in his Son, be acceptable unto him. 4 This is the worke of the administrators. The Angels the administrators of Christ, onely by sounding trumpet and voyce (for they are onely as heralds) doe effectually call forth the instruments of the wrath of God through his power. Hitherto have been things generally. Now followeth the narration of things particular, which the angels fixe in number wrought in their order, set out in the 19. verse of the next Chapter, and is concluded with the declaration of the event which followed upon these things done in the worlds end, in the 10. and 11. Chapters. 5 The first execution at the sound of the first Angel upon the earth, that is, the inhabitants of the earth (by Metonymie) and upon all the fruits thereof: as the comparing of this verse with the second member of the 9. verse doth not obscurely declare.

and the third part of trees was burnt, and all greene grasse was burnt.

8 And the second Angel blew the trumpet, and as it were a great mountaine, burning with fire, was cast into the sea, and the third part of the sea became blood.

9 And the third part of the creatures, which were in the sea, and had life, died, and the third part of the ships were destroyed.

10 Then the third Angel blew the trumpet, and there fell a great starre from heaven, burning like a torch, and it fell into the third part of the rivers, and into the fountaines of waters.

11 And the name of the starre is called wormwood: therefore the third part of the waters became wormwood, and many men died of the waters, because they were made bitter.

12 And the fourth Angel blew the trumpet, and the third part of the sun was smitten, and the third part of the moone, and the third part of the starres, so that the third part of them was darkened: and the day was smitten, that the third part of it could not shine, and likewise the night.

13 And I beheld, and heard one Angel flying thorow the middes of heaven, saying with a loud voice, Woe, woe, woe to the inhabitants of the earth, because of the sounds to come of the trumpet of the three Angels, which were yet to blow the trumpets.

foretold in the 21. Chapter of S. Luke, Verse 24. &c. and they are common plagues generally denounced, without particular note of time.

CHAP. IX.

1 The fifth Angel bloweth his trumpet, 3 and spoiling locusts come out. 13 The sixth Angel bloweth, 16 and bringeth forth horsemen, 20 to destroy mankind.

And the fifth Angel blew the trumpet, and I saw a starre fall from heaven unto the earth, and to him was given the key of the bottomlesse pit.

2 And he opened the bottomlesse pit, and there arose the smoak of the pit, as the smoak of a great furnace, and the sun, & the ayre were darkned by the smoak of the pit.

3 And there came out of the smoak, locusts upon the earth, and unto them was given power, as the scorpions of the earth have power.

1 The first execution upon the wicked men inhabiting the earth (as a little before the Angel said) wrought by the infernal powers is declared in this place unto vers. 11 and after the first execution, thence unto vers. 19. And lastly, is shewed the common evils that followed the former execution to the world, in the two last verses.
2 That is that the Angel of God glittering with glory, as a starre fell downe from heaven. Whether thou take him for Christ, who hath the keyes of hell of himselfe, and by princely authority, Chap. 4. vers. 18. or whether for some inferiour Angel, who hath the same key permitted unto him, and occupieth it ministerially, or by office of his ministry here, and Chap. 21. so the word, falling, is taken. Gen. 14. 10. &c. 24. 46. and Heb. 6. 6. 3 The key was given to this star. For those powers of wickednesse are thrust downe into hel, and bound with chaines of darknesse, and are there kept unto damnation, unless God for a time doe let them loose. a Pet. 2. 4. Jude 6. and of this book, Chap. 21. 20 the historie of which Chapters hath agreement of time with this present Chapter. d By the bottomlesse pit, he meaneth the deepest darknesse of hell. 4 Unto this is added, the smoak of the hellish and infernal spirits, all darke and darkening all things in heaven and in earth. The spirituall darknesse is the causes of all disorder and confusion. For the devill at a certaine time (whereof verse the fift) sent these darknesse into his kingdom, that he might at once and with one impression overthrow all things, and pervert, if it were possible the elect themselves. By this darknesse, all spirituall light, both active as of the sunne, and passive, as of the aire which is lightened by the sunne, is taken away: and this is that which goeth before the spirits: it followeth of the spirits themselves.
5 A description of the malignant spirits invading the world, taken from their nature, power, forme, and order. From their nature, for that they are like unto certaine locusts, in quicknesse, subtilty, hurtfulnesse, number, and fuck like, in this vers. From their power, for that they are as scorpions of the earth of a secret force to doe hurt: for our barrell is not here with flesh and blood, but with powers. &c. Eph. 6. 12. This place of the power of the devils generally noted in this vers. is particularly declared afterwards in the three next verses.

6 The second execution upon the sea, in this vers. and all things that are therein, in the next vers.

7 The third execution upon the floods and fountaines, that is, upon all fresh waters, in this vers. the effect whereof is, that many are destroyed with the bitterness of waters, in the vers. following.

8 This is spoken by a Metaphore, of the name of a most bitter herbe, and commonly known: unless perhaps a man following those that note the derivation of words had rather expound it adjectively, for that which, by reason of bitterness cannot be drunke, or which maketh the liquor into which it is powred, more bitter, then that any man can drink the same.

9 The fourth execution upon these lightsome bodies of heaven, which minister unto this inferior world.

10 A lamentable prediction or foretelling of those parts of the divine execution which yet are behinde, which also is a passage unto the argument of the next Chapter. Of all these things in a manner, Christ himselfe, expressly

From their power, for that they are as scorpions of the earth of a secret force to doe hurt: for our barrell is not here with flesh and blood, but with powers. &c. Eph. 6. 12. This place of the power of the devils generally noted in this vers. is particularly declared afterwards in the three next verses.

6 Here that power of the devils is particularly described according to their actions and the effects of the same. Their actions are said to be bounded by the counsel of God: both because they hurt not all men, but only the reprobate (for the godly and elect in whom there is any part of a better life, God guardeth by his decree) whom Christ shall not have sealed in this verse: and also because they neither had all power, nor at all times, nor over those that are their owne, but limited in manner and time, by the precept of God, ver. 5. So their power to afflict the godly is none, and for the wicked it is limited in time and in effect by the will of God: for the manner was prescribed unto them that they should not slay, but torment the wretched world. The time is for five moneths, or for a hundred and fifty dayes, that is, for so many yeares, in which the devils have indeed mightily perverted all things in the world: and yet without that publike and unpunished licence of killing, which afterwards they usurped, when the sixt Angel had blown his trumpet, as shalbe said upon verse 13. Now this space is to be accounted from the end of that thousand yeares mentioned, Chap. 20. 3. and that is from the Pope dome of that Gregory the 7. a most monstrous Necromancer, who before was called Helidrandus Senenji: for this man being made altogether of impiety and wickednesse, as a slave of the devil, whom he served, was the most wicked firebrand of the world: he excommunicated the Emperor Henry the fourth: went about by all manner of treachery to set up and put downe Empires and kingdomes as liked himselfe, and doubted not to set Rodolph the Sweden over the Empire instead of Henry before named, sending unto him a crowne, with this verse annexed unto it: Petra dedit Petro, Petrus dedit Roma Rodolpho: that is, The rocke to Peter gave the Crowne, and Peter Rodolph doth renounce. Finally, he so finely bestirred himselfe in his affaires, as he miserably set all Christendome on fire, and conveyed over unto his successors the burning brand of the same: who enraged with like ambition, never ceased to nourish that flame, and to enkindle in more and more: whereby cities, Common weales, and whole kingdomes set together by the eares amongst themselves by most expert cutthroats, came to ruine, while they miserably wounded one another. This terme of an hundred and fifty yeares, taken end in the time of Gregory the 9. or Huglinus Anagninjs (as he was before called) who caused to be compiled by one Raimond his Chapleine and confessor, the body of Decretals, and by sufferance of the Kings and Princes, to be published in the Christian world, and established for a Law: for by this slight at length the Popes arrogated unto themselves licence to kill whom they would, while others were unware: and without feare established a butchery out of many of the wicked Canons of the Decretals, which the trumpet of the sixt Angel had expressly forbidden, and had hindered untill this time. The effects of these bloody actions are declared upon the sixt verse: that the miserable world languishing in so great calamities, should willingly run together unto death, and preferre the same before life; by reason of the grievousness of the miseries that oppressed them. * Chap. 6. 16. I. ai. 2. 19. I. ai. 10. 8.

7 The forme of these helth spirits and administers is shadowed out by signes and visible figures in this sort: that they are very expert and swift: that wheresoever they are in the world, the kingdomes is theirs: that they manage all their affaires, with cunning and skill in this verse: that making shew of mildnesse and tender affection to draw on men withall, they most impudently rage in all mischief: that they are most mighty to doe hurt, ver. 8. that they are freed from being hurt of any man, as armed with the colour of religion and sacred authority of privilege: that they fill all things with horror, ver. 9. that they are fraudulent: that they are venomous and extremely noysome, though their power be limited, ver. 10. All which things are properly in the infernall powers: and communicated by them unto their ministers and vassals.

8 The order of powers of maliciousnesse: that they are subject to one infernall King, whom thou mayest call in English, The Destroyer: who driveth that whole world both Jewes and Gentiles into the destruction that belongeth unto himselfe. And I cannot tell whether this name have respect unto the Etymologicall interpretation of Helidrand, by a figure often used in the holy Scripture; which albeit, it may otherwise be turned of the Germanes (as the sense of compound words is commonly ambiguous) yet in very deed it signifieth as much as if thou shouldst call him, The firebrand, that is, he that setteth on fire those that be faithfull unto him.

9 A passage unto the next part and the history of the time following.

10 The sixt execution done upon the world by the tyrannical powers thereof, working in the foure parts of the earth, that is, in most cruell manner executing their tyrannous dominion thorow the whole world; and killing the miserable people without punishment, which before was not lawfull for them to do in that sort, as I shewed upon the fourth verse. This narration hath two parts: a commandment from God, in the 14. verse, and an execution of the commandment, in the verse following.

4 And it was commanded them that they should not hurt the grasse of the earth, neither any greene thing, neither any tree: but only those men which have not the seale of God in their foreheads.

5 And to them was commanded, that they should not kill them, but that they should be vexed five months, and that their paine should be as the paine that commeth of a scorpion, when he hath stung a man.

6 Therefore in those dayes shall men seek death, and shall not find it, and shall desire to die, and death shall flee from them.

7 And the form of the locusts was like unto horses prepared unto battell, & on their heads were as it were crowns, like unto gold, and their faces were like the faces of men.

8 And they had haire as the haire of women, & their teeth were as the teeth of lions.

9 And they had habergions, like unto habergions of yron, and the sound of their wings was like the sound of charrets when many horses runne unto battell.

10 And they had tails like unto scorpions, and there were stings in their tails, and their power was to hurt men five moneths.

11 And they have a king over them, which is the Angel of the bottomlesse pit, whose name in Hebrew is Abaddon, and in Greek he is named Apollyon, that is, destroying.

12 One woe is past, and behold, yet two woes come after this.

13 ¶ Then the sixt Angel blew the trumpet, and I heard a voice from the foure hornes of the golden altar which is before God, 14 Saying to the sixt Angel, which had the trumpet, Loose the foure Angels, which are bound in the great river Euphrates.

15 And the four Angels were loosed, which were prepared at an houre, at a day, at a moneth, and at a yeare to slay the third part of men.

16 And the number of horsemen of warre were twentie thousand times ten thousand: for I heard the number of them.

17 And thus I saw the horses in a vision, and them that sate on them, having fiery habergions, & of jacinth, and of brimston, and the heads of the horses were as the heads of lions: and out of their mouthes went forth fire, and smoke, and brimstone.

18 Of these three was the third part of men killed, that is, of the fire, and of the smok, and of the brimstone, which came out of their mouthes.

19 For their power is in their mouthes, and in their tails: for their tails were like unto serpents, and had heads where-with they hurt,

20 And the remnant of the men which were not killed by these plagues, repented not of the works of their hands, that they should not worship devils, and idoles of gold, and of silver, and of brasse, and of stone, and of wood, which neither can see, neither heare, nor goe.

21 Also they repented not of their murder, and of their forcerie, neither of their fornication, nor of their theft.

Law, his owne Decretals, by which he might freely lay traines for the life of simple men. For who is it that seeth not that the lawes Decretall, most of them are snares to catch soules withall? Since that time (O good God) how great slaughters have bene? how great massacres? All histories are full of them: and this our age aboundeth with most horrible and monstrous examples of the same.

13 The execution of the commandment is in two points: one, that those butchers are let loose, that out of their tower of the spiritual Babylon they might with furie runne abroad through all the world, as well the chiefe of that crew which are most prompt unto all adises, in this verie, as their multitudes both most copious, of which a number certaine is named for a number infinite, ver. 16. and in themselves by all means fully furnished to hide and to hurt, ver. 17. as being armed with fire, smoke and brimstone, as appeareth in the colour of this armour, which dazzleth the eyes of all men, and have the strength of Lyons to hurt withall, from which (as out of their mouth) the fire, smoke, and stinking darts of the Pope are shot out, ver. 18. The other point is, that these butchers have effected the Commandment of God by fraud and violence, in the two verses following.

14 That is, they are harmefull every way: on what part soever thou put thine hand unto them, or they touch thee, they doe hurt. So the former are called scorpions, ver. 3.

15 Now remaineth the event (as I said upon the first verse) which followed of so many and so grievous judgements in the most wicked world, namely an impenitent obfirmation of the ungodly in their impietie and unrighteousnes, though they see themselves most vehemently pressed with the hand of God: for their obstinate ungodlinesse is shewed in this verse, and their unrighteousnesse in the verse following. Hitherto hath bene the generall historie of things to be done universally in the whole world: which because it doeth not so much belong to the Church of Christ is therefore not so expressly distinguished by certaintie of time and other circumstances, but is woven, as they say, with a slight hand. Also there is none other cause why the historie of the seventh Angel is passed over in this place, then for that the same more properly appertaineth unto the history of the Church. But this is more diligently set out according to the time thereof, Chap. 11. and 16, as shall appeare upon those places.

CHAP. X.

1 Another Angel appeareth clothed with a cloud, 2 holding a booke open, 3 and cryeth out, 4 A voice from heaven commandeth John to take the booke. 10 He eateth it.

And

11 The commandment given by Christ himselfe, who is governour over all.

12 Hee alludeth to the altar of incense, which stood in the Court where the Priests were in, as ver. against the Altar of the Covenant, having a vail betwixt them.

13 As if he should have said, these hitherto have bin so bound by the power of God, that they should not freely run up on all men as themselves lust, but were stayed and restrained at that great flood of Euphrates, that is, in their spiritual Babylon: for this is a periphrasis of the spiritual Babylon, by the limits of the visible Babylon (long since overthrown) that they might not commit those horrible slaughters, which they long breathed after. Now, goe to, let loose those foure Angels, that is, administers of the wrath of God, in that number that is convenient for the slaughtering of the foure quarters of the world: stirre them up, and give them the bridle, that rushing out of that Babylon of theirs, which is the seat of the wicked ones, they may flee upon all the world: therein to rage, and most licentiously to practise their ryanne, as God hath ordained. This was done when Gregorie the ninth by publike authority established for

1. Now S. John passeth unto the other Propheticall history which is of the Church of God, as I shewed that this booke should bee distinguished, Chapter 4. 1. This story reacheth hence unto the two and twentieth Chapter. And this whole Chapter is but a transition from the common history of the world unto that which is particular of the Church. There are in this transition or passage, two preparatives, as it were, unto the Church story comprised in this whole chapter. One is the authority of Christ, revealing his mysteries, and calling his servant unto the seventh verse. The other is S. John his calling proper unto this place, and repeated from before unto the end of this Chapter. Authority is given unto this Revelation, by these things: first, by the appearing from heaven in this habit and countenance, strong, ready, glorious, surveying all things by his providence, and governing them by his omnipotency, verse 1. Secondly, that hee brought not by chance, but out of a booke, this open Revelation, set forth unto the eye, to signifie the same unto the sea, and land, as the Lord over all, verse 2. Thirdly, that hee offered the same not whispering or muttering in a corner (as false Prophets do) but crying out with a loud voice unto them which sleepe, and with a lionish and terrible noise roused up the secure: the very thunders themselves giving testimony thereunto, verse 3. Lastly, for that he confirmed all by an oath, verse 5. 6. 7.

AND I saw ² another mighty Angel come downe from heaven, clothed with a cloud, and the raine bowe upon his head, and his face was as the sun, and his feet as pillars of fire.

² And he had in his hand a ³ little booke open, and he put his right foot upon the sea, and his left on the earth,

³ And cried with a loud voice, as when a lion roareth: and when he had cried, seven thunders uttered their voices.

⁴ And when the seven thunders had uttered their voices, I was about to write: but I heard a voice from heaven, saying unto me, ⁵ Seal up those things which the seven thunders have spoken, and write them not.

⁵ And the Angel which I saw stand upon the sea, and upon the earth, ⁶ lift up his hand to heaven,

⁶ And sware by him that liveth for evermore, which created heaven, and the things that therein are, and the earth, and the things that therein are, and the sea; and the things that therein are, ⁷ that ⁸ time should be no more.

⁸ And the voice which I heard from heaven, spake unto mee againe, and said, Goe, and take the little booke which is open in the hand of the Angel, which standeth upon the sea, and upon the earth.

⁹ So I went unto the Angel, and said unto him, Give mee the little booke. And he said unto mee, Take it, and eat it up, and it shall make thy belly bitter, but it shall be in thy mouth as sweet as hony.

¹⁰ Then I tooke the little booke out of the Angels hand, and ate it up, and it was in my mouth as sweet as hony: but when I had eaten it, my belly was bitter.

¹¹ And he said unto me, Thou must prophesie againe among the people, and nations, and tongues, and to many Kings.

2. Christ Jesus, see chapter 7. verse 2. 3. Namely, a speciall booke of the affaires of Gods Church: For the booke that containeth things belonging unto the whole world, is said to be kept with the Creatour, chapter 5. verse 1. but the booke of the Church, with the Redeemer: and out of this booke is taken the rest of the history of this Apocalyp. 4. A godly cure is laudable, but must be joynt with knowledge. Therefore nothing is to be taken in hand but by calling, which must be expected and waited for of the godly. 5. Keefe them close. 6. This was a gesture used of one that seareth, which men doe now a dayes use. 7. Neither time it selfe, nor the things that are in time: but that the world to come is at hand which is altogether of eternitie, and beyond all times. 8. There shall never be any more time. 9. Whereof Chap. 11. 15. and 16. 17. 7. The other part of this chap. concerning the particlar calling of S. John to the receiving of the prophesie following, which is enjoyed him, first by signe, in three verses, then in plaine words in the last verse. Unto the setting downe of the signe, belong these things: That S. John is taught from heaven to demand the booke, of the prophesie in this verse, for these motions and desires God doeth inspire, that demanding the booke, he is charged to take it in a figurative manner, the use whereof is expounded verse the ninth. (as in the second chap. of Ezechiel, and the ninth verse) whence this similitude is borrowed: lastly, for that S. John at the commandment of Christ tooke the booke, and found by experience that the same, as proceeding from Christ, was most sweet, but in that it foretelleth the afflictions of the Church, it was most bitter unto his spirit. 8. A simple and plaine declaration of the signe before going, witnessing the divine calling of S. John and laying upon him the necessity thereof.

CHAP. XI.

1. The Temple is commanded to be measured. 2. The Lord stirreth up two witnesses, 7 whom the beast murdereth, 9 and no man burieth them. 11 God raiseth them to life, 12 and calleth them up to heaven. 13 The wicked are terrified: 15 by the trumpet of the seventh Angel: the resurrection, 18 and judgement is described.

THEN was given mee a reed like unto a rod; and the Angel stood by, saying, Rise and ² mete the Temple of God, and the altar; and them that worshipping therein:

² But the ³ court which is without the Temple, ⁴ cast out, and mete it not: for it is given unto the ⁵ Gentiles, and the holy City shall they tread under foot, ⁶ two and fourty moneths.

³ But ⁴ I will give power unto my two witnesses, and they shall ⁷ prophesie a thousand two hundredth and threescore dayes, clothed in sackcloth.

⁴ These ⁵ are two olive trees, and two candlesticks, standing before the God of the earth.

⁵ And if any man will hurt them, fire proceedeth out of their mouths, and decomming, as the Apostle excellently teacheth, 2. Thes. 2. 8. So this history hath two parts: one of the state of the Church conflicting with the temptations unto the 16. Chap. the other of the state of the same Church obtaining victory, thence unto the 20. Chap. The first part hath two members most conveniently distributed into their times, whereof the first containeth an history of the Christian Church for 1260. years, whar time the Gospel of Christ was as it were taken up from amongst men into heaven: the second containeth an history of the same Church unto the victory perfected. And these two members are briefly thought distinctly, propounded in this Chapter, but are both of them more at large discouered after in due order. For we understand the state of the Church conflicting, out of Chapters 12. and 13. and of the same growing out of afflictions, out of the 14. 15. and 16. Chapters. Neither did S. John at unawares joyne together the history of these two times in this Chapter, because here is spoken of prophesie, which all consoile to be but one just and immutable in the Church; and which Christ commanded to be continuall. The history of the former time reacheth unto the 14. verse: the latter is set downe in the rest of this Chapter. In the former are shewed these things: the calling of the servants of God in 4. verses: the conflicts which the faithful must undergoe in their calling for Christ and his Church, thence unto the 10. verse, and their resurrection, and receiving up into heaven, unto the fourteenth verse. In the calling of the servants of God are mentioned two things: the begetting and setting of the Church in two verses, and the education thereof in two verses. The begetting of the Church is here commended unto S. John by signe, and by speech: the signe is a measuring rod, and the speech a commandment to measure the Temple of God, that is, to reduce the same unto a new forme: because the Gehlles are already entered into the Temple of Jerusalem, and shall shortly defile and overthrow the same utterly. 2. Either that of Jerusalem, which was a figure of the Church of Christ, or that heavenly exemplar, whereof verse 19. but the first liketh mee better, and the things following doe all agree therewith. The sense thereof is, Thou seest all things in Gods house, almost from the passion of Christ, to be disordered: and that not onely the city of Jerusalem, but also the court of the Temple is trampled underfoot of the nations and of prophane men, whether Jewes or strangers: and that onely the Temple, that is, the body of the Temple, with the Altar, and a small company of good men which truly worship God, doe now remaine, whom God doth sanctifie and confirme by his presence. Measure therefore this, even this true Church, or rather the true type of the true Church, omitting the rest, and to describe all things from mee, that the true Church of Christ may be as it were a very little center, and the Church of Antichrist as the circle of the center, every way in length and breadth, compassing about the same, that by way of prophesie thou mayest so declare openly, that the state of the Temple of God, and the faithful which worship him, that is, of the Church, is much more streight then the Church of Antichrist. 3. As if he should say, It belongeth nothing unto thee, to judge those which are without. 1. Corinth. 5. 12, which bee innumerable: looke unto those of the house, should onely, or unto the house of the living God. A He speaker of the outer court which was called the peoples court, because all men might come into that. 6. That is, comend to be kept on, which in measuring is refused as profane. 4. To profane persons, wicked & unbelievers, adversaries unto the Church. 5. Or a thousand two hundred and threescore dayes, as is said in the next verse: that is a thousand two hundred and threescore years, a day for a year, as often in Ezechiel and Daniel, which thing I noted before 2. 10. The beginning of these thousand two hundred and threescore years, wee account from the passion of Christ: whereby (the partition wall being broken downe) wee were made of two, Ephes. 2. 14. I say, one flock, under one shephard, John 10. 16, and the end of these years precisely falleth into the Popedome of Boniface the eight, who a little before the end of the years of Christ a thousand two hundred ninety four, entered the Popedome of Rome, in the feast of Saint Lucie (as Bergomensis sayeth) having put in prison his predecesour (Cicestinus, whom by fraud, under colour of Oracle hee deceived: for which cause that was well said of him, Intravit ut unipes, regnavit ut leo, mortuus est ut canis. That is, he entered like a fox, reigned like a lyon, and died like a dog. For if from a thousand two hundred ninety foure years, thou shalt take the age of Christ, which he lived on the earth, thou shalt find there remaineth just one thousand two hundred and threescore years, which are mentioned in this place and many others. 6. I had rather translate it thus then thus, The Temple, then the City: for God faith, I will give that Temple, and commit it unto my two witnesses, that is, unto the ministers of the word, who are few in deed, weak and contemptible: but yet two, that is, of such a number as one of them may help one another, and one confirme the testimony of another unto all men, that from the mouth of two or three witnesses every word may be made good amongst men, 2. Corinth. 13. 1. 7. They shall exercise their office enjoyned by mee, by the space of those thousand two hundred and sixty years, in the midst of afflictions, though never to lamentable, which is figuratively shewed by the mourning garment. 8. That is, the ordinary and perpetual instrument of spiritual grace, peace, and light in my Church, which God by his onely power preserved in this Temple. So Zacharie 4. 3. 9. The power and efficacy of the holy ministry, and which is truly Evangelicall, is declared both in earth and in heaven, protecting the administrators thereof, and destroying the enemies, in this verse, a vertue indeed divine, most mightily shewing it selfe forth in heaven, earth, and the sea, verse 6. as it is described, 2. Corinth. 10. 4. according to the promise of Christ, Marke 16. 17. And this is the second place (as I said before) of the combats which the servants of God must needs undergoe in the executing of their calling, and of the things that follow the same combats. In the combats or conflicts are these things, to overcome, in these two verses: to bee overcome and killed, verse 7. After the slaughter follow these things, that the carcases of the godly are laid abroad, verse 8. being unburied, are made a matter of scorn, together of cursing and bites execrations, verse 9. and that therefore gratulations are publicly and privately made, verset 10.

1. The authority of the intended revelation being declared, together with the necessity of that calling, which was particularly imposed upon S. John: hereafter followeth the history of the estate of Christ his Church, both conflicting or warfaring, and overcoming in Christ. For both the true Church of Christ is said to fight against that which is falsely so called, over the which Antichrist ruleth, Christ Jesus overthrowing Antichrist by the spirit of his mouth: and Christ is said to overcome most gloriously until hee shall slay the Antichrist by the appearance of his voureth their enemies: for if any man will hurt them thus must he bee killed.

6 These have power to shut heaven, that it raine not in the dayes of their prophesying, and have power over waters to turne them into bloud, to smite the earth with all manner of plagues as often as they will.

7 And when they have finished their testimony, the beast that commeth out of the bottomlesse pit, shall make war against them, and shall overcome them, and kill them.

8 And their corpses shall lie in the streets of the great city, which spiritually is called Sodom, and Egypt, where our Lord also was crucified.

9 And they of the people and kinreds, & tongues, & Gentiles shall see their corpses three dayes and an halfe, and shall not suffer their carkeises to be put in graves.

10 And they that dwell upon the earth, shall rejoyce over them and bee glad, and shall send gifts one to another: for these two Prophets vexed them that dwelt on the earth.

11 But after three dayes and an halfe, the spirit of life comming from God, shall enter into them, & they shall stand up upon their feet: and great feare shall come upon them which saw them.

12 And they shall heare a great voice from heaven, saying unto them, Come up hither. And they shall ascend up to heaven in a cloud, & their enemies shall see them.

13 And the same houre shall there be a great earthquake, and the tenth part of the city shall fall, and in the earthquake shall be slaine in number seven thousand: and the remnant were sore feared, and gave glory to the God of heaven.

14 The second woe is past, and behold, the third woe will come anone.

15 And the seventh Angel blew the trumpet, and there were great voyces in heaven, saying, the kingdomes of the world are our Lords, and his Christ, and he shall reigne for evermore.

16 Then the four and twenty Elders, which sate before God on their seates, fell upon their faces, and worshipped God, 17 Saying, We give thee thanks, Lord God Almighty, Which art, and Which wast, and Which art to come: for thou hast received thy great might, and hast obtained thy Kingdome.

18 And the Gentiles were angry, and thy wrath is come, and the time of the dead that they should be judged, and that thou shouldest give reward unto thy servants the Prophets, and to the Saints, and to them that feare thy Name, to small and great, and shouldest destroy them, which destroy the earth.

19 Then the Temple of God was opened in heaven, and there was seen in his Temple the Arke of his Covenant: and there were lightnings, and voices, & thundrings, and earthquake, and much haile.

20 Then the Church, from the time of Boniface 8. unto the consummation of the victory declared by voice from heaven. In this history there are three branches: a preparation by the sound of the Angels trumpet: a narration by the voices of heavenly Angels and Elders, and a confirmation by signs. 21. The narration hath two parts: an acclamation of the heavenly creatures in this verse, and both an adoration by all the Elders, verse 16. and also a most ample thanksgiving, verse 17. 18. The fence of the acclamation is, Now the Lord is entered on his Kingdome, and hath restored his Church, in which most mightily recovered from the prophanation of the Gentiles, he may glorifie himselfe. Namely, that which the Lord ordained, when first he ordained his Church, that the faith of the Saints doeth now behold as accomplished. 29 As before 7. 11. This giving of thanks is altogether of the same content with the words going before. 30 A speech of the Hebrew language, as much so say as Gentiles being angry, thine inflamed wrath came upon them, and shewed it selfe from heaven, occasioned by their anger and fury. 31 This is the confirmation of the next prophetic before going, by signes exhibited in heaven, and that of two sorts, whereof some are visible, as the passing away of the heaven, the opening of the Temple, the Arke of the Covenant appearing in the Temple, and testifying the glorious presence of God, and the lightnings: others apprehended by eare and such dull sense, which beare witness in heaven and in earth to the truth of the judgements of God.

CHAP. XII.

1 A woman appeared travailing with child, whose child she dragon would devour, 7 but Michael overcometh him, 9 and casteth him out, 13 and the more he is cast downe and vanquished, the more fiercely he exerceiseth his subtilties.

And there appeared a great wonder in heaven: a woman clothed with two parts, as I shewed upon Chap. 11. Now shall be declared the first part of this prophecy, in this and the next chapter, and the latter part in the 14. 15. and 16. chap. Unto the first part, which is of the conflict or militant Church, belong two things. The beginning and the progresse of the same in conflicts and Christian combats. Of which two, the beginning or up-spring of the Church is described in this chapter, and the progresse thereof in the chapter following. The beginning of the Christian Church we define to be from the first moment of the conception of Christ, untill that time wherein this Church was as it were weaned and taken away from the breast or milke of her mother: which is the Time when the Church of the Jewes with their city and Temple was overthrowen by the judgement of God. So we have in this chapter the story of 69. years and upwards. The parts of this chapter are three. The first is the history of the conception and bearing in wombe, in 4. verses. The second, an history of the birth from the 5. verse unto the 12. The third is, of the woman that had brought forth, unto the end of the chap. And these severall parts have every one their conflicts. Therefore in that first part are two things contained, one, the conception and bearing in wombe, in two verses: and another of the laying in wait of the Dragon against that should be brought forth, in the next two verses. In the first point are these things, the description of the mother, verse 1. and delours of child-birth verse 2. all shewed unto John from heaven. 2 A type of the true holy Church which then was in the nation of the Jewes. This Church (as is the state of the holy Church Catholique) did in it selfe shine about with glory given of God, rode under feet mutability and changeableness, and possessed the kingdome of heaven as the heire thereof.

10 That is, when they have spent those thousand two hundred and sixty yeares, mentioned verse 2. and 3. in publishing their testimony according to their office.

c When they have done their message.

11 Of which after Chap. 13. &c.

That beast is the

Romane Empire,

made long agoe of civill, Ecclesiastical:

the chiefe head whereof was then Boniface the eight, as I said before:

who lifted up himselfe

in so great arrogancy,

(saith the authour of Fasciculus temporum)

that he called himselfe,

Lord of the whole world,

as well in temporal causes, as in spiritual:

There is an extant of that matter, written by the same

Boniface most arrogantly, shall I say, or most wickedly.

Cap. V. nam sanctam, extra de maiestate & obedientia.

And in the list of Decretals

(which is from the same authour) many things are found of the same argument.

12 Hee shall persecute most cruelly the holy men, and put them to death, and shall wound and pierce through with curfings, both their names and writings.

And that this was done to very many godly men, by Boniface, and others, the histories doe declare, especially, since the time that the odious and condemned name amongst the multitude, first, of the brethren

Waldenses or Lugdunenses, then also of the Fraticles, was pretended, that good men might with more approbation be massacred.

13 That is, openly at Rome where at that time was a most great concourse of people, the year of Jubile being then first ordained by Boniface unto the same end, in the year of Christ 1300.

example whereof is, read Chap. 1. Extra, de poenitentia & remissionibus.

So by one act he committed double injury against Christ; both abolishing his truth by the restoring of the type of the Jubile, and triumphing over his members by most wicked superstition.

O religious heart! Now, that we should understand the things of Rome. S. John himselfe is the authour, both after in the 17. Chapter almost throughout, and also in the circumscription now next following, when he saith, it is that great City (as Chap. 17. 18. he calleth it) and is spiritually termed Sodom and Egypt: and that spiritually (for that must here againe be repeated from before) Christ was there crucified.

For the two first appellations signifie spiritual wickednesse: the latter signifieth the shew and pretence of good, that is, of Christian and found religion.

Sodom signifieth most licentious impiety and injustice: Egypt, most cruel persecution of the people of God: and Jerusalem signifieth the most confident glorying of that city, as it were in true religion, being yet full of falshood and ungodlinesse.

Now who is ignorant that these things doe rather, and more agree unto Rome, than unto any other city: The commendations of the city of Rome for many yeares past, are publickly notorious, which are not for mee to gather together.

This only I will say, that he long since did very well see what Rome is, who taking this leave thereof used these verses:

Roma vale, vidi, sciam est vidi: revertar.

Quam leno, meretricis, contra, cinadus ero.

Now farewell Rome. I have thee scene, it was enough to see:

I will returne when as I meane, bawd, harlot, knave to bee.

4 After a more secret kind of meaning, and understanding. 14 Namely in his members, as also he said unto Saul, Acts 9. 5.

15 That is, for three yeares and a halfe: for so many yeares Boniface lived after his Jubile, as Bergomensis witnesseth.

16 So much the more shall they by this occasion exercise the jolty of their Jubile.

17 The Gospell of Christ is the affliction of the world, and the ministry thereof, the favour of death unto death, to those that perish. 2 Cor. 2. 16.

18 The third place as I noted before, is of the rising againe of the Prophets from the dead, and their carying up into heaven.

For their resurrection is shewed in this verse: their calling and lifting up into heaven, in the verse following.

19 That is, what time God shall destroy that wicked Boniface.

20 That is, the Prophets of God shall in a fort rife againe, not the same in person (as they say) but in spirit: that is, in the power and efficacy of their ministry, which S. John expressed before, verse 5. and 6.

And lo the prophesie that is spoken of Elias, is interpreted by the Angel to be understood of John the Baptist, Luke 1. 17.

For the same Boniface himselfe, who sought to kill and destroy them, was by the fire of Gods mouth (which the holy ministry sheweth and exhibieth) devoured, and died miserably in prison, by the endeavour of Sarra Colummella and Nigaretus a French knight, whom Philip the faire King of France lent into Italy, but with a very small power.

21 That is, the most grievous heat of afflictions and persecutions shall stay for a while, for that great amaze that shall rise upon that sudden & unlooked for judgement of God.

22 They were called by God into heaven, and taken out of this malignant world, into the heavenly Church, which also lyeth hidden here in the earth, to exercise their calling secretly, as of whom this wretched world was unworthy, Heb. 11. 38.

For the Church of the wicked is by comparison called the earth, or the world, and the Church of the godly, heaven.

So in ancient time amongst the godly Israelites: so amongst the Jewes in the dayes of Manasses and other kings, when the earth refused the heires of heaven, we read that they lay hidden as heaven in the earth.

23 Yet could they not hinder the lesser ones of the Lord (as the Plalmist called them, Plal. 83. 4.) but they that went on forward in his worke.

24 Bergomensis faith, in the year of our Lord, 1201.

this year a blasing starre foretelling great calamity to come, appeared in heaven: in which year upon the feast of S. Andrew, so great an earthquake arose, as never before: which also continuing by times, for many dayes overthrow many stately houses.

This faith hee of the year next following the jubile, which S. John so many ages before, expressed word for word.

25 They were indeed broken with present astonishment of mind, but did not earnestly repent as they ought to have done.

6 Glorified God by confessing his Name.

26 He passeth unto the second history, which is the second part of this Chapter, S. John calleth these the second and third woe, having respect unto Chap. 9. 12.

27 Of whose sound the trumpet, Christ expressly foretold, Chap. 10. 7. and this is the second part of this Chapter, containing a general history of the Christian Church, from the time of Boniface 8. unto the consummation of the victory declared by voice from heaven.

In this history there are three branches: a preparation by the sound of the Angels trumpet: a narration by the voices of heavenly Angels and Elders, and a confirmation by signs.

28 The narration hath two parts: an acclamation of the heavenly creatures in this verse, and both an adoration by all the Elders, verse 16. and also a most ample thanksgiving, verse 17. 18.

The fence of the acclamation is, Now the Lord is entered on his Kingdome, and hath restored his Church, in which most mightily recovered from the prophanation of the Gentiles, he may glorifie himselfe.

Namely, that which the Lord ordained, when first he ordained his Church, that the faith of the Saints doeth now behold as accomplished.

29 As before 7. 11. This giving of thanks is altogether of the same content with the words going before.

30 A speech of the Hebrew language, as much so say as Gentiles being angry, thine inflamed wrath came upon them, and shewed it selfe from heaven, occasioned by their anger and fury.

31 This is the confirmation of the next prophetic before going, by signes exhibited in heaven, and that of two sorts, whereof some are visible, as the passing away of the heaven, the opening of the Temple, the Arke of the Covenant appearing in the Temple, and testifying the glorious presence of God, and the lightnings: others apprehended by eare and such dull sense, which beare witness in heaven and in earth to the truth of the judgements of God.

the sun, and the moon was under her feet, and upon her head a crowne of twelve starres.

2 And she was with child, and cried travailling in birth, and was pained ready to be delivered.

3 And there appeared another wonder in heaven: for behold a great red dragon having seven heads, and ten hornes, and seven crownes upon his heads:

4 And his taile drew the third part of the stars of heaven, and cast them to the earth. And the dragon stood before the woman, which was ready to be delivered, to devour her child, when she had brought it forth.

5 So she brought forth a man child, which should rule all nations with a rod of yron: and that her child was taken up unto God, and to his throne.

6 And the woman fled into the wilderness, where she hath a place prepared of God, that they should feed her there a thousand two hundred & threescore dayes.

7 And there was a battell in heaven, Michael and his Angels fought against the dragon, and the dragon fought and his angels.

8 But they prevailed not, neither was their place found any more in heaven.

9 And the great Dragon, that old serpent, called the devill and Satan, was cast out, which deceiveth all the world: he was even cast into the earth, and his angels were cast out with him.

10 Then I heard a loud voice in heaven, saying, Now is salvation, and strength, & the kingdome of our God, and the power of his Christ: for the accuser of our brethren is cast down, which accused them before our God, day and night.

11 That is Christ the head of the Church joynd with his Church (the beginning roote and foundation whereof is the same Christ) endowed with kingly power, and taken up into heaven out of the jaws of Satan (who as a serpent did bite him upon the crosse) that sitting upon the celestial throne, he might reigne over all.

12 The Church of Christ which was of the Jewes, after his assumption into heaven, hid it self in the world as in a wilderness, trusting in the onely defence of God, as witnesseth S. Luke in the Acts of the Apostles. 13 Namely, the Apostles and servants of God ordained to feed with the word of life, the Church collected both of the Jewes & Gentiles, unless that any man will take the word alient impersonally, after the use of the Hebrews, in stead of alientur: but I like the first better. For he hath respect unto those two Prophets, of whom chap. 11. 3. as for the meaning of the 1260. dayes, looke the same place.

14 Christ is the prince of Angels, and the head of the Church, who beareth that yron rod, ver. 5. See the notes upon Daniel, Chap. 12. 1. In this verse a description of the battell, and of the victory in the 2. verses following. The Psalmist had respect unto this battell, Psal. 68. 19. & Paul, Eph. 4. 8. & Col. 2. 15.

15 The description of the victory, by denying of one thing in this verse, and by affirming the contrary in the next ver. As that Satan gained nothing in heaven, but was by the power of God thrown down into the world whereof he is the prince. Christ himself and his elect members standing still by the throne of God.

16 The long of victory or triumph containing, first, a proposition of the glory of God and of Christ shewed in that victory: Secondly, it containeth a reason of the same proposition, taken from the effects, as that the enemy is overcome in battell, in this verse, and that the godly are made conquerours (and more then conquerours, Rom. 8. 37.) ver. 11. Thirdly, a conclusion wherein is an exhortation unto the Angels, and to the Saints, and unto the world, a prophesie of great misery, and of destruction procured by the devill against mankind, lest himselfe should shortly be miserable alone, ver. 12.

11 But they overcame him by that blood of the Lamb, and by that word of their testimony, and they loved not their lives unto the death.

12 Therefore rejoyce, ye heavens, and ye that dwell in them. Woeto the inhabitants of the earth, and of the sea: for the devill is come down unto you, which hath great wrath, knowing that he hath but a short time:

13 And when the dragon saw that he was cast unto the earth, he persecuted the woman which had brought forth the man child

14 But to the woman were given two wings of a great Eagle, that she might flee into the wilderness, into her place, where she is nourished for a time, and times, and half a time, from the presence of the serpent.

15 And the serpent cast out of his mouth water after the woman, like a flood: that he might cause her to be carried away of the flood.

16 But the earth holpe the woman, and the earth opened her mouth, and swallowed up the flood, which the dragon had cast out of his mouth.

17 Then the dragon was wroth with the woman, and went and made war with the remnant of her seed, which keep the commandments of God, and have the testimony of Jesus Christ.

18 And I stood on the sea sand.

19 That is, for three years and an halfe: so the same speech is taken, Dan. 7. 25. This space of time is reckoned in manner from that last and most grievous rebellion of the Jewes, unto the destruction of the City and Temple, for their defection or falling away, began in the twelfth year of Nero, before the beginning whereof, many fore-signes and predictions were shewed from heaven, as Iosephus writeth, lib. 7. cap. 12. and Hegeippus lib. 5. cap. 44. amongst which this is very memorable, then in the feast of Pentecost not only a great sound and noise was heard in the Temple, but also a great voyce was heard of many out of the Sanctuary, which cried out unto all, Let us depart hence. Now three years and an halfe after this defection was begun of the Jewes, and those wonders happened, the city was taken by force, the Temple overthrowne, and the place forsaken of God: and this compasse of time S. Iohn noted in this place. 20 That is, he inflamed the Romanes and nations, that they persecuting the Jewish people with cruell armes, might by the same occasion invade the Church of Christ, now departed from Ierusalem, and out of Iudea. For it is an usual thing in Scripture, that the raging tumults of the nations should be compared unto waters. 21 That is, there was offered in their place other Jewes, unto the Romanes and nations raging against that people, and it came to passe thereby, that the Church of God was saved whole from that violence, that most raging flood of persecution, which the Dragon vomited out being altogether spent in the destruction of those other Jewes. 22 Being set on fire by this meanes, he began to be more mad, and because he perceived that his purpose against the Christian Church of the Jewish remnant was come to nought, he resolved to fall upon her seed, that is, the Church gathered also by God of the Gentiles, and the holy members of the same. And this is that other branch, as I said upon the thirteenth verse, in which the purpose of Satan is shewed, ver. 17. and his attempt, ver. 18. 23 That is, a most mighty tempest that he rushed upon the whole world (whose prince he is) to raise the floods, and provoke the nations, that they might with their furious Billows toss up and down, drive here and there, and finally destroy the Church of Christ with the holy members of the same. But the providence of God rebuked his attempt, that he might favour the Church of the Gentiles, yet tender, and as it were green. The rest of this story of the Dragon is excellently profecuted by the Apostle S. Iohn hereafter in the 20. Chapter. For here the Dragon endeavouring to do mischief, was by God cast into prison.

CHAP. XIII.

1 The beast with many heads is described, 12 which draweth the most part of the world to idolatry, 11. The other beast rising out of the earth, 15. giveth power unto him.

And I saw a beast rise out of the sea, having seven heads, and ten hornes,

1 The Apostle having declared the springing up, doth now passe unto the story of the progresse thereof, as I shewed in the entrance of the former chapter. And this history of the progresse of the Church and the battels thereof, is set down in this chapter, but distinctly in two parts: one is of the civil Romane Empire, unto v. 10. Another of the body Ecclesiasticall or prophetical, thence unto the end of the chapter. In the former part are shewed these things. First, the state of that Empire, in 4. verses, then the acts thereof in 3. verses: after the effects, which is exceeding great glory, ver. 8. And last of all is commended the use, and the instruction of the godly against the evils that shall come from the same, ver. 9. 10. The history of the state, containeth a most ample description of the beast, first enrive, ver. 1. 2. and then restored after hurt, v. 3. 4. 2. On the land whereon stood the devill practising new tempests against the Church, in the verse next before going: when time the Empire of Rome was endangered by domestical diffensions, and was mightily troubled having ever and anon new heads, and new Emperours. See in the 17. chap. and v. 8. 3. Having the same instruments of power, providence, and most expert government which the Dragon is said to have had, in the 12. chapter and the third verse.

17 The third part: an history of the woman delivered, confilting of two members, the present battell of Satan, against the Church of the Jewish nation, in four verses: and the battell intended against the seed thereof, that is, against the Church of the Gentiles, which is called holy, by reason of the Gospel of Christ, in the two last verses.

18 That is, being strengthened with divine power: and taught by oracle, she fled swiftly from the assault of the devill, and from the common destruction of Ierusalem, and went into a solitary City beyond Iordan called Pella, as Eusebius telleth in the 5. chap. of the 3. booke of his Ecclesiasticall history: which place God had commanded her by revelation.

19 That is, for three years and an halfe: so the same speech is taken,

Dan. 7. 25.

This space of time is reckoned in manner from that last and most grievous rebellion of the Jewes, unto the destruction of the City and Temple, for their defection or falling away, began in the twelfth year of Nero, before the beginning whereof, many fore-signes and predictions were shewed from heaven, as Iosephus writeth, lib. 7. cap. 12. and Hegeippus lib. 5. cap. 44. amongst which this is very memorable, then in the feast of Pentecost not only a great sound and noise was heard in the Temple, but also a great voyce was heard of many out of the Sanctuary, which cried out unto all, Let us depart hence. Now three years and an halfe after this defection was begun of the Jewes, and those wonders happened, the city was taken by force, the Temple overthrowne, and the place forsaken of God: and this compasse of time S. Iohn noted in this place.

20 That is, he inflamed the Romanes and nations, that they persecuting the Jewish people with cruell armes, might by the same occasion invade the Church of Christ, now departed from Ierusalem, and out of Iudea. For it is an usual thing in Scripture, that the raging tumults of the nations should be compared unto waters.

21 That is, there was offered in their place other Jewes, unto the Romanes and nations raging against that people, and it came to passe thereby, that the Church of God was saved whole from that violence, that most raging flood of persecution, which the Dragon vomited out being altogether spent in the destruction of those other Jewes.

22 Being set on fire by this meanes, he began to be more mad, and because he perceived that his purpose against the Christian Church of the Jewish remnant was come to nought, he resolved to fall upon her seed, that is, the Church gathered also by God of the Gentiles, and the holy members of the same. 4 We read in the twelfth Chapter and third verse, that the dragon had 7 crowns set upon 7 heads, because the thiefe avoucheth himself to be proper Lord and Prince of the world, but this beast is said to have ten crowns set upon severall, not heads, but horns: because the beast is beheld for all unto the dragon, ver. 2. and doth not otherwise reign, then by law of subjection given by him, namely, that he employ his horns against the Church of God. The speech is taken from the ancient custome and forme of dealing in such case: by which they that were absolute kings, did wear the diadem upon their heads: but their vassals, and such as reigned by grace from them, wore the same upon their hoods: for so they might commodiously lay down their diadems when they came into the presence of their Sovereignes: as also the Elders are said when they adored God which late upon the throne, to have cast down their crowns before him, Chap. 4. ver. 10.

5 Contrary to that which God of old commanded should be written in the head-piece of the high Priest, that is, Sanctus Itebo, Holiness unto the Lord. The name of blasphemy imposed by the Dragon, is (as I think) that which Saint Paul saith in the second Chapter of his 2 Epistle to the Thessalonians, the fourth verse: He sitteth as God, and boasteth himself to be God. For this name of blasphemy both the Romane Emperours did then challenge unto themselves, as Suetonius and Dion do report of Caligula and Domitian: and after them the Popes of Rome did with full mouth professe the same of themselves, when they challenged unto themselves Sovereignty in holy things: of which kind of sayings the first book of the Decretals, the Clementines, and the Extravagants are very full. For these men were not content with that which Anglicks wrote in his Poetria, (the beginning whereof is, Papa super mundi, The Pope is the wonder of the world) Nec Deus es, nec homo, sed neuter eorum inter utrumque: Thou art not God, ne art thou man, but neuter mixt of both: as the gloss witnesseth upon the first book: But they were bold to take unto themselves the very name of God: and to accept it given of other: according as almost an hundred and twenty yeares since, there was made for Sixtus the fourth, when he should first enter into Rome in his dignity Papall, a Pageant of triumph, and cunningly fixed upon the gate of the city he should enter at, having written upon it this blasphemous verse:

Oraculo vacis mundi moderaris habenas, Et merito in terris crederis esse Deus.

THAT IS,

By oracle of thine own voyce, the world thou governst all,
And worthily a God on earth men think and doe thee call.

These and six hundredeth the like, who can impute unto that modestly whereby good men of old would have themselves called the servants of the servants of God? Verily either this is a name of blasphemy, or there is none at all. 6 Swift as the Leopard, easily clasping all things, as the Bear doth with his foot, and tearing and devouring all things with the mouth as doth the Lyon. 7 That is, he lent the same unto the beast to use, when he perceived that himself could not escape, but must needs be taken by the hand of the Angel, and cast into the bottomlesse pit, Chap. 20. yet did not he abandon the same utterly from himself, but that he might use it as long as he could. 8 This is the other place that appertaineth to the description of the beast of Rome: that besides that naturall dignity and amplitude of the Romane Empire, which was shadowed in the two former verses, there was added this also as miraculous, that one head was wounded, as it were, unto death, and was healed againe, as from heaven, in the sight of all men. This head was Nero the Emperour, in whom the race of the Caesars fell from the imperiall dignity, and the government of the Common weale was translated unto others: in whose hands the Empire was so cured and recovered unto health, as it seemed unto all to much the more deeply rooted and grounded fast, then ever before. And hence followed those effects, which are next spoken of: First an admiration of certaine power, as it were, sacred and divine, sustaining the Empire and governing it: Secondly, the obedience and submission of the whole earth, in this verse. Thirdly, the adoration of the Dragon, and most wicked worshipping of devils, confirmed by the Romane Emperours: Lastly, the adoration of the beast himselfe, which grew into so great estimation, as that both the name and worship of a god was given unto him, verse the fourth. Now there were two causes which brought in the mindes of men this Religion: the shew of excellency, which bringeth with it reverence: and the shew of the power invincible, which bringeth fear. Who is like (say they) unto the beast? Who shall be able to fight with him? 9 The second member containing an history of the actes of the beast, as I said verse 1. The history of them is concluded in two points: the beginning, and the manner of them. The beginning is the gift of the Dragon, who put and inspired into the beast both his impiety against God, and his inhumanity and injustice against all men, especially against the godly, and those that were of the household of faith, vers. the fifth. The manner of the acts or actions done, is of two sorts, both impious in minde, and blasphemous in speech against God, his Church, and the godly, verse the sixth: and also most cruel and injurious in deeds, even such as were done of most raging enemies, and of most insolent and proud conquerours, verse the seventh. 10 Namely, his actions, and manner of dealing. As concerning those two and fourty moneths, I have spoken of them before in the 12 Chapter, and the second verse. 11 That is, the holy Church, the true house of the living God. 12 That is, the godly in severall who hid themselves from his cruelty. For this bloody beast discharged those holy soules most falsly with innumerable accusations for the Name of Christ, as we read in Justine Martyr, Tertullian, Arnobius, Minutius, Eusebius, Augustine, and others: which examples the latter times followed most diligently, in destroying the flock of Christ: and we in our own memory have found by experience, to our incredible grief, Concerning heaven. See in the eleventh chapter and in the twelfth verse.

7 And it was given him to make warre with the Saints, and to overcome them, and power was given him over every kind, and tongue, and nation.

8 Therefore all that dwell upon the earth, shall worship him, whose names are not written in the Book of Life of that Lambe, which was slain from the beginning of the world.

9 If any man have an eare, let him heare.

10 If any lead into captivity, he shall go into captivity: * if any kill with a sword, he must be killed by a sword: here is the patience, and the faith of the Saints.

11 And I beheld another beast coming up out of the earth, which had two horns like the Lambe, but he spake like the dragon.

12 And he did all that the first beast could do before him, and he caused the earth, and them which dwell therein, to worship the first beast, whose deadly wound was healed.

13 And he did great wonders, so that for those which in patience and faith shall waite for that glorious coming of our Lord and Saviour Christ, verse the tenth. * Gen. 9. 6. Mat. 26. 52. 15 The second member of the vision, concerning the Ecclesiastical dominion, which in Rome succeeded that which was politike, and is in the power of the corporation of false prophets, and of the forgers of false doctrine. Wherefore the same beast, and the same body, or corporation is called by S. John by the name of false prophet, Chap. 16. ver. 13. and 19. ver. 20. The forme of this beast is first described in this verse, then his acts in the verses following: and the whole speech is concluded in the last verse. This beast is by his breed, a son of the earth (as they say) obscurely born, and by little and little creeping up out of his abject estate. 16 That is, in how he resembled the Lambe (for what is more milde or more humble then to be the servant of the servants of God) but in deed he played the part of the Dragon, and of the Wolfe. Marth. 7. 15. For even Satan changeth himself into an Angel of light, 2 Cor. 11. 14. &c. what should his honest disciples and servants doe? 17 The history of the acts of this beast contained in sum three things, hypocrisie, the witness of miracles, and tyranny: of which the first is noted in this verse, the second in the 3 verses following, the third in the sixteenth and seventeenth verses. His hypocrisie is most full of leasing, whereby he abuleth both the former beast and the whole world: in that albeit he hath by his cunning, and as it were by line, made of the former beast a most miserable selam, or anatomy, usurped all his authority unto himselfe, and most impudently exerciseth the same in the sight and view of him: yet he carrieth himselfe to, as if he honoured him with most high honour, and did in very good truth cause him to be revered of all men. 18 For unto this beast of Rome, which of a civil Empire is made an Ecclesiastical hierarchy, are given divine honours, and divine authority: so far, as he is beleaved to be above the Scriptures, which the gloss upon the Decretals declareth by this devilish verse:

Articulos solvit, synodumque facit generalem.

THAT IS,

He changeth the Articles of Faith, and giveth authority to generall Councils.

Which is spoken of the Papall power. So the beast is by birth, foundation, fear, and finally substance, one: onely the Pope hath altered the forme and manner thereof, being himselfe the head both of that tyrannicall Empire, and also of the false prophets: for the Empire hath he taken unto himselfe, and thereunto hath added this cunning device. Now these words, whose deadly wounds were cured, are put here for distinction sake, as also sometimes afterwards: that even at that time the godly readers of this prophecy, might by this signe be brought to see the things as present: as if it were said, that they might adore this very Empire that now is, whose head we have seen in our own memory to have been cut off, and to be cured againe. 19 The second point of the things done by the beast, is the credit of great wonders or miracles, and appertaining to the strengthening of this impiety: of which signes some were given from above, as it is said, that fire was sent down from heaven by false forcery, in this verse. Others were shewed here below in the sight of the beast to establish idolatry and deceive soules: which part Saint John setteth forth, beginning (as they say) at that which is last, in this manner: First, the effect is declared in these words: He deceiveth the inhabitants of the earth. Secondly, the common manner of working, in two sorts: One of miracles. For the signes which were given him to do in the presence of the beast: the other of the words added to the signes, and reaching the idolatry by these signes, saying unto the inhabitants of the earth, that they should make an image unto the beast, which, &c. Thirdly, a speciall manner is declared, That it is given unto him to put life into the image of the beast: and that such a kinde of quickening, that the same both speaketh by answer unto those that aske counsell of it, and also pronounceth death against those that do not obey nor worship it: all which things oftentimes by false miracles through the procurement and inspiration of the devill, have been effected and wrought in images. The history of the Papists are full of examples of such miracles, the most of them fained, many also done by the devill in images, as of old in the Serpent, Genesis the third Chapter, and the first verse. By which examples is confirmed not the authority of the beast, but the truth of God and these prophecies.

he made fire to come down from heaven on the earth, in the sight of men, 14 And deceived them that dwell on the earth by the signes, which were permitted him to doe in the sight of the beast, saying, to them that dwell on the earth, that they should make the 20 image of the 21 beast which had the wound of a sword, and did live.

15 22 And it was permitted to him to give a 23 spirit unto the image of the beast, so that the image of the beast, should speake, and should cause that as many as would not worship the image of the beast, should be killed.

16 23 And he made all both small and great, rich and poore, free and bond, to receive 24 a 6 marke, in their right hand, or in their foreheads,

17 And that no man might 25 buy or sell, save he that had the 26 marke, or the name of the beast, or the number of his name.

18 27 Here is wisdom, Let him that hath wit, count the number of the beast: for it is the 28 number of a man, and his number is six hundredth threescore and six.

20 That is, images, by enallage or change of the number: for the worship of them ever since the second council of Nice, hath been ordained in the Church by public credit and authority, contrary to the Law of God.

21 In the Greeke, the word is of the Dative case, as much to say, as unto the worship, honour and obeying of the beast, for by this maintenance of images, this pseudo-prophetical beast doeth mightily profit the beast of Rome, of whom long agoe he received them.

Wherefore the same is hereafter very fitly called the image of the beast, for that images have their beginning from the beast, and have their forme or manner from the will of the beast, and have their end and use fixed in the profit and commoditie of the beast.

22 And of this miracle of the images of the beast, (that is, which the beast hath ordained to establish idolatry) which miraculously speake, and give judgement, or rather marvellously, by the fraud of the false prophets, the Papists bookes are full fraughted.

To give life, as Lames and Lambres imitated the wonders that Moses wrought. 23 The third place, is a most wicked and most insolent tyranny, as was sayde before, usurped over the persons of men, in this verse: and over their goods and actions, in the next verse. For he is sayd both to bring, upon all persons a tyrannous servitude, that as bondslaves they might serve the beast: & also, to exercise over all their goods & actions, a Pedler-like abuse of indulgences & dispensations (as they terme them) amongst their friends, and against others, to use most violent interdictions, and to shoo out curfings, even in naturall and civil, private and publicke contracts, wherein all good faith ought to have place.

24 That is, their Chrisme, by which in the Sacrament (as they call it) of Confirmation, they make servile unto themselves the persons and doings of men, signing them in their forehead and hands, and as for the signe left by Christ (Of which Chapter 7.3.) and the holy sacrament of Baptisme they make as voyde. For whom Christ hath joynted unto himselfe by Baptisme, this beast maketh challenge unto them by his greivous Chrisme, which he doubteth not to preferre before Baptisme, both in authority and in efficacie.

b The marke of the name of the beast. 25 That is, have any traffique or entercourse with men, but they onely which have this anointing and consecration of Clearly conscience, as they call it. Reade Gratian De consecratione, distinctione tertias, c. omnes spiritus sanctus, &c. of these matters.

26 Here the false prophets do require three things, which are set downe in the order of their greatness, a character, a name, and the number of the name. The meaning is, that man that hath not their first anointing, & clerical tounsure or having: secondly, holy orders, by receiving whereof is communicated the name of the beast: or finally, hath not attained that high degree of Pontifical knowledge, and of the Law (as they call it) Canonick, and hath not as it were made up in account and cast the number of the mysteries thereof: for in these things consisteth the number of that name of the beast. And this is excellently set forth in the next verse.

27 That is, in this number of the beast consisteth that Popish wisdom, which unto them seemeth the greatest of all others: In these words Saint Iohn expoundeth that saying, which went before of the number of the beast, what it hath above his marke or cognifiance and his name. These things, saith Saint Iohn, the marke and the name of the beast doe easily happen unto any man, but to have the number of the beast, is wisdom: that is, onely the wise, and such as have understanding, can come by that number: for they must be most illuminate doctors that attaine thereunto, as the words following doe declare.

28 How great and of what denomination this number of the beast is, by which the beast accounteth his wisdom, Saint Iohn declareth in these words, Doe thou demand how great it is? it is so great that it occupieth the whole man: he is alway learning, and never cometh to the knowledge thereof: he must be a man indeed that doeth attaine unto it. Askest thou of what denomination it is? verely it standeth of six throughout, and perfectly riseth of all the parts thereof in their severall denominations (as they terme them): it standeth of six by unities, tens, hundreds, &c. so as there is no one part in the learning and order Pontifical, which is not either referred unto the head, and, as it were, the toppe thereof, or contained in the same: so fitly doe all things in this hierarchie agree one with another, and with their head: Therefore that cruell beast Boniface the eight, doeth commend by the number of sixe those Decretals which he perfected, in the proeme of the sixt booke. Which booke (saith he) being to be added to five other bookes of the same volume of Decretals, soe thought good: so name Sextum, the sixt: that the same volume by addition thereof containing a senarie, or the number of six bookes (which is a number perfect) may yield a perfect forme of managing all things, and perfect discipline of behaviour.

Here therefore is the number of the beast, who powreth from himselfe all his parts, and bringeth them all backe againe unto himselfe by his discipline in most wise and cunning manner. If any man desire more of this, let him reade the glosse upon that place. I am not ignorant that other interpretations are brought upon this place: but I thought it my dutie, with the good favour of all, and without the offence of any, to propound mine opinion in this point. And for this cause especially, for that it seemed unto me neither profitable, nor like to be true, that the number of the beast, or of the name of the beast should be taken as the common sort of interpreters doe take it. For this number of the beast teacheth, giveth out, imprinteth, as a publicke marke of such as be his, and esteemeth that marke above all others, as the marke of those whom he loveth best. Now those other expositions seeme rather to be farre removed from this propriety and condition of that number: whether you respect the name Latini, or Trian, or any other. For these the beast doeth not reach, nor give forth, nor imprint, but most diligently forbiddeth to be taught, and audaciously denieth: he approoveth not these, but reproveth them: and hateth them that thinke so of this number, with an hatred greater then that of Vatinus.

CHAP. XIV.

1 The Lambe standeth on mount Sion, 4 with his chaste worshippers. 6 One Angel preacheth the Gospel, 8 another foretelleth the fall of Babilon: 9 the third warneth that the beast be avoided. 13 A voyce from heaven pronounceth them happy who die in the Lord. 16 The Lords sickle is thrust into the harvest, 18 and into the vintage.

Then I looked, & lo, a Lambe stood on mount Sion, & with him 2 an hundredth fourty & foure thousand, having his Fathers 3 Name written in their foreheads.

2 And I heard a voyce from heaven as the sound of many waters, and as the sound of a great thunder: and I heard the voyce of harpers, harping with their harpes,

3 And they sung as it were a new song before the throne, & before the four beasts, and the Elders: and no man could learne that song, but the hundredth fourty and foure thousand, which were bought from the earth.

4 These are they which are not defiled with women: for they are virgins: these follow the Lambe whithersoever he goeth: these are bought from men, being the first fruits unto God, and to the Lambe:

5 And in their mouthes was found no guile: for they are without spot before the throne of God.

6 ¶ Then I saw another Angel lie in the mids of heaven, having an everlasting Gospel to preach unto them that dwell on the earth, and to every nation, and kindred, and tongue, and people,

7 ¶ Saying with a loud voice, Feare God, and give glory to him: for the houre of his judgement is come: and worship him that made heaven and earth, and the sea, and the fountaines of waters.

8 And there followed another Angel, saying, Babylon that great citie is fallen, it is fallen: for she made all nations to drink of the wine of the 4 wrath of her fornication.

9 ¶ And the third Angel followed them, saying with a lowd voice, 7 If any man cannot heare, nor understand, ver. 3. Lastly, by their deeds done before, and their sanctification in that they were virgins pure from spirituall and bodily fornication, that is, from impietie and unrighteousnesse, that they followed the Lambe as a guide unto all goodnesse, and cleaved unto him: that they are holy unto him, as of grace redeemed by him: that in truth and simplicity of Christ they have exercised all these things, sanctimony of life, the direction of the Lambe, a thankfull remembrance of redemption by him: finally (to conclude in a word) that they are blamelesse before the Lord, ver. 4.5.

4 The other part (as I said on the first verse) is of the actes of the Lambe, the manner whereof is delivered in two sorts, of his speech and of his facts. His speeches are set forth unto the 13 verse of this chapter, and his facts unto the 16 chap. In the speech of the Lambe, which is 5 word of the Gospel, are taught in this place these things: The service of the godly consisteth inwardly of reverence towards God, and outwardly of the glorifying of him: the visible signe of which is adoration, ver. 7. The overthrowing of wicked Babilon, ver. 8. and the fall of every one of the ungodly which worship the beast, ver. 9. 10 11. Finally, the state of the holy servants of God, both present, ver. 11. & to come, most blessed, according to the promise of God, ver. 13. 5 This Angel is a type or figure of the good and faithfull servants of God, whom God especially from y time of Boniface the 8 hath raised up to the publishing of the Gospel of Christ, both by preaching & by writing. So God first, neere unto the time of 5 fame Boniface, used Peter Calidorus an Italian: after Arnold de villa nova a Frenchman, then Occam, Daire, Petrarck, after that, Iohannes de rupe cesa, a Franciscane: after againe, Iohn Wicklie an Englishman, and so continually one or another unto the restoring of the truth: and enlarging of his Church.

6 That is, Babilon is destroyed by the sentence and judgment of God: the execution whereof S. Iohn describeth, Chap. 18. And this voyce of the ministers of Christ hath continued since the time that Babilon (which is Rome) hath by deliberate counsel and manifest malice oppugned the light of the Gospel offered from God. * Psal. 145.6. * Ait. 14. 15. * 1/a. 2.1. 9. 1er. 51. 8. Chap. 8.2. a Of her fornication, whereby God was provoked to wrath, 7 that he, shall not worship God alone, but shall transfere his divine honour unto this beast, whether he doe it with his heart, or counterfeiting in shew. For he (saith Christ) that denieth me before men, him will I denie before my Father and his Angels. Mat. 10. 32. And this is 5 voyce of the holy ministry, which at this time is very much used of the Holy & faithfull servants of God. For having now sufficiently found out the publicke obnoxious of Babilon, they labour not any longer to thunder out against the same: but to save some particular members by terror (as S. Jude speaketh) and to plucke them out of the publicke flame: or els by vehement commiseration of their estate, to lead them away, they let before them eternal death, into which they rush unware, unless in good time they rerum unto God: but the godly which are of their own flocke, they exhort unto patience, obedience, and faith in the Lord Iesus, and charge them to give light by their good example of good life unto others.

1 The historie of the Church of Christ being finished for more then a thousand & three hundredth years, at which time Boniface the eight lived, as before hath been said, there remaineth the rest of the history or the conflicting, or militant Church, from thence unto the time of the last victorie in three Chapters. For first of all, as the foundation of the whole history, is described, the standing of the Lambe with his armie and retinue in five verses, after his worthy acts which he hath done, and yet doth in most mighty manner, whilst he overthroweth Antichrist with the spirit of his mouth, in the rest of this chapter, & in the two following. Unto the description of the Lambe are propounded three things, his scimation, place and attendance: for the rest are expounded in the former visions, especially upon the fifth Chapter.

2 As ready girt to doe his office (as Acts 7.6.) in the midst of the Church, which a foretime mount Sion did prefigure, 3 As before 7.2. This retinue of the Lambe is described first by divine marke (as before 7.2.) in this verse. Then by divine occupation, in that all and every one in his retinue most vehemently and sweetly (verse 2.) doe glorifie the Lambe with a speciall song before God & his elect Angels: which song hath blood

8 The patience, sanctification, and justification by faith: the consequence whereof are, rest, felicitie, and glory eternal in the heavenly fellowship of God and his Angels. 6 That is, for the Lord's sake, we must the reward which followeth good works.

9 The second part of this chapter, as I said ver. 1. Of the actes and doings of Christ, in overthrowing of Antichrist and his Church by the Spirit of his divine mouth: seeing that having been called backe by word both publicly & privately unto his duty, and admonished of his most certain ruine: he yet ceaseth not to maintaine and protect his owne adherents, that they may doe him service: and to afflict the godly with most barbarous persecutions. Of those things which Christ doth, there are 2. kinds: one common, or generall, in the rest of this chap. another particular against that savage and rebellious beast & his worshippers. chap. 15. 16. That common kind, is the calamity of wars, spread abroad through the whole earth, and filling all things with blood, and that without respect of any person.

This is figured or shadowed out in 2. types, of the harvest and vintage. Since the time that the light of the Gospell began to shine out, and since prophetic or preaching by the grace of God was raised up againe, how horrible wars have bin kindred in this world: how much humane flesh hath been thrown rothe earth by this divine reaping: how much blood (alas for wo) hath overflowed for these 100. yeares almost: all histories do cry out, and this our age (if ever before) is now in horror by reason of the rage of that sickle which Antichrist calleth for. In this place is the first type, that is, of the harvest. 10 Declaring his fiercenesse by his colour, like unto that which is in the white or milke circle of heaven. 11. As one that shall reigne from God, and occupie the place of Christ in this miserable execution. 12. That is, a most fit and commodious instrument of execution, destroying all by hewing and thrusting through: for who may stand against God? 13. Christ giveth a commandement in this verse, and the Angel executeth it in the next verse. * *Isa. 3. 13. * Matt. 13. 39.* 14. The other type (as I said ver. 14.) is the vintage: the manner whereof is one with that which went before, if thou except this, that the grape gathering is more exact in seeking out every thing, then is the harvest labour. This is therefore a more grievous judgement, both because it succeedeth the other, and because it is understood to be executed with great diligence. 15. That is, it overflowed very deep, and very farre and wide: the speech is hyperbolicall or excessive, to signifie the greatnesse of the slaughter. And these be those pleasant fruits, so toothe, of the contempt of Christ, and desiring of Antichrist rather than him, which the miserable, mad, and blind world doeth at this time reape.

worship the beast and his image, & receive his marke in his forehead, or in his hand,

10 The same shall drink of the wine of the wrath of God, yea, of the pure wine, which is powred into the cup of his wrath, and he shall be tormented in fire and brimstone before the holy Angels, and before the Lambe.

11 And the smoke of their torment shall ascend evermore: and they shal have no rest day nor night, which worship the beast and his image, and whosoever receiveth the print of his name.

12 Here is the patience of Saints: here are they that keep the Commandements of God, and the faith of Jesus.

13 Then I heard a voice from Heaven, saying unto me, Write, The dead which die in the Lord, are fully blessed. Even so sayeth the Spirit: for they rest from their labours, and their works follow them.

14 ¶ And I looked, and behold, a white cloud, and upon the cloud one sitting like unto the Son of man, having on his head a golden crown, and in his hand a sharpe sickle.

15 And another Angel came out of the Temple, crying with a loud voice to him that sate on the cloud, * Thrust in thy sickle, and reape: for the time is come to reape: for the harvest of the earth is ripe.

16 And he that sate on the cloud, thrust in his sickle on the earth, and the earth was reaped.

17 Then another Angel came out of the Temple, which is in heaven, having also a sharpe sickle.

18 And another Angel came out from the altar, which had power over fire, & cried with a loud crie to him that had the sharpe sickle, and said, Thrust in thy sharpe sickle, and gather the clusters of the vineyard of the earth: for her grapes are ripe.

19 And the Angel thrust in his sharpe sickle on the earth, and cut down the vines of the vineyard of the earth, and cast them into that great wine-press of the wrath of God.

20 And the wine-press was troden without the city, & blood came out of the wine-press unto the horse-bridles, by the space of a thousand and six hundred furlongs.

CHAP. XV.

1 The seven Angels having the seven last plagues. 3. They that conquered the beast, praise God. 6. To the seven Angels. 7 Seven vials full of Gods wrath, are delivered.

And I saw another signe in Heaven, a great and marvellous, seven Angels, having the seven last plagues: for by them is fulfilled the wrath of God.

2 And I saw as it were a glassie sea, mingled with fire, and them that had gotten victory of the beast, and of his image, and of his marke, and of the number of his Name, stand at the glassie sea, having the harpes of God,

3 And they sung the song of Moses the servant of God, and the song of the Lamb, saying, Great and marvellous are thy workes, Lord God Almighty: just and true are thy ways, King of Saints.

4 Who shall not feare thee, O Lord, and glorifie thy Name! for thou only art holy, and all nations shal come and worship before thee: for thy judgements are made manifest.

5 And after that, I looked, and behold, the Temple of the Tabernacle of the Testimony was open in heaven.

6 And the seven Angels came out of the Temple, which had the seven plagues, clothed in pure and bright linnen, and having their breasts girded with golden girdles.

7 And one of the foure beasts gave unto the seven Angels seven golden Vials full of the wrath of God, which liveth for evermore.

8 And the Temple was full of the smoke of the glory of God, and of his power, and no man was able to enter into the Temple, till the seven plagues of the seven Angels were fulfilled.

modity of choise mixt with fire, that is, as containing the treasury of the judgements of God, which he bringeth forth and dispenteth according to his own pleasure: for out of the former, the priests were cleansed of old: and out of this the ungodly are destroyed now, Chap. 4. 6. 5 That is, the godly Martyrs of Christ, who shall not give place even in miracles unto that beast: of these see before Chap. 13. 17. and 14. 9, 10. 6 Glorifying God, from the particular observation of the weapons and instruments of Gods wrath, floating in the sea of glasse. 7 That song of triumph, which is Exod. 15. 2. a Song Moses called for his own sake, as it is set forth Deut. 34. 10. 8 This song hath two parts: one a confession, both particular in this verse, and generall, in the beginning of the next verse: another, a narration of causes belonging to the confession, whereof one kinde is eternall in it selfe, and most present unto the godly, in that God is both holy, and alone God: another kind is future, and to come, in that the elect taken out of the Gentiles (that is, out of the wicked ones and unbelieving: as Chap. 11. 2.) were to be brought unto the same state of happinesse, by the magnificency of the judgement of God in the next verse: * *Esa. 145. 17. b Thy danger. * Iere. 10. 7.* 9 The second part of the narration (as was noted ver. 2.) wherein first, the authority of the whole argument and matter thereof is figured, by a forerunning type of a Temple opened in heaven, as chap. 11. 19. namely, that all those things are divine and of God, that proceed from thence, in this verse. Secondly, the administrators or executors, come forth out of the Temple, ver. 6. Thirdly, they are furnished with instruments of the judgement of God, and weapons fit for the manner of the same judgements, ver. 7. Finally, they are confirmed by testimony of the visible glory of God, in the last verse. A like testimony whereunto was exhibited of old in the law, Exod. 40. 34. 10 That is, commandements to inflict those seven plagues. Here is the figure called Metonymia. 11 Which was in old time a signe of the kingly or princely dignitie. 12 This girding was a signe of diligence, and the girdle of gold was a signe of sincerity and trustinesse in taking in charge the commandements of God. 13 Of these before. Chap. 4. 7. 14 None of those 7 Angels might returne, till he had performed fully the charge committed unto him, according to the decree of God.

CHAP. XVI.

2 and 17 The Angels poure out the seven vials of Gods wrath given unto them, so divers plagues arise in the world. 18 To terrifie the wicked, 19 and the inhabitants of the great City.

And I heard a great voice out of the Temple, saying to the seven Angels, Go your wayes, and poure out the seven vials of the wrath of God upon the earth.

a generall commandement in this verse, then a particular recitall in order of the execution done by every of the seven Angels, in the rest of the chapter. This special execution against Antichrist and his crew, doth in manner agree unto that which was generally done upon the whole world, ch. 8. & 9. & belongeth (if my conjecture fail me not) unto the same time. Yet herein they do differ one from another, that this was particularly effected upon the Princes and Ring-leaders of the wickednesse of the world: the other generally against the whole world being wicked. And therefore these judgements are figured more grievous then those.

2 And

1 This is that other place of the acts of Christ, as I noted before 14. 14. Now therefore is shewed a singular worke of the judgement of God belonging to the overthrow of Antichrist and his forces, of which divine worke the preparation is described in this Chapter: and the execution is first set down generally, & in type, in this verse: and is after particularly set forth in the rest of the Chapter.

2 Of which chap. 8. 9. in pouring forth the plagues of the world: for even these plagues doe for the most part agree with those.

3 There are two parts of the narration: one, the confession of the Saints glorifying God, when they saw the preparation of the judgements of God, unto the 4. verse: another the vocation, instruction, and confirmation of those instruments which God hath ordained for the execution of his judgements, in four other verses.

4 This part of the visionudgeth unto a sea, or large vessel of brasse, in which the Priests washed themselves in the entrance of the temple: for in the entrance of the heavenly Temple (as it is called ver. 5.) is said to have bin a sea of glasse, most light some & clear, to the com-

1 In the former Chapter was set down the preparation unto the worke of God: here is delivered the execution thereof. And in this discourse of the execution, is a generall commandement in this verse, then a particular recitall in order of the execution done by every of the seven Angels, in the rest of the chapter. This special execution against Antichrist and his crew, doth in manner agree unto that which was generally done upon the whole world, ch. 8. & 9. & belongeth (if my conjecture fail me not) unto the same time. Yet herein they do differ one from another, that this was particularly effected upon the Princes and Ring-leaders of the wickednesse of the world: the other generally against the whole world being wicked. And therefore these judgements are figured more grievous then those.

2 The history of the first Angels, whole plague upon the earth is described almost in the same words with that sixt plague of the Egyptians. Ex. 9.9. But it doth signify a spirituall ulcer, and that torture or butchery of conscience, feared with an hot yron, which accuteth & ungodly within, and both by truth of the word (the light whereof God hath now so long shewed forth) and by bitterneſſe stirreth up and forceth out the sword of Gods wrath.

3 See chap. 13.16. 4 The history of the second Angel, who troubleth and moleſteth the seas, that he may stir up the conscience of men sleeping in their wickedneſſe. See Chap. 8.8.

5 It was turned into rotten, and filthy blood, such as in dead bodies.

6 The story of the third Angel striking the rivers in this verſe, who proclaiming the juſtice of God, commendeth the ſame by a moſt grave comparison of the liues of men, with the puniſhment of God: which is common to this place, and that which went before. Wherefore alſo this praifing is attributed to the Angel of the waters, a name common to the ſecond and third Angels, according as both of them are ſaid to be ſent againſt the waters, albeit the one of the ſea, the other of the rivers, in two verſes.

7 A confirmation of the praife before going, out of the Sanctuary of God, whether immediately by Chriſt, or by ſome one of his Angels, for Chriſt alſo is called another Angel, chap. 7.2.3.8. and 12.1. 7. The ſtory of the fourth Angel, who throweth the plague upon the heaven, and upon the ſun, of which, Luke 21.26. the effects whereof are noted two, The one peculiar, that it ſhall ſcorch men with heat in this verſe. The other proceeding accidentally from the former, that their fury ſhall ſo much the more be enraged againſt God, in the next verſe, when yet (O wonderfull mercy and patience of God) all other creatures are firſt ſtricken often and grievouſly by the hand of God before mankind, by whom he is provoked: as the things before going do declare.

8 The ſtory of the fiſt Angel, who ſtriketh the kingdome of the beaſt with two plagues, abroad with darkneſſe, within with biles and dolours moſt grievous, throughout his whole kingdome, that thereby he might wound the confidence of the wicked, and puniſh that moſt perverſe obſtinacy of the idolaters: whereof aroſe perturbation, and thence a furious indignation and deſperate madneſſe, raging againſt God and hurtfull unto it ſelfe. 9 The ſtory of the ſixt Angel, divided into his act, and the event thereof. The act is, that the Angel did caſt out of his mouth the plague of a moſt glowing heat, wherewith even the greateſt floods, and which moſt were wont to ſwell and overflow (as Euphrates) were dried up, by the counſell of God in this verſe. The event is, that the meere madneſſe wherewith the wicked are enraged, that they may ſcorn the judgements of God, and abuſe them furiously to ſerve their own turn, and to the executing of their own wicked outrage. 10 The bond of the ſpirituall Babylon, and to the ſtreſſes of the ſame, Chap. 9.14. 11 So the Church of the ungodly, and kingdome of the beaſt, is ſaid to be left naked, all the defences thereof in which they put their truſt, being taken away from it. 12 That is, that even they which dwell further off, may with more commoditie make haſt unto that ſacrifice which the Lord hath appointed. 13 That is, every of them bent their whole force, and conſpired that by wonders, word, and work, they might bring into the ſame deſtruction, all kings, princes and potentates of the world, curſedly bewitched of them by their ſpirits, and teachers of the vanity and impunity of ſin, that committed fornication with the kings of the earth. And this is a right deſcription of our times. 14 Croking with all importunity, and continually day and night provoking and calling forth to arms as the trumpets and furies of wars, as is declared in the next verſe. 15 That is, the devill, as chap. 11.5. 16 Whereof chap. 13.1. 17 That is, of that other beaſt, of which chap. 13.11, for ſo he is called, alſo, chap. 19.20, and 20.10.

2 And the firſt went and poured out his viall upon the earth: and there fell a noiſom and a grievous ſore upon the men, which had the mark of the beaſt, and upon them which worſhipped his image.

3 And the ſecond Angel poured out his viall upon the ſea, and it became as the bloud of a dead man: and every living thing died in the ſea.

4 And the third Angel poured out his viall upon the rivers and fountains of waters, and they became blood.

5 And I heard the Angel of the waters ſay, Lord, Thou art juſt, Which art, and which waſt: and holy, becauſe thou haſt judged theſe things:

6 For they ſhed the bloud of the Saints, and Prophets, and therefore haſt thou given them bloud to drink: for they are worthy.

7 And I heard another out of the Sanctuary ſay, Even ſo, Lord God Almighty, true and righteous are thy judgements.

8 And the fourth Angel poured out his viall on the Sun, and it was given to him to torment men with heat of fire:

9 And men boiled in great heat, and blaſphemed the Name of God, which hath power over theſe plagues, and they repented not to give him glory.

10 And the fiſt Angel poured out his viall upon the throne of the beaſt, and his kingdome waxed dark, and they gnawed their tongues for ſorrow, 11 And blaſphemed the God of heaven for their paines, and for their ſores, and repented not of their works.

12 And the ſixt Angel poured out his viall upon the great river Euphrates, and the water thereof dried up, that the way of the kings of the Eaſt ſhould be prepared.

13 And I ſaw three unclean ſpirits like frogs come out of the mouth of that dragon, and out of the mouth of that beaſt, and out of the mouth of that falſe prophet.

14 For they are the ſpirits of devils, working miracles, to go unto the kings of the earth, and of the whole world, to gather them to the battell of that great day of God Almighty.

15 (*Behold, I come as a thief. Bleſſed is he that watcheth, and keepeth his garments, leſt he walk naked, and men ſee his filthineſſe)

16 And they gathered them together into a place called in Hebrew, Armagedon.

17 And the ſeventh Angel poured out his viall into the ayre, and there came a loud voice out of the temple of heaven from the throne, ſaying, It is done.

18 And there were voices, and thundrings, and lightnings, and there was a great earthquake, ſuch as was not ſince men were upon the earth, even ſo mighty an earthquake.

19 And the great city was divided into three parts: and the cities of the nations fell: and that great Babylon came in remembrance before God, to give unto her the cup of the wine of the fierceneſſe of his wrath.

20 And every iſle fled away, and the mountains were not found.

21 And there fell a great haile, like talents, out of heaven upon the men, and men blaſphemed God, becauſe of the plague of the haile: for the plague thereof was exceeding great.

overthrow of king Joſias, whereof 2 Reg. 22.30. and 2 Chron. 35.22. and Zach. 12.11. In this mountain country God ſaith by figure, or type, that the kings of the people which ſerve the beaſt, ſhall meet together: becauſe the Gentiles did alwayes caſt that lamentable overthrow in the teeth of the Church of the Jews, unto their great reproach: and therefore were perſwaded that that place ſhould be moſt fortunate unto them (as they ſpeake) and unfortunate unto the godly. But God here pronounceth, that that reproach of the Church, and confidence of the ungodly ſhall by himſelf be taken away, in the ſelf ſame place where the nations perſwaded themſelves, they ſhould mightily exult and triumph againſt God and his Church. 21 The ſtory of the ſeventh Angel unto the end of the chapter, in which firſt is ſhewed by ſigne and ſpeech, the argument of this plague, in this verſe, and then is declared the execution thereof in the verſes following. 22 From whence he might move the heaven above, and the earth beneath. 23 That is, from him that ſiteth on the throne, by the figure called Metonymia. 24 That is, Babylon is undone, as is ſhewed verſe 19. and in the chapters following. For the firſt onſet (as I might ſay) of this denunciation, is deſcribed in this chapter: and the laſt containing a perfect victory, is deſcribed in thoſe that follow. 25 Now is declared the execution (as is ſaid in verſe 27) and the things that ſhall laſt come to paſſe in heaven and in earth before the overthrow of the beaſt of Babylon: both generally, verſe 18. and particularly in the curſed city, and ſuch as have any familiarity therewith, in the three laſt verſes. 26 The ſeat or ſtanding place of Antichriſt. 27 Of all ſuch as cleave unto Antichriſt, and fight againſt Chriſt. 28 That harlot, of whom in the next chapter following. Now this phraſe, to come into remembrance, is after the common uſe of the Hebrew ſpeech, borrowed from men, and attributed unto God. * Jer. 25.15. 29 That is, were ſeen no more, or were no more extant. A borrowed Hebrew ſay, b Appeared not, which the Hebrews utter after this ſort, were not, Gen. 5.24. 30 The manner of the particular execution, moſt evidently reſtifying the wrath of God by the original and greateſt reſſe thereof: the event thereof is the ſame with that which is Chap. 9.13. and that which hath been mentioned in this chapter, from the execution of the fourth Angel hitherto, that is to ſay, an incorrigible perrinacy of the world in their rebellion, and an heart that cannot repent, verſe 9. and 11. c As it were about the weight of a talent, and a talent was threeſcore pound, that is, five hundred groats, whereby is ſignified a marvellous and ſtrange weight.

CHAP. XVII,

1 That great whore is deſcribed, 2 with whom the kings of the earth committed fornication, 3 She is drunken with the blood of Saints. 7 The myſtery of the woman, and the beaſt that carried her, expounded. 11 Their deſtruction. 14 The Lamb's victory.

Then there came one of the ſeven Angels, which had the ſeven vials, and talked with me, ſaying unto me, Come: I will getting victory, as I ſhewed before in the beginning of the tenth chapter. The ſtare is ſet forth in four chapters. As in the place before going I noted, that in that hiſtory the order of time was not alwayes exactly obſerved, ſo the ſame is to be underſtood in this hiſtory, that it is diſtinguiſhed according to the perſons of which it treateth, and that in the ſeverall ſtories of the perſons is ſeverally obſerved in the time thereof. For firſt is delivered the ſtory of Babylon deſtroyed in this and the next chapter. (For this Babylon, out of all doubt, ſhall periſh before the two beaſts and the Dragon.) Secondly, is delivered the deſtruction of both the two beaſts, Chap. 19. And laſtly of the Dragon, Chap. 18. In the ſtory of the ſpirituall Babylon, are diſtinctly ſet forth the ſtare thereof in this chapter, and the overthrow done from God, Chap. 18. In this verſe and that which followeth, is a tranſition or paſſage unto the firſt argument, conſiſting of the particular calling of the Prophet (as of an heretofore) and a general propoſition.

a The sentence that is pronounced against this harlot.

3 Henceforth is propounded the type of Babylon & the state thereof, in four verses.

After a declaration of the type, in the rest of this chapter.

In the type are described two things, the beast (of whom chapter 13) in the 3 ver.

and the woman that sitteth upon the beast, verfe. 4. 5. 6. The beast in papesse of time hath gotten somewhat more then was expressed in the former vision.

First, in that it is not read before that he was appalled in scarlet, a robe imperiall and of triumph.

Secondly, in that this is full of names of blasphemy: the other carried the name of blasphemy onely in his heads.

So God did teach that this beast is much increased in impiety and in justice and doth in this last age, triumph in both these more insolently and proudly then ever before.

b A scarlet colour, that is, with a red and purple garment: and surely it was not without cause that the Romish Clergie were so much delighted with this colour.

4 That harlot, the spirituall Babylon, which is Rome. She is described by her attire, profession and deeds.

5 In attire most glorious, triumphant, most rich and most gorgeous.

6 In profession the nourisher of all, in this verse, and teaching her mysteries unto all, verfe. 5. setting forth all things most magnificently: but indeed most perniciously befotting miserable men with her cup, and bringing upon them a deadly giddinesse.

7 Deceiving with the title of religion, and publick inscription of mystery: which the beast in times past did not beare.

8 An exposition, in which S. Iohn declareth what manner of woman this is.

9 In manner of deeds: She is red with blood, and sheddeth it most licenciously, and therefore is coloured with the blood of the Saints, as on the contrary part, Christ is set forth imbrued with the blood of his enemies, Esa. 63. 1.

10 A passage unto the second part of this chapter, by occasion given of S. Iohn, as the words of the Angel do shew in the next verse.

11 The second part or place, as I said verfe. 1. The enarration of the vision, promised in the verse following.

Now there is delivered first an enarration of the beast and his story, unto the 14. verse. After, of the harlot, unto the end of the chapter.

12 The story of the beast hath a triple description of him. The first, is a distinction of this beast from all that ever have bin at any time: which distinction is contained in this verse: The second, is a delineation or a painting out of the beast by things present, by which he might even at that time be known of the godly: and this delineation is according to his heads, verfe. 12. 13. 14. This beast is that Empire of Rome, of which I spake, chap. 13. 11.

according to the mutations and changes whereof, which then had already hapned, the holy Ghost hath distinguished and set out the same. The Apostle distinguisheth this beast from all others in these words: The beast which thou sawest, was, and is not. For so I expound the words of the Apostle for the evidencie sake, as I will further declare in the notes following.

13 The meaning is, that beast which thou sawest before (chap. 13. 1.) and which yet thou hast now seen, was, (was I say) even from Julius Caesar in respect of beginning, rising up, station, glory, dominion, manner and stock, from the house of Iulius: and yet is not now the same, if thou looke unto the house and stock: for the dominion of this family was translated unto another, after the death of Nero from that other unto a third, from a third, unto a fourth, and so forth, was varied and altered by innumerable changes. Finally, the Empire is one, as it were one beast: but exceedingly varied by kindreds, families, and persons. It was therefore (saith S. Iohn) in the kindred or house of Iulius: and now it is not in that kindred, but translated unto another.

14 As if he should say, Also this same that is, shall shortly not be: but shall ascend out of the depth, or out of the sea (as was said, chap. 13. 1.) that is, shall be a new stock from amongst the nations without difference: and shall in the same state go unto destruction, or run and perish: and so shall successively new Princes or Emperours come and go, arise and fall, the body of the beast remaining still, but tossed with so many and often alterations as no man can but marvel that this beast was able to stand and hold it out, in so many mutations, verily no Empire that ever was tossed with so many changes, and as it were with so many tempests of the sea, ever continued so long.

15, That is, as many as have not learned the providence of God, according to the faith of the Saints, shall marvel at these grievous and often changes: when they shall consider the selfe, same beast which is the Romane Empire, to have been, and not to be, and to be, and still molested with perpetual mutation, and yet in the same to stand and continue. This in mine opinion, is the most simple exposition of this place, confirmed by the event of the things themselves. Although the last change also, by which the Empire, that before was civil, became Ecclesiasticall, is not obscurely signified in these words, of which two, the first exercised cruelly upon the bodies of the Saints: the other also upon their souls: the first by humane order and policy, the other under the colour of the law of God, and of religion, ragged and imbrued it self with the blood of the godly.

shew thee the damnation of the great whore that sitteth upon many waters:

2 With whom have committed fornication the kings of the earth, and the inhabitants of the earth are drunken with the wine of her fornication.

3 So he carried me away into the wilderness in the Spirit, and I saw a woman sit upon a scarlet coloured beast, full of names of blasphemie, which had seven heads, and ten horns.

4 And the woman was arrayed in purple, and scarlet, and gilded with gold, and precious stones, and pearles, and had a cup of gold in her hand full of abomination and filthinesse of her fornication.

5 And in her forehead was a name written, A myserie, that great Babylon that mother of whoredomes, and abominations of the earth.

6 And I saw the woman drunken with the blood of Saints, and with the blood of the Martyres of Jesus: and when I saw her, I wondered with great marvel.

7 Then the Angel said unto me, Wherefore marveilest thou? I will shew thee the myserie of that woman, and of that beast that beareth her, which hath seven heads, and ten horns.

8 The beast that thou hast seen, was, & is not, & shall ascend out of the bottomles pit, and shall go into perdition, & they that dwell on the earth shall wonder (whose names are not written in the book of life from the foundation of the world) when they behold the beast that was, and is not, and yet is.

9 Here is the minde that hath wisdom. The seven heads are seven mountaines, whereon the woman sitteth: they are also seven kings, 10 Five are fallen, and one is, and another is not yet come: and when he cometh, he must continue a short space.

11 And the beast that was, and is not, is even the eight, and is one of the seven, and shall go into destruction.

12 And the ten horns which thou sawest, are ten kings, which yet have not received a kingdom, but shall receive power, as kings at one hour with the beast.

13 These have one minde, and shall give their power, and authority unto the beast.

14 These shall fight with the Lambe, and the Lambe shall overcome them: for he is Lord of lords, and King of kings: and they that are on his side, called, and chosen, and faithfull.

15 And he said unto me, The waters afterwards. This delineation hath one type, that is, his heads, but a double description or application of the type: one permanent, from the nature it self, the other changeable, by the working of men. The description permanent, is by the seven hills, in this verse, the other that is fleeting, is from the seven kings, verfe 10. 11. And here it is worthy to be observed, that one type hath sometimes two or more applications, as seemeth good to the holy Ghost to expresse, either one thing by divers types, or divers things by one type. So I noted before of the seven Spirits, chap. 1. 4. Now this woman that sitteth upon seven hills, is the city of Rome, called in times past of the Grecians, ἑπτάλοφος, i. of seven tops or crests, and of Vatro, septiceps, i. of her seven heads (as here) of seven heads; and of others, septemcollis, i. standing upon seven hills.

18 The beginning of these Kings or Emperours, is almost the same with the beginning of the Church of Christ, which I shewed before, Chap. 11. 1. Namely, from the year 25. after the passion of Christ, what time the temple and church of the Iewes was overthrowen. In which year it came to passe by the providence of God, that that saying, The beast, was, and is not, was fulfilled before the destruction of the Iewes immediately following, came to passe. That was the year from the building of the citie of Rome, 809 from which year S. Iohn both numbred the Emperours which hitherto had been, when he wrote these things, and foretelleth of two others next to come: and that with this purpose, that when this particular prediction or foretelling of things to come, should take effect, the truth of all other predictions in the Church, might be the more confirmed.

Which figure God of old mentioned in the Law, Deut. 18. and Ieremie confirmeth, Chapter 23. 8.

19 Whole names are these: the first, Servius Sulpitius Galba, who was the seventh Emperour of the people of Rome, the second, Marcus Salvius Otho, the third, Annius Vitellius, the fourth, Titus Flavius Vespasianus, the fifth, Titus Vespasianus his sonne, of his own name.

20 Flavius Domitian, sonne of the first Vespasian. For in the latter end of his dayes, S. Iohn wrote these things, as witnesseth Irenaeus, Lib. 5. adversus hereses.

21 Nerva. The Empire being now translated from the family of Flavius. This man reigned onely one year, foure moneths, and nine dayes, as the history writers do tell.

22 This is spoken by the figure Synecdoche, as much to say, as that head of the beast which was and is not, because it is cut off, and Nerva in so short time extinguished. How many heads there were, so many beasts there seemed to be in one. See the like speech in the third verse of the thirteenth Chapter.

23 Nerva Trajanus, who himselfe in divers respects is called here the seventh and the eighth.

24 Though in number and order of succession he be the eighth, yet he is reckoned together with one of these heads, because Nerva and he were one head. For this man obtained authority together with Nerva, and was consul with him, when Nerva left his life.

25 Namely, to molest with persecutions the Churches of Christ, as the Histories do accord, and I have briefly noted, Chapter 2. 10.

26 The third place of this description, as I said verfe 8. is a propheticall prediction of things to come, which the beast should do, as in the words following Saint Iohn doth not obscurely signifie, saying, Which have not yet received the kingdom, &c. For there is an Antithesis or opposition between these kings, and those that went before. And first the persons are described in this verse, then their deeds in the two verses following.

27 That is, arising with their kingdoms out of the Romane beasts: at such time as that politicall Empire began by the craft of the Popes, greatly to full.

28 Namely, with that second beast, whom we called before a false prophet, which beast ascending out of the earth, got unto himselfe all the authority and power of the first beast, and exercised the same before his face, as was said, Chapter 14. 11. 12. For when the politicall Empire of the West began to bow downwards, there both arose those ten kings, and the second beast took the opportunity offered, to usurpe unto himselfe all the power of the former beast. The kings long agoe, many have numbered and described to be ten, and a great part of the events plainly testifieth the same in this our age.

29 That is, by consent and agreement, that they may conspire with the beast, and depend upon his beck. Their storie is divided into three parts, counsels, acts, and events. The counsellors some of them consist in communicating of judgements and affections: and some in communicating of power, which they are said to have given unto this beast, in this verse.

30 With Christ and his Church, as the reason following doth declare, and heere are mentioned the facts and events, which followed for Christ his sake, and for the grace of God the Father towards those that are called, elected, and are his faithfull ones in Christ. * Chap. 19. 16. 1 Tim. 6. 15.

31 This is the other member of the enarration, as I said verfe 7. belonging unto the harlot, shewed in the vision, verfe 3. In this history of the harlot, these three things are distinctly propounded, what is her magnificency, in this verse, what is her fall, and by whom it shall happen unto her in the 2 verses following: and lastly, who that harlot is, in the last verse. This place which by order of nature should have been the first, is therefore made the last, because it was more fit to be joynd with the next chapter.

16 An exhortation, preparing unto audience by the same argument, with that of Christ: He that hath eares to heare, let him heare. Wherefore for mine own part, I had rather reade in this place, Let there be here a minde, &c. So the Angel puffeth fully unto the second place of this description.

17 This is the painting out of the beast by things present (as I said before) whereby S. Iohn endeavoured to describe the same, that he might be both known of the godly in that age, and be further observed and marked of the posterity

18 Every children know what the seven hills of Rome are, which is so much spoken of, and whereof Virgil thus reporteth, And compasseth seven towers in one wall: that citie it is, that when Iohn wrote these things, had rule over the kings of the earth. It was and is not, & yet it remaineth to this day, but it is declining unto destruction.

19 This is the painting out of the beast by things present (as I said before) whereby S. Iohn endeavoured to describe the same, that he might be both known of the godly in that age, and be further observed and marked of the posterity

32 That is, as unconstant and variable as the waters. Upon this foundation sitteth this harlot as queen, a vain person, upon that which is vain.
33 The ten kings, as verse 12. The accomplishment of this fact and event is daily increased in this our age, by the singular providence and most mighty government of God. Wherefore the facts are propounded in this verse, and the cause of them in the verse following.
34 A reason rendered from the chief efficient cause, which is the providence of God, by which alone Saint John by inversion of order affirmeth to have come to passe, both that the kings should execute upon the harlot that which pleaseth God, and which he declared in the verse next before going: and also that by one consent and counsel, they should give their kingdom unto the beast, &c. ver. 13, 14. for as these being blinded have before depended upon the beck of the beast that listeth up the harlot, so it is said, that afterward it shall come to passe, that they shall turn back, and shall fill away from her, when their hearts shall be turned into better state by the grace and mercy of God.

which thou sawest, where the whore sitteth, ³² are peoples, and multitudes, and nations, and tongues.

16 And the ten ³³ hornes which thou sawest upon the beast, are they that shall hate the whore, and shall make her desolate, and naked, and shall eat her flesh, and burn her with fire.

17 ³⁴ For God hath put in their hearts to fulfill his will, and to do with one consent for to give their kingdom unto the beast, untill the words of God be fulfilled.

CHAP. XVIII.

2 The horrible destruction of Babylon is set out. 11. 16. 18. The merchants of the earth, who were enriched with the pomp and luxuriousnesse of it, weep and waille: 20 But all the elect rejoyce for that just vengeance of God.

1 The second place (as I said before chap. 17. 1.) of the history of Babylon is of the wofull fall and ruine of that whore of Babylon. This historically prediction concerning her, is threefold. The first a plain and simple foretelling of her ruine, in 3 verses. The second a figurative prediction by the circumstances, thence unto the 20 verse. The third, a confirmation of the same by signe or wonder, unto the end of the chapter.

2 Either Christ the eternal word of God the Father (as often elsewhere) or a created Angel, and one deputed unto this service, but thoroughly furnished with greatness of power, & with light of glory, as the ensigne of power.

3 The prediction or foretelling of her ruine, containing both the fall of Babylon, in this verse, and the cause thereof uttered by way of allegory concerning her spirituall and carnall wickednes, that is, her most great impiety and injustice in the next verse: her fall is first simply declared of the Angel, and then the greatness thereof is shewed here, by the events, when he saith, it shall be the feast and habitation of devils, of wilde beasts, and of cursed fowls, as of old. Esay 13. 21. and often elsewhere. * Chap. 14. 8. I. sa. 21. 9. Ier. 51. 8.

4 The second prediction, which is of the circumstances of the ruine of Babylon: of these there are two kinds: one going before it, as that beforehand the godly are delivered, unto the ninth verse: the other following upon her ruine, namely, the lamentation of the wicked, and rejoycing of the godly, unto the twentieth verse.

5 Two circumstances going before the ruine, are commanded in this place: one is, that the godly depart out of Babylon: as I mentioned chap. 12. to have been done in time past, before the destruction of Jerusalem, this charge is given here, and in the next verse. The other is, that every one of them occupie themselves in their own place in executing the judgement of God, as it was commanded the Levites of old, Exod. 32. 27. and that they sanctifie their hands unto the Lord. Ver. 6. 7. 8. 6 Of this commandment there are two causes: to avoid the contagion of sin, and to shun the participation of those punishments that belong thereunto. a He useth a word which signifieth the following of sinners one after another, and rising one of another in such sort, that they grow as length to such an heape, that they came up even to heaven.

6 7 Reward her, even as she hath rewarded you, and give her double according to her works: and in the cup that she hath filled to you, fill her the double.

7 Inasmuch as she glorified her self and lived in pleasure, so much give yee to her torment and sorrow: for she saith ^b in her heart, I sit being a Queen, and am ^c no widow, and shall ^d see no mourning.

8 Therefore shall her plagues come at ^e one day, death, and sorrow, and famine, and she shall be burnt with fire: for that God which condemneth her, is a strong Lord.

9 And ^f the kings of the earth shall bewaile her, and lament for her, which have committed fornication, and lived in pleasure with her, when they shall see that smoke of that her burning,

10 And shall stand afar off for feare of her torment, saying, Alas, alas, that great city Babylon, that mighty city: for in one houre is thy judgement come.

11 ^g And the merchants of the earth shall weep and waille over her: for no man buyeth their ware any more.

12 The ware of gold, and silver, and of precious stones, and of pearles, and of fine linnen, and of purple, and of silk, and of scarlet, and of all manner of Thyne wood, and of all vessels of ivory, and of all vessels of most precious wood, and of brasse, and of iron, and of marble.

13 And of cynnamon, and odours, and ointments, and frankincense, & wine, and oyle, and fine floure, and wheat, and beasts, and sheep, and horses, and charrets, and servants, and souls of men.

14 ^h And the ⁱ apples that thy soule lusted after, are departed from thee, and all things which were fat & excellent, are departed from thee, and thou shalt find them no more)

15 The merchants of these things which were waxed rich, shall stand afar off from her, for feare of her torment, weeping and wayling,

16 And saying, Alas, alas, that great city that was clothed in fine linnen and purple, and scarlet, and guilded with gold, and precious stones, and pearles.

17 ^j For in one houre so great riches are come to desolation. And every shipmaster, and all the people that occupy ships, and shipmen, and whosoever traffique on the sea, shall stand afar off, 18 And cry, when they see that smoke of that her burning, saying, What ^k citie was like unto this great city?

19 And they shall cast dust on their heads, and cry, weeping, and wailing, & say, Alas, alas, that great city, wherein were made rich all that had ships on the sea by her costlines: for in one houre she is made desolate.

7 The provocation of the godly, and the commandment of executing the judgements of God, stand upon three causes which are here exprest: the unjust wickednesse of the whore of Babylon, in this verse, her cursed pride, opposing it selfe against God, which is the fountain of all evil actions, ver. 7. and her most just damnation by the sentence of God, ver. 8.

^b With her self. ^c I am full of people and mighty. ^d I shall taste of none.

^e Shortly, and at one instant.

^f The circumstances following the fall of Babylon, or the consequences thereof (as I distinguished them, ver. 4.) are two: Namely the lamentation of the wicked, unto the 19. verse, and the rejoycing of the godly, ver. 20.

This most sorrowfull lamentation, according to the persons of them that lament, hath three members: the first whereof is the mourning of the kings and mighty men of the earth, in two verses: The second is, the lamentation of the merchants that traffique by land, thence unto the 16. verse: The third is, the wailing of those that merchandize by sea ver. 16, 17, 18. In every of those the cause and manner of their mourning is described in order, according to the condition of those that mourn, with observation of that which best agreeth unto them.

9 The lamentation of those that trade by land, as I distinguished immediately before.

10 An apostrophe, or turning of the speech by imitation: used for more vehemency, as if those merchants, after the manner of mounters, should in passionate speech speak unto Babylon, though now utterly fallen and overthrowen. See Esay 12. 9. and in many other places.

^j By this is meant that season which is next before the fall of the land, at which season fruits ripen, and the word signifieth such fruits as are longed for.

11 The manner of mourning used by them that trade by sea.

12 The other consequence upon the other ruine of Babylon, is the exaltation or rejoycing of the godly in heaven and in earth, as we noted verse 9.

13 The third prediction, as I said verse 1. standing of a signe, and the interpretation thereof: the interpretation thereof is in two sorts, first by a simple propounding of the thing it self, in this verse, and then by declaration of the events, in the verses following.

* Jer. 51. 63.

14 The events are two, the one of them opposite unto the other for amplification sake. There shall be, saith he, in Babylon no mirth nor joy at all, in this and the next verse, but all heavy and lamentable things, from the bloody slaughters of the righteous, and the vengeance of God coming upon it for the same.

15 That is shed by bloody massacres, and calling for vengeance. 16 That is, proved and found out, as if God had appointed a just inquiry concerning the impiety, unnaturalnesse, and injustice of these men.

20 ¹² O heaven, rejoyce of her, and ye holy Apostles and Prophets: for God hath punished her, to be revenged on her for your sakes.

21 ¹³ Then a mighty Angell tooke up a stone like a great milstone, * and cast it into the Sea, saying, With such violence shall that great city Babylon be cast, and shall be found no more.

22 ¹⁴ And the voice of harpers, and musitians, and of pipers, and trumpeters shall be heard no more in thee, and no craftsman, of whatsoever craft he be, shall be found any more in thee: and the sound of a milstone shall be heard no more in thee:

23 And the light of a candle shall shine no more in thee: and the voice of the bridegroom and of the bride shall be heard no more in thee: for thy merchants were the great men of the earth: and with thine inchantment were deceived all nations.

24 And in her was found the ¹⁵ blood of the Prophets, ¹⁶ and of the Saints, and of all that were slain upon the earth.

CHAP. XIX.

¹ The heavenly company praise God for avenging the blood of his servants on the whore. ⁹ They are written blessed, that are called to the Lambs supper. ¹⁰ The Angell will not be worshipped. ¹¹ The mighty King of kings appeareth from Heaven. ¹⁹ The battell. ²⁰ wherein the beast is taken. ²¹ and cast into the burning lake.

And after these things I heard a great voice of a great multitude in heaven, saying, ²² Hallelu-jah, salvation, and glory, and honour, and power be to the Lord our God:

2 For true and righteous are his judgments: for he hath condemned that great Whore which did corrupt the earth with her fornication, and hath avenged the blood of his servants shed by her hand.

3 And again they said, ³ Hallelu-jah: and that her smoke rose up for evermore.

4 And the four and twenty Elders, and the foure beasts fell down, and worshipped God that sate on the throne, saying, Amen, Hallelu-jah.

5 ⁴ Then a voice came out of the throne, saying, Praise our God, all ye his servants, and ye that feare him, both small and great.

1 This Chapter hath in sum two parts, one transitory, or of passage unto the things that follow, unto the tenth verse, another historical of the victory of Christ gotten against both the beasts, unto the end of the Chapter: which I said was the second history of this argument. Chap. 17. 1. The transition hath two places, one of praising God for the overthrow done unto Babylon in 4. verses: and another likewise of praise and Propheticall, for the coming of Christ unto his kingdome, and his most royall marriage with his Church, thence unto the 10. verse. The former praise hath three branches, distinguished after the ancient manner of those that sing Trisphonus, that is, an invitation, or provokement in two verses: Antephonia, a response or answer in the third verse: and Synodia, a close or joyning together in harmony: all which I thought good of purpose to distinguish in this place, lest any man should with Porphyrius, or other like dogs, object unto Saint John, or the heavenly Church a childish and idle repetition of speech: ¹ Praise the Lord: ² The proposition of praise with exhortation in this verse, and the cause thereof, in the next verse. ³ The song of the Antiphonie or response, containing an amplification of the praise of God, from the perpetual and most certain testimony of his divine judgement, as was done at Sodom and Gomorrah, Gen. 19. ⁴ The second place of praise, as I said verse 1. which first is commanded from God in this verse: and then is in most ample manner pronounced of the creatures, both because they see that kingdome of Christ to come, which most they desire, verse 6. also because they see that the Church is called forth to be brought home into the house of her husband by holy marriage, unto the fellowship of his kingdome, verse 7. 8. Wherefore Saint John is commanded to write in a book the Epiphonema, or acclamation joyed with a divine testimony, verse 9: ⁵ Out of the Temple from God, as 11. 19.

6 And I heard ⁶ like a voice of a great multitude, and as the voice of many waters, and as the voice of strong thundrings, saying, Hallelu-jah: for the Lord that God, that Almighty one hath reigned.

7 Let us be glad and rejoyce, and give glory to him: for the marriage of the Lamb is come, and his wife hath ⁷ made her selfe ready.

8 And to her was granted, that she should be arrayed with ⁸ pure fine linnen and shining, for the fine ⁹ linnen is the ¹⁰ righteousness of Saints.

9 ¹⁰ Then he said unto me, Write, * Blessed are they which are called unto the Lambes supper. And he said unto me, These words of God are true.

10 ¹¹ And I fell before his feet, * to worship him: but he said unto me, See thou do it not: for I am thy fellow servant, and one of thy brethren, which have the ¹² testimony of Jesus, worship God: for the testimony of ¹³ Jesus is the Spirit of prophecie.

11 ¹² And I saw ¹³ heaven open, and behold a white horse, and he that sate upon him, was called faithfull and true, and he judgeth and fighteth righteously.

12 And his eyes were as a flame of fire, and on his head were many crowns: and he had a name written, that no man knew but himselfe.

13 And he was clothed with a garment dipt in blood, and his name was called THE WORD OF GOD.

14 ¹⁴ And the hosts which were in heaven followed him upon white horses, clothed with fine linnen white and pure.

15 ¹⁵ And out of his mouth went out a sharp sword, that with it he should smite the heathen: for he shall ¹⁶ rule them with a rod of iron: for he it is that treadeth the wine-press of the fierceness and wrath of Almighty God.

16 ¹⁶ And he hath upon his garment, and upon his thygh a name written, * THE KING OF KINGS, AND LORD OF LORDS.

17 ¹⁷ And I saw an Angel stand in the sun, who cried with a loud voice, saying to all the fowles that did flie by ¹⁸ the mids of heaven, Come, and gather your selves together unto the Supper of the great God:

names. ¹³ Properties belonging to his person, that hee is heavenly, Judge, faithfull, true, just, in this verse, searching out all things, ruling over all, to be searched out of none, verse 12, the triumphier, and the very essentiall word of God, verse 13. ¹⁴ The company or retinue of Christ, holy, innumerable, heavenly, judiciall, royall, and pure. ¹⁵ The effects of Christ prepared unto battell, that with his mouth hee striketh the Gentiles, ruleth and destroyeth. * Psal. 2. 9. ¹⁶ The name agreeing unto Christ, according to the former properties, expressed after the manner of the Hebrews. * Chap. 17. 14. 1 Tim. 6. 15. ¹⁷ The second member, as I said verse 11. A reprochfull calling forth of his enemies unto battell: in which not themselves (for why should they be called forth of the King of the world, or provoked being his subjects? for that were not comely) but in their hearing the birds of the ayre are called to eat their carkeles. ¹⁸ That is, openly, and in sight of all, as Num. 25. 4. and 2. Sam. 12. 11. ¹⁹ That is, through this inferiour heaven, and which is nearer unto us: an Hebrew phrase.

⁶ Without the Temple in heaven.

⁷ Namely, unto the holy marriage, both her selfe in person in this verse, and also furnished of her spouse with marriage gifts, princely and divine, is adorned & prepared in the next verse.

⁸ As an ensign of kingly and priestly dignitie: which dignity Christ bestoweth upon us, Chap. 1. 6.

¹⁰ Namely the Angel, as appeareth by the next verse. * Matth. 22. 2.

¹¹ The particular historie of this verse is brought in by occasion, and as it were belides the purpose, that Saint John might make a publick example of his own infirmity, and of the modest function of the Angel, who both renounced for himselfe the divine honours, and recalled all the servants of God unto the worship of him alone: as also 22. 8. * Chap. 22. 8. Which are commanded to beare witness of Jesus.

¹² For Jesus is the mark that all the prophecies look at.

¹³ The second place of this chapter (as I said verse 1.) is of the victory gotten by Christ against both the beasts: in which first, Christ is described as one ready to fight; unto the 16. verse, then is shewed the battell to be begun, thence unto the 18. verse. Lastly, is set forth the victory, unto the end of the Chapter. In this place do shine forth most excellent properties of Christ as our heavenly judge & revenger, according to his person, company, effects, and

18 That

18 That ye may eat the flesh of kings, and the flesh of high captains, and the flesh of mighty men, and the flesh of horses, & of them that sit on them, & the flesh of all free men, and bond men, and of small and great.

19 ²⁰ And I saw the beast, and the kings of the earth, and their hosts gathered together to make battell against him that fate on the horse, and against his armie.

20 But the beast ²¹ was taken, and with him that false prophet that wrought miracles before him, whereby he deceived them that received the beasts ²² marke, and them that worshipped his image. These both were alive cast into a lake of fire burning with brimstone.

21 And the remnant were slain with the sword of him that sitteth upon the horse, which commeth out of his mouth, and all the fowls were filled full with their flesh.

CHAP. XX.

1 The Angel 2 bindeth Satan for a thousand years: 8 Being loosed, he stirreth up Gog and Magog, that is, privie and open enemies against the Saints. 11 but the vengeance of the Lord cutesh off their insolencie. 12 The books are opened, by which the dead are judged.

And I saw an Angel come down from heaven, having the key ² of the bottomlesse pit, and a great chain in his hand.

2 And he took the dragon that old serpent, which is the devill and Satan, and he bound him ³ a thousand years:

3 And cast him into the bottomlesse pit, and he shut him up, and sealed the doore upon him, that he should deceive the people ⁴ no more, till the thousand years were fulfilled, for after that he must be loosed for ⁵ a little season.

4 ⁶ And I saw ²⁷ seats: and they fate upon them, and judgment was given unto them, and I saw the fouls of them that were ⁸ beheaded for the witnesse of Jesus, and for the word of God, and which ⁹ did not worship the beast, neither his image, neither had taken his marke upon their foreheads, or on their hands: and they lived, & reigned with Christ a thousand year.

5 ¹⁰ But the rest of the dead men ¹¹ shall not live again, untill the thousand years be finished: this is the first resurrection.

6 Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection: for on such the ¹² second death hath no power, but they shall be the Priests of God and of Christ, ¹³ and shall reigne with him a thousand year.

7 ¹⁴ And when the ¹⁵ thousand years are expired, Satan shall be loosed out of his prison,

8 ¹⁶ And shall go out to deceive the people, which are in the four quarters of the earth, ^{even} * Gog, & Magog, to gather them together to battell, whose number is as the sand of the Sea.

9 And they went up into the ^b plain of the earth, and they compassed the tents of the Saints about, and the beloved citie: but ¹⁷ fire came down from God out of heaven, and devoured them.

10 ¹⁸ And the devill that deceived them, was cast into a lake of fire and brimstone, where that beast and that false prophet are, and shall be tormented even day and night for evermore.

11 ¹⁹ And I saw a great ²⁰ white throne, and one that fate on it, ²¹ from whose face fled away both the earth and heaven; and their place was no more found.

12 And I saw the dead, both great and small stand before ²² God: and the ²³ books were opened, * and another book was opened, which is the book ²⁴ of life, and the dead were judged of those things, which were written in the books, according to their workes.

13 ²⁵ And the sea gave up her dead, which were in her, and death and hell delivered up the dead, which were in them: and they were judged every man according to their workes.

14 ²⁶ And death and hell were cast into the lake of fire: this is the second death.

15 And whosoever was not found written in the booke of life, was cast into the lake of fire.

overthrow of Satan. 18 The third member, eternall destruction against those that are overcome, as I noted in the same place. 19 The second part of this chapter, in which is described the judge, in this verse, and the last judgement in the verse following. 20 That is, a tribunall seat most Princelike and glorious: for to doth the Greek word also signifie. 21 That is, Christ, before whom when he commeth unto judgement, heaven and earth shall perish for the greatnesse of his majesty. 2 Pet. 3. 7, 10, &c. 22 That is, Christ the Judge. 2 Cor. 5. 10. 23 As it were his books of reckoning, or accompts, that is, the testimony of our conscience, and of our workes, which by no means can be avoided. This is spoken after the manner of men. * Chap. 3. 5. and 21. 27. Philip. 4. 3. 24 The booke of the eternall decree of God, in which God the Father hath elected in Christ, according to the good pleasure of his will, those that shall be heires of life. This also is spoken according to the manner of men. 25 This is a prevention, or an answer to an objection: for happily some man will say, But they are dead, whom the sea, death, and the grave hath consumed, how shall they appear before the judge? S. John answereth, By resurrection from death, whereunto all things (howsoever repugnant) shall minister and serve at the commandment of God, as Dan. 12. 26 The last enemy which is death, shall be abolished by Christ (that he may no more make any attempt against us) 1 Cor. 15. 26, and death shall feed upon the reprobate in hell for evermore, according to the righteous judgment of God in the next verse.

CHAP. XXI.

2 He describeth new Hierusalem descending from heaven. 9 The bride the Lambs wife, 12 and the glorious building of the citie, 19 garnished with precious stones, 22 whose Temple the Lamb is.

L I

And

20 The third member (as was said verse 11) of the victorie obtained by Christ. Unto this appertaineth two things: his buckling with the beast and his forces, in this verse: and the event most magnificent, described after the manner of men, in the verses following. All these things are plain. 21 Namely, that beast with seven heads, of which before Chapter 13. 1. and 17. 3. 22 That is, that beast with two heads, of which 13. 11. Looke more, Chapter. 16. 14.

1 Now followeth the third place of the propheticall history, which is of the victory whereby Christ overcame the dragon, as I noted, Chap. 7. 1. This place must necessarily be joynted with the end of the 12 chapter, and be applied unto the just understanding thereof. This chapter hath two parts, one of the dragon overcome, unto the 10 verse: the other of the resurrection and last judgement, unto the end of the chapter. The story of the dragon is doubled: First, of the first victory, after which he was bound by Christ, unto the 6 verse. The second is of the last victory, whereby he was throwne down into everlasting punishment, thence unto the 16 verse. This first history hapened in the first time of the Christian Church, when the dragon throwne down from heaven by Christ, went about to molest the new birth of the Church in the earth, Chap. 12. 17, 18. For which cause I gave warning, that this story of the Dragon must be annexed unto that place. 2 That is, of hell whither God threw down the Angels which had sinned, and bound them in chains of darknesse to be kept unto damnation, 2 Pet. 2. 4, Jude 6. 3 The first whereof (continuing this history with the end of the 12 chapter) in the 36 year from the passion of Christ, when the Church of the Jews being overthrowne, Satan assayed to invade the Christian Church gathered of the Gentiles, and to destroy part of her seed, Chap. 12. 17. The thousandth year falleth precisely upon the times of that wicked Hildebrand, who was called Gregorie the seventh, a most damnable Necromancer and forcerer, whom Satan used as an instrument when he was loosed out of bonds, thenceforth to annoy the Saints of God with most cruel persecutions, and the whole world with dissensions and most bloody warres: as Benno the Cardinall reporteth at large. And this is the first victory gotten over the Dragon in the earth. 4 Namely, with that publike and violent deceit which he attempted before, Chap. 12. and which after a thousand years (a lack for woe) he most mightily procured in the Christian world. 5 Which being once expired, the second battell and victory shall be, of which, Verse 7. 8. 6 A description of the common state of the Church of Christ in earth, in that space of a thousand years, for which the devill was in bonds: in which, first, the authoritie, life, and common honour of the godly is declared, Verse 4. Secondly, newnesse of life is preached unto others by the Gospel, after that space, Verse 5. Finally, he concludeth with promise, Verse 6. a For judgement was committed to them, as to members joynted to the head: not that Christ's office was given over to them. 7 This was a type of the authority of the good & faithfull servants of God in the Church, taken from the manner of men. 8 Of the Martyrs which suffered in those first times. 9 Of the Martyrs which suffered after that, both the beasts were now risen up, chap. 15. for there, these things are expounded. 10 Whosoever shall lie dead in sinne, and not know the truth of God. 11 They shall not be renewed with that newnesse of life by the enlightning of the Gospel of the glory of Christ. For this is the first resurrection, by which the fouls of the dead do rise from their death: in the second resurrection their bodies shall rise again.

12 That whereby both body and soule, that is, the whole man is addicted and delivered unto eternall death. So chap. 2. 17.

13 A return unto the intended history, by referring the words which are in the end of the fourth verse.

14 The second historie, of the latter victory of Christ, as was said verse 1. In which are summarily described the work, overthrow, and eternall punishment of Satan.

15 Of which I spake, verse 2.

Then therefore shall be given unto him liberty to rage against the Church, and to molest the Saints for the finnes of men: unto whom the faithfull shall have associated themselves more then was meet, raising with them of their impurity of doctrine and life.

16 The work, or act of Satan (which is the first member, as I distinguished in the verse before going) to deceive the whole world, even unto the uttermost nations thereof: to arme them against the people of God, in this verse, and to besiege and oppress the Church, with his whole strength, in the verse following.

* Ezech. 39. 2.

b As if he said, in so much that the whole face of the earth, how great soever it is, was filled.

17 The wrath of God, consuming the adversaries, & overthrowing all their enterprises.

Heb. 10. 27. And this is the second member mentioned verse 7. the 1 Now followeth the second part of the history propheticall (as I said Chapter 1. and 11. 1.) of the future estate of the Church in heaven after the last judgement, unto the fifth verse of the next chapter. In this are two things briefly declared: The station, seat, or place thereof, verse 1. Then her state and condition, in the verses following, before the state of the Church described, is set down the state of the whole world, that there shall be a new heaven, and a new earth, as Esa. 65. 7. and 66. 12. and 2 Pet. 3. 13. and this is the seat or place of the Church, in which righteousness shall dwell.

* Esa. 65. 17. and 66. 22.
* 2 Pet. 3. 13.
2 The state of this glorious Church, is first described generally, unto the 8. verse, and then specially, & by parts, in the verses following. The general description consisteth in a vision, shewed a far off, verse 2. and in speech spoken from heaven. In the general these things are common, that the Church is holy, new, the workmanship of God heavenly, most glorious: the spouse of Christ, and partaker of his glory in this verse.

3 The Church is described by speech, first of an Angel, in two verses, then of God himself, in four verses. The Angels speech describeth the glory of the Church, by a most familiar cohabitation of God therewith, by communication of all manner good things according to the covenant, in this verse: and by removing or putting far away of all evil things, in the verse following.

* Chap. 7. 17. Eja. 25. 8. 4 In the speech of God himself describing the Church, is first a certain exordium, or entrance, verse 5. Then followeth a magnificent description of the Church, by the present and future good things of the same, in three verses following. In the exordium God challengeth unto himself the restoring of all the creatures, of which verse 1. and witnesseth the calling of Saint John unto the writing of these things, in this verse. * Eja. 43. 19. 2 (vna. 5. 17.) * Chap. 1. 8. and 22. 13. 5 The description of the Church is of three sorts, by abolishing of old things, by the being of present things in God, that is, of things eternal: and by the communication of all good things with the godly, verse 6. If so be they shall strive manfully, verse 7. But the reprobate are excluded from thence, verse 8.

6 A transition unto the particular describing of the heavenly Church, by the expresse calling of S. John in this verse, and his rapt up by the Spirit, in confirmation of the truth of God in the verse following. 7 He meaneth the place and stately seat of the Church, shadowed out in a mountain. 8 A type of that Church which is one, ample, or Catholike, holy, celestiall, built of God, in this verse: and glorious, in the verse following. This type propounded, generally, is after particularly declared, verse 12. &c. 9 A particular description (as I noted verse 2) of the celestiall Church. First, by the essentiall parts of the same, under the similitude of a citie, unto verse 22. Secondly, by the forreine accidents, unto the end of the Chapter. Thirdly, by the effects, in the beginning of the next Chapter, the essentiall parts are noted, the matter and the form in the whole worke: of these the superficies and foundation of the wall are entire parts (as they use to be called) which parts are first described in figure, unto the 14. verse, afterwards more exactly.

10 According to the number of the tribes, of which Chap. 7. For hear the outward part is attributed unto the old Testament and the foundation to the new Testament.

And I saw a new heaven, and a new earth: for the first heaven, and the first earth were passed away, and there was no more sea.

2 And I John saw the holy citie new Hierusalem come down from God out of heaven, prepared as a bride trimmed for her husband.

3 And I heard a great voice out of heaven, saying, Behold, the Tabernacle of God is with men, and he will dwell with them: and they shall be his people, and God himself shall be their God with them.

4 And God shall wipe away all teares from their eyes: and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, neither crying, neither shall there be any more pain: for the first things are passed.

5 And he that sat upon the throne, said, Behold, I make all things new: and he said unto me, Write: for these words are faithful and true.

6 And he said unto me, It is done, I am Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the end: I will give to him that is a thirst of the well of the water of life freely.

7 He that overcometh, shall inherit all things, and I will be his God, and he shall be my sonne.

8 But the fearful, & the unbelieving, and the abominable, and murtherers, & whoremongers, and sorcerers, and idolaters, and all liars shall have their part in the lake, which burneth with fire and brimstone, which is the second death.

9 And there came unto me one of the seven Angels, which had the seven vails full of the seven last plagues, and talked with me, saying, Come, I will shew thee the bride, the Lambs wife.

10 And he caried me away in the spirit to a great and high mountain, and he shewed me that great citie, that holy Hierusalem, descending out of heaven from God,

11 Having the glory of God: and her shining was like unto a stone most precious, as a jasper stone clear as chrystall,

12 And had a great wall and high, and had twelve gates, and at the gates twelve Angels, and the names written, which are the twelve tribes of the children of Israel:

13 On the East part there were three gates, and on the North side three gates, on the South side three gates, and on the West side three gates.

14 And the wall of the citie had twelve foundations, and in them the names of the Lambs twelve Apostles.

15 And he that talked with me, had a golden reede, to measure the citie withall, and the gates thereof, and the wall thereof.

16 And the citie lay fouresquare, and the length is as large as the breadth of it, and he measured the citie with the reed, twelve thousand furlongs: and the length, and the breadth, and the height of it are equall.

17 And he measured the wall thereof, an hundred forty and four cubits, by the measure of man, that is, of the Angel.

18 And the building of the wall of it was of jasper: and the citie was pure gold, like unto clear glasse.

19 And the foundations of the wall of the citie were garnished with all manner of precious stones: the first foundation was jasper: the second of Saphire: the third of a Chalcedonie: the fourth of an Emerald:

20 The fifth of a Sardonyx: the sixth of a Sardius: the seventh of a Chrysolite: the eighth of a Beril: the ninth of a Topaz: the tenth of a Crysolaprasus: the eleventh of a jacinth: the twelfth an Amethyst.

21 And the twelve gates were twelve pearls, and every gate was of one pearle, and the street of the citie was pure gold, as shining glasse.

22 And I saw no Temple therein: for the Lord God Almighty and the Lamb are the temple of it.

23 And this citie hath no need of the sun, neither of the moon to shine in it: for the glory of God did light it, and the Lamb is the light of it.

24 And the people which are saved, shall walke in the light of it: and the kings of the earth shall bring their glory and honour unto it.

25 And the gates of it shall not be shut by day: for there shall be no night there.

26 And the glory and honour of the Gentiles shall be brought unto it.

27 And there shall enter into it none unclean thing, neither whatsoever worketh abomination, or lies: but they which are written in the Lambs book of life.

CHAP. XXII.

1 The river of the water of life is shewed, 2 and the tree of life: 6. 7. Then followeth the conclusion of this prophetic, 8 where John declareth, that the things herein contained, are most true. 13 And now the third time repeateth these words, All things come from him who is the beginning and the end.

And

11 He meaneth the Prophets, who are the messengers of God, and watchmen of the Church.

12 That is, foundation stones, according to the number of the gates, as is shewed, Verse 19.

13 A transition unto a more exquisite description of the parts of the Church, by finding out of the measure of the same, by the Angel that measured them.

14 The measure and forme most equall, in two verses.

15 A four squared figure hath equal sides, and therefore the Grecians call by this name those things that are steady, and of continuance, and perfect.

16 He addeth this because the Angel had the shape of a man.

17 The matter most precious and glittering, which the presence of God maketh most glorious.

18 By direct, he meaneth the broadest place of the citie.

* Eja. 60. 19.
16 The second forme of particular description (as I said verse 12) of the Church, by the outward accidents which are these, light from God himself in this verse: glory from men, ver. 24. perfect securitie from all harme, ver. 25. Finally such truth and incorruption of glory (ver. 26.) as can bear and abide with it, nothing that is inglorious, verse the last.

* Eja. 60. 3.
* Eja. 60. 11.
* Chap. 3. 5. and 20. 12.
* Phil. 4. 3.

¹ Here is absolved and finished the description of the celestial Church (as I shewed before, Chap. 21. 12.) by the effects in 5 verses, & then this book is concluded in the rest of the chap. The effects proceeding from God, who dwelleth in 9 Church, are these: the everlasting grace of God, in this verse, the eternal living of the godly, as Chap. 2. 7. the eternal fruits which the godly bring forth unto God, themselves, & others, Verse 2. freedom & immunity from all evil, God himself taking pleasure in his servants, and they likewise in their God, Verse 3. The beholding and sight of God, and sealing of faithfull from all eternity, verse 4. the light of God & an everlasting kingdom & glory, ver. 5.

² Esa 60. 19. ³ This whole book is concluded and made up by a confirmation & a salutation. The confirmation hath three places: The words of the Angel unto the 15 verse, the words of Christ, verse 16, 17. and the obtestation made by Saint John from divine authority, thence unto the 20 verse. By the speech of the Angel this prophetic is confirmed, unto the 8 verse, and then he speaketh of the use of this book in the verses following. The prophetic is first confirmed by the Angel from the nature thereof, that it is faithfull and true: Secondly, from the nature of the efficient cause, both principall which is God, and instrumentall, which is the Angel in this verse. Thirdly, from the promises of God concerning his coming to effect all these things, & concerning our salvation, Verse 7. Fourthly, from the testimony of Saint John himself, Verse 8. The rest of 5 speech of the Angel tending to the same end. Saint John interrupted or brake off by his unadvised act of worshipping him, in the same verse which the Angel forbidding, teacheth him that adoration must be given not to him, but only to God, as for himself, that he is of such nature & office, as he may not be adored: which thing also was in like manner done, Chap. 16. ver. 10. ⁴ Chap. 19. 10. ⁵ The Angel returneth unto his former speech: in which he teacheth the use of this book both towards our selves, in this, and the next verse: and in respect of God for declaration of his truth, thence unto the 15 verse. ⁶ That is propound this prophetic openly unto all, & conceale no part of it. The contrary whereunto is commanded, Esa 8. 6. and Dan 8. 26. ⁷ An objection prevented. But there will be some that will abuse this occasion unto evil, & will wrest this Scripture unto their own destruction, as Peter saith. What then saith the Angel, the mysteries of God must not therefore be concealed, which it hath pleased him to communicate unto us. Let them be hurtfull unto others, let such be more & more vile in themselves whom this Scripture doeth not please: yet others shall be further conformed thereby unto righteousness, and true holiness. The care and reformation of these may not be neglected, because of the voluntary and malicious offence of others.

And he shewed me a pure river of water of life, clear as crystal, proceeding out of the throne of God, and of the Lamb.

2 In the midst of the street of it, & of either side of the river, was the tree of life, which bare twelve manner of fruits, and gave fruit every moneth: and the leaves of the tree served to heal the nations with.

3 And there shall be no more curse, but the throne of God and of the Lamb shall be in it, and his servants shall serve him.

4 And they shall see his face, and his Name shall be in their foreheads.

5 * And there shall be no night there, and they need no candle, neither light of the sun: for the Lord God giveth them light, and they shall reigne for evermore.

6 * And he said unto me, These words are faithfull and true: and the Lord God of the holy Prophets sent his Angel to shew unto his servants the things which must shortly be fulfilled.

7 Behold, I come shortly. Blessed is he that keepeth the words of the prophetic of this book.

8 And I am John, which saw and heard these things: and when I had heard and seen * I fell down to worship before the feet of the Angel which shewed me these things.

9 But he said unto me, See thou dost it not: for I am thy fellow servant, and of thy brethren the Prophets, and of them which keep the words of this booke: worship God.

10 * And he said unto me, * Seal not the words of the prophetic of this book: for the time is at hand.

15 For without shall be dogs and enchanters, and whoremongers, and murderers, and idolaters, and whosoever loveth or maketh lies.

16 * I Jesus have sent mine Angel, to testify unto you these things in the Churches: I am the root and the generation of David, and the bright morning Starre.

17 And the Spirit and the bride say; Come. And let him that heareth, say, Come: and let him that is a thirst, come: and * let whosoever will, take of the water of life freely.

18 * For I protest unto every man that heareth the words of the prophetic of this booke, If any man shall adde unto these things, God shall adde unto him the plagues that are written in this book.

19 And if any man shall diminish of the words of the book of this prophetic, God shall take away his part out of the book of life, and out of the holy citie, & from those things, which are written in this book.

20 * He which testifieth these things, faith, Surely I come quickly, Amen. Even so, come Lord Jesus.

21 * The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you all, Amen.

Church as the spouse, and of every of the godly as members: and finally, from the thing present, that of their own knowledge and accord, they are called forth unto the participation of the good things of God, verse 17. * Esa 55. 1. ⁹ The obtestation of S. John (which is the third place of the confirmation, as was noted verse 6.) joynt with a curse of execration to preserve the truth of this booke entire and uncorrupted in two verses. ¹⁰ A divine confirmation or sealing of the obtestation, first from Christ avouching the same, and denouncing his coming against all those that shall put their sacrilegious hands hereunto: then from S. John himself, who by a most holy prayer calleth Christ to take vengeance of them. ¹¹ The salutation Apostolicall, which is the other place of the conclusion, as I said verse 6. and is the end almost of every Epistle: which we with unto the Church, and to all the holy and elect members thereof, in Christ Jesus our Lord, until his coming to judgement. Come Lord Jesus, and doe it. Amen, again Amen.

⁶ The second place belonging unto the use of this booke, as I said, verse 10.

⁷ Also (saith God by the Angel) though there should be no use of this booke unto men: yet it shall be of this use unto me, that it is a witness of my truth unto my glory, who will come shortly, to give and execute just judgement, in this verse: who have taught that at these things have their being in me, in the 13 verse, and have denounced blessedness unto my servants in the Church, verse 14. and reprobation unto the ungodly, verse 15.

* Rem. 2. 6. Chap. 1. 8. and 21. 6.

Esa 41. 44. & 44. 6. ⁷ The blessedness of the godly let down by their title and interest thereunto: and their fruit in the same.

⁸ The second place of confirmation (as I said verse 6.) is the speech of Christ ratifying the vocation of S. John, and the authority of his calling and testimonie, both from the condition of his own person, being God and man, in whom all the promises of God are, Yes and Amen, 2 Cor. 1. 20. and also from the testimony of other persons, by the acclamation of the holy Ghost, who here is, as it were, an honorable assistant of the marriage of the

¶ A brieffe

The first Table.

A briefe Table of the interpretation of the proper names which are chiefly found in the Olde Testament, wherein the first number signifieth the Chapter, the second the Verse.

WHereas the wickednesse of time, and the blindness of the former age hath been such, that all things altogether have been abused and corrupted, so that the very right names of divers of the holy men named in the Scriptures have been forgotten, and now seem strange unto us, and the names of infants that should ever have some godly advertisements in them, and should be memorials and markes of the children of God received into his household, have been heereby also changed and made the signes and badges of idolatrie and heathenish impietie: we have now set forth this Table of the names that be most used in the old Testament, with their interpretations, as the Hebrew importeth, partly, to call back the godly from that abuse, when they shall know the true names of the godly Fathers, and what they signifie, that their children now named after them, may have testimonies by their very names, that they are within that faithfull family, that in all their doings had ever God before their eyes, and that they are bound by these their names to serve God from their infancie, and have occasion to praise him for his works wrought in them, and their fathers, but chiefly to restore the names to their integritie, whereby many places of the Scriptures and secret mysteries of the holy Ghost shall better be understood. We have medled rarely with the Greek names, because their interpretation is uncertain, and many of them are corrupted from their original, as we may also see these Hebrew names set in the margent of this Table, which have been corrupted by the Grecians. Now for the other Hebrew names that are not here interpreted, let not the diligent Reader be carefull: for he shall find them in places most convenient amongst the Annotations: at least so many as may seem to make for any edification, and understanding of the Scriptures.

A N A D M O N I T I O N T H E C H R I S T I A N R E A D E R

Concerning the Apocrypha-Books, wherein are shewed the reasons and grounds, wherefore they are here omitted, as not Canon-call, and not to be accounted amongst the Books of undoubted truth, as the H O L Y S C R I P T U R E S are to be held for,

He writings which anciently have been joyned together in that Book, which we call the Bible, or the Scriptures, are of two kinds: Some are given by inspiration of God, 2 Tim. 3.16. and written by the holy men of God, namely, the Prophets and Apostles, Ephes. 2.20. being moved by the holy Ghost, 2 Pet. 1.21. which is the Spirit of truth, John 15.26. and 16.13. and therefore, are Divine Scriptures of an undoubted and infallible truth: these we commonly call by a Greek word, Canonicall Books, because they contain a doctrine which is as a Canon or Rule of all that must be beleaved and done to be saved, Gal. 6.10. Phil. 3.16. Or because they stand in the Canon, that is, in the Register of the Divine Books, which both the Jewish, and Christian Church at all times have had.

Athanasius in his Synopsis saith: Some Books are written by the will of men that are lyable to error in doctrine, and therefore cannot be a rule unto our faith and carriage, and these are called Apocrypha-Books, that is, Hidden: either because they ought not to be read in publick, but rather to be hidden: or because they were not in the chest wherein the divine books of the Jewes were kept and hidden. As for the books of the new Testament, which are contained in the Bible, although some particular Doctors, though without reason, have doubted, whether the epistle to the Hebrews, the epistle of James, the second of Peter, the second and third of John, the epistle of Jude, and the Revelation of John, were to be held for Canonicall or no: yet notwithstanding the Primitive Church generally have never doubted of it, neither are they in our time questioned, but are by whole Christendome esteemed and held to be divine and Canonicall books. But by the writings of the old Testament there are some Books adjoyned, which are not Canonicall, but Apocryphall: to wit, The third and fourth books of Esdras, the history of Judith, the book of Wisdom, Ecclesiasticus, or Jesus Syrach, seven chapters added unto the book of Ester, the book of Baruch, and the letter of Jeremie, some additions to the book of Daniel, namely, the history of Susanna, of Bel and the Dragon, the prayer of Azarias, and the song of the companions of Daniel in the fiery Oven, the prayer of Manasse, and the three books of the Maccabees. That these writings are not to be reputed Canonicall but Apocryphall books, appeareth manifestly, by reason, that man sees not, nor finds in them the marks and signs whereby the Canonicall books are known and discerned from others. The marks of a Canonicall writing in the old Testament are these: First, that it is written by a Prophet: by reason whereof the Canonicall books of the old Testament are named the Prophetical writings, Jer. 16.26. and the Prophetical word, 2 Pet. 1.19. And that consequently it is not written since the dayes of Malachi, who was the last of the Prophets. Reade Iosephus against Appian, lib. 1. and Eusebius Hist. Eccles. lib. 3. cap. 2. Secondly, That which is written in the Hebrew tongue for the Scriptures of the old Testament, is written in the Church of Israel, which onely used the Hebrew tongue. See Hieronym. pref. in Paral. and in Esd. Thirdly, That by the Jewish Church it hath been acknowledged and held to be a Canonicall book: for the Jewes were trusted with the word of God, Isal. 47.19. Rom. 3.2. and commanded to keep them faithfully, Deut. 32.39. which also they have done; so that Christ, howbeit he often reproved them of their evill expounding of the Scripture, yet he hath never accused them of corrupting or mingling the holy Scriptures, but shewed men to those writings which they had at that time, Luk. 16.29. John 5.39. Fourthly, That nothing is found in it, but that which is holy and true, and nothing opposite or contrary unto the truth, or the main doctrine in the Canonicall books comprehended. Now that these marks are not found in the aforementioned Apocryphall books appeareth by them most clearly. First, For none of them are written by a Prophet, as being all of them written after the time of Malachi, and the Authours of the same books confesse themselves, that no Prophet hath been in their time, as appeareth, 1 Mac. 4.46. and 9.27. see likewise 2 Mac. 2.21. and the preface of Syrach. The author of the book of Wisdom saith indeed, Chap. 9. 7. 8. that he is king Salomon, unto whom God hath commanded to build the Temple, but that is found untrue, being that this book is first written in Greek, as the stile sheweth, and it plainly appeareth by Chap. 4. 2. that the Authour maketh mention of the warres of the Greeks, which were 260 yeares after Salomonis time instituted. The ancient Doctors are of opinion, that this book is written by Philo the Jew, who lived after the birth of Christ, and beleeveth not in him: Read Hierom. in Prologo Galeato in lib. sap. and Prefat. in Proverb. Salomonis. Secondly, Neither are the books written in Hebrew but in Greek: yea, that fourth book of Esdras is not found but in the Latine. Thirdly, They have never been put in the Register of the Divine books which the Israeliticall Church had, as may be made manifest by Iosephus against Appion, lib. 1. who there recited but 22 Canonicall books, which the Jewish Synagogue held to be such; among which none of these are counted. Read also Euseb. Hist. Eccles. lib. 3. cap. 10. neither have they ever been read in the Synagogues of the Jewes, nor expounded by the Priests and Scribes of that people. It appeareth likewise that the Lord JESVS and his Apostles have not held these books to be Canonicall, being they never cite any thing out of them, as they do of the other books, of whose Divinity they beare witness every where, and never of these Apocryphall. When the Primitive Christian Church received the Canonicall Books of the old Testament from the hands of the Jewish Church, we finde not that any mention of them are made in the Registers which the Primitive Church had of the Canonicall books. Eusebius witnesseth, Histor. Eccl. lib. 4. cap. 26. that a certain ancient and excellent Teacher, named Melito, Bishop of Sardis, undertook expressly a journey towards the East for to enquire after the number and order of the Canonicall books, and that among them none of these were reckoned, as out of the Register it self may be seen. The Synode of Laodicea likewise, which was kept in the yeare of our Saviour 318. citing in the 59 Canon, the Register of the books which at that time were held for Canonicall by the Christian Church, makes no mention there, of any of these books: as neither do the ancient Ecclesiasticall writers, when they also relate the Register of the Canonicall books: as among others, Origen by Eusebius Hist. Eccl. lib. 6. cap. 24. Cyprianus in Symb. Athanasius in Synopsi. Eelarius in prol. Psal. Hieronym. in prol. Galeato, in prefat. in lib. Esdera, lib. Salom. Daniel. & Maccab. Nazianzenus in Carm. Ephiphanius Hares. 8. & in lib. de pond. & mens. Cyrillus Hierosolymitanus Catech. 4. Ruffinus in expos. Symb. Fourthly, Hereunto adde, that in most of these books are found divers untrue, impertinent, fabulous and contradictory things, not agreeing neither with the truth, nor with the Canonicall books. Out of very many, let these few suffice to cleare the matter. The whole fourth book of Esdras is nothing but a continuall narration of fained things which never hapned: as specially what the Authour recites in the Chap. 6. vers. 49, &c. of the two great beasts, Enoch, or Behemoth, and Leviathan, that favours most manifestly of the Jewish fables. And who can beleieve that to be true, which in the 14 chap. vers. 21, &c. is related, that the Law of God was wholly lost, and that the same was restored again by Esdras, within the space of 40 dayes? What is said in the 4 chap. vers. 41. of the souls of the dead, that they are kept in chambers or cells under the earth, is also clearly opposite unto the Canonicall writings, Eccles. 12. 7. 2 Reg. 2. 11. Math. 5. 3. and 12. Luke 16. 12. and 23. 43. 2 Cor. 5. 1. In the book of Tobias, besides that the Greek and Latine copies do mightily disagree, and contain many things contradictory one to another, there is attributed a lie unto an Angel: for in Chap. 12. 15. he saith, that he is the Angel Raphael, and in Chap. 5. 18, he saith that he is Ararias the son of the great Ananias. There is also related, that the Angel should have taught the young Tobias to chase away the evill spirit, with the roasting and perfuming of the heart and the liver of a fish. Chap. 6. 5. 8. and Chap. 8. 2. which favours not a little after the fained Talmudicall fables. Likewise it is not credible what is said in Chap. 3. 8. that an evill spirit Asmodi should have killed seven Bridegrooms of Sara. In the Chap. 3. 7. are two things contrary one to another, as that Sara dwelt in the city Rages, and Chap. 9. 6. that the Angel was sent out of her fathers house to go to Rages. Concerning the History of Judeth, there can be assigned no certain time, in which the same History hapned, from whence with good reason may be suspected, that it is but a meere invention: the more seeing the Jewish Historiographer Iosephus makes no mention of the same. And if it were hapned in the dayes of Nebuchodonozor, as is insinuated in the Chap. 1. 12. and the Chap. 2. 1. the holy Ghost would as well have described these wars, as that of Rabshakehs against Hezekiah, 2 King. 18. Esa. 36. Judeth is introduced in the 10. 11. and 12. Chapters, bringing forth many lies for to beguile and deceive the simple, contrary to the ninth Commandment, Exod. 20. 16. And for to confirm her oath, she abuseth also the name of God, Chap. 11. 4. 5. which cannot be without perjury and grievous profanation of Gods holy name, contrary to the third commandment, Exod. 20. 7. As also when she prays God to blesse this deceitfulness of her lips, Chap. 9. 13. Judeth doth pervert that murderous act of Simeon committed against the Sechemites, Gen. 34. 25, 26. which is contrary to the fifth commandment, Exod. 20. 13. and is detested of the Patriarch Jacob, as a wicked and impious deed, Gen. 49. 5, 6. In the book of Wisdom, besides that it is unjustly attributed unto Salomon, as is shown here above, there are also to be found things which agrees not with the Canonicall writings. In Chap. 8. 19, 20. the Authour speaks as if he were born without Originall sin, contrary to Esa. 51. 7. And what he saith in Chap. 14. 15. of the first invention of the service of Images; and in Chap. 17. 3. of the astonishment of strange apparitions, is not well to be beleeveth. The Authour of the book named Ecclesiasticus, Iesus Syrach, professes himself in the Preface vers. 5. that he hath interpreted a writing of his grandfathers, and craves for pardon, if in his labour he seemes to come short, which is a thing unbecoming a godly writer that is moved and led by the Spirit of God. He saith also in the 8 vers. that he hath written this book in the 38 yeare of king Evergestes: which cannot be true, seeing there never reigned a king of that name so long. Likewise when he saith in Chap. 1. 9. and Chap. 24. 10. that the Wisdom of God is created, hee gainsayeth and makes of no force the cleare testimony of the Prophet Salomon about the Eternity of the Son of God, Prov. 8. 22. And when he affirmed, that the honour done unto parents, maketh maketh an atonement for his sins, Chap. 3. 3. and in Chap. 29. 12. that almes deliver from all afflictions, he gainsayeth the Apostle Paul, Rom. 3. 24, 25. When he teacheth, that men can keep the commandments if men will Chap. 15. 15. that is repugnant with 1 Reg. 8. 46. Psal. 19. 13. Prov. 20. 9. Jerem. 13. 23. James 1. 9. In Chap. 25. 29.

 he counsels a man to forsake his wife, if she go not as he would have her, contrary to the doctrine of Christ, Mat.
 5. 31. and 19. 8, 9. In chap. 46. 22. he seemes to beleve, that Samuel was truly raised up by that Witch of Endor, 1 Sam. 28. 11. which is contrary to that of 1 Sam. 25. 29. and Luke 16. 27, &c. Apoc. 14. 13. And in Chap. 48. 10.
 he doth confirm that Jewish error, that Elias shall in person come again into the world: contrary to the doctrine of Christ, Mark. 9. 11. &c. The rest of the book of Ester after the Greek, contains also divers things that are repugnant unto the Hebrew and Canonickall book of Esther, as may appear by comparing both books together. In the Hebrew, chap. 2. 16. is said, that this History hapned in the seventh yeare of king Ahasuerus; and in the Greek chap. 11. 2. that it hapned in the second yeare of king Artaxerxes. In the Hebrew, chap. 3. 5. is said, that Haman was full of wrath against Mordecai, because he bowed not his knees before him: and in the Greek, chap. 12. 6. that it was because of the two Eunuchs, who were punished by his declaration against them.
 In the Hebrew, chap. 5. 2. that the king, when Esther came up to him, received her graciously: and in the Greek, chap. 15. 7. that the king looked very fiercely upon her, so that she fell down and fainted. In the Hebrew, chap.
 6. 3. that Mordecai for his discovering of that treason had received no reward: and in the Greek, chap. 12. 5. that the king rewarded him for it. In the Hebrew, is the discovering of the treason set after the repudiation of Vash-ti, and the marrying of Esther, chap. 1. and in the Greek it is set before. In the Hebrew, chap. 3. 1. is said, that Haman was an Agagite, that is, an Amalakite: and in the Greek, chap. 16. 8. that he was a Macedonian, and sought to have translated the kingdome of the Persians to the Macedonians, which indeed hath no likelihood of truth, being at that time the Macedonians were of no force nor respect. In the book of Baruch, Chap. 1. 2. is said, that on the same time Jerusalem was taken in and burnt: contrary to that which is reported, 1 King. 25. 8, 9. and Jer. 52. 12. That Baruch did reade the words of this book in the hearing of Jechonias the king of Juda, and in the eares of all the people, Chap. 1. 3. which cannot be true, seeing Baruch was carried away into Egypt with Jeremy, Jer. 43. 6. and Jechonias sat in prison, Jer. 24. 1. That the king and the people have intreated the Priests to offer burnt-offerings and sin-offerings upon the altar of the Lord, Baruch 1. 10. whereas the Temple and altar were destroyed and rooted out. And in the Epistle of Jeremy, Chap. 6. 2. it is said that the Captivity of Babylon should last seven generations, contrary to that of Jeremy, Chap. 25. 12. and 29. 10. where it is said of seventy yeares onely: And being it is not credible that the Jewes in their Babylonish captivity should have had their own judges, which had power to judge a man to death, and should have spoken Greek: that they also should have had there stately houses and gardens, as it is said in the History of Susanna & Daniel, Chap. 13. 4, 5.
 54, &c. and that this history should have hapned at the time of king Cyrus, Chap. 13. 65. and that Daniel as then was yet a young child, Chap. 13. 45. being that Daniel was led away or transported at the time of Nebu-cadnezzar, Dan. 1. 2. and there passed seventy yeares between Cyrus and Nebucadnezzar, Jer. 29. 10. therefore the ancient Teachers have held both these and the other Greek Additions, for Jewish fables. Reade Hieron. prefat. in Dan. The like untrue, fabulous, and with the Canonickall books disagreeing, things are generally found in the books of the Maccabees. For 1 Maccabees 1. 7. is said, that Alexander the great, yet living, divided his Kingdomes amongst his Generals, which all other Historians avouch to be untruth, read Curt. lib. 10. Arian. lib. 7. Diodor. Sic. lib. 17. Plutarch, in vita Alexand. 1 Mac. 8. 16. is said, that the Romans trusted one man yearly with the highest power, being notoriously known, that they chose two Consuls yearly. 2 Maccabees 1. 12. is said, that the Isaelites were led away captive to Persia, which were led into Babylon, 1 Maccabees 8. 7. that the Romanes had taken prisoner King Antiochus the great, being alive: and Vers. 8. that they had given the Countrey of Iudea to the king Eumenes: Which is too untrue, seeing the Romane Histories confirm and witnesse that the Romanes have indeed in divers pitched battels, wholly defeated Antiochus, but was never taken prisoner: and that the Romanes never had subdued India, Reade Appian, Zozin. Justin. Hieronim. in Dan. So is that also untrue which 1 Maccabees 12. 20. Oniases, or Arius the King of Sparta saith, that the Sparians are of the posterity of Abraham: At the time also of the high Priest Onias there was no Arius king of Sparta: but king Arius, of whom Pausanias and Plutarch make mention to have lived four hundred years after that time. There are also contrary things found in this book. For 1 Macc. 8. 16. is said, that Antiochus Epiphanes died on his bed at Babylon: and 2 Maccabees 1. 16. that he was stoned by the Priests of the Temple of Diana Nanea, and cut in pieces. And 2 Maccabees 9. Vers. 5, 28. That he in the Mountaines, coming from Persia, fell down from his Chariot, and that he died there of an incredible and incurable paine in his inward parts, 1 Maccabees 9. Vers. 3, 8.
 is said, that Judas Maccabeus was slain in the battell, in the yeare, one hundred fifty and two. And 1 Maccabees 1. 19, 10. that he in the yeare one hundred eighty and eight, had written a letter to Egypt, which should be six and thirty yeares after his death. That savours also somewhat of the Jewish fables, which related, 2 Maccabees 1. 19. That the Priests had concealed the fire of the Perfume Altar in a pit, which was a dry ground: and Chapter 2. Vers. 4, 5, that Jeremias had hid the Tabernacle, Arke, and Perfume Altar in a cave of a Mountain, on which Moses ascended; and saw the inheritance of God: as likewise, the vision of Judas Maccabeus, 2 Mac. 15. 12, &c.

Finally,

Finally, there are also things found contrary to the Doctrine of the Canonick books: for 2 Mac. 14. 37. 41. 46. is the Act of one Razis commended, who killed himself, contrary to the sixth commandment, Exod. 20. 13. and 2 Mac. 17. 43. &c. is commended the action of Judas Maccabeus, offering for the dead, which is contrary unto the Law, which offering for the dead is no where commanded, but expressly forbidden, Psal. 49. 8. and that this second book of the Maccabees is no Canonick book, appeareth plainly; because it is a short abridgement of five books written by one Iason of Cyrene, who was no Prophet, 2 Mac. 2. 241. and the Author that hath abridged these Books, telleth us that he hath done it with great trouble and paines, 2 Mac. 2. 27. and intreats the Readers to excuse him, if he hath done this work slenderly or meanly, 2 Mac. 15. 39. which becometh not a Divine writer, moved by the Spirit of God. Hence it appeareth plainly; that the forenamed books are not Canonick, but Apocrypha: which consequently ought not to be read in publick in the Church, and from which, as humane writings, no proofes may be drawn to confirm any one Article of Faith, but that our faith ought to be builded upon the foundation of the Prophets and Apostles, Ephes. 2. 20.

Ordained at the Synode of Dort in the yeare 1618. Set out and annexed, by the Deputies, to the end of the Dutch Bible newly Translated.
